gathered only 14 points via the foul shot.

IN THE FRIDAY hair-raiser against Rollins, the Seminoles had to stage an up-hill battle to notch their 90-83 victory. Behind 82-81 with less than two minutes to play, FSU staged a furious rally and poured through 7 points in the last minute. The lead changed hands 25 times before the final game-winning splurge.

Five of the eight Seminoles who saw action against the Tars got 10 or more points, with Wernke leading the way with 21. Right behind him was Westafer with 20. Richardson got 13, Sophomore Tommy Burst scored 12, and Duane Gordon notched 11.

But scoring honors for the night were taken by Rollin's Bob McHardy with 31. McHardy was all over the floor for the Tars and his play kept his team in the struggle till the end.

FSU Has Purchased Van Hyning Collection

The Van Hyning Shell Collection, reputed to be one of the best in Florida, has been purchased by Florida State University for study, teaching, research and display purposes, Dr. James S. Cullison, head of the department of geology, has announced.

Boasting 2,765 species, the collection is classified into three major categories: Florida shells, 1,357 species, world shells, 2,194 species; and Iowa shells, 214 species.

"THE FLORIDA collection has special significance because there are so many specimens of each species, 25 or more, from so many different localities, offering study of variations within individual species." Dr. Cullison said.

Beautiful conch specimens, including queen, fighting, trumpet and Triton (Greek sea god) hor are among the Florida shells. Th are from the East Coast, W Coast, Island Beaches and Keys. Many were dredged up fro deep waters.

IMPRESSIVE AMONG exhi tion shells in the collection a three pairs of man-eating cla from the South Pacific, weigh about 300 pounds per pair, t kind pearl divers fear becau they are sometimes caught b tween the huge lips. The cla are not literally man-eating.

The Iowa collection is compris entirely of land and fresh wa shells. It is one of two know complete collections of its kin

THE LATE DR. T. Van Hynin who made his collection of shells lifetime hobby, was director of t Florida State Museum at Gaine ville for many years. He had co tact with collectors all over t state, the country and the wo —traded with them and boug from them. Purchase of the co lection was made through one his four sons, C. C. Van Hyning Sebring.

Exhibition shells in the geolo department are treated with plastic spray to preserve brig natural colors and give a hi gloss. They are carefully mounte labelled and placed in showcase enabling students and visitors make direct comparisons and d ductions with personal shell fin ings.

DR. CULLISON said only exh bition shells in the new collectio will be unpacked immediately b cause present crowded quarters the department put a premium space. University plans call for new geology building. When it finished, a comprehensive exhib tion of the Van Hyning shells w feature the opening.

Meanwhile, Dr. Cullison and h staff are displaying exhibit shells of the new collection space available. Arrangements a underway to make the exhibit open to the public, Sundays well as weekdays.

yards and was taken by Phifer, who ran it back 25 yards to his 42. The half ended with TC on the loser's eight yard line.

Theta Chi took the kick-off to start the second half, but on their second play, Phifer fumbled and LC's Wassoner recovered at the 40: a mishap resulting in the game's first TD. From here Miller picked up 10 and Mansfield scampered for gains of 10 and 9 yards. On second down, with LC six away from a score, Mansfield dashed around end, but was hit inches short of the double line by Schafer. However, Suttlemyre, on the next play, cracked over and the Lambda Chi's were ahead. The try for extra point, an end run, failed.

About five minutes later the game was thrown into a tie on Blinn's 70 yard touchdown run. Just before Blinn's score, Scutter Mead intercepted a Phifer pass for Lambda Chi, at the TC 5, but TC got the ball right back when they recovered a Lambda Chi fumble.

Minutes before the end of the contest, the same winning tally was chalked up by TC. They got the ball after a 50 yard completed pass by Suttlemyre was nullified by a backfield-in-motion penalty. Then Lambda Chi punted. On the first attempt after taking the punt at their 45, Phifer hit Blinn with a perfect throw at the 20. Blinn, who had gotten behind the LC defense, sprinted the rest of the way. The try for extra point was unsuccessful.

The winners were coached by varsity footballers Al Wodham and Vic Szczepanik, while the mentors for the Lambda Chi's were Vic Polak and Ken MacLean. MacLean is the "B" team football coach.—J E.

Thornhill's Band To Play Sandspur

Claude Thornhill, the nationally famous Columbia recording artist, wil bring his orchestra to Florida State Saturday, February 21, for the Sandspur dance, which will run from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Suwannee Room, Sandspur Chairman Jim Harris announced.

Only 1500 tickets will be sold this year, according to Sandspur dance committee's head Mac McCall. This action has been taken after careful consideration of all facts involved in the overcrowding of the Suwannee Room during past dances. Former dances have been so crowded, states McCall, that numerous students have requested a smaller dance with tickets sold on a "first-come-first-served" basis.

OVER 250 STUDENTS were asked if they would rather have a cut crowd as against a larger crowd with lower prices for admission.

"Our ability to do this," McCall continues, "was facilitated by the fact that we obtained this orchestra (the Thornhill ensemble) at a slightly less expensive rate than has been possible in the past. The Military Ball proved to be one of the most successful dances yet held on campus for the same reason; there were no more than 1700 in attendance.

IN REPLY to many queries from all over campus as to why Ralph Flanagan, Billy May or other comparable orchestras couldn't be obtained, the dance committee has stated two reasons. First the limited facilities of the Suwannee Room would

Last Tuesday evening, the debate squad discussed the strategy that would best help in debating the question. Dr Gregg Phifer, coach of the team, commented "Our opponents will be tough to beat, but we're going to show them that so are we."

Last year was the first year that FSU had been invited to participate in the tournament although the Seminoles had chalked up wins against other opponents. Going into the tournament they were considered the underdogs but emerged the undisputed victors.

Soda Shop to Try New Closing Hour Tracy Announces

The Soda Shop of the Longmire Building will be closed daily at 5 p.m., according to a notice from Miss Anna M. Tracy, director of Food Service. This went into effect Monday because of "financial reasons," she said.

A study of the records of income and patronage, said Miss Tracy, show that 70 per cent of the income comes before 3 p. m.; 66 per cent of the customers comes before 3 p. m. "There is so little trade at night at the Soda Shop," she continued, "that often the only people in the Shop were the employees. We cannot operate during hours when the income of those hours is less than the cost of operation."

MISS TRACY explained the drop in business because the Student Center draws the crowds, and the once popular "night spot" is no longer heading the list.

"Perhaps at some future date we may open the Soda Shop at night again if the trade is sufficient to justify it. If we had a spot near the Soda Shop where we could have impromptu dancing, perhaps we could again attract the students to the Soda Shop at night.

"If at any time there should be a big dance in them Longmire Building," she concluded, "and the sponsors of the dance want the Soda Shop open, I shall be glad to consider their wishes."

Citrus Grower From Ft. Pierce Becomes 31st Florida Governor

Florida's New Governor

McCARTY INAUGURATED—Dan McCarty of Ft. Pierce takes the oath of office from Supreme Court Chief Justice H. L. Sebring. McCarty officially became Florida's 31st governor at the inauguration ceremonies held Tuesday in Tallahassee.

McCarty Inaugurated Here Before Crowds of Spectators

Dan McCarty became he 31st governor of the state of Florida Tuesday as many Florida State University students and faculty members stood in the crowds and watched. The University closed its clasrooms for the Inaugural events.

McCarty took the oath of office from Supreme Court Chief Justice H. L. Sebring 10 minutes before high noon, the traditional time for the swearing in of Florida governors. The Bible used in the ceremony was a gift from McCarty's mother before she died.

THE 40-YEAR-OLD Ft. Pierce citrus grower and cattleman—not the usual lawyer—made a short inaugural address after receiving the seal of the state from out-going Gov. Fuller Warren, who had, before the ceremonies, given a farewell address to the people.

McCarty repeated his often made statement that "we can meet the needs of the next four years without additional taxation on our people," but added that he will ask the Legislature convening in April to increase the tax on dog race tracks "which I feel are not now contributing their fair share to the cost of government."

HE ADVOCATED further promotion of the tourist trade, urging the people of Florida to treat tourists as investors, not spenders. The tourists, he said, who pay a third of the state's taxes, must be shown the tax money they contribute is soundly spent and supports a government that is morally clean.

The new Governor also stands for reorganization and consolidation of conservation services, more agricultural research, additional money and effort for health, welfare, education and institutional care. He also said, "There will be no tickets issued to anyone for a gravy train ride."

HE PLEDGED, "I will not tol-

FSU Students Aid Survey On Elections Journalistics

Twenty students of the School of Journalism and other departments assisted recently in the first state-wide survey of the 1952 presidential campaign.

The survey, conducted under the supervision of Prof. Sidney Kobre of the School of Journalism, was carried out for the purpose of learning how the Florida press handled the Eisenhower-Stevenson campaign from a news, picture and editorial standpoint.

THE STATISTICAL forms were worked out by Prof. Kobre in consultation with Dean Laurence R. Campbell and Prof. William R. Slaughter of the Journalism School. Funds were provided by the FSU Research Council.

"In the investigation," explained Dr. Kobre, "the students and I examined 34 out of 37 Florida papers for one month, a crucial period. Our survey covered the period from Oct. 1 to Nov. 3, the day before the election."

SOME IDEA of the extent of the investigation can be obtained when the number of inches of news copy the students measured is learned. During the investigation, the teams read 61,500 inches of news space and 5,241 news articles. They scrutinized 607 photographs. On the editorial side they read 331 editorials and 309 columns.

Eight specific yardsticks were used by the researchers to determine the policies of the papers and their news and editorial stress. These yardsticks included the nnmber of news stories for each party, the number of inches given each group and the size of headlines they received. The investigators also determined the number of stories for Eisenhower and Stevenson on the front page, and their position. The number of photographs devoted to each candidate were listed.

IN A SIMILAR fashion the student-researcher counted the number of editorials for Stevenson and for Eisenhower and then they read and totaled the "columns" written by local and syndicated writers.

What conclusions did the evidence based on the investigation show? Here are some of the general conclusions, according to Prof. Kobre, who gives considerable credit to the students who did the measuring and to James E. Couch, who worked on the final computations and charts.

1. On nearly all the individual news and picture categories examined, the Florida newspapers, as a whole, favored the Democratic party by a small percentage. The score was 51 per cent for the Democrats, 49 per cent for the Republicans. There were many variations in treatment from paper to paper.

2. IN TWO of the three positions on the front page, the Democrats, generally were favored in the upper-right, the best position, and in the lower-half of the page. The Republicans were given an advantage in the upper-left hand position. Some papers leaned heavily toward the Republicans on the front page, others stressed the Democratic stories.

3. The Republicans got the better breaks in the larger headlines over the state. This was significant, in view of the fact that the Democrats received more stories. Some of the strongly Democratic papers gave the headline breaks to that party.

4. REGARDING the Florida press's editorial opinions in the campaign, the newspapers generally favored the Republican party. Twenty-one dailies favored Eisenhower, while seven supported the Democrats. The others were neutral or did not furnish copies of their papers.

The papers favoring the Republicans in both editorials and in columns represented a circulation of 858,189 or 79 per cent of the daily circulation. The seven Stevenson papers had a circulation of 172,340, representing 18 per cent of the circulation.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS carried the story of the survey to every newspaper in the state. Many of them published it and commented editorially on the survey.

Music will be furnished by [illegible] Kmen and his orchestra who also played for the Landis Formal earlier this year.

Highlighting the evening will be the dance reserved for the presentation of new taps into Cavalier and Cotillion ranks. The taps will be formally introduced by the presidents of the two organizations.

Refreshments will be served during the evening and extra buses have been made available for the affair. The last bus will leave Westcott at 12:45 a. m. for West Campus and there will be several extra buses at the "O" Club at the close of the dance ot handle the return traffic to East Campus.

Tickets are on sale at the Post Office at the Student Center and at the bus stop directly behind Westcott until 4 p. m. today. There will also be a sale of tickets at the door tonight.

Theater Dance Group Plans Annual Program Next Week

The programs are free and open to the public, but tickets will assure admission. Tickets will be given out at the main office of the Women's Gym—to students, Jan. 9, 10, 12—to faculty, staff and public, Jan. 12-14. There will be admission without tickets if seats are available after 8 p.m. each night.

MISS NELLIE-BOND Dickinson, associate professor of physical education for women, is director of the Theater Dance Group.

Featured as an opening number will be a large contemporary dance group, seven men and seven women students in a Western number. Miss Bettye Doss, instructor in physical education for women, is director for the dancers who did their own choreography for this number. Marleen Forsberg, student, will be piano accompanist.

ALSO ON THE program will be a Tango; a dance called Chicago, based upon Carl Sandburg's poem by that name; Matinee Musicales, a group of three satirical dances, choreographed and

• PAUL DIED

By EMORY KING

Paul died Wednesday morning. Today a minister will say kind things about him and he will be carried to his grave. He was my teacher, and my critic; he was my friend.

Three years ago in summer school Paul Scalara was beginning his teaching career in journalism, and I was beginning my learning career there. He taught me, he counseled me, he gave me hell, and he taught me to write.

During these three years we have been as close as any professor and student can be. He had a tremendous background in journalism, having worked for Philadelphia and Baltimore papers, and doing a seven year job with Time magazine. He knew big time journalism and understood equally the small town papers and their problems. He gave to all his students an insight into their chosen field.

He was a man of quiet power. He would sit in class, his feet propped on the desk, lost in thought for a few moments over a problem and then begin to talk—quietly and almost without effort, but the words were powerful and meaningful. The next minute he might be engaging in ping-pong repartee with a student—if the student could keep pace in the argument.

He stood for truthful, honest, and militant journalism. "You can fight like hell," he told me, "without being dishonest or sensational. Just get the facts and tell them simply and without malice. The truth will speak for itself."

When he criticized a piece of writing he could scorch the hide off the writer. He could take a piece and rip it to shreds sentence by sentence, paragraph by paragraph, and when he was through the student would know every fault with the story, and somehow none of us ever resented it. Then, he would put the story back together again, making the student fill in the bad parts and we learned how to write better and easier.

His whole attitude was prevaded by a terrific sense of humor, and he was his own best joke. When he covered the Republican National Convention this summer he sent a story to the Tallahassee Democrat in which he mentioned that the Florida delegation was housed in a pent-house suite overlooking Lake Michigan—from which one could see Canada on a clear day. The fact that one can not see Canada from Chicago at any time slipped his mind. Ever since, he has been telling it on himself and laughing.

When his old enemy, diabetes, put him in the hospital a month ago I was working there and we were able to have several bull sessions about writing and philosophy and lots of just plain bull. When pneumonia set in and ganged up on him the bull sessions slowed down a bit, but we still talked whenever he felt up to it. He was full of future plans and ideas the last time I saw him.

When I left him Sunday night he was a fighting man—fighting diabetes and pneumonia, confident that he would win, and planning other battles for the future with short stories, and news items, and smart alec students. But Paul died Wednesday morning.

Newlyweds See Big Future Through Planning, Saving

Love still can conquer all. But in these days of high prices and inflation it must be helped along with hard work and careful planning.

That's the story of Jack M. Watkins, 23 and Adrienne Pope, 19, students at Florida State University, and now Mr and Mrs. Jack Watkins.

WATKINS AND Adrienne met in a class on campus two weeks after school started in September 1951. They were married December 23 in Winter Haven.

These two events are linked together by a story of two sensible youngsters who built their home with their own hands, furnished it, opened a joint savings account and planned their future . . . all before their wedding.

THEIR STORY really begins six months after they met, the day Watkins gave Adrienne his fraternity pin.

Shortly after they separated for the Summer, but not before they had opened a joint savings account and made plans to save what they could during the summer to go into it.

WATKINS, CADET Lieutenant Colonel in Air Force ROTC went to summer camp at MacDill Field, Tampa. Adrienne, a member of the Cypress Garden water ski troupe, spent 10 weeks performing at Jones Beach, N. Y.

After they returned to the FSU campus in the fall, they began planning a house. They decided to build their own in their spare time.

WATKIN'S PARENTS, Mr. and Mrs. Steve M. Watkins of Thomasville, Ga., had recently converted a barn on their property into temporary living quarters when fire destroyed their home.

Young Watkins and Adrienne added a three-room apartment, with bath, to the barn.

"I DID MORE 'designing' than actual work," Adrienne said. "Jack did it all."

And Jack did.

WITH THE HELP of two laborers he poured concrete floors. He built the rest of the house by himself inside, outside, walls, roof, attic and inlayed the asbestos tile floor.

He put in all the plumbing, including a tile bathroom with shower, the electric wiring and fixtures, doors, cabinets, closets and built most of the furniture.

THE WINDOWS and much of the lumber came from a surplus Army barracks purchased for $100.

"One reason we got by so cheaply," Watkins said, "is that my father and I sell house trailers. I picked up a refrigerator, stove and some furniture out of a used trailer."

INSIDE, ADRIENNE and Mrs. Watkins had the say about the color schemes and they did a good deal of the painting themselves.

Outside the landscaping is almost complete, most of which Watkins and Adrienne did themselves. Prominent are azalea, rose and camellia plants.

AS PART OF their preparation for marriage, they both registered for the course, "Preparation for Marriage," in the School of Social Welfare.

Together they studied economic, religious and social factors important to engaged couples, and budgeting and planning for the future.

THEIR IMMEDIATE plans for the future, incidentally, include a five year tour of duty with the Air Force for Watkins after he graduates in 1954. They plan to call a 40-foot house trailer home wherever Watkins is stationed.

Watkins, who studies voice and chemistry at FSU, said they plan to save while he is in service and afterwards build a string of motels from Atlanta to Miami.

"NOT ALL at once, of course" Watkins said, "I'd start slow, but that's what I want to do."

And students on the FSU campus will give odds that Adrienne and Watkins will plan it and do it too.

Collegian Director Announces Plans

Any men wishing to be in The Collegians, the men's glee club, this next semester should sign up now, announced Prof. J. Dayton Smith, director of the singing group, today.

"As we plan to go on tour this next semester we would like to know exactly what number we'll be taking along with us. There are a few openings due to graduation, but most of the singers will be returning," continued Smith.

Having given their Christmas concert before a jam-packed audience in the Opperman Music Hall Dec. 17, the Collegians are getting ready for their Spring concert which will include many popular and standard songs. "There'll be a strong accent on humor in this concert," commented L. Wendall Carpenter, president of the choraliers.

Mr. Smith will be available for the registration of new members in his office in the School of Music.

Humanities Lecturer To Be Rabbi Kravetz

Rabbi Julius Kravetz, of Temple Israel in Tallahassee, will discuss "Jewish Traditions and Customs" in a lecture Jan. 14 in the Science Lecture Hall, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The lecture—free and open to the public—is the second in a series sponsored by the Humanities staff, according to Dr. Sarah Herndon, chairman of humanities, who announced the lecture.

Letters to Editor

Rumors Started

Dear Editor:

The closing of the Soda Shop in the Alumni Building without previous notice to the student body has, as usual in cases like this, produced rumors, accusations, and much unnecessary high blood pressure among interested members of the student body.

All the facts are not in, but so far it seems that the order to close the shop came from the vice-president's office at the insistance of Miss Anna M. Tracy, head dietitian.

The immediate and almost obvious conclusion is that the Student Service Center wants and probably needs more business. Students have noted in the past that the campus cannot really support two cafeterias, a Soda shop, a service center, and three independent eating places all at the same time. Something would have to go out of business or go broke.

However, it is my contention that the Service Center will not appreciably gain from the closing of the Soda Shop at night. Most students I have talked to have indicated that it is a lot closer to go to any one of the three independent eating establishments than to go all the way out to the Service Center.

Sources close to Westcott tell me that a delegation of students protesting in person to Vice-President Martin could re-open the Soda Shop. The Alumni building was built as a student meeting place. In the past years the ping pong and game room have been displaced by offices and now the Soda Shop, traditional meeting place of great numbers of students, is threatened.

In the three years that I have been observing student government, and the Flambeau, I have come to the conclusion that the students defeat themselves by not being vocal enough when problems concerning them arise.

If the students want the Soda Shop back during the evenings they can get it—if they will ask for it—either in person, through the Flambeau—or through their representatives in student government.

Jerusalem Student Celebrates Late Christmas, New Years

Tuesday was inauguration day for Governor-elect Dan McCarty of Fort Pierce, but it was Christmas Eve for Theophanis Maris of Jerusalem, Jordan, student at Florida State University.

Maris has lived by the Julian calendar (like our Gregorian calendar except it was 13 days later throughout). He has been in this country for only four months, coming on a four year educational visa especially to attend FSU. His arrival was timed for the current school year.

ALTHOUGH MARIS saw McCarty take his oath of office at high noon Jan. 6 in the capital, part of his thoughts were on his homeland. He said noon of Christmas Eve is the appointed hour when clergy of his Greek Orthodox church Jerusalem leave on an annual processional march for Bethlehem, followed by hundreds of worshippers.

All the 12 years Maris lived in the old walled city part of Jerusalem, he took part in the Christmas trek to Bethlehem where an impressive midnight mass is celebrated at the Church of the Nativity. This church was built about the fifth century on the traditional site of Christ's birthplace.

"THE ROAD used now from Bethlehem to Jerusalem is 22 miles long, paved, but narrow and dangerous because it cuts through mountains," Maris said. "Before 1948 a better road, just five miles long, was used so that more people joined the Christmas march, that was before the fighting between Arabs and Jews over the partition of Palestine, before "No Man's Land."

"Christmas is essentially a religious festival for the Greeks living in the Holy land. After the midnight church service they return to their homes for a customary chicken dinner, just an immediate family affair."

MARIS SAID his family and other Greeks in Jerusalem celebrate their New Year's, Jan. 14, more as we in America do Christmas. It is their day for candle-lighted trees and exchange of presents. Their Saint Basil has a role similar to our Santa Claus, is active on the Greek New Year instead of Christmas.

Greeks in the Bible lands attend church on New Year's as well as Christmas. Maris' family go to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, then later have a family reunion. The feast is climaxed by the head of the house cutting a huge New Year's cake featuring a gold coin baked inside. Whoever draws the slice with the coin, draws good fortune for the coming year.

NICKOLAS MARIS always cuts the New Year's cake in his family. The youngest of his seven children, Theophanis, has found the coin several times. He last found it in 1952—plans immediately began to materialize for his coming to America, to Florida to live with relatives in Tallahassee and attend Florida State University.

Maris explains that his given name "Theophanis" means "manifestation of God." He was born on the Greek Feast of the Epithany, Jan. 19, called the Theophany, at Suez, Egypt, where he lived for 12 years before moving to Jordan with his family.

HE HAS WITNESSED the Epiphany celebration at the River Jordan, 25 miles from Jerusalem, a number of times. That is the origin for the religious ceremony of throwing a cross into waters to be recovered by an expert diver—the service is conducted by Greek patriarchs of St. John's church at the Jordan. A similar ceremony takes place an earlier date at Tarpon Springs, Fla.

Personal knowledge of Biblical landmarks—the Garden of Gethsemane, Mount of Olives, Walls of Jericho, David's Tomb on Mount Zion, Nazareth, Bethlehem and Jerusalem—make Maris a distinctive student at FSU.

HE SPEAKS French, Arabic and Greek as fluently as he does English. His education prior to FSU was in French schools. He is majoring in industrial chemistry at the university because he is preparing himself to take part in the great modern development he anticipates for his ancient country. He thinks Jordan's potential industrial strength is its unexploited mineral fields.

Beauties Featured In Smoke Signals

Thirteen Florida State beauties will be featured in the next issue of Smoke Signals, according to Boots Haynie, editor, with one of them as cover girl, Miss Smoke Signals of 1953.

The identity of Miss Smoke Signals, chosen along with the other 12 by judges Dean Broward Culpepper, Dr. A. B. Martin, Mary Ruth Summers, Floyd Fogle and Boots Haynie, will be kept secret until the magazine comes out.

The 13 winners of the contest are Ann Adams, Barbara Brewton, Elizabeth Cooke, Mary Ann Fields, Jackie Goddard, Deane Jackson, Dot Johnson, Pat Leary, Carol Membert, Ann Monroe, Gail Tomlinson, Kathleen Toole and Ann Yates.

Twelve of these girls will represent months of the year in an inside article.

Dr. Herbert J. Vogt, assistant professor in the School of Business, attended the national convention of the American Business Law Association in Chicago during the holidays.

Scalera Funeral Rites Scheduled for Today

Funeral services for Paul Scalera, 31, assistant professor of journalism who died Tuesday night of diabetes and pneumonia, will be held at 10 a.m. this morning in the First Presbyterian Church.

Interment followed in Oakland Cemetery. The Rev. William T. Martin Jr. of the First Presbyterian Church officiated. Culley's Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

PROF. SCALERA, who lived at Fairhill on the Thomasville Highway, taught Mass Communications, Basic Reporting and Writing Fiction for Press and Radio. He was born near Philadelphia and went to school there. He received his degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

Scalera joined the FSU faculty of the School of Journalism in 1950. He was formerly a contributing editor of Time magazine, with the Easton (Pa.) Express, Baltimore Sun, Philadelphia Record and the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THIS SUMMER he was among the outstanding newsmen who were sent to a school in the North to study TV on-the-spot reporting. He covered the Democratic and Republican conventions with NBC-TV afterwards, the first time these political sessions were covered by that media.

Scalera is survived by his wife, Mrs. Paul Scalera, the former Yvonne Mason of Tallahassee; two daughters, Toni, 8, and Christi, 4; his mother, Mrs. Fioldo Scalera, New York; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Davison of California and Miss Lydia Scalera, France; two brothers, Daniel Scalera, New York and David Scalera, Texas. Actually the rule hasn't hurt the Seminoles in that respect. They've done little fouling and they've drawn plenty of shots from the hacking, pushing or blocking of opponents. They've been able to stay in several games solely on free-throw shooting.

Many of the players favor it. "The thought of another shot in case I miss the first one releases a lot of tension," one Seminole said. "The first shot helps you find the range better if you are nervous or excited."

ANOTHER COMPLICATION to which the ruling has led involves the sports writers and scorekeepers. "What do you mark down in your scorebook on missed foul shots?" asked the Louisville Courier-Journal's Earl Ruby. "Do you show both attempts or just one? If a boy misses the first and makes the second does he get credit for .500 or 1.000 in the percentage column?

The NCAA and the Associated Press have declared that all free throws should be counted in the scorebook. If a player misses the first and makes the second, he is charged with one free throw missed. If he fails on both he is charged with two misses.

In Kentucky, however, a high school player is credited with a percentage of 1.000 if he makes one of his two shots good. "After all," someone has said, "the most a boy can make is one point. If he makes the point, how can you say his marksmanship was only half right?"

Do YOU get the point? Well, we don't see the justice in it and personally favor its abolishment. That seems to be the sentiment of the crowd, too. After all, anyone can score if he is allowed to shoot 'til he misses.

JUST DOODLING—A Los Angeles Ram professional football halfback must spend 14 days in jail for socking his mother-in-law, a story said . . . Most people would give him a medal.

Success is really making Tony DeSpirito, the jockey who set an all-time record for winning mounts with 390 last year, take on airs. The Dandy Desperado has bought an airplane and will fly to tracks around the country this year in an effort to beat the clock and his own mark.

A former California and Texas Tech football star has been arrested in Mississippi, of all places, for, of all things, cattle rustling. Seems like the guy could at least remain loyal to the Longhorn State and swipe his beef in Texas.

Diamond Dust

Baseball Moves Into Sportlight

Florida State's freshman and transfer diamond hopefuls were dusting off their spokes and pulling out the resin bags this week as baseball, daddy of all American sport, moved in for its 1953 fling, a couple of months prematurely.

Baseball Coach Ralph Matherly, who doubles in brass as FSU's business manager, issued the first call for candidates this week and newcomers to State opened light preliminary drills on the West Campus playing field yesterday.

Matherly, who directed the 1952 Seminoles to a crediteble 20-5 record against stiff competition, has asked that all new students who would like to try their hands at baseball report for the 3:30-5 p. m. workouts.

Last season's holdovers won't report yet.

Plenty of running and easy throwing is scheduled for the next few days.

Duval Officials Appear in Forum On Child Guidance

Two officials from the Child Guidance Clinic of Duval County, Jacksonville, will be the speakers Thursday, Jan. 15, at 7:30 p. m. in the Longmire Auditorium in the Child Development Forum.

Dr. E. L. Flemming, clinic director, will present "The Child Guidance Clinic in the Community," a discussion of the structure and functions of such an agency and the administrative problems inherent in such an agency.

Dr. H. G. Ginott, psychotherapist with the clinic, will speak on "Psychotherapy with Children." A discussion period will follows the formal presentations.

Both Dr. Flemming and Dr. Ginott received Doctor of Education degrees from Teachers College, Columbia University. Dr. Ginott has studied under Slavson and Axline. Both Duval County officials have done extensive work with children, and at present are engaged in a comprehensive group therapy program with not only the children referred to the clinic but also their parents. In this way they hope to make the clinical facilities more available in view of limitations of time and personnel.

Volleyballers Ready For Smokey Mountain

Florida State's traveling volleyballers hit the road next week for their second outing of the 1952-53 season, and this time their foray will take them all the way to hilly Tennessee.

Coach Bill Odeneal's 20-man squad will compete in the Smokey Mountain Invitational in Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday of next week.

The Seminoles opened their season December 5 with the Pensacola Invitational. They are out to improve on a 23-15-5 record of last season.

E. Stanley Jones, outstanding missionary, currently conducting services at Trinity Methodist Church, Tallahassee, was a guest Wednesday at the Methodist Student Center, Wesley Foundation at Florida State University.

Mr. Jones, who is conducting a series of sermons on "Abundant Living" at Trinity Church, appeared for dinner Wednesday at the Wesley foundation and conducted an informal discussion with students.

The author of several books, among which "The Way" and "Abundant Living" are notable, Mr. Jones is considered an authority in his field.

Announcement is also made by the Methodist Student House of its annual reception for members of the four Methodist churches in Tallahassee Sunday afternoon from 3-5 p. m.

At that time, Mrs. Helen Vredenburgh, the new house director of the Methodist Student House will be introduced.

Seminole Cagers Try Miami Tonight

Clash With Hurricane in Magic City; At Tampa Monday, Southern Tuesday

By PAT HOGAN

Flambeau Sports Editor

Florida State's unpredictable young Seminoles—making their first extended foray down South Florida way—test basketball ala Miami style when they visit the University of Miami Hurricane for an intra-state showdown in the Majic City tonight.

Tonight's first meeting of the season between the cake cutups of Miami and Bud Kennedy's Seminoles precede two other contests with "Southern" quintets on the six-day road safari.

The Indians trek back to Tampa to meet the Tampa Spartans Monday night and jump over to Lakeland to oppose Florida Southern's Moccasins Tuesday evening.

MIAMI IS GOOD. But the are hoping the Hurricane isn't good and mad. State sheared Miami in a three-point upset in this district's NAIB tournament last March.

It was the first FSU victory in four jousts with Miami, and the Hurricane hasn't forgotten the sting. They'll really be after this renewal in a series that's growing hotter with each meeting.

Kennedy and a 13-player State squad left Tallahassee Wednesday smarting from a six-point loss to Loyola's gangling Wolfpack in the West Campus gym here Tuesday night.

The Tribe will carry a 4-4 record into tonight's game with Miami. Ironically, the Hurricane has an identical mark at 4-all.

THE SEMINOLES, who have looked like worldbeaters (in an 93-52 pasting of Mississippi State before the holiday), and schoolboys (in a three-point loss to Missouri Central) need a win tonight to keep on the victory ledger in Florida's intercollegiate cage scramble.

Both Miami and State are unbeaten in the race for the mythical state crown. The Seminoles toppled Rollins, 90-83, in a record-snapping scoring spree in their only outing against a Sunshine squad. Miami shaved the University of Florida by two points and walloped Florida Southern by 23 in their only starts against neighboring competition.

On the firing line for FSU against the Hurricane tonight will be Jimtom Richardson of Jacksonville and Jerry Westhafer of Greensburg, Ind., at forwards; Rick Benson of Maitland at center, and Ham Wernke of Batesville, Ind., and Jimmy Oler of Economy, Ind., at guards.

WERNKE WILL attempt to continue his sensational scoring march. The six-foot, second-semester freshman has canned 173 points in eight games. That's better than 21 per outing and ranks Ham high on the list of America's leading small-college scorers.

On Monday night, State and Tampa will battle for the lead in their close-as-close-can-be series. The Seminoles and Spartans are even-Stephen in 10 games, each having won five.

The Indians hold a 6-5 edge in 11 contests with Florida Southern.

Other players besides the above mentioned making the trip are Duane Gordon, Gary Wold, Bob Pence, H. B. Marcum, Tom Dellahan, Dick Artmeier, Tom Burst and George Kallish Jr.

AND IF YOU would like to know how a State basketball team travels (by bus), here's a list of the starts and stops on the current trip, dating back to Wednesday.

Wednesday, Jan. 7—Leave Tallahassee, 4 p. m.; arrive Tampa, 5 p. m. Team will be quartered at Thomas Jefferson Hotel.

Thursday, Jan. 8—Leave Tampa, 10 a. m.; arrive Miami, 6 p. m. Team will be quartered Thursday Friday, and Saturday nights at the Patricia Hotel in Miami.

Sunday, Jan. 11—Leave Miami, 10 a. m.; arrive Tampa, 5 p. m. Team will be quartered at Thomas Jefferson Hotel Sunday and Monday nights.

Indian Gymnasts Shade Strong Syracuse Contingent, 55 to 41

By Tom Conkling

Flambeau Gymnastics Writer

Paced by co-captain Carmine Regna, who won two first places, the national champion Seminole gymnasts downed a strong but out manned Syracuse contingent, 55-41, December 18th in the East Campus gymnasium.

Jack Miles, national AAU flying rings champion, notched the only other first for the Pricemen on the rings.

Carmine, who, along with brother Joe Regna co-captains the FSU squad, was the big gun of the evening, outclassing all competitors in the high bar and parallel bars events.

Other firsts were claimed by Syracuse's Barkel on the side horse, Fournies in the rope climb and Sebbo in tumbling.

The highest score was earned by "Corky" Sebbo, as the superb Syracuse performer completely out-classed all competitors in the tumbling event, scoring 293 points out of a possible 300. Florida State's Dick Gutting barely edged teammate Larry Weston for second place. Two judges awarded second to Gutting by narrow margins while the third scored Weston second only to Sebbo.

The highlight of the evening was the rope-climbing event in which the school record was lowered no less than four times. Seminole "Speed" Marcus started off the record-breaking evening by climbing the distance in 4.6 seconds.

Benny Wallace of State, immediately following, grabbed the rope and set an all-time FSU record by blazing the course in 4.5 seconds flat. Then Fournies Syracuse ace, climbed the 20 feet in 3.4 seconds. Fournies effort was just three-tenths of a second shy of the world record. It stands as the all-time record for the Florida State gymnasium.

In an anti-climax effort, Wallace broke the old record of 4.9 for the fourth time of the evening as he was timed at 4.5 seconds.

Under the coaching of Frank Hill, Wallace and Marcus have reached national contention in less than four months.

The next meet will be the Florida AAU meet which will be held in February in the East Campus Gym.

Side Horse—1. Barkel (S) 2. Holder (FSU) 3. Fournies (S).

Horizontal Bar—1.C. Regna (FSU) 2. Trnka (S) 3. Holder (FSU).

Parallel Bars—1.C. Regna (FSU) 2. Trnka (S) 3. Signorelli (FSU).

Flying Rings—1. Miles (FSU) 2. Fournies (S) 3. J. Regna (FSU).

Rope Climb—1. Fournies (S) 2. Wallace (FSU) 3. Marcus (FSU).

Tumbling—1. Sebbo (S) 2. Gutting (FSU) 3. Weston (FSU).

Seminoles Fall, Loyola Too Tall

New Orleans Club Hot In 72-to-66 Conquest

Loyola University of the South's colorful Wolfpack helped FSU usher in the new year on the wrong foot when the rangy New Orleans quintet grabbed a 72-66 decision over the Seminoles in a West Campus basketball thriller Tuesday night.

Sporting a starting lineup which averaged six-feet, five-inches, Loyola capitalized on its height and a sizzling shooting show from the floor to hand the Seminoles their fourth setback as against four wins.

Loyola led all the way, with the exception of the one point midway in the first period, when FSU enjoyed a 13-12 advantage.

The Indians rallied in the final minute, closing the gap from 12 to six points, but the clock left them shy at the finish.

Freshman Ham Wernke and Sophomore Jerry Westhafer paced the State scorers. Ham poured in 26 points and Westhafer bucketed 13.

It was the first game for the Seminoles since they blasted Mississippi State's Maroons, 93-52, in their last outing before the Christmas vacation.

FSU Represented At NCAA Conclave

Five members of Florida State's department of Athletics are attending the annual meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association which opened in Washington, D. C., Wednesday.

APO's Will Meet

Two Florida State members of Alpha Phi Omega, the service honorary composed of former Boy Scouts, received honors at the bi-annual convention of APO in Columbus, O., during the last week of December.

Jimmy Evans, president of the APO chapter here, was elected to the National Executive Board, the first Floridian to ever be recognized in this way and the second undergraduate to be on the board since its founding.

Bert McIntosh, an FSU pledge, was one of those to be initiated on the convention floor before representatives of the 135 chapters all over the nation.

Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi's composition "The Unwilling Bride" will be presented. Miss Dickinson did the choreography. The dance will be a saraband, an old dance processional form, slow and formal. It will be treated from a dramatic, narrative approach. It is the second of a suite of dances planned to music by Dohnanyi, FSU professor of composition and piano.

Also featured will be a dance in three parts called "Lost Eden." Carlisle Floyd, Jr., instructor in piano at FSU, wrote the music especially for the number. Mr Floyd has another composition on the program, "Theme and Variations," which he did for the Theater Dance Group last year. It is being repeated this year because of a number of special requests.

Following the inauguration, during which Prof. J. Dayton Smith, FSU, led the audience in the singing of "America," tha annual parade took placa. Several FSU co-eds rode on floats representing the various Florida counties, while Gymkana and Circus had floats also. The FSU "Marching Chiefs," garbed in their new Seminole uniforms, were among the bands, and the Delta Tau Delta social fraternity red fire wagon was, of course, present.

AFTER THE parade, from 3 until 5 p.m., Gov. and Mrs. McCarty held open house at the Executive Mansion on Adams St. At 8 p.m. until 10 p.m. the State Capitol was the scene of the Governor's Reception, with guests filing in the east entrance and going out the west.

At 9:30 p.m. Florida State University, which, like the streets of downtown Tallahassee, was decorated in flags and buntings for the welcoming of the new state executive, played host to the Governor and leading citizens of the state. Two of the five Inaugural Balls were held on the campus, one at the Women's Gymnasium and the other in the Suwannee Room. Other balls were held at the Legion Home, the Country Club and Florida A&M College. Florida State students attended the dances here, which ended at 1:30 a.m. The Governor and his wifa appeared at each of the social functions.

Journalism Study Needed by Press

Professional newsmen should study the history of the American press is the opinion of Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of journalism here.

This was brought out in an article by tha journalism professor in the current issue of "Editor and Publisher."

The national trade publication for newspapermen quotes at length from a report which Dr. Kobre completed recently in which he made a study of courses in the history of journalism.

In an editorial in the sama issue, the magazine concurs with Dr. Kobre. The editors agree that the newsman needs a working knowledge of history as well as mechanics of the press.

make it financially imposible. It would take approximately $6,000 to bring one of those orchestras suggested here which would make the tickets run about $7.50 per couple. This, the committee feels, would be too much to expect the students to pay. Second, the added chance that such a move might make the dance financially unsuccessful is too great. Besides, states the committee, there is no extra-curricular budget that would stand tha booking of a 6,000 dollar orchestra at FSU.

Tickets will go on sale the second week in February to facilitate the "first-come-first-served" basis on which they will be distributed.

THORNHILL'S ORCHESTRA will consist of 16 pieces. It features a good rhythm for formal dancing. It is generally conceded that Thornhill plays a good dance date, neatly blending the sweet with the modern tempo selections.

The ensemble is currently in the New York area and is expected to travel directly to Tallahassee from that city for the February date here.

BEFORE FINAL booking, the dance committee checked with several universities in the South, including University of Alabama and received reports that Thornhill's music was received with wide enthusiasm at every place he has performed.

Ons of Thornhill's most popular records is "Snowfall," his theme, and "Autumn Nocturne" on the reverse side of the current hit.

Sophomores To Meet In Longmire Building

All sophomores should attend the meeting and WSFU will carry it over their program schedule for the interest of the other classes.

A New University Is Soon to Open For Jap Students

A new international and interdenominational university near Tokyo, Japan, to be known as the International Christian University, has just been granted a charter by the Japanese Government according to Rev. Dr. Stanley I. Stuber, Executive Secretary of the Foundation.

Dr. Hachiro Yuasa, President of the university stated that securing the charter assures the definite opening of the International Christian University in April 1953. ICU is sponsored and partially supported by funds from fourteen major Protestant denominations in the United States and Canada.

GREAT INTEREST in ICU has been also shown in Hiwaii, Great Britain and the Continent. The Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., with which the Foundation recently became affiliated, has also given tha Japanese university its official endorsement.

The project has the public approval of many prominent Americans. Among them are General Douglas MacArthur, Honorary Chairman, and Joseph C. Grew, National Chairman, of the ICU Campaign in America; Sherman Adams, Winthrop W. Aldrich, Cecil B. DeMille, John Foster Dulles, Arthur S Flemming, Admiral William F. Halsey, Eric Johnston, General George C. Marshall, Douglas McKay, Admiral Chester W Nimitz, Mrs. Charles P. Taft, Lowell Thomas, Mrs. Wendell L. Wilkie, and scores of others including outstanding businessmen, clergymen and educators.

DR. STUBER pointed out that the broad purpose of ICU is to establish a university of the highest rank, based on the common and complementary values of the Christian religion and democratic philosophy. Specifically, the purpose of the university is to prepare new leaders for the new Japan. Following a careful study of the positive needs to fill the national life of Japan today, the program of the new university calls for the establishment of graduate schools of education, citizenship and public affairs, and social work, together with an undergraduate college of liberal arts. The latter will open first.

Conradi Theater To Feature Play

Speech Group Praises Shakespeare In Dramatizing His Immortal Work

When the speech department's production of Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" opens in Conradi Theater at 8:15 p. m. Friday for a four-day run, there will be evidence of eight weeks extensive rehearsal and even more time in the designing and building of costumes and scenery.

The problem of costuming a Shakespearean play today presents no easy solution. The answer must differ a little with each play, the problem is always to find the costume style best suited to the Shakespearean theater, the text and the spirit of the play.

THE SOLUTION for the forthcoming production of "The Taming of the Shrew" has been found by costumer Douglas Russell. Russell's association with the Oregon Shakespearean Festival at Ashland, Oregon, the Carnegie Institute of Technology and Florida State has given him the experience of costuming 22 Shakespearean plays.

Russell and his student staff, Nancy Dickinson, Jean Sparling and Del Hansen, have made 26 costumes. The induction scene, which is set in England, is costumed in the Elizabethean period. The rich and brilliantly colored slash and puff motif costumes of the players presenting "The Taming of the Shrew" to Christopher Sly are designed in the period of the late Italian Renaissance. Bulk has been achieved by the use of stiff cottons, sail cloth and yards of crinoline.

THE SET as designed by Charles Reimer and the director, Carl Zerke, follows the pattern of simultaneous setting in order to facilitate the rapid movement of the 14 scene changes which include nine different places of action. Reimer and his staff, Del Hansen, Charles Bogdahn and Russell Graves, have produced a unit set which suggests background for either interior or exterior scenes. In order to produce color blending with the multicolored costumes, a base paint of tan of buff was used, sponged with light grey, dark brown and blue black, then sprayed with blue black and green for aging.

All furniture and properties have been built by Reimer and his crew. The most difficult items to be built were two lutes. The back-stage handling of properties is in charge of Bob McElya with Leah Lapiante acting as stage manager. Other behind-the-scenes personnel includes Barbara Butler, Dorothy Womble, Susanne Alford, Joanne Austin, Bert Hollander, Valerie Haynes, Libby Mauch and Sam Frank.

THE BOX OFFICE in the foyer of Conradi in the History Building will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. beginning Wednesday and continuing through the 20th. Student tickets are 40 cents, while the general public will be admitted for 75 cents. All seats are reserved.

Registrar Announces New 'Alphabetical Registration'

Registration for next semester will follow alphabetical order, announces the Office of the Registrar of Florida State University.

THIS CHANGE in the registration procedure has been made to further eliminate the long lines harrassed students find themselves continually on at the bi-annual occurrence in the school year.

Mr. Charles Walker, Registrar, has made public this announcement along with a statement expressing the hope that this action will simplify the registration procedure considerably.

THE NEW PROCEDURE plans indicate that graduate students, Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores will register on Friday and Saturday, the sixth and seventh of February, as usual, but only those whose last names begin with A and run through L will register on Friday, and those from M to Z register Saturday, the seventh.

This, according to the Registrar's office, is an obvious break for the M's through Z's, but the A's through L's will have the same opportunity to be last next registration.

FRESHMEN WILL be given individual appointments, as has been done in the past, with one important change. The appointments will be determined according to the Frosh's individual counselor's name, alphabetically.

For instance, those counselors to freshmen whose names begin with A will meet all their freshmen in the registration at the Women's Gymnasium at an appointed time. This action has been taken because, it was stated, in the past all counselors were obliged to be at registration all through the two days period. The action is also expected to eliminate the long lines and confusion formerly experienced.

CLASS SCHEDULE books will go on distribution today in the Registrar's office, Office of Admissions in Lower Westcott, the Registrar's office announced today.

Registration material will be mailed to students, as usual, during the next two weeks. This measure was taken a year ago to avoid the confusion and long lines students were forced to use to obtain IBM cards and material prior to registration.

"EVERYTHING POSSIBLE is being done," states the Registrar's Office," to further facilitate the registration procedure, which is known in all colleges and universities to be something of an unavoidable ordeal." "Here at Florida State," they continue, "we are trying to iron out the kinks and formerly unavoidable lines into an orderly, more enjoyable and bearable procedure."

Senate Resumes Weekly Meetings To Tackle Old and New Problems

By MARCIA MORRIS

University Senate resumes its regular weekly meetings today after a three-week lay-off for Christmas holidays and the gubernatorial inauguration.

With the beginning of the new senatorial year comes a clean slate of business; therefore, now is a significant time to look over the accomplishments of the past four months.

IN ADDITION to the official business of legislating bills, the Senate is divided into nine committees which have handled various projects prompted by requests, complaints, and inquiries. Coming under this category was an investigation into dining hall prices which resulted in a general lowering of rates. Senate also worked for the noon dismissal before holidays, upon suggestion of various students, faculty members, and dormitory counselors.

The regulations committee has been meeting with members of Judiciary in order to clarify women's rules. Off limits locations came under discussion earlier in the semester. When attempts were made to include more places on limits, it was discovered that only those establishments serving liquor in a dry county were regarded as "out of bounds"—a category which included only four locations.

A RECREATIONS committee is combining efforts with the officers of the University Recreation in an attempt to bring U. R. A. under the auspices of U. G. A.

Minor services for the student body have been effected through senate investigation and resultant action. Several hundred desks for left-handed students have been ordered upon senata suggestion. The Services Committee is inquiring about the possibilities of placing extra stamp machines in the post office for student convenience after closing hours. Lately, action has been taken to secure a number of men's tennis rackets so that men may be allowed to check out athletic equipment on east campus.

THUS FAR this year eight bills have been introduced. In content, two of the bills passed pertain to Senate alone; for they provide for house rules and a system regarding the revision, compilation, and filing of bills, statutes, and resolutions. However the other bills affect the entire student body.

Under this group falls a piece of legislation providing for the appointment of, instead of election of class parliamentarians, which was pased on Nov. 18 afte rrabid discussion. According to the wording of this document, the appointmentof the parliamentarian, hereafter, shall be made by the other elective officers of the class. Another bill providing for an increase of two senators per clas was voted down after hot arguments pro and con.

The Constitutional Committee has been responsible for several bills thus far, and most probably will have several more in store for early presentation. A bill providing for election of the WFSU Station Manager was withdrawn after the first reading; however, a bill providing for an amendment to the constitution changing the name of U.G.A. is still pending committee action. Restating the clas standing of candidatee running for U.G.A. office is the subject of a bill introduced at the last meeting, and which will again be on the agenda this afternoon.

PERHAPS THE most disputed of all the bills thus far presented was one providing for court reports. Had it passed, the bill would hava provided for the posting of reports regarding cases which had been judged, giving a brief outline of the case, the penalty levied, and any extenuating circumstances involved.

This is but a brief outline of the business cleared by Senate during the first part of the year. In the months to come, progress will probably be speeded considerably, for the orientation period for new senators is ended. Election Laws to be presented by the special Election Laws Committee will assume a position in the spotlight, beside the rennovated University Government Association Constitution. Meanwhile, the working committees will continue handling complaints, suggestions, and gripes, which are turned over to the body. This promises to be a very busy year for Senate edition 1883, and a productive one.

Recent Graduates Become Ensigns

Lillian B. Campbell, Mary Evelyn Hammond and Mary Ellen Tavel, graduates of Florida State, were sworn into the U. S. Naval Reserva as Ensigns in Macon recently. They have now left for the Naval School in Newport, R. I.

After a 10 weeks Officer Training Course there, the Wave officers will be assigned to various naval shore activities.

Miss Campbell, a Spanish major, graduated in 1949 with an AB degree. She was in Alpha Lambda Delta, Sigma Delta Pi, Phi Kappa Phi and Los Picaros. Since graduation, she had been employed as a teacher in the St. Joe and Apopka High Schools.

Miss Hammond, a 1952 graduate with an AB in art, was a member of the Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority and a student assistant.

Miss Tavel, with a BS degree in science education, graduated in August, 1952. She was a member of the symphonic and marching bands, Alpha Omicron Pi sorority, Garnet Key and F Club and was chairman of Women's Judiciary.

"As only aighty women were selected for the January Wave Officer Indoctrination Class from applicants throughout the country," said Lt. Helen M. Horne of the United States Navy, "we feel that Florida State University is very well represented."

Faculty Members Publish Articles

Four faculty members of the School of Education have recently had articles accepted for publication.

Dr. Eugene S Lawler, professor of education, is co-author of a chapter in "Problems and Issues in Public School Finance" published by the National Conference of Education Administration. He has also had an article "In Defense of Old Buildings," accepted by the publication "School Executive"

Dr. Herman L. Frick, professor of education, and Dr. Virgil E. Strickland, associate professor of education, are co-authors of the first three parts of a bulletin on "Program for Young Adolescents." The bulletin will be published by the National Education Association early in 1953.

Dr. W. L. Leeds, assistant professor of education, will have an article "Core Classes in Action," published in this month's issue of "Education" magazine.

BUILDING TELLS HISTORY

Social Welfare Building Is Ancient Campus Landmark

By NANCYE CLARK

If buildings could talk, especially the Social Welfare building on this campus, what stories could be told!

"Nearly 80 years have passed since my boards were new and my paint bright. I hold the seniority throne on campus for being the oldest building here.

"YES, I'M CALLED the Social Welfare building now, but I can remember when a lot of people said I'd been an old church converted into a hospital during the Civil War days. One of my main disappointments in life has been that I wasn't born soon enough to be that hospital.

Now, don't misunderstand me, I'm not complaining for missing out on fame. I've been quite a number of things since I was built in 1878.

"I WAS BUILT as a school for Negro children and did I have a time watching those kids come to school. There was one little boy that never could get here on time. I'd see him running up the hill—too late to hurry then. The teacher and I both knew he hadn't burried all the way.

"My only complaint about being the school house was the name I had, Lincoln School! Being a good southerner and a true Democrat, I could hardly stand such a name.

"A FEW YEARS later the state decided to build a college on the land near me. There previously had been some sort of educational institution nearby, but I wasn't too familiar with it.

"The state traded some land to the Nagroes to get the ground where I was. I began to wonder just what would happen to me. I worried about my safety, for what use would I be to a college?

"TO MY SURPRISE, however, I wasn't torn down or moved. A crew of workmen started hammering and sawing and when they left I was completely remodeled inside. I was so excited with my new status that I wanted to know what part I was to play in higher education.

It wasn't a very big part I decided, as some of the teachers made me their living quarters. My interior at that time was composed of one large room with several small rooms around it. In these small rooms the teachers slept.

"AFTER A WHILE the school decided to make me into a gymnasium. At the time I didn't even know what the word meant, so you can imagine how I felt when a new wing was put on me, and a swimming pool was installed in the new wing.

"For 24 years I was used as the college gym. I'll admit I was a little jealous when plans were announced to build a new gym. After all my yeare of eervice they were going to take my very life from me. Why even in that same year, 1929, ground was being broken for the new $300,000 gym.

"AFTER THE NEW gym was completed, I was not abandoned as I had thought I probably would be. Instead I became the Music building and again carpenters were busy changing me. The pool was concealed undar the floor and soon there was even a small auditorium for the music recitals.

"I found that I was happier now than I had ever been. I enjoyed listening to the music and songs. I will admit that some selections were a little bard on my ears, but for the most part my job was pleasant.

"YEARS LATER about 1948 when I heard that a new music building was to be constructed, I grew panicky. Now at last it seemed I was to be ousted.

"We were a university now and the boys were here to keep the girls company. I just couldn't leave! The new music building was built and I began to feel just a little out of place. On each side of me were pretty brick buildings; I realized that I could only be an eye-sore with my painted boards.

"AGAIN FATE was kind, and I was allowed to remain on the campus. This time I was to be the Social Welfare building. Again changes were made inside of me to make ready for classes. My ears became full of such things as Preparation for Marriage, Family Living and Social Work. Yes sir, I've really been around education for a long time. After all these years I think some of it has finally sunken in too.

"Today there's a lot of talk about progress. And I've heard about the new buildings that have been built on the campus. I've heard about the 50 year plan to make Florida State University one of the best schools in the south. Anr you know, somehow I just can't see this old building in that picture.

"ONE THING about this 50 year plan, maybe they won't get around to me until about the 45th year. That's my hope anyhow. I know though that one day I'll be gone from my beloved site. Wherever they put me, just remember how much I'll be missing everything. Then some of you drop by once in a while and let ma know 'what's new on the campus.'"

IT ALONG LEETLE DOGGIES — Man's best friend ll be chasing a mechanical rabbit at a certain dog track Tampa tonight. There's nothing unusual about that. ot a single Greyhound will clamp its jaws around Brer abbit, either, and that's even less spectacular.

But when this department learned tonight's kiyoodle onclave in Tampa is being staged for our Seminole athtes, for the neighboring Rattlers and for those things rom down under known as 'Gators, we thought maybe was worth reporting.

SEEMS THAT the subject tonight at the Tampa track one of 13 canine cages in Florida — is "University ight," and the object is to donate all proceeds, over and bove operating expenses, to the three state universities.

That means a certain per cent of every sheckle wagered the windows tonight goes into an athletic "slush" nd, to be proportionally divided up among Florida tate, Florida and Florida A & M.

You might have known it but the dog and horse tracks the Sunshine State are the chief providers of athletic holarships for Florida's tax-supported institutions, ever nce the state legislature signed its John Henry on a ll calling for said set-up.

THE UNIVERSITY of Florida gets the juciest share the loot, with FSU and A & M coming in for smaller hunks. State was reported to have received about $65,000 rom foolish bets last year. The take is expected to be en more in 1953.

After the cash gets to FSU, it is then divided again, th the lion's share going to football, then basketball, en baseball, and on down the line.

The $65,000 figure sounds pretty large, especially to chap with a meager background, but it's just a drop the bucket to the tracks.

AS THE MIAMI Daily News' Stanley Woodward so ingly said:

"The money Florida's tracks haul in would make andard Oil's weekly receipts look like the income from peanut stand."

The sum which goes to the state-supported schools is pected to climb more during the next few years. Govnor Dan McCarty has announced he will cut more deeply to the dog take.

AT PRESENT, the dog tracks get 12 percent of the e, with five percent going to the state, two percent of ear-marked for old-age pensions. Those cuts come out the 18 percent the customer gives up each time he ns a bet. If they don't win, of course, they give up everyng.

The horse tracks get a percentage of 16, keeping about lf with the other half going to the state. With Mcarty's proposed bite on the dogs, the track's share is pected to shrink to about eight percent.

Needless to say, they aren't hurting.

HERE, OH WHERE HAS HE GONE?—The boss dropd a load on us yesterday afternoon. We were getting settled for a few minutes of phy sci study, believe or not, when the telephone buzzed.

"Hogue," the voice said, "this is Dunn."

"Oh, oh," I sez to myself. "The guy wants something." hen, like an executive, I said: "Yes, Bill, what can I do r you."

WELL, I HATE to bother you but it seems that Jim ady ,(regular Tuesday sports editor of the Flambeau) ent home for the holidays and he hasn't showed up yet," e boss said.

"Yeah," I replied, knowing what was coming.

"Well, we need someone to do the sports page and wonered if you could pinch hit?"

That was at 3 in the afternoon and the deadline is 5:30. ou mean you want me to whip up a page in two-and-alf hours?" I squealed.

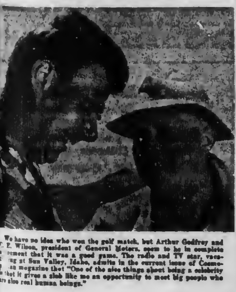
"YOU GET THE idea," he said.

"Okay, boss, but it's going to be a hurry-up job," I said. hat was a stupid thing to say.

And before the printer jerks this out of the typeriter, let me add one more word:

"Come home, Jim."

Godfrey and Friend



We have no idea who won the golf match, but Arthur Godfrey and C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, seem to be in complete ement that it was a good game. RUMORS ARE FLYING—

Bye-Bye Tech, Hello Gators?

By PAT HOGAN
Flambeau Sports Editor

Goodbye Georgia Tech, hello Mr. Rumor.

That's the latest development on Florida State's football front as the search for two opponents to complete the Seminoles' 1953 schedule continues.

AND HOW the rumors are flying.

Will it be VMI? What about Georgia? Will we, after all the hullabaloo, play Florida?

Well, one guess is as good as the next. And the time is ripe for the speculators to have their heyday.

THE FSU ATHLETIC department is at a standstill, after signing on eight teams for next fall. Two open dates—October 10 and October 25—must be filled.

Negotiations for a 1953 game between the Seminoles and Georgia Tech were ended abruptly last week end, when Tech announced that it was replacing Duke University in the slot filled last season by FSU.

State came within a hair of signing another pact with Tech, for Atlanta next November 21. But the idea was killed when the Engineers had to switch their site with Notre Dame to South Bend. That opened a huge gap in Tech's home schedule, and the Engineers were left with nothing to do but schedule a big-name school.

IT WASN'T JUST a case of the Sugar Bowl kings not wanting to renew their series with FSU. It was the old 'money-in-the-poke' gimmick.

Tech Coach Bobby Dodd, in a wire to Howard Danford, FSU director of athletics, expressed the desire to play State "in an opening game" sometime in the future.

So it is conceivable that chances for a Tech-FSU meeting in '54, '55, or later, are good.

THAT, HOWEVER, doesn't solve the present scheduling delemma. A second meeting with VMI would be in the bag if the folks down Stetson way would agree to switch a date.

The only remaining open date on VMI's agenda is October 31, the same day FSU and Stetson are scheduled. Both the Seminoles and Hatters have an open date on the 10th of October.

Danford has attempted to arrange a switchsroo of the Stetson-FSU tangle to the 10th, but for no reason at all, Stetson has refused to co-operate.

And unless the DeLand school relents, the name of VMI won't appear on the Seminole card.

Well, then, what about Florida?

HERE'S THE funny part. Sources close to both State and the University of Florida indicate that a talk of a '53 meeting between the Gators and Indians is only for the prognosticators.

Florida doesn't want to play Florida State, some say. And vice versa, others say. And the two schools cannot play without Board of Control permission, which hasn't even been requested.

But, as the sports editor of one Florida newspaper put it:

"IS IT MORE than a co-incidence that FSU and Florida both have open dates October 10, on their football slates this fall?"

"They'll eventually meet on the gridiron," the same writer continued. "Why not this year?"

That's a question people have been toying with since football returned to the FSU campus in 1947.

Is there an answer?

But, Baby, It's Cold Outside

Intramural Thinclads Set to Run

Florida State's non-subsidized track and field enthusiasts will brave the frigid outdoors of the West Campus cinders tomorrow and Thursday for the 1953 running of FSU's intramural track meet.

Any one—whether he hangs his hat in a dormitory or frat house makes no difference—is eligible to compete in the two-day, 10-event program.

AND REGARDLESS of the weatherman's prediction of temperatures which would send most folks scurrying to their fireplaces, scores of hardy souls are expected to run for the fun of it in toggery comparable to that of Gypsy Rose Lee.

The qualifying round, designed to separate the men from the boys, is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 4 with the finals slated for the same hour Thursday.

Events to be contested are the 100-yard dash, 120-low hurdles, 880-yard run, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard relay, high jump, shot put, broad jump and discus throw.

JIM GAUSE, acting intramurals director, has requested the following, who will serve in official capacities, to report to the West Campus track at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday:

Mize, Briggner, Parker, Wagoner, Leddy, Jarrett, Kucea, Minton, Fracassi, Brown, Phillips, Linton, Hoover J. Regna, C. Regna, Fraundorfer, Whaley, Allwood, Keller, Stanaland and Owen.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Just in case you were wondering when you can get a crack at an FSU intramural sports championship, here's a schedule for the rest of the year, as outlined by Jim Gause, acting intramurals director.

FOR THE DORMITORY athletes, it will be volleyball in February, basketball and tennis in March, basketball and softball in April and swimming and softball in May.

For the fraternity brethren, March for basketball, April for basketball and softball and May for swimming and softball.

The date for a proposed badminton tournament has not been set. Golf competition begins next Monday.

Tribe Swimmers Face Georgia in Stiff Exam

BY PETE DUNN-RANKIN
Flambeau Swimming Writer

Florida State University's swimming squad faces powerful Georgia Thursday night in the East Campus pool in what may be the severest test of the young season. Starting time is 8 p. m

FSU swim coach "Bim" Stults has stated that "this is the big one," and that the outcome of the season may well depend on the showing the tankmen make Thursday.

Although the University of Georgia appears the favorite on paper, this meet is regarded as a tossup. The Seminoles have never lost to Georgia in their home pool.

In five previous meetings with the Bulldogs, FSU's tankmen have won two and lost one and this contest wil be the rubber match of the series.

State toyed with Jax Navy earlier in the season as second-stringers edged the navy men, 45-40.

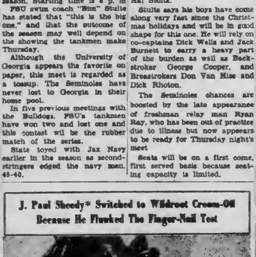
Georgia, however, promises not to be as easy. The Bulldogs are laden with talent topped by NCAA and AAU Champion Ried Patterson, Georgia's champion diver, Steve Mitakis, and an outstanding freshman breastroker, Hal Stoltz.

Stults says his boys have come along very fast since the Christmas holidays and will be in good shape for this one. He will rely on co-captains Dick Wells and Jack Burnett to carry a heavy part of the burden as well as Backstroker George Cooper, and Breastrokers Don Van Hise and Dick Rhoton.

The Seminoles chances are boosted by the late appearance of freshman relay man Ryan Ray, who has been out of practice due to illness but now appears to be ready for Thursday night's meet

Seats will be on a first come, first served basis because seating capacity is limited.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test



HERE'S a sad Lobster tale. Sheedy was really in hot water. His girl kept saying, "The Maine thing I don't like about you is the way you pot your hair! Haven't you red about Wildroot Cream-Oil Hair Tonic? Non-alcoholic. Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test. Perfect for you 'claws you need Lanolin on that water-soaked hair." Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil and now he shore looks slick. In fact, he's in salad with every girl on campus. So if you're net-tled about your messy hair, better shell out 29¢ at any toilet goods counter for a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil, "Your Hair's Best Friend." Ask for it at your barber's, antennae to one you'll be tickled pink!

FSU Volleyball Team Ready for Knoxville Meet

Smokey Mountain Draws Top Squads

Florida State's 18-man volleyball squad is digging into a rigorous practice routine this week, priming for the Smokey Mountain Invitational tournament set for Knoxville, Tenn., Friday and Saturday.

Coach Bill Odeneal's unheralded high-netters — who placed fourth in rigid national intercollegiate competition last year—will face several of the top volleyball teams in the land at Knoxville.

ODENEAL WILL TAKE a 10-man squad to the Smokey Mountain meet.

The Seminoles are hoping to improve on a 23-15-8 record of last season. They boast a "very strong attack but need work on defense," according to Odeneal, who is in his fourth year of tutoring FSU's volleyballers.

Anchoring the Tribe is a pair of national collegiate All-America performers, sophomores Howard Gould of Chicago, Ill., and Ronald Hambrock of Terre Haute, Ind. The letterman duo also was named to All-South and All-State dream teams last year.

THE INDIANS WORK out at 8 p.m. daily, with the exception of Tuesdays, when they confine their drills to cross-country running. Full, intra-squad scrimmages are held each Wednesday at 6 p.m. in the West Campus gym.

In their only previous start this season, the Seminoles finished second in the Pensacola Invitational tournament December 6, bowing to an All-Navy team in the finals.

Seminoles After Moccasins Tonight

Close Three-Game Road Trip Against Florida Southern Five

As this edition went to press last night, Florida State's basketball Seminoles were down Tampa way getting ready for their 11th hardwood meeting with the U of T's Spartans.

It was supposed to be a close, hair-tingling toss-up with the winner gaining command in the sixth year of cage rivalry between the two schools. Before last night's duel, each side had captured five games in the series.

YOU'VE PROBABLY scanned the sports page of a sheet with a later deadline this morning, and ran across the result.

If the Seminoles won, Coach Bud Kennedy and his 13-player traveling squad are feeling quite chipper today. If Tampa was victorious, there will be several red faces when the Tribe moves into Lakeland to battle Florida Southern tonight.

If the latter be the case, the Seminoles must turn back the FS Moccasins to salvage the final game of their three-game road stand against intrastate competition.

MIAMI'S HURRICANES ran wild in spilling FSU below the 50 mark in the Magic City Friday night. The Seminoles couldn't plug the leaks in their defense and Miami Waltzed away with a 93-63 decision, leaving the Indians with a 4-5 seasonal record.

And the Seminoles must stop Southern tonight if they want to preserve the lead in that series. The Seminoles have a 6-5 reading against the Moccasins heading into tonight's showdown. After tonight's contest, which closes a six-day road trip, the Seminoles won't play again before the last day of this month, when they oppose Rollins in Winter Park.

The Staters won't perform before the home folks again before February 10, when they open a three-game home stand against Stetson's Hatters.

Frosh Pick Up Baseball Tempo

The tempo in Florida State's "newcomer" baseball drills is expected to pick up somewhat this week as diamond Coach Ralph Matherly goes about the task of screening new talent on the West Campus field.

Matherly has been looking over freshmen and transfer candidates for this spring's Seminole baseball squad since last week.

He'll continue the 3:30-5 p. m. workouts until Wednesday of next week, when everyone will drop their gloves until after mid-term examinations.

All freshman and transfer students interested in trying out are invited to the drills, Matherly said.

Gaynor Starts In Tanguay Story

By JUNE MORGAN
Feature Editor

One of the most entertaining pictures of last year was tha somewhat underpublicized "Bloodhounds of Broadway," starring the most vivacious musical comedy star I've seen in a long time, Mitzi Gaynor.

The vivacious Mitzi returns to Tallahassee in the new film at tha State, Wednesday. This time she portrays Broadway's irrepressible madcap, Eva Tanquay in the movie of her life, The I Don't Care Girl. Tha new technicolor musical derives its name from Eva's theme song.

DAVID WAYNE, Oscar Levant and Bob Graham appear as the principal men in Miss Tanguay's unpredictable way of life and her biography is related as a series of their recollections.

Though the romantic and dramatic share the spotlight in "The I Don't Care Girl," music and comedy are also emphasized. The musical production numbers in Technicolar make use of such old time favorites as "Pretty Baby," and "The Johnston Rag." One of the nicest new tunes introduced is "Here Comes Love Again."

MITZI GAYNOR realized the risk of portraying the life of a prominent personality recent enough to be remembered by a large part of the public.

Audiences everywhere remember the devil-may-care Eva who sang her way from Palace vaudeville to a star spot in Dunne and Dean Jagger, in Mitzi was so fortunate to have Georga Jessel, a close friend of Eva, for her coach and producer.

THE PICTURE was written by Walter Bullock. Also featured in the cast are Craig Hill, Warren Stevens and Hazel Brooks.

Tonite is the last chance to see two excellent artists, Irene Dunne and Dean Jagger, in their heartwarming portrayal of the very poor family that finds a miracle in their own back yard.

THE STORY of what happens to a family that owns a dollar-bearing bush makes interesting two-hour fare in tha Florida's film, It Grows On Trees.

Dean Jagger appears as the easy-going American father, a role somewhat similar to his flag-waving performance in "My Son John."

JOAN EVANS is tha daughter, who romances her way through the film opposite attractive new young male star, Richard Crenna.

Jennifer Jones is the renegade Ruby Gentry in the movie by the same name, which opens a four-day run at the Florida, Saturday. Gun in hand the wild beauty wrecks a whole town in the tale of intrigue and adventure.

CHARLTON HESTON and Karl Malden make up the supporting cast.

Notable Speaks Sat. At Conference Here

Dr. Julian Aldrich, professor of social studies education, New York University, and president of the National Council for the Social Studies, will be the main speaker at Florida State University's second annual Social Studies Conference sponsored by the School of Education.

The conference, open to the public, will be Saturday, Jan. 17.

DR. ALDRICH's appearance will be one in a series of meetings in Florida this month sponsored by the Florida Council for the Social Studies and Florida State University, according to Richard E. Gross, assistant professor of Social Studies Education at FSU.

The confarence morning session will begin with registration from 10 until 10:15 a.m. in the Conradi Theater.

HIGHLIGHTS OF the morning's program will include presentations by Dr. Clark Lee Allen, chairman of the department of economics, and Dr. Robert Anderson, assistant professor in the department of anthropology.

Dr. Aldrich will address a luncheon session on the topic "Trend in Social Studies Instruction." The speaker has recently completed a nation-wide tour studying social education in schools.

Army Chaplain Given Medal

The Bronze Star Medal went to University Chaplain Samuel R. Neel Jr. yesterday afternoon in ceremonies at the ROTC practice field on West Campus.

The medal went to the doctor of philosophy for "meritorious service in Korea."

LT. COL. Cornell D. Booth professor of Military Science and Tactics, Army ROTC, gave the medal to him, while Maj. W. N. Lingenfelter, of the same department, made the citation address. Army and Air ROTC units participate in the ceremonies.

"Evincing utter disregard for his personal comfort and safety, he constantly circulated through front line positions ministering to the spiritual needs of the sick and wounded," read the citation.

DR. NEEL has been with FSU since 1948, when his teaching career was interrupted by the Korean War. He served as a front line chaplain with the 31st Infantry Regiment, which won recognition for its fight to gain Triange Hill.

Dr. Neel also served in World War II as a chaplain, this time with the 106th Infantry Division in the European Theater. He was taken prisoner by the Germans during the Battle of the Bulge and served as Protestant chaplain for 3,300 fellow prisoners until liberated by Allied forces.

He received a Bronze Star Medal for his World War II services also.

Senate's Activities Suggests Changes

Amendment Redefines Class Standing; Gene Lawler Introduces Labor Bill

Students running for offices that require certain class standing will be affected by a bill passed in University Senate this week.

Candidates now must have the following number of semester hours credit: Senior standing, 70 hours; Junior standing, 40 hours. Sophomore standing, 10 hours. These hours must be earned before the Spring elections. The number of quality points required remains the same—a 1.3 for a major office and a 1 point for a minor office.

THE BILL is more or less a redefined class standing which is a safeguard against unqualified students running for office. It was introduced to Senate by the Constitution Revision Committee with Barbara Thomas as chairman. Judy Simkins and Gene Lawler are also members of the committee.

Another bill was introduced by Senator Lawler providing for an aditional member of the President's Cabinet — a Secretary of Labor. It was proposed that this person serve as a link between the University Government Association and student employes and employers.

THIS PROPOSED Secretary of Labor is also to investigate student working conditions and aid in promoting welfare of working students. The bill will probably be voted on at next week's Senate meeting.

Permission has been secured to let men students visit girls in the infirmary, if regulations can be worked out. Changes are being made in the visiting hours and members of Sophomore Council have agreed to assist as receptionists. Students must maintain the "quiet" regulations.

THE SERVICES Committee of Senate announced that men's tennis rackets have arrived. Men students will now be able to check out this athletic equipment on the east campus.

More Concerts Are Scheduled For Opperman

Three concerts will be presented in the Opperman Music Hall this week, as the final contribution of the School of Music to the concert series for the first semester.

On Monday, Jan. 19, the University Symphony Orchestra will appear, on Wednesday, Jan. 21, the Symphonic Band will present its first formal program of the year, and on Friday evening, Jan. 23, Franciszek Zachara will present a program of his own compositions.

THE SYMPHONY Orchestra concert on Monday evening will feature Robert Sedore, regular conductor of the orchestra. Ernst von Dohnanyi will appear as guest conductor and Howard Silberer, doctoral student, will be piano soloist. Silberer's performance will be in partial fulfillment for the degree of Doctor of Music, for which he is a candidate. The program will be the "Fifth Symphony" of Tchaikovski and the "Concerto in F flat Major" of Brahms.

The Symphonic Band, directed by Robert T. Braungel, will present a concert of classics, "pop" works and marches on Wednesday evening, Jan. 21. Among the pieces to be played on this program will be the "March and Corteae" from Gounod's opera, "The Queen of Sheba," the first movement of the "American Symphonette" by Morton Gould and a paraphrase of "All the Things You Are" by Jereme Kern.

FRANCISZEK ZACHARY, associate professor of piano in the School of Music, will be featured as composer and pianist in the recital on Friday evening, Jan. 23. Prof. Zachara will be assisted to the program of Bertil Boer, flutist, Harry Schmidt, clarinetist, Robert Sedore, violinist, and Ramona Cruikshank Beard, organist. The musical numbers on the program will be a "Sonata for Flute and iPano," a "Sonata for Clarinet and iPano," and a "Sonata for Violin and Piano," played by the aboveartists with Zachara at the piano. The composer will play his own "Variations on the theme, America," and will be soloist in his own "iPano Concerto in E Major, Opus 30." For this number, he will be accompanied by Mrs. Beard at the organ, playing a transcription of the orchestral accompaniment.

The University Symphony will also play a special pre-commencement concert this year. This will be played on Friday evening, Jan. 31, the eevning before the graduation exercises. The concert will be open to the public, with graduation gueats especially invited for the program. The program for this special concert will be the "Romeo and Juliet" suite of Prokofiev, conducted by Sedore and the Brahms "B-flat Concerto," with Howard Silberer as piano soloist and Ernst von Dohnanyi as guest conductor.

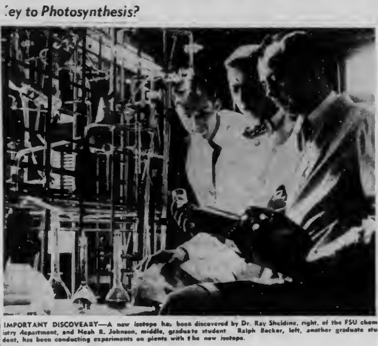
The Young Democrats Club meeting will be Tuesday January 20, in the Senate Room of the Longmire Building at 5 p.m. according to Richard Jackson, club president.

Key to Photosynthesis?



IMPORTANY DISCOVEARY—A new isotope has been discovered by Dr. Ray Sheldine, right, of the FSU chemistry department, and Noah R. Johnson, middle, graduate student. Ralph Becker, left, another graduate student, has been conducting experiments on plants with the new isotope.

New Magnesium Isotope Discovered by Professor

A Florida State University professor has made a scientific discovery of international importance.

Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, nuclear chemist hare and Noah R. Johnson, one of his graduate students, announced this week the discovery of a new radioactive magnesium isotope called magnesium-28, which has a half-life greater than any magnesium isotope known to science.

DR. SHELINE said the new isotope may throw light upon the mystery of photosynthesis (how plants make food), thereby opening new approaches to the production of foods for human consumption.

In photosynthesis, the growing plant uses energy from the sun to convert water and carbon dioxide into food such as starches and sugars.

"IF SCIENTISTS were able to duplicate this process in the laboratory and then in the factory, the food problem and all the international tensions involved in it would be lessened," the young scientist said.

The nuclear chemist explained that up until now the longest-lived magnesium isotope had a half-life of 10 minutes. The naw magnesium-28 has a half-life of 21.3 hours.

THIS MEANS that starting at any given moment it will takе 21.3 hours for half of the radioactivity to disappear and 21.3 hours more for half of what is left to disappear, and so on until there is so little radioactivity left it cannot be measured.

Dr. Sheline pointed out that because of its greater half-life magnesium-28 can be used as a tracer in many experiments not possible before.

"FOR EXAMPLE," he said, "radioactive magnesium-28 atoms have a radioactive 'tag' on them so that by using a geiger counter a scientist can detect where a growing plant uses magnesium atoms."

Using magnesium-28 it may be possible to understand both the function of the chlorophyll molecules and the magnesium atom at its center in photosynthesis.

DR. SHELINE said the new magnesium isotope will also have important uses in other fields. He said it can be used as a tracer in plant physiology and soil science, such as in determining how best to feed magnesium fertlizers to plants.

"Scientists will now be able to determine how the animal body uses magnesium," the nuclear chemist said. "For exam-

Museum Features Exhibit Depicting Culture Evolution

"Energy and Evolution of Culture," an exhibit giving the story of man's cultural growth from his beginnings to the present, is now on display at the University Museum, on the second floor of the Seminole Dining Hall.

The exhibit will remain open until February 1. Museum hours are Mondays, closed. Tuesday through Friday, 12:30 until 5 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. until 12:30 p.m., and Sunday, 2 until 5 p.m.

It graphically illustrates the relationship between new inventions, which unlocked new sources of energy to be used by mankind and the growth of man's culture.

"Energy is the key by which one may interpret the evolution of a culture," Dr. Hale Smith, director of the museum, said. "We have built this exhibit on the formula 'energy times technology equals culture.'"

The exhibit theme, displayed in inexpensive and natural materials, was laid out and executed by Taizo Miake, graduate assistant in the art department, with the assistance of students in the department of anthropology and archaeology.

Teal Writes Play On Korean War

"Never Until Then," an original drama of the Korean War, produced by the local Alpha Nu Chapter of Wesley Players, will be presented at 8 Saturday night, at the Methodist Student House. This play was written and will be directed by Donn Teal, a member of the Alpha Nu Chaptar.

The play deals with the battle front experiences of an American soldier and how they induce him to find God. Set in a scene south of Seoul, Korea, Summer, 1950, the play also touches on the life of a bereaved Korean woman.

Acting in the drama are: Paul Wraga, an American soldier; Carroll White as Joe, his sarcastic pal; June Barber as the Korean widow and Bill Bair, a four-year-old.

The public is cordially invited to the play.

Audition Set For Orchestra Soloists

Auditions to select two student soloists who will appear with the Florida State University String Clinic Orchestra in concert next month will be held in the Music Building next Saturday afternoon, from 1 to 4.

The auditions will be open to all performers on violin, viola, violoncello and string bass. The auditions will be heard in two divisions, Junior Division, age 17 and below, and Senior Division, ages 18 to 24, inclusive. One student will be selected in each division who will be eligible to perform with the string orchestra concert which will conclude the FSU String Clinic on Feb. 14.

The auditioning committee will consist of Dr K. O. Kuersteiner, dean of the School of Music; Robert N. Sedore, professor of violin and orchestra, and C. M. Carroll, instructor in music. The auditions committee held auditions last week in Tampa, in connection with the Florida Music Educators Clinic. Final selection of the student soloists will be made on the basis of the auditions in both cities.

Thompson Speaks To ASPA Group

M. E. Thompson, former governor of Georgia, spoke recently in Longmire Building to the newly organized Florida State Chapter of the Aemircan Society for Public Administration.

Thompson spoke on "The County Unit System," explaining that system's relation to the state political set-up. Also covered were administrative problems of a governor.

Dick Bredley, president of the local chapter of the ASPA, announced that this is the first in a series of lectures, all open to the public, which ASPA co-operating with the FSU School of Public Administration will sponsor.

Comedy to Open In Conradi Tonight

Sonata Recital Will Be Given In Music Hall

Professor Spalding, Ernst von Dohnanyi To Perform Tonight

Albert Spalding, visiting professor of music, and Ernst von Dohnanyi, professor of composition and piano, will present a sonata recital in the Opperman Music Hall this evening, at 8:15 p.m. The program will feature three sonatas for piano and violin by the three B's of music, Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

The concert will be open to the public, and a capacity house is expected, according to Dean K. O. Kuersteiner of the School of Music. Seating will be on a first come, first served basis, with every effort made to accommodate as many listeners as possible.

ALBERT SPALDING, who is visiting professor of music at FSU for the second consecutive year, has been on the campus this week teaching, counseling and advising students in violin and viola. His appearance with Mastero Dohnanyi is one of several programs this week and next month in which he will take part.

Spalding will play with the State Symphony of Florida in a concert on Feb. 9, and will assist in the FSU String Clinic, to be held on the campus Feb. 12-14.

WITH DR. DOHNANYI as duo-artist, Prof Spalding will play the Bach Sonata in E Minor, the Beethoven Sonata in G Major, Opus 96, and the Brahms Sonata in D Minor, Opus 108. The sonata works are particularly appropriate selections for the appearance of these two distinguished musicians, since more than any other musical form, the sonata demands two virtuosos, equally matched not only in musical ability but in temperament.

Evans to Resign From UGA Senate

Jimmy Evans, veteran FSU politician and self-styled "liberal" of the University Senate, announced his resignation from that body at the regular meeting this Tuesday.

Evans, whose resignation will take effect at the beginning of the Spring semester, announced that he is dropping all his campus activities in order to take a position on the national Executive Board of Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity.

"The only promise I made to my constituents last Spring that is yet unfulfilled," said Evans, "is the passage of an effective set of election laws for the UGA, and I hope to provide for their speedy submission to the Senate, despite my resignation."

Billy Graham Team Appears At Stadium

Evangelist Billy Graham will appear in Doak S. Campbell stadium on Sunday, Jan. 18, at 2:30 p.m.

The program will begin with a 30-minute radio broadcast, the "Hour of Decision." Following will be a mass evangelistic service.

Mr. Graham's appearance is sponsored by the Tallahassee Ministerial Association.

'Taming of the Shrew' Has Color, Charm, Farcial Tones

The Augusta Conradi Theater will be the scene at 8:15 tonight of the opening of the latest department of speech production, The Taming of the Shrew, by William Shakespeare.

THE MAIN ACTION of the play concerns the efforts of Bob Strane as Petruchio to subdue his temperamental and strong-willed wife, Katharine played by Jayne Gardner. Finally, by his uncouth appearance and behavior at their wedding, his brutality to the servants and his refusal to let her eat or let her wear respectable clothes, he succeeds in making her even-tampered and submissive.

There is also a sub-plot which deals with the winning and wooing of Bianca, Katherine's sister, played by Bettye Ann Ray, by Charles Bogdahn as Lucentio, in spite of rival suitors and her father's opposition to the match.

PUBLISHED IN 1623 in a folio of Shakespeare's work "Taming The Shrew" is believed to have been based on a similar play, "Taming of A Shrew," published in 1594. Many, however, believe "Taming of A Shrew" to be a corrupt, pirated version of Shakespeare's work. The so-called corrupt version does not contain the sub-pint of Bianca's wooing, without which, many have remarked, the play would lose much of its charm.

Bob Strane, the male lead, is a junior, from Leesburg, and is making his second appearance on the Conradi stage. He played opposite Miss Doris Dalton in Biography when she visited here last spring.

THE FEMALE STAR, Jayne Gardner, is a veteran of the speech department's productions, and has been with the Barter Theater.

Other members of the large cast include Ken Hurley, H. Edwin Bowen, Bill Cutler, Huber Ellingsworth, Ted Clevenaar, Lee Hildman, Bill Peterson, David Dreis, Lenell Robinson, Forrest Altman, William West, Stan Harvey, Lloyd Kay, Marilyn Nelson and Stan Harvey.

THE PRODUCTION is under the direction of Carl Zerke with Sarah Margaret Davis as assistant director. Zerke is a member of the speech department staff and his previous directing experience here includes "Phoenix Too Frequent," last fall's experimental play, and Jim Dandy. Sarah Margaret, a Senior speech major, has participated actively in the dramatic department not only as the assistant director of "Biography," but also in two acting roles and many backstage positions.

The box office is located in the foyer of the Theater and is open from 10:00 am to 5:00 pm. and before curtain time. General admission is 75c and 40c for students. The play will also run tomorrow night and Monday and Tuesday nights, Jan. 17, 18 and 20.

Graduating Seniors Advised to Check Graduation Points

Are you one of the many graduating seniors who have not yet checked to make sure you have the hours and quality points necessary for graduation?

It happens every year, university officials say. Students may think they've completed all requirements only to check up at the last minute and find they lack a fraction of the quality points or hours they need.

IT ISN'T FAIR to place the blame of failure to graduate on time, on the registrar's office or any other office. With so many students in a university, mistakes are bound to be made. It is the individual's responsibility to check up and see if he has the requirements to graduate. Waiting until the last minute is not wise since it might then be too late to do any thing about making up necessary requirements.

Checking with registrar's office and counselor at least a year in advance helps. Then if some hours or quality points are lacking, they can be made up the next semester or in summer school.

TRANSFER STUDENTS or those who have changed their majors should be especially careful. One student pointed out that he came to school another year just because he took the wrong courses one semester.

Another student came back to school an extra year to be certified in education. If her four year course had been planned with a little thought she would have graduated on time. All of us are familiar with the unlucky student who lacks one hour to graduate or just a fraction of the quality points needed.

Don't let this happen to you.

Campbell Writes Journalism Article

"Lively Ideas to Start the Editorial Bandwagon Moving" is the subject of an article by Dr. Laurence R. Campbell, dean of the School of Journalism, appearing in the current issue of "Quill and Scroll," official magazine of the international honorary society for high school journalists.

Dr. Campbell, who is an associate editor of the magazine, stresses in the article the need of high school leadership in high school newspapers. He picks out 20 high school papers, representative of the country at large, for honorable mention and discusses their editorial leadership programs.

Junior High Journal, Lanier Junior High School, Macon, Georgia, is the nearest paper to Tallahassee which Dr. Campbell chooses for special recognition. He commends its featured community service program.

"Editorial leadership, of course, takes initiative as well as ideas," Dr. Campbell concludes. "Accurate and complete information is needed to make editorials effective. Courage and persistence are indispensable. And so is imagination."

Hauch Discusses Novels by Mann

Two novels by Thomas Mann were analyzed and reviewed last night by Dr. Edward G. Hauch, visiting professor of German, in a lecture held in the Longmire Auditorium.

Dr. Hauch, who was introduced by Dr. Dorothy Hoffman, head of the FSU modern language department, discussed "Dr. Faustus" and "The Holy Sinner."

The speaker pointed out the two German novels contain a commentary on contemporary history by the author Mann.

In "Dr. Faustus" the author disposes of the ultimate good of man, and in "The Holy Sinner," cherishes the ardent wish that somehow good may be the final goal of the world's present ills," Dr. Hauch pointed out.

A coffee hour followed the lecture.

Methodists Begin Loyalty Program

Last Sunday night at fellowship at the Wesley Foundation a series of programs on different kinds of loyalties was begun. Dr. Richard Morse, professor of family economics, spoke on "Loyalties in the Home and Social World."

This Sunday Earl Vance of the Journalism School, will speak on "Loyalties in the Political World." The following Sunday, January 25, Mr. Harold Patrick, director of Religious Education at Trinity Methodist Church, will speak on "Loyalties in the Religious World." The Sunday after vacation, there will be a discussion on the three programs.

Winners Are Selected In 4-H Club Contest

Adela Kennedy and Jackie DuPont were winners in the 4-H Contest to find the team from Florida State which will go to the Florida State Fair. They were chosen at the 4-H Club meeting Tuesday.

The winning team did a demonstration on the history of the 4-H Club, while second place winners, Peggy Johnson and Carol Devore, gave a demonstration of weaving.

The winning demonstration will be presented on 4-H Day at the fair.

Baptist Student Union Plans Skating Party

Those who wish to attend should sign up at the Student House. Admission will be 50 cents, shoe skates, an additional 40 cents and supper 30 cents. Those who go will meet at the Student House at 3:30 p.m. and go to the skating rink from there.

Two Frats Sponsor Informal Dance

Members of Delta Tau Delta and Alpha Delta Pi will be co-sponsors of an informal dance at the Student Center tonight. Dancing will begin at 8:30 with music furnished by George Bee and his orchestra.

This will probably be one of the last socials of the semester. Social chairmen for the groups are Sally Schuchart of Alpha Delta Pi and Bill Adams of Delta Tau Delta. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

NEW LIBRARY IS YEAR'S OBJECTIVE

Expansion Plans, Budget, Explained To University Goverment Officers

Tuesday afternoon, eighteen executive officers of the University Government Association, met with the President Doak S. Campbell and Dean of Student Welfare, J. Broward Culpepper to discuss expansion plans for FSU and a proposed budget for the coming year.

The budget has been completed and will be submitted to the state legislature when it convenes in early April, in an effort to appropriate an estimated $11,418,754 sum for the bienium. This figure represents a 19% increase over the amount requested when legislature met two years ago.

PROMINENT AMONG reasons given for the adiditional funds required is the corresponding increase in student enrollment. Officials plan to provide for an expected 10% gain in students during the next two-year period. President Campbell stated that the University has also been obliged to increase salaries of all its workers, professional and operative alike. A third factor spurring expansion plans onward, is the necessity for abandoning west campus at the earliest possible opportunity. It was explained, however, that this expansion plan does not provide for any increase in departments, nor for employment of extra faculty members.

President Campbell designated a new library, large enough to accommodate 10,000 students, as the University's number one need. The building shall be of new, modern type architecture, designed with emphasis on utility and space conservation. Plans provide for the library to accommodate the Library Science and audio visual schools, along with adequate facilities for graduate study. If the library can be achieved, it should contain within five or six years, one-half million volumes. Minimum cost of the building is $2,300,000.

A MEN'S GYMNASIUM has been tabbed as the next critical need. Plans for an enlarged athletic program include a field house which will, on occasion, seat three or four thousand people, and a gym large enough to take care of dances and other social functions in addition to its regular duties as headquarters for sports and the R.O.T.C. program. Minimum cost for this structure, which is to be located in the direction of the men's dorms between the quonset hut and the stadium, is $1,000,000.

Immediate plans for a Home Economics building have been cited as a third must. The Home Economics Schol now has no home of its own but is located in the science building. However, it must be removed to make room for expensive scientific equipment which is being housed in temporary wooden quarters on west campus. The equipment cannot be transferred until space is made available in the science building. Location for this $850,000 building would be immediately north of Jennie Murphree dormitory, across the street from the Demonstration School.

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCE, which at present is being taught in scattered, make-shift quarters, is destined for a $1,150,000 building if funds permit. Probable location would be across Tennessee street from the senior men's dorm.

One million dollars has been set aside for giving a permanent home to the third largest School in the University, the School of Business and Commerce.

Other funds shall be distributed as follows. Graduate School, $650,000, general class room buildings, $750,000; remodeling older buildings $200.00; equipment and other furnishings for the new buildings under plan, $680,000.

These appropriations do not include provisions for the new auditorium and demonstration school. Plans have been made, funds obtained, specifications

NSA Information Presented For Students' Evaluation

(Editors Note: Too often when discussing a subject, we fail to get first hand information about it. In considering the affiliation of Florida State University with the National Student Association, it would certainly be wise to consult the organization for information about itself. Following is printed a full account of the Purpose, Organization, Program, and Policy of NSA as presented by the associaition, itself.)

Purpose

In a democratic society there is much that the individual can do to make that democracy meaningful, but it requires an organization of individuals to render effective their collective energies and resources for the achievment of major goals.

WHY A NATIONAL STUDENT ORGANIZATION?

In the student community the lack of organization has long been a problem. Most student bodies are organized under some form of student government and have urgent and varied problems in common. Some student bodies have no self government and in others their governing bodies are weak and struggling.

There is needed a clearing house for information, services and research directed towards the establishment, strengthening and improvement of student government.

Students have long sought to achieve certain immediate and long-range educational goals. In many instances their aspirations went unheard or were belittled.

There is need for an association to represent maturely and intelligently the needs and opinions of a vast body of college students to the public, state and federal agencies, and the professional educational organizations, many of whose acts directly affect student material and educational welfare.

If students are to become concerned with the direction of higher education — and it seems likely that they should since they are being directed —it is a desirable and wholesome thing that the best thought and discussion be encouraged by and among the students themselves.

A national student organization is a valuable catalyst in the process of creating a community consciousness on the part of students which will help permeate the university atmosphere with the spirit of brotherhood and cooperation among faculty, students and administration.

Throughout the world there exists an organised community of students, playing a vital role in many nations. These students seek exchange of information and the development of international understanding among their nations.

WHAT IS NSA?

The United States National Student Association (NSA) is an organization of college student bodies, represented through their student governments. It was created to serve the long-existing need for a representative intercollegiate organization designed to serve the American student community, and to promote students' interests and welfare.

WHAT ARE NSA'S AIMS AND PURPOSES?

NSA's aims and purposes are outlined in the preamble to its constitution in which the association is dedicated to: maintain academic freedom, stimulate and improve democratic student governments, develop better educational standards, improve student welfare, promote international understanding, guarantee to all people equal rights and possibilities for education and foster the recognition of the rights and responsibilities of students to the school, the community, humanity and God, and to preserve the interests and integrity of the government and constitution of the United States of America.

HOW WAS NSA FORMED?

Twenty-five American students returning from the World Student Congress in Prague, Czechoslovakia, in 1946, conceived the idea of forming a United States National Student Association. At that congress they became aware of the fact that the United States stood almost alone without a representative national student group.

In December, 1946, the Chicago Student Conference was called by these 25 students to consider the formation of such an organization. For three days representatives of some 300 colleges and 25 student organizations prepared recommendations on its organization and character. A continuations committee, elected at Chicago, prepared a draft constitution and organized the Constitutional Convention of NSA, held at the University of Wisconsin in September, 1947. At that time students representing over 358 colleges established the constitution and mapped a program for the newly-formed United States National Student Association.

Organization

WHO BELONGS TO NSA?

Any college, university, junior college, normal school or technical school can join the National Student Association upon ratification of its Constitution and payment of annual dues. NSA's membership is more then 300 institutions.

HOW IS NSA FINANCED?

NSA is financed in three ways. Member colleges of the association pay an annual assessment based upon the size of the student body. Projects of the association and its publications are a second source of revenue through direct services and sales. Special grants from outside the student community are a further source of financial support. NSA has established Educational Projects, Inc., to receive donations and to afford them a tax deductable status. All records of the association are audited regularly and its financial officers are bonded.

WHO DETERMINES NSA POLICY?

National policy is determined by the National Student Congress at its annual meeting. Emergency decisions during the year are made at meetings of the National Executive Committee.

Programs and policies are promoted for the benefit of the entire association and represent the membership. Individual members, however, are not bound by all programs nor must each institution feel legally bound by all policies. These policies are the goals which NSA is striving for but are always subject to the modifications necessitated by individual circumstances.

WHAT IS THE NATIONAL STUDENT CONGRESS?

The National Student Congress is composed of representatives of all the member colleges in NSA. The size of each school's delegation, ranging from one to seven members, is determined by the size of the student body.

The Congress meets annually for more than a week and combines practical training sessions for student government and NSA leaders together with deliberative sessions at which NSA policy and program for the coming year is determined. The Congress elects the national officers of the NSA.

WHAT IS NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF NSA?

The National Executive Committee is composed of one or two (depending upon student population) representatives of each of the twenty regions in the organization. It meets between Congresses to review the program, advise the Staff, consider new policies of immediate importance and prepare the program for the Congress. The NEC also maintains regular contact with the Staff between sessions to advise it on the execution of national programs.

WHAT ARE THE REGIONAL ORGANIZATIONS OF THE NSA?

Each member of the NSA also belongs to one of its twenty geographical regions. Regional organizations are largely autonomous, having individual constitutions, executive officers and regional comissions.

Regional assemblies, meeting several times during the year, determine programs for their area and appoint individual members to supervise their execution. The regional organization is the agency primarily responsible for supervising the intercollegiate activities of NSA and maintaining direct contact with each of the member schools.

WHO ARE THE NATIONAL OFFICERS OF NSA (STAFF)?

All of the national officers of NSA are elected by the National Student Congress from among its delegates. They form the Staff and several serve full time at the national office. These officers must have have been students at the time of their election by the Congress.

HOW DOES NSA MAINTAIN CONTINUITY?

An important source of continuity in NSA is the National Advisory Council. This body consists of prominent educators serving staggered three year terms. Through its chairman it maintains direct contact with the Staff and National Executive Comittee of NSA in an advisory capacity.

Continuity is also assured through the development of leaders in the regional organizations who generally, by virtue of experience and ability, rise to positions on the national staff. Campus groups usually provide for some form of internship as well as representation of lower classmen on their NSA delegations.

HOW DOES A MEMBER COLLEGE PARTICIPATE IN NSA?

There is no standard organization for campus participation in NSA; each college adapts its NSA activity to its own particular extracurricular program. Generally the student government will establish the position of NSA coordinator or form an NSA committee for the express purpose of insuring that programs and materials from NSA reach its appropriate agencies.

The NSA comittee while it may carry on certain campus programs itself, should be a committee of the student government, subject to its instruction. The NSA coordinator should be a voting member of the student government's legislative body. NSA on campus is the student government, and the student body is represented in NSA through its student government.

Program

HOW DOES NSA CARRY OUT ITS PROGRAM?

There are three levels of NSA activity: national, regional and campus. Nationally, NSA program is implemented through its national comissions. On the regional level the comissions of the regions, anolgoue to the national comissions, implement inter-collegiate programs. The student government is the instrument of NSA activity on each campus.

WHAT IS A NATIONAL COMMISSION?

A National Commission is an administrative agency created to implement programs delegated to it by the Congress, the NEC or, in some cases, the Staff. These commissions are headed by national vice-presidents who have under their jurisdiction various subcommissions throughout the nation. These subcommissions are established on member campuses, usually fitting into the extra-curricular pattern of the institution. Through a specifically appointed committee they carry on various projects for the national organizations. The four commissions are Student Affairs, Educational Affairs, International Affairs, and Student Government.

WHAT IS THE STUDENT AFFAIRS PROGRAM?

The Student Affairs program is concerned primarily with services to the student government and the extracurricular life of the student body. The Commission prepares informational materials and surveys; it sponsors the National Student Art Exhibit, the Symphony Forums, World Affairs Councils, and other cultural activities. In addition the Student Affairs program assists in the development of services to special interest clubs. Academic freedom, intercollegiate athletics, social life, student health, and orientation are important phases of the Commission's work.

WHAT IS THE EDUCATIONAL AFFAIRS PROGRAM?

Concern of the student in his educational process, legislation affecting education, student economic welfare, discrimination, intergroup relations, educational practices, scholarship opportunities, vocational guidance and similar matters concerning the educational community as a whole form the program of this commission.

Informational services and program implementation are provided through the area headquarters of the Subcommission on Educational Practices and Human Relations, and such subcommissions as those on Legislation, Scholarship Opportunity, Vocational Guidance, and Economic Welfare.

WHAT IS THE INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS PROGRAM?

With its primary aim one of promoting international student understanding and cultural exchange this commission operates a number of specific projects and informational services.

In this country it sponsors a foreign student Hospitality program, is working to increase the number of scholarships available for study abroad for student leaders both of this and other countries, and through the International Student Information Service Bulletin has made possible an international exchange of information on student problems.

The commission maintains relations with student organizations in most other nations of the world and is working to establish contacts where none at present exist. It participates in the Student Mutual Assistance Program, and other practical programs of the national unions of students participating in the annual International Student Conferences.

It cooperates with the Coordinating Secretariat of the national unions of students, participates in foreign relief drives, represents students of the U. S. at international meetings, e.g. the Inter-American Student Congress, the Interantional Student Seminar in Germany, and sponsors visits by U. S. student teams to other countries.

NSA's Travel Department administers programs of summer study and work abroad which, in the year 1951-52 sent more than 800 students abroad to almost all of Europe and to portions of Central America. Complete travel information is contained in "Work, Study, Travel Abroad," which is published yearly.

WHAT IS THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT COMMISSION?

Information essential to the smooth operation and progressive improvement of student governments' administration is supplied by the Student Government program. Files containing valuable resource material are available to member schools on request to the Student Government Information Service, including, finance, constitutional structure, elections, handbooks, fund raising, and campus chests, and the philosophy of student government.

WHAT ARE THE OTHER NSA SERVICES?

In addition to the broad programs of the Commissions NSA also operates the nation-wide Student Discount System which established discount contracts with some 200 merchants in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Boston, Minneapolis, Jersey City and ohter cities. The NSA purchase card entitles student holders to list price discounts of from 10 to 30 percent at merchants in any of these cities.

NSA publishes each month the "Student Government Bulletin and Report," which includes reports, articles, project outlines, and studies in administration and technique for the use of student governments throughout the nation.

NSA also publishes the "NSA News," a publication containing news of interest to students on education, student life and NSA activity. It is the only intercollegiate newspaper in the country, with an active college newspaper exchange with more than 125 student newspapers and all of the major student and educational periodicals.

Policy

POLICY TOWARDS STUDENT GOVERNMENT?

NSA believes that democratic student government is an important factor in the training of students for their ultimate responsibilities as citizens in the community. NSA does not set itself up above student governments on the campus, but rather seeks to "stimulate and improve" democratic student government.

STUDENT RIGHTS AND ACADEMIC FREEDOM?

NSA believes that certain conditions and guarantees should exist on the college campus to insure the freedom of inquiry, research and opinion essential to the educational process in a democracy.

These guarantees, outlined in the association's by-laws, are not presented as absolute standards required of each of NSA's members but as goals to be striven for and as criteria to be followed in the judgment of individual appeals brought before NSA. NSA believes that the ability of a man to teach and the qualification of a student to learn, should be based primarily upon the character and qualities of the individual.

DOES NSA ENGAGE IN POLITICAL ACTIVITY?

NSA is prohibited by its constitution from participating in "partisan political activity" in all levels of the association, however, such as its legislative program and academic freedom program, may be construed as "political." Such programs are based upon the broad aims of the association and are not geared to the support of a particular political party or doctrine. NSA does stand opposed to any political doctrine which would stifle free and democratic education in the United States.

WHAT IS NSA'S POLICY ON DISCRIMINATION?

NSA'S goal is "the eventual elimination of all forms of discriminatory educational systems anywhere in the United States." The association's program is geared along educational lines, seeks to influence the attitudes of communities concerned rather than to coerce them, and provides for the development of programs on the local and regional level "to implement its stated principles with regard to the legal limitations involved."

HOW DOES NSA REPRESENT STUDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES?

NSA serves American students on many educational and international agencies. It speaks for students before professional educational agencies, state and federal agencies and private organizations operating in fields affecting students.

It represents them at international student conferences. NSA is a sponsoring agency of the World Student Service Fund. It is a member of the Young Adult Council, of the National Commission for UNESCO, and a member of the Supervision Committee of the Coordinating Secretariat of the National Unions of Students.

It is the only student member of the National Education Association and American Council on Education. It has participated in the national meetings of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, Association of Deans and Advisors of Men, American Association of Junior Colleges and many other national education conferences. It has spoken for American students informally and formally with the State Department and U. S. Office of Education on many matters affecting them.

WHAT ARE NSA'S RELATIONS WITH OTHER STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS?

NSA has no organizational ties with any of the many religious, political, social and professional student groups throughout the country. It does, however, consult with them informally on projects of mutual concern.

NSA has greeted many of these groups on the occasion of their national conferences and provided speakers and observers on several occasions in behalf of the association. On the campus level it has encouraged its NSA groups to cooperate with all student organizations on NSA projects of interest to their various local chapters.

RELATIONS WITH INTERNATIONAL STUDENT GROUPS?

It has been the policy of the association to seek cooperation with international student groups and student unions of other nations in the implementation of its exchange of persons and information programs.

NSA has never been a member, and has found it impossible, because of their partisan political activity, to cooperate with the International Union of Students. NSA does not send delegates to meetings of representative national student organizations (the Inter-American Student Congress, and the annual International Student Conferences).

SITTIN' ON THE SIDELINES

END OF SEMESTER IS STUDY TIME

By MARCIA MORRIS

The time has arrived. For one entire semester we have haunted the Amber House, camped on the door step of every movie in town, and consumed every extra minute of the waking hours—and some of the sleeping ones—exercising Culbertson's latest in bridge.

We have slashed the cut system to shreds, caught up on great quantities of sleep, partied with a great frenzy—at least with a frenzy as great as the rule book will allow—and extra-curriculared with a venom. Now the time has come.

Yes, times are changed and we are changed with them. Next week is dead week. Next week is also the week for sad, sad tales; for next week is catch up time. Students say goodbye to the amusement centers of the campus—and spend their fleeting hours on the front stoop of the library. Books are dusted off, grades occupy the spot light for the first time this semester, and the PROFESSORS are in the driver's seat. Pressing dates for next week are conferences with the instructors — more familiarly known as post mortems.

We now become thinkers. We send for sandwiches and order cokes. Prowling the campus in jeans under coats, we toss away lip-stick and cologne for the duration. Hanging upon exam week is the fate of the nation.

We now become hermits. Study is our middle name. For snatches of history we rack our poor brains. Outlines sell out, and Spanish translations are more scarce than hen's teeth—they become our ultimate salvation.

The beds beckon as never before, but no-doze prevails. Outstanding social events of the season are tea and coffee parties at three in the a. m. Electric bills are terrific. Freshmen wish for the good old days when they had to be in bed by eleven-fifteen. Then they had an excuse. Now it's too late.

But some are happy. Seniors interns gloat. We feel like wringing their necks but still they gloat—that is, the ones who are graduating. As for the other faction—well, like I said, it's going to be a sad week! It's depressing to be hinded by engagement rings one minute, and be surrounded with black robes on ironing boards and coat hangers the next. Black robes, engagement rings, everywhere! Phooey!

I'm getting bitter. All underclassmen are getting bitter—except one. She has straight A's. We have classes together next semester. In the meantime, already we have started up the road of improvement. Let me recommend a surefire method of success. It was presented to me as a gift, a sure fire hint if I ever saw one, a very remarkable piece of literature.

The title of the volume is "How to Study" and it is guaranteed to accomplish something, even if only a fit of histeria, which is the reaction of some of its more immature readers. At any rate the author is—a—well, you can find it on any library shelf—a widely read volume.

Seriously speaking, if any instructors should happen to read this, of course it's all nonsense. Why, it could never happen to an FSU student. And just to be sure that it never does, I'd better sign off now and scurry back to my regular seat in the library—the one which I've maintained all semester dashing away just long enough to wage a bitter battle with the editor, the typewriter, and the clock at deadline time.

But now I've written five-hundred space-filling words and Bill says—"O. K. dinner time you can go home!" So, cheerio, till next semester—and please this only happens once a year—at exam time! !

UGA EXPLAINS RULES ON FUND-RAISING

By The UGA Fund Committee

Note: The purpose of this article is to acquaint the students with the Funds Committee which regulates the solicitaion of funds on his campus. No soliciaion of funds by any organizaion mus be made unless the group abides by the rules the committee has set up. Violation of this means the organization can be put on probation or suspended.

DURING EACH ACADEMIC year various student organizations wish to sponsor fund-raising projects in order to render a service, or to meet the expense of a project which is in itself a service, to the university.

MONEY SHALL NOT be spent primarily for the organization, but shall be spent for the benefit of the University community.

Any request to raise funds on the Florida State University Campus must be made through the Funds Committee under the Executive Branch of the UGA. Only campus organizations which do not receive money from the Student Activity Fee are allowed to sponsor a fund-rainsig project.

ALL REQUESTS for funds-raising projects must be submitted in writing on a prepared form which indicates, particularly, the amount of money needed to finance the project and also the amount of money the organization is going to charge to meet this financial expense and obtain the funds desired. After completion of the project, an itemized accounting of receipts and expenditures must be received by the Funds Committee.

These written requests must be submitted to the committee on or before the first "school" day of the month preceding the month of the proposed project; e.g., all requests for November projects are due on or before Oct. 1.

IF, WHEN THE service is completed, a surplus of money is left, it will be placed in the organization's reserve and applied to the next year's project. If this surplus proves sufficient to meet the next year's project expenses, no permission will be granted the organization to raise money. However, sufficient money to cover the proposed project must be made, or permission will be denied for another attempt to raise money.

National organizations, such as Red Cross, American Legion etc., must secure funds from the Campus Chest.

NO SOLICITATION on campus for the benefit of an individual is permitted. There can be no door-to-door soliciting in any of the university residence halls or sorority or fraternity houses "by" any organization, nor "for" any organization except Campus Chest. Exceptions to this rule may be made by the University Council.

Violation of any Funds Committee policies makes an organization liable for probation, which is cancellation of any funds-raising project the following year.

Copies of complete Funds Committee rules and project request forms are available at the UGA office, second floor, Longmire Building.

Annikki Karvonen Is Campus Guest

Mrs. Annikki Karvonen, Chief Inspector of Physical Education in Elementary and Secondary Schools and Training Colleges in Finland, is spending two weeks at Florida State University.

While on the FSU campus Mrs. Karvonen will give special attention to the circus and gymkane practices. She will study the overall physical education programs of both men and women students.

Her visit will be climaxed by teaching Finnish folk dances to men and women majors in physical education, recreation and health, Jan. 22, in the women's gym.

Mrs. Karvonen, also a lecturer of games and athletics at the University of Helsinki, is in this country with a group of 13 Finnish teachers on a State Department International Education exchange grant.

On arrival last August the Finnish eduactors had an orientation period in Washington. Schools, colleges and universities best suited to individual purposes were recommended. That was when Mrs. Karvonen became interested in FSU.

FSU Professors Elected to Board

Dr. Mildred Morgan, professor of Home and Family Life, School of Home Economics, and Dr. Meyer Nimkoff, head of the department of sociology have been elected to the Board of Directors of the National Council of Family Relations, according to Mrs. Helen Hitner, executive secretary of the council.

Werneke's Average Among Nation's High

His 38 Points Against Tampa Is Record

A modest, slightly-built freshman named Paul Franklin Wernke—known in Seminole territory as just plain "Ham," is rewriting Florida State University's basketball record book

The six-foot, 175-pound hardwood wizard from — you might have guessed it—a little community in Indiana, is running wild down FSU scoring lanes this season.

The nimble 19-year-old Batesville, Ind., youngster has connected for 245 points in 11 games. That's an arithmetic average of more than 22 points per game, and ranks him high among the nation's leading college cage scorers.

Wernke reached a season's peak against the University of Tampa as State dropped a four-point decision in the Cigar City Monday night. The jack-of-all-trades guard poured in 38 points to easily establish an all-time, single-game FSU individual point total.

Ham's 38-point spree against Tampa—which followed his most unproductive outing of the season (ha bagged only 11 against Miami last week)—bettered by nine points the previous individual high at State. Bob Hartman, now graduatede, held the old record of 28 points, chalked up against Howard College in 1951.

Wernke canned 14 field goals—a new FSU high in that category—and 10 free throwa on the way to bis new record. Hartman also held the single-game field goal high when he meshed 13 against Millikin in the 1951 National NAIB tournament in Kansas City.

Hartman's mark of 493 points for one season also is being endangered by Wernke, who has 9 regular-season games to go. Most Indian fans believe the ambidextrous Wernke, whose best shot is a one-hand jump, will make it.

That would be quite an accomplishment for the yearling, who had tha peculiar distinction of lettering although he played only in five games last season.

One of Bud Kennedy's promising cagers, Jim Oler, bucketed 1. points against Florida Southern in FSU's 71-69 victory over the Moccasins Oler, lika the majority of the State team, hails from Indiana. His play i. -spidly improving and he has been seeing more action with each game.

Records Fall In Preliminaries

A freshman speedster from Lakeland cracked two intramural track marks Wednesday in the preliminarites of the Fraternity track meet. Bobby Jones, the ATO frosh sliced 3 tenths of a second off the 100 yard dash record by doing the 220 in 23.2 eclipsing by more than a second the old mark set by Pitchner also of ATO. The old 100 yard dash record of 10.7 was held by football star Nelson Italiano.

The finals of the two day meet were held yesterday afternoon on the West Campus track

TWO OTHER record-breaking performances were turned during Wednesday's competition in the Fraternity section. Ed Titus, a freshman competiting for SAE heaved the javelin in 147¾ to shatter the old mark of 129 feet set by Carroway of SAE.

And varsity football center Jerry Jacobs of the Phi Delta Theta set a shot put standard with a distance of 49 7¾ feet with the 12 pound shot. His distance bettered the old mark set by Johnson, of the KA's in 1946. Jacobs was a foot short of the school intramural standard established by varsity track man Carlos Fraundorfer last year.

The four new Fraternity marks, highlighted the Preliminary competition Wednesday which drew about 150 contestants and an estimated crowd of 300. The 440 and 880 runs were the only events which didn't have preliminaries to narrow down the field.

The meet has Fraternity and Dormitory in separate competition however the times of both divisions will be matched to determine the All-University champions.

Below is the list of the qualifiers for the finals in the track events:

100 Yard Dash—Frats: Woodham, PKT; Mansfield, LC; Jones ATO; Holland, PKA; Johnson, PDT; Greene, PKT.

120 Yard Low Hurdles—Frats: Edwards, PDT; Taylor, ATO; Cassedy, SC; Mansfield, LC; King, PKT; Fogle, SN.

120 Yard Low Hurdles: Dorms: Guest, Troj.; Egan, Sr. H., Fletcher, Sr H.; Carpenter, WC.; Reeves, W.C.

220 Yard Dash—Dorms: Kulzer, Mocc.; McLellan, Cats.; Cross, Mag.; Summers, Mag.; Evans, W.C.

Frosh Impress In Early Drills For Baseball

Another week of preliminary baseball drills end tomorrow and FSU's head coach Ralph Matherly indicates he is pleased with what he has seen of the 40 candidates who have been working out for the last two weeks.

In these early practice sessions, which will end Wednesday, Jan. 21, Matherly is chiefly concerned with freshmen and transfer talent. From this group Matherly will have to form the nucleus of his 1953 squad, since he only has six lettermen returning from last year's nine. The returning varsity men won't turn out for drills until the start of the second semester when official practice starts

However the lack of experienced veterans hasn't caused Matherly to be pessimistic about this spring's chances on the diamond for FSU. He revealed that he'll have "plenty of depth" and is "four deep at each position."

Besides depth this year's squad will definitely put the accent on youth with about 3 quarters of the squad to be freshmen In fact, there is only one senior, pitcher Ed Lockard, on the squad and only two juniors, second baseman "Cooter" Mills and outfielder "Pinky" Nowlin. These three are all lettermen. The others returning from last year's nine are all sophomores. They are: Chuck Saunders, pitcher; Billy Campbell, second base; Ralph Blinn, short stop, and third baseman Ham Werneke

Batting practice and infield workouts have been taking up most of the time, during this two week session. The pitchers and catchers, including candidates from last spring, have also been working out.

The workouts will be brought to a close Wednesday because of examinations

Matherly also disclosed that the 1953 baseball schedule is about half completed and it will be another month before it is filled up. However, the season will probably start in mid-March and end around early May. Unlike last year there will be more week-day games in 1953 without any long periods between games

PRO BASKETBALL PLAYS

MINNEAPOLIS, (AP)—Do teams in the National Basketball Association have special plays like in football? The answer is definitely yes.

The Minneapolis Lakers, for example, have several pet formations. Their "Pensacola" play is one that the club has been using for six years. It is one of their best scoring patterns. The Lakers also have a formation called the "Weak Side."

Naturally, the Minnesotans refuse to divulge what these plays are and how they work.

Newmanites & PDT Meet Tuesday for FSU Bowling Crown

The All-University bowling championship will be at stake Tuesday when the Newman Club, kingpin of the Dorm league, face the Phi Delta Tau keglers in the East Gym alleys.

The Phi Delts took the frat crown by knocking over Alpha Tau Omega last week while the Newman Club beat the Mocs of Freshman Hall for the Dorm title.

Senior Hall was last year's bowling champs in the Dorm League and Sigma Nu won the Frat title. This is the first time that the two leaders of each division have met to decide a single champion.

FSU Swimmers Face Jax Navy Saturday Night

FSU's swimming team takes on Jacksonville Naval Air Station tomorrow night in the East Campus Pool. Starting time is 8 p m.

School records may fall in the 200-yard backstroke, breaststroke, and medley relay events as State's specialty men George Cooper, Dick Rhoton and Dick Well have been gunning for this one.

State beat the Navy men fairly easily before Christmas in the Jacksonville pool but, the Navy is said to have been strengthened by the addition of new men to the station and this meet may be a tough one.

Swimming fans will get a chance to see one of the top divers in the South perform in the person of O. Seabright. Petty Officer Seabright edged State's ace diver, Dan Blackshear, in their last meeting Saturday's lineup for Florida State University will include.

Grid Coaches Widely Divided Over Return to Limited Subbing

One coach who is all in favor of the discarding of the two-platoon system is Florida State's football boss Don Veller. The two platoon system or free substitution during a game, which gave rise to the football specialist, was abolished by the football rules committee of the NCAA. Veller, in voicing his opinon of the unexpected move called it a "wonderful thing".

From now on he indicated.re

FROM NOW ON he indicated, recruiting will be easier for the schools which do not have tremendous financial recourses to lure top-flight talent Because of the high cost of maintaining big squads many schools have dropped football. The new ban on free-substitution will probably induce a few of these to take up the sport again.

Commenting on the effect the two platoon system had on football, Veller said. "This will also help equalize the coaching problems. The larger schools have had huge staffs with men for each offensive and defensive position. They could split their squads and spend an entire day working on both offense and defense. The smaller schools with the smaller staffs haven't been able to do that"

ANOTHER REASON why Veller likes the new rule is that it will compel a boy to play both offense and defense As he put it: "Now boys are going to be able to play real football They'll have to play both ways or not at all."

Those in favor of the "one platoon" system, like Veller, advanced these reasons for their stand. 1. The era of the specialist is ever. 2. Recruiting will be lessened. 3. Coaches will have to go back to teaching fundamentals. 4. It will benefit the smaller colleges. 5. It will help colleges financially by making for smaller squads.

THE COACHES who preferred the two-platoon system advanced as their arguments: 1. It gave more boys an opportunity to play. 2. Boys were less susceptible to injury. 3. Not as much practice time was required. 4. The change will mean a poorer brand of football.

William Powers Outlines History

A history of the development of Florida's institutions of higher learning was outlined by William Powers, executive secretary, of the State Board of Control, before a class in public administration recently

To point up the growth of Florida institutions of higher learning, Powers pointed out that in 1907 the budget requested for the then four institutions was $150,000.

"This year," the speaker said, "the budget asked is $42-million, plus $20-million for buildings."

In discussing the highlights of the State's development of higher education institutions, Powers said Florida was one of the first states to consolidate all higher education activities under one board of control.

He said one of the main functions of the Board of Control is to go over each institution's budget to work out a realistic budeet to present to the Legislature

Powers was introduced by Dr. Wilsn K. Doyls, dean of the School of Public Administration.

Florida State Retailing Class Reveals Internship Programs

With the return of a class of retailing students to Florida State University from 30 days' internship in the business world, Florida State's Schools of Business and Home Economics reveal that they too, have an internship program.

Sponsored by the Florida State University, the program was praised recently hy an official of the school who said, "Splicing academic theories to the stern realities of the business world has given these students new practical ideas."

THEIR MONTH-LONG jobs were in department stores at Jacksonville, Orlando, Tampa and St. Petersburg. During this time, a majority were given selling experience. Some did filing, typing and bookkeeping.

Jobs included work in advertising departments, receptionists, personal shopping, mail order, information booth and assistants to floor manager and buyer.

"The retailing internship program is still in the guinea pig stages at FSU," stated Ralph Baker, instructor in clothing and textiles and director of interns, recently. "But," he continues, "It's growing fast."

THE AREA COVERED by interns is gradually being increased, according to Baker. In 1953 he hopes to place students as far afield as Miami.

The latest retailing interns are now attending an FSU campus seminar evaluating and co-ordinating their experience in the field.

New Isotope

ple, by feeding the magnesium-28 isotope to rats, it will be possible to determine whether magnesium concentrates in the bones, liver, spleen or other parts of the body."

MEDICAL SCIENCE has shown the importance of balance between sodium and potassium to the health of humans. The scientist believes that there may be an important magnesium balance, too. "At the time not known, but almost certainly there will be," he said.

Ralph Becker, a graduate student working with Dr. Sheline, has already, completed experiment sin simple plants with the radioactive magnesium.

HE ALSO found that in experiments magnesium-28 would not incorporate with a pure chlorophyll molecule, but would incorporate with some constituent of living plants.

"This means," Dr. Sheline said, "that there is some factor yet unknown that causes magnesium to incorporate in live plants."

THE NEW magnesium radioactivity was produced by both the beatatron of the University of Chicago an dthe cyclotron of the University of California in bombardments arranged by Dr. Sheline with the Atomic Energy Commission.

In both cases tiny projectiles were hurled at tremendous speeds and high energies against silicon and magnesium atoms producing new atoms not previously present.

THE NEW ATOMS were sent air mail special delivery to FSU. Then Dr. Sheline and Johnson isolated the new isotope, using various chemical processes

Dr. Sheline is now looking for new radioactivities, in silicon, for instance This, he predicts, will be useful in the manufacture of glass. He started the experimental part of magnesium-28 last October. He came here last February. He first saw evidence of the new isotope a couple of months ago.

THE SCIENTIST does not seem to consider his experimental findings as important as some other scientists who are excited over it. These people are the ones interested in photosynthesis and the study of plant life. "My field is nuclear energy," says Dr. Sheline, who is more interested in his findings from the radioactive point of view. "This is kind of fun, but also a shock . . "

During World War II Dr. Sheline worked on the Manhattan Project at Columbia University, Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Los Alamos, N.M.

HE RECEIVED his Ph.D. in chemistry at the University of California under Dr. K. S Pitzer, dean of the College of Chemistry and former director of research for the Atomic Energy Commission . He also served as an instructor for two years in the University of Chicago Institute for Nuclear Studies.

drawn, and construction should begin on these buildings within the next few months.

NATURALLY IT REMAINS to be seen whether all this can be accomplished as soon as it is hoped. However, should progress proceed according to advance planning, the next two years will see the Student Union building assume the center position on campus; and boundaries will extend to the stadium. The dormitory now under construction will be flanked shortly by a geology building; and the now distant post office and men's fraternity houses will border on the hub of campus activity. This is only a two-year advance outline of the next steps in Florida State's fifty year plan.

Broadway Treatment Give To Shakespeare's "Shrew"

"The Taming of the Shrew," the Shakespearian comedy to be presented by the department of speech, tonight, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, was recently made into a top Broadway musical under the Cole Porter banner of "Kiss Me Kate."

Starring Alfred Drake and Patricia Morrison as Petrucio and his shrew Katherine, "Kiss Me Kate" played to full houses along the "great white way" and today is being considered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as their next musical. In the Hollywood version, Howard Keel and Katherine Grayson are rumored to be in the top spots with Red Skelton as a certainty to get the part of Grumio, the manservant to Petrucio.

IN THE FSU production Robert Strane, last seen in "Biography," has been chosen to play Petrucio while Jayne Gardner, who has appeared in leading roles in many speech department production, has been chosen for Katherine.

"The Taming of the Shrew" has been brought back to Broadway many times and each time very successfully. Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine, famous for their man and wife roles on stage and off, have brought it to the most recent prominence. Brooks Atkinson, Drama critic of the New York Times, has said of their protrayals, "If Taming of the Shrew is current and top Broadway fare, it is because the Lunts have made it so."

THIS WILL Be the first Shakespearian production in the history of the department of speech.

A dramatic group from the Leon High School viewed the dress rehearsal last night in the Conradi theater. They were brought over by Mrs. June Davis Ellingsworth. Mrs. Ellingsworth, a former student at Florida State, is the wife of Huber Ellingsworth who has the role of Hortensio, close friend of Petrucio. Mr. Ellingsworth is an instructor in Speech 105 and is a doctoral candidate.

Chartered Bus Gains Popular As Low Rates Draw Students

By DAVID DREIS

High bus fares from the Seminole campus back to the stomping grounds of each Indian used to be a problem at FSU and still is to those who miss out in getting a seat aboard one of the many chartered coaches heading to all points of the compass.

Yes, chartered busses have been the determining factor in many a student's plans on whether he would be tasting Mom's cooking at least four more times a year, mainly because by charter rates are in "pocket-view" of the student.

For instance, since chartered busses began functioning around the FSU reservation, rates have been lowered to the extent that a $20 round-trip fare to Miami has been pushed down to $15.

The number of busses going to and fro has mounted as fast as the school has grown, with the largest number of coaches coming and going to the Magic City. At least four busses are heading down that way with two going to Tampa, one traveling to O and one to St. Petersburg.

The size of the increa population from these fa places can be seen as they the day school lets out, in of Bryan Hall and across the Seminole Club.

Although students become ular customers of this bus ice, many times, the char the coaches is dropped be of the lack of people to fill

At the end of the semes full bus is often doubtful Christmas and Thanksgivin buses are usually packed plenty of standing room on

Dr. Don Veller Resigns Position As F. S. U. Head Football Coach

Plans to Continue at State as Professor; Campbell Accepts Resignation With Regret

By JIM EADY

Florida State lost the man who helpedbuild football here when Dr. Don Veller resigned from his head coaching joh in a surprising move which caught unaware everybodv but a few top officials.

Veller, whose teams have compiled a record of 31 wins, and 12 losses over a five year period, stepped dowo for personal reasons. The losing season last fall had nothing to do with his resignation nor was it caused by other outside pressures. He received a $8.300 salary.

Actually in a letter to President Doak Campbell, Veller requested to be relieved of his coaching position, but to remain on the staff as a professor of physical education The University's announcemeot indicated that the request would be granted. Dr. Campbell said he regretted that Veller had decided to change his position but according to an old agreement the coach could do it.

The agreement was that Veller could at any time request his release and then asume a regular professorship on the physical education staff. Also he would assume the professorial rank held at tha time of request. Vallar holds a doctor of philosophy degree in physical education.

Also revealed was the fact that Veller had made known previously that he was desirous of leaving his coaching job.

After both the 1950 and '51 football campaigns he indicated this to Dr Campbell. But in the first instence he was talked out of it and in the second he with-

Tonight Marks Last Show Of Shakespearian Comedy

'Taming of the Shrew' Ends Run With Conradi Performance at 8:15

The curtain will come down tonight on a four-day run of one of William Shakespeare's best known comedies, "The Taming of the Shrew.'

The play will begio at 8:15 p m. in the Conradi Theater, with Jayne Gardner taking the part of the shrew and Robert Strane as Petrucbio, the man who finally succeeds in changing her fiery temper into a submissive, humble nature

THE CAST, composed of speech department students, is under the direction of Carl Zerke, who is beina assisted by Sara Margaret Davis. Zerke is an instructor, while Miss Davis is a Senior with a major under the department.

THE PLAY, according to Shakespeare's way of introducing it, is presented for the amusement of Christopber Sly, a drunken tinker, who is led to believe on awakenina from a stupor that he is a wealthy lord.

But the main action concerns the efforts of Petruchio to subdue his temperamental and strong-willed wife, Katherine. Previous to their marriage, Katherine had been the center of many plots by which young men interested in her sister were trying to marry her off. Bianca could not marry until her aister was wed.

Petruchio's uncouth appearance and behavior, his brutality to the servants and his refusal to let Katherine wear respectable clothes finally made her eventempered.

A SUB-PLOT deals with the wooing and winning of Bianca by Lucentio, in spote of rival suitors and her father's opposition to the match.

Douglas Russell, instructor in speech, and his student staff including Nancy Dickinson, Jean Sparling and Del Hansen are responsible for the costumes. Russell has costumed 22 Shakespearian plays so far.

National Drive Requests Help

Florida Sttate students have been asked by National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis State Rep. Benson Skelton Sr. to contrioute to the current March of Dimes campaign.

Over the country college and university stunts ranging from pelting profs with pies to shoeshining by beanteous coeds are being carried out to help in the national drive which ends the last day of January.

POLIO STRUCK more than 55,000 persons last year, most of them under 21 years of age. This was 13,000 more than the previous worst year in history. It cost more than $28,000,000 in March of Dimes funds to care for the record number of stricken. This was $5,000,000 more then ever before.

One of the most widely publicized events of the drive took place on a campus—at the University of Oklahoma at Norman. At the carnival, the services of University Pres. George Cross, several other faculty members and 13 coeds were auctioned off. Sigma Alpha Epsilon bid in Dr. Cross and put him to work in the fraternity kitchen.

A fraternity at College of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif., had their pledges run up the Confederal flag on the post office in Rough and Ready, a gold rush town in the Sierras where Southern Sympathizers seceded during the Civil War. Two days later they "captured" San Francisco's Union Square. At both stunts donations for the polio fund were collected from spectetors.

Plans for Student Traffic Court Are Underway, Says U.G.A. Head

Plans for a new student traffic court, operated by University Government Association, are well underway bere, according to Mary Ruth Summers, UGA president.

A bill, drawn up by Senator Gene Lawler, will go before the senate at their regular meeting today in the Longmire building at 5:15 p m The new court, if passed, will affect all students on campus who operate motor vehicles. It was stressed that these studnts may attend the senate meeting and see just what is going to be expected of them. All senate meetings are open to the public.

THE OLD TRAFFIC court, instituted on this campus in 1951 had no authority to enforce traffic violations, but in July of 1951, Attorney General Ervin set a precedent by announciog that the University of Florida in Gainesville had the right to institute student traffic courts as regulated by the Board of Controls. "His ruling in that case 'assures us of tha validity of our court,'' asserts Mary Ruth.

The new court system will consist of three justices. Chief justice, according to the constitution of the traffic court, will be Mac McMullen, chairman of the Traffic Court Other justices will be a junior representative, Steva Bailey, and a sophomore representative, eGorge Martin.

ANY VIOLATION of the traffic code will mean that the offender is to receive a ticket. The offender then has an option of going to the clerk's office in the UGA office, or asking for a hearing. At the hearing, where the three justices will preside, the offender may present witnesses and have a counsel.

The bill before the Senate will have a change of offenses. First offense will still be a warning, but instead of going up to five dollars for the first fiva offenses it will be as follows: first offense, warning, second offense, 50 cents, third offense, 1 dollar; fourth offense, 2 dollars; fifth offense, 5 dollars, and any other offense will bring more stringent punishment

THE CLERK and assistant clark of traffic court will be appointed by traffic chairman McMullen. by traffic chairman McMullen. They will receive fines and keep files on offenders.

All students who have a car in their possession for at least 72 hours must register it with the Business Manager of the University. Ha will then issue a stamp that must be stuck on the inside right front windshield. The absence of the sticker is an official violation of the traffic code

JURISDICTION of the court extends over East and West Campus, but a more definite statement of boundaries is underway.

The following are official violation of traffic code as stated in the new bill. Parking by a fireplug, parking across sidewalk entrances, obstructing traffic, making illegal U turns, improper parking, parking in no parking zones and in yellow painted curbs, parking in loading zones, double parking, failure to stop for through streets, passing on curves disregarding traffic officers' signal.

DRIVING WITH improper driver driver license, exceeding 20 mile limit on East Campus, and 25 limit on West Campus. Included under the court jurisdiction will be Call, Woodward, Jefferson, and Copeland Streets.

"We feel that this is one of the biggest steps taken by UGA towards letting students assume responsibilities for their actions," States Mary Ruth. "Actually," she continues, the student court is a service rendered to the student body, as these same offenses if tried by the county or city officials would mean suffer fines and court fees.

"ALL PROCEEDS of the traffic court will probably go into a student scholarship fund," commented McMullen. "But the project requires the full cooperation of the student body."

Dean of Student Welfara Broward Cullpepper gave UGA the go ahead on the court, and University President Doak S. Campbell ok'ed the plans The Board of Controls is expected to act accordingly.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

SEMINOLE SCENES

SCENE: EXAM WEEK, F S U ?

By FRANCES CAWTHON

The Approach of Examination Week . . . or . . . What's on at the Movies Tonight? . . .

He was sitting in his room writing "Now is the time for good men to come to the aid of their country."

He had just typed it out 52 times, ten of them at 60 words a minute without mistakes. Pretty good. Ten consecutive times at that. He was between "aid" and "of" for the 53rd time when Josh came in.

Josh was trying to chug-a-lug a Coke again. He'd tried five times since he lost a two dollar bet in the Amber House after his ten o'clock class, but with no luck.

He coughed for two minutes and then sank into a chair.

"Just no good, no good. It tickles too much. Finish your term paper yet, George?"

George looked at his 52½ now-is-the times.

"Naw, but it's coming along . . ."

"Whatcha written so far?" Josh asked in mild interest, eying the half-full Coke bottle with a frown.

"Well, I'm just sorta doodling now. You know, getting thoughts organized."

"Proposed changes for the Taft-Hartley law . . ." muttered Josh with one eye peeking down into the formidable bottle. "Sounds lousy . . . absolutely lousey. Glad I ain't a public ad. major . . ."

George indignantly raised his nose off the typewriter carriage.

"You oughta be learning about the Taft-Hartley, being a business major. It's gonna affect you when you get out in business."

Josh took his eyeball out of the bottle. "How?" he asked.

"Well, it affects employers and employes, doesn't it?"

"How?" asked Josh as he held the Coke up to the light and sloshed it around.

"Against . . . it really . . . well, I'd say . . . against unfair practices."

"Yeah," said Josh as he looked at his roommate. "I know that. I been reading the newspapers. But what unfair practices . . ."

"I'm not that far into it yet." George frowned, finishing his 53rd line of "now-is-the-times.

"I got to study tonight. Exam week is coming." mused Josh. "I'm gonna really apply myself. Those grades have got to be a one point."

Determinately, the stocky Josh went over to the book shelf, dusted off a volume and and sat back down. He silently poured over the book, while George put in a fresh piece of paper and began to write "The Taft-Harley Law and Proposed Changes."

Five minutes passed, and Josh looked up from his book.

"I'm hungry."

"Me too," George decided, abandoning his typewriter and heading for the door. They went to the Amber House, consumed two hamburgers each and swapped the-one-about- the-guy-who with Tom and Phil, who also said they were going to apply themselves this week before exams. After Phil and Tom had beaten George and Josh at three rounds of pin ball on the machine reading "Three Feathers," —it was the best one, burlesque cuties, you know—they left to go back to the studies.

At the dorm three hours later, George was pounding out, "The Quick Brown Fox Jumped Over the Little Red Hen," when in burst a purple-faced Josh.

"I . . . sputter! . . . did it! I chug-a-lugged a whole bottle! Easy as one-two-three. Betcha two bucks you can't do it without stopping, George!!"

Moral: There's always next semester.

All students, including graduate students, must return library books on or before Wednesday, January 28.

An additional charge of 25 cents per book will be made for each book not returned by this date since library records must be cleared at the close of the semester. During the week between semesters, the Library will be open part time. Hours of opening are posted in the library.

'Always a Number, Never a Name'

Verse, written by John T. Wightman.

It is dedicated to high school seniors being sought by Southeastern Conference Colleges.

This is the story of Johnny McKswn,
Outstanding prepper of All-State renown.
Johnny was speedy, elusive and tough,
As big as an ox and liked to play rough.
Scouts looked him over. Alumni did, too.
Jean got an offer from Southeastern U.
Tuition, lodging and board to be paid,
And cash from a fund called "Grants-in-aid."

Johnny set out with illusions so grand.
Southeastern U. was tops in the land.
Two things for sure: He'd get on the team—
Make All-America! Such was his dream.
But Johnny was in for an awful surprise.
The first day of practice opened his eyes.
Instead of a squad of thirty-five men,
Johnny was one of a hundred and ten.

All of them hand-picked as Johnny had been.
(The manpower wasted was almost a sin.)
Orders were posted, restrictive and drab;
"Don't take a course with an afternoon lab!"
"No basket ball, base ball, tennis or track!"
"No women, tobacco or late evening snack!"
"Stay in condition for practice NEXT SPRING!"
"Always remember that FOOT BALL is KING!"

Scrimmaging, scrimmaging, on went the grind.
Nights at the blackboard improving the mind.
Blocking and tackling as weeks huried by,
Hoping to get to the head coach's eye.
Johnny was blue, for as far as he kenw
Johnny was blue, for as far as he kenw
His squad name was just "Hey, YOU—Eighty-two."
They let him handle a line-marker stake.

Came the next autumn, his sophomore fall.
Back were the coaches and Johnny and all.
Out on the practice field Johnny would go.
Running the plays of NEXT SATURDAY'S Foe.
Johnny worked harder. Results were the same.
He got on the bench but not in the game.
Week after week he would wait for the call.
Nobody noticed poor Johnny at all.

Johnny, a junior, was suited one day,
Sat on the bench with three minutes to play,
Forty points leading, when out of the blue
Came a terse order—"Hey, YOU, Eighty-two,
Get in—relieve that defensive left guard—
Move Jones to tackle and send out Brevard," Johnny, not sensing his lack of a name,
Jumped with alacrity—played out the game.

Late in the spring of his senior year,
Maples were buding, commencement was near,
Johnny was stroling down Liberty Street
When whom do you reckon he chanced to meet?
Head Coach O'Malley, so hard to approach,
So Johnny just sputtered a "Good Mornin', Coach."
O'Malley, austere, but never a snob,
Looked Johnny over (his eye on the job).

"Gracious, my boy, but you're hefty and tall,
Just the right type to go great in foot ball.
I'll tell you what (his eye had a gleam),
Next year why don't you come out for the team?"
Thus the sum total of Johnny's career
Was three minutes played in his junior year.
Always a number. Never a name.
That is the story of Johnny and Fame.

PDT Takes Track Title

Four Records Fall in Meet

The well-balanced track squad of Phi Delta Theta added another championship to the two they have already acquired by out-performing all rivals to win the Fraternity and All-University intra mural track title. The Phi Delts, winner of the touch football and bowling crowns, showed to much over-all strength as they garnered 36 points to 26 for the second place ATO's. The meet was run on the West Campus track last Thursday.

However the Phi Delts had to share the spotlight with a swift sprinter who cracked two school intramural records. The record-breaker, Bobby Jones—sped the 'hundred' in 10.3 and the 220 in 23. He was the only double winner in the fraternity competition and along with Harder's victory in the 440 yard dash gave the ATO's three firsts, which was high for the meet.

Besides the two records smashed by Jones two other marks fell. Ed Titus of Sigma Alpha Epsilon buried the discus 147'10½" to shatter by 20 feet the old mark set by Frank Carraway, SAE. And Buddy Bryant of the KA's established a new record by high-jumping 5'8½" to break the old one by Thompson of 5'8¼". Titus is a freshman from Thomasville and a candidate for the varsity track team. Bryant has been a member of the football squad for the past two seasons.

The victorious Phi Delts took two first places, but they managed to score high in eight of the ten events. In fact they scored amassed 14 points in just two events: the shot put and broad jump. All in all the winner's took three second places, one third place, three fourth places and two fifth places, besides the first place victories in the low hurdles and shot put.

Behind the second place ATO's, in third spot were Kappa Alpha. They finished just a half point ahead of Sigma Chi who captured the fourth position.

The 150 points which PDT was awarded for winning the track title put them way out in front in the race for the Intramural Sports trophy. By taking second place in the meet ATO moved ahead of Kappa Alpha into second place in the struggle for the coveted award which they won last year.

The winner of the Fraternity track derby last year was Sigma Nu.

Campusites piled up a total of 41 points. Their nearest rival was Magnolia Hall with only 13 points followed by the Cats of the Freshmen Hall. No new records were made.

There were two double victories in the meet. John Kulzer of the Moccasins won both the 100 in 10.8 and the 220 in 23.9, while Trop Barnes heaved his way to victory in the shot put and the discus. Barnes, a freshman football player, posted 39'4½" in the shot and 103'11¾" in the discus.

Tank Men in Atlanta Wednesday for Dual With Tech; Split Two Over Weekend

By PETE DUNN RANKIN

Florida State University's tank team will meet Georgia Tech in Atlanta tomorrow afternoon in the first meeting of the year for both teams.

Coach "Bim" Stults will take a 20 man squad with him today and his comment has been that Tech is an "unknown quantity." Stults will rely on consistant point getters John Baruch, Dick Rhoton.

Don Van Hise and Mike Castagna to provide the margin of victory in the first road trip of the season.

States record so far is 2 wins and 1 loss. The Seminoles have beaten Jacksonville Navy twice by scores of 43-40 and 51-30 and were edged by the University of Georgia 45-39.

SPLIT TWO

FSU's swimming team broke even in dual meets this weekend as they toppled Jax Navy 50-34 and were edged by Georgia in a real thriller 45-39 in the East Campus pool.

Georgia showed surprising strength in the last relay as their anchor man Marshall Floyd flashed home a hand ahead of States' Dick Wells in the final even to beat the Seminoles in Thursday's dual encounter.

FSU's tankmen, who were supposed to be hte underdogs, led through nine events but could not deny Georgia's Reid Patterson who broke two pool records in the 50 and 100 yard dashes and then provided the winning margin in the final relay.

Patterson's time in the 100 was a tremendous 52 2 and in the 50 23.3. States John Baruch also broke the pool record in the 50 as he finished in 23.9 seconds.

A standing room only crowd saw the Bulldogs Hal Stolts set another record in the 200 yard breast stroke as he finished ahead of the Seminoles Dick Rhoton in a sparkling 2:30.1 effort.

State ran up an early lead and then coasted to a 50 to 34 victory in Saturday's meet with Jacksonville Navy as Coach Bim Stults used his freshman liberally.

A packed house saw State prep for Wednesday's meet with Georgia Tech in Atlanta as some of the reserves saw what they could do in dual meet competition.

Veller's Letter

"When I accepted my present position at FSU, you will remember I was told that I [illegible] football coaching duties at any time that I might choose. Also that upon this request for release, I could assume a regular professorship on the physical education staff at the professional rank held at the time of request.

"If agreeable to university officials I would like to request my release at this time to become effective as soon as convenient. I have enjoyed my work as coach of football the last five years and wish for my successor the greatest of sucess."

the rugged schedule FSU faced in 1952.

WHEN VELLER FIRST came to Florida State from the University of Indiana he planned on coaching only two or three years. In fact he turned down a raise so that he could retain his professorial rank for the day when he would resign. In order to have received the raise he would have had to sign a regular coach's contract which would have cost him his tenure and professional status. Then in Florida State's efforts to reach big time football Veller's plans on resigning were forgotten.

Before Veller stepped out of football—for good he says—he coached the Seminoles to 31 wins and 12 losses and the only undefeated season ever accomplished by a white collgee in Florida. That was in 1950. Before the eight games, Veller had led the Seminoles to 30 victories and only 1952 season, which saw FSU lose four setbacks.

PRIOR TO COMING to FSU Veller coached at Elkart High, Ind., and Hanover College. In his 13 years of coaching he has com- [illegible] a very outstanding record [illegible]-26.

Right after Veller's resignation, the executive athletic committee indicated that they are ready to process applications for the position Veller vacated. President Campbell said he expected about 30 or 40 applications to be filed in a short time. The athletic committeee is comprised of Vice-president A. B. Martin, athletic director Dr. Howard Danford. Dr. Broward Culpepper, Dr. Mode Stone and business manager Rod Shaw. They will be looking for FSU's third football coach in the modern era.

THE PRIME CANDIDATE according to some quarters is line-coach Vaugh Mancha, former All-American at Alabama. Mancha coached the centers and linebackers in his first season for Veller and after the season he became drew it, apparently [illegible] FSU's chief recruiter of football talent.

Ban Gym Star For Taking Pay for Shows

Dick Gutting, 24, Florida State's collegiate trampoline champion, was declared ineligible for further competition by the NCAA. The NCAA took the action because Gutting had received $3,100 for giving exhibitions for high schools before he enrolled at FSU. He had two years of eligibility left.

The news of his banning—a severe blow to FSU's national gymnastic champions — was received yesterday afternoon and announced by Tom Conkling sport's publist for the gym team.

THE NCAA ACTUALLY decided Gutting's fate Jan. 8 at their annual meeting in Washington. They had known from the start that Gutting received money for his tour of high schools but delayed action until after Gutting won the trampoline title last spring.

Gutting, who is from Chicago, has been a standout performer and a natural showman for Dr. Hartley Price's gym team. He holds the Florida AAU tumbling and trampoline titles and he also coaches the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots.

The loss of Gutting, said Price, "May cost Florida State the national collegiate title."

Although he cannot compete in any NCAA competition, the agile gym star may still enter the AAU tourney later this year. Since the NCAA has jurisdiction over collegiate sports only, they cannot ban him from other amateur competition.

Gutting is a senior majoring in physical education.

Dr. Julian Aldrich, professor of social studies education at New York University, and president of the National Council for the Social Studies was the main conference speaker at the second annual Social Studies Conference held at Florida State University last Saturday.

Dr. Aldrich gave an address on "Trend in Social Studies Instruction" at a luncheon held in the Suwannee Room. Later in the day a panel discussion was held. The topic for discussion was "Priorities in Citizenship Education." Panel members included Dr. Aldrich, chairman; Dr. James Prothro, assistant professor of political science at FSU; Dr. Malcolm B. Parsons, assistant professor of education at FSU; Dr. Sam Moorer, director of Division of Instructional Field Services, State Department of Education, and, Miss Mary Schornherst, chairman of the social studies department, Leon High School.

Child Guidance Is Discussion Topic In Recent Forum

The function of a community child guidance center was discussed recently in a forum at Florida State University sponsored by the University Child Development Forum in cooperation with the Psychology Seminar.

Dr. E. L. Flemming and Dr. H. G. Ginott of the Child Guidance Center of Duval County were principal speakers. Dr. Flemming outlined the development of a child guidance clinic in a community. He said that the most difficult thing is to make the parents see that the usual therapy techniques, such as play therapy, make sense and aid children.

IN HIS ADDRESS, Dr. Ginott said one of the first difficulties faced by a children's psychotherapist is the parents' reluctance to see a stranger succeed in treating the child when the parents have consistently failed. Dr. Ginott said the purpose of psychotherapy with children is to provide them with a secure place to express themselves freely, to act out their feelings and to express their attitudes.

Dr. Ralph Witherspoon, director of the FSU Child Development Program, introduced the speakers. The Upson, social welfare student forum was planned by Miss Kay Miss Lydia Boyce

America Watches Ike's Inauguration

Sets Up Principles to Be Followed In Order to Maintain Our Freedom

Dwight D. Eisehower took over the duties of President of the United States Tuesday, as millions of Americans listened over their radios and watched by television. Here at Florida State, students and faculty took time out from their lunch hours to gather in little groups around the radios and listen to what the new leader had to say.

The war-time general with his famous grin stepped out of the role of an amiable Ike to assume the seriousness of the man who must take his country through four years filled with responsibility and possible pending crises.

HE CALLED on all of his countrymen to have a renewed faith in the "deathless dignity of man, governed by eternal moral and natural laws." He said that the American is going to have to forget his individual domestic problems in order to cope with a question that involves all human kind.

"We can turn rivers in their courses, level mountains to the plains. Ocean and land and sky are avenues for our colossal commerce. Disease diminishes and life lengthens," he said.

"YET THE promise of this life is imperiled by the very genius that has made it possible. Nations amass wealth. Labor sweats to create—and turns out devices to level not only mountains but also cities. Science seems ready to confer upon us, as its final gift, the power to erase human life from the earth."

This, he said, is why Americans must have renewed faith.

EISENHOWER said this faith establishes those gifts of the Creator that are man's inalienable rights, and that make all men equal in His sight. He defined it as the virtues most cherished by free people, love of truth, pride of work, devotion to country. All Americans, he said, no matter what their occupation, serve as proudly and as profitably for America as the statesmen who draft treaties or the legislators who enact laws.

The enemies of this faith, according to President Eisenhower, know no God but force, no devotion but its use. "They tutor men in treason. They feed upon the hunger of others. Whatever defies them, they torture, especially the truth."

THE NEW President said that this faith does not belong to Americans alone but to all the free peoples of the world. He further said that these free peoples are not linked together so much by a noble idea as they are by a simple need, such as getting markets for surpluses and being able to purchase materials.

Eisenhower set up nine principals which the freedom loving people of America should follow. Number one was that Americans should "abhor war as a chosen way to balk the purposes of those who threaten us."

HIS SECOND point was that America should never try to placate an aggressor by the false and wicked bargain of trading

Classes Over While Exams Get Underway

Classes end today for Florida State students at 10 p.m., but that doesn't mean the school of higher education is ready to close down yet. Examinations start at 8 tomorow morning and will continue through 12:30 p.m. Saturday of next week.

Most people will be burning the electricity late into the night, finishing up term papers, back work and other reports. From there, they will delve into the textbooks to cram for the finals.

A FEW LUCKY students, however, may not have exams to worry with. Seniors graduating at the end of this semester may be exempt from their examinations if they have a B average in their courses—and if, of course, they have professors that are willing to give them this one last privilege as a graduation present.

All those graduating seniors, however, who must take examinations must have them over with not later than Tuesday, Jan. 27.

APPROXIMATELY 200 of the seniors will receive diplomas in exercises Saturday, Jan. 31, after they have gotten the feel of the ceremony through rehearsals to be held in the Opperman Music Hall at 4:30 on the previous day.

February graduates and their guests will hear Olin Downes, New York Times music critic, as the commencement speaker at 4 p.m.

FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 30, at 8:15, Pres. Doak S. Campbell will present to the university an oil portrait of Ella Scoble Opperman, Dean Emerita of the School of Music, as a pre-commencement event.

Following the ceremony, the University Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Robert Sedore, will present a concert in honor of the occasion. Ernst von Dohanenyi will be guest conductor.

THE PROGRAM will consist of the suite from the ballet "Romeo and Juliet" by Serge Prokofiev, and the "Concerto in B flat for Piano and Orchestra" by Johannes Brahms. The concerto by Brahms will feature Howard Silberer, pianist, the first candidate for the Doctor of Music Degree at Florida State.

The concert is open to the public, and commencement visitors are given a special invitation to attend.

Students to Face New Registration

Next semester, Florida State students will face a new system of registration. Students must be back to register for classes here either Feb. 6 or 7, depending on how their names are spelled.

Charles Walker, registrar, has inaugurated a new system by which all students of the Sophomore, Junior and Senior graduate classes will register on Friday if their names begin with A to L and Saturday if their names begin with M to Z. Freshmen, as usual, will register according to appointments.

WALKER BELIEVES the new system will simplify the procedure. Class schedule books may be obtained at the Registrar's office now on presentation of ID cards. Registration material will be mailed to students as has been done in the last two years. This avoids the confusion and long lines of students waiting to obtain IBM cards and other material prior to signing up for classes.

Appointments for Freshmen will be determined according to the Freshman's co[illegible] names, alphabetically. For instance those counselors whose names begin with A will meet all their Freshmen in the Women's Gymnasium at an appointed time. This action was taken to avoid the past situation of all counselors having to be at registration through the entire two-day period.

Announcements

February graduates may now pick up their graduation announcements at the Bookstore.

Job Getting Seminar Is A Great Success

Over twelve large companies and business concerns have offered Florida State University students positions as a result of the Job Getting Seminar held on FSU's campus Dec. 11.

The Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, which sponsored the seminar, has announced that interest in placement and vocational opportunities has been stimulated, resulting from the seminar, to the point where 80 per-cent of all graduating Seniors this school year are registered with the office for job placement.

MANY STUDENTS have commented that this was the best and most effective job-getting scheme yet produced at FSU and have asked when the next one will occur. According to the Placement office another seminar is being considered for sometime next spring.

Representatives from national manufacturers and big businesses all over the country have been appearing on campus intermittently in the last few months seeking out likely employees from the ranks off FSU sudents, states the Placement office. This week students have been interviewed by men from the Atomic Energy Commision and the DuPont company.

THE FIRESTONE company and J. C. Penney had representatives on campus all last wek prospecting. The Celanese Corporation of America heads a long list of large companies yet to visit FSU including the Naval Research Laboratories, Rich's of Atlanta, The Prudential Insurance Company and Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Dates of these and other interviews can be obtained from the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

The Job-Getting seminars are designed to mix social as well as business contacts. The students desiring interviews are invited to a reception where they meet all the representatives of the prospective employers. The following day, students are given appointments with representatives to discuss their interests and opportunities with the representatives. Job offers are made by mail a short time later.

THE TWELVE-ODD students who received job offers as a result of the December seminar heard from such large concerns as Price-Warehouse Accounting Firm in Boston, W. T. Grant Stores, Crawford Life Insurance Adjusting Company and Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

According to the Placement office, the outstanding students interviewed are continually receiving job offers from the various firms that interviewed them.

ATTRACTIVE POSITIONS are currently being offered, through the Placement office by Aberdeen Proving Grounds, a division of the Army Ordnance. According to the office, they are looking for students in the scientific and technical fields, namely math, physics and engineering, to work during summer vacations in their ballistics research laboratories. They offer work in the technical fields on guns and missiles, supersonics, aerodynamics and blast and detonation phenomena. Also, the operation of guns, rockets and guided millilies and technical work on machines and instruments used to measure effectiveness of the latest scientific weapons of warfare.

DEADLINE date for applications for work in the Aberdeen Proving Grounds has been set for Feb. 20, 1853, according to the Placement Office. Further information can be obtained at the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement in Westcott.

Chaplain Neal Gives Speech On Faith Topic

"Is There A God?" was the stirring title chosen for a speech given by Dr. Sam Neel, recently decorated former chaplain in the United States Army and Florida State University Chaplain, at a recent meeting of the Student Christian Association.

DR. NEEL, who was awarded the Bronze Star for heroic action in the Korean conflict in ceremonies at FSU on Jan. 13, opened his discussion with an age-old statement. He said that a belief that there is a God and a belief that there is no God are both hypotheses; neither can be fully proved rationally.

According to the speaker, one must examine all data of human experience and then accept the faith which makes this data meaningful to him. Belief in God, he continues, who is the creator and sustainer of the moral and physical universe, explains the true, the good and the beautiful aspects of our lives. But this belief leaves unexplained the irrational, evil and ugly phases we go through. The speaker contends that belief that there is no God explains the irrational, evil and ugly things, leaving unexplained the good, true and beautiful.

Dr. Neel further explained that

State Legislature Presses for Funds To Assist Insane

Members of this next state legislature seem determined to make complete provision for the care of Florida's insane and her imbecile children for the first time in history, Kenneth Ballinger, state representative, told a Florida State audience recently.

Ballinger, of Leon County, told the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors that the public is demanding that insane and helpless infants be taken out of county jails and back alleys and cared for properly.

"THIS HAS been and still is one of the most disgraceful situations any state ever tolerated," he said. "While Florida annually spends millions of dollars on desirable but unnecessary buildings for other agencies, it keeps its insane in pre-Civil War buildings which are so overcrowded that hundreds have to be retained in county jails."

He cited the Florida Farm Colony for feeble-minded children at Gainesville as another of state indifference. "It is estimated," he said, "that at least 300 imbecile children whose parents cannot afford to put them in private homes now are denied entrance to the farm colony because there is no space. These and hundreds of other imbeciles below the age of six, who cannot under present law be cared for by the state, are frequently left by working parents to exist like animals, because they have no money to hire nurses."

THIS SITUATION, Ballinger told the professors, has become so acute that this next legislature promises to make full provision for these helpless people. Other state construction, therefore, may have to wait until an interim committee from the legislature can study all state building needs and recommend priorities.

Alpha Omicron Pi's Elect New Officers

Ardrenn Miller has been elected president of Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority, with Jo Fabian as vice-president.

Treasurer is Sarah Murray; recording secretary, Ann Blitch; corresponding secretary, Loretta Woods; rush chairman, Peggy Bray, and Pan-Hellenic representative, Jan Eichinger.

Cavalier-Cotillion Features Ravens At Saturday Hop

An informal dance sponsored jointly by Cavalier and Cotillion, men's and women's dance honoraries at Florida State University, will be held at the Student Center Satrday evening, February 7.

THE RAVEN QUINTET will provide the music for the affair. This will mark the first public performance of the dance band on campus, according to Cavalier and Cotillion, who are introducing the outfit to the student body for their approval.

The purpose of Cavalier and Cotillion, stated presidents Jim Jindra and Carolyn Gola, is to promote and improve social activities on campus. Both organizations have, in the past, done much to accomplish this goal.

THEY SPONSOR and provide free dance lessons for an eight-week period each semester and sponsor several social events on the FSU social calendar. Last year Cavalier presented an all-student talent review which, according to the committee, proved a great success. The organizations express the hope that they will be able to present a number of such programs and events in the future.

Both honoraries feel that Florida State definitely has the room and the need for another band. Members of both groups have auditioned the Raven Quintet and feel confident that the new group will prove a welcome addition on campus.

Finalists Chosen For Beauty Queen

Finalists for the Miss FSU beauty contest were chosen Tuesday night, says June Keirstead, feature editor of the Tally-Ho.

The finalists were judged by a faculty committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Jegart and Mr. Frederick Holschuh. Mrs. Jegart is the former Artemis Skevakis who edited the 1949 Tally-Ho.

The Miss FSU contest is sponsored by the Tally-Ho. Fifteen finalists were chosen by the faculty committee out of the 49 pictures which were submitted to the Tally-Ho. The finalists pictures will be sent to Jon Whitcomb, nationally known illustrator, who will choose Miss FSU. All 15 finalists will appear in the beauty section of the Tally-Ho.

The finalists are: Ann Monroe, Liz Cooke, Toni Leto, Carol Fulkerson, Carolyn Calhoun, Betty Willmon, Beverly Browne, Ruthie Garst, Mary Ann Fields, Sally Kennedy, Jo Ann Owens, June Conyers, Shirley Burrell, Margie Wilkinson, Jane Parkinson.

Musical, 'State Fair' Is Last Free Movie

The last free movie of the semester will be tonight at 8 in the Freshman Men's Dormitory. "State Fair," a Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, stars Jeanne Crain, Dana Andrews, Dick Haymes and Vivian Blaine.

The technicolor movie is about a farmer's family and their adventures with hogs, brandied mincemeat and romance at the State Fair.

No movie will be shown next week due to examinations.

Student Traffic Court Passes Unanimously

Drivers Will Get Information Booklets at Feb. Registration

By unanimous action at its Tuesday meeting, the University Senate cleared the way for the student Traffic-Safety Court to begin operations at the beginning of the Spring semester.

According to UGA President Mary Ruth Summers, who has pushed the revival of the Traffic-Safety Court, information will be distributed to all student drivers when they return to school for registration.

Senator Gene Lawler's Court Bill, which was passed in substantially the same form as it appeared in the Florida Flambeau this Tuesday, provided for the authority and procedures under which the revived Traffic-Safety Court will operate.

Student violators will be subject to a scale of penalties that range from a warning for an initial "parking" ticket, to as much as $10 for a serious "traffic" violation, such as speeding, reckless driving and so forth. All fines paid into the Court will be turned over to the Student Scholarship fund.

Mac McMullen is the Chief Justice of the Traffic Court, which is also composed of Steve Bailey, Junior Justice and George Martin, Senior Justice. Bailey and Martin were elected in unopposed races in the UGA election last spring. McMullen was appointed by President Summers to fill a vacancy earlier this year.

The Bill passed by the Senate also provides for the appointment of a Clerk and assistant Clerk for the Traffic-Safety Court, who will collect fines and keep records. Appointments of these officers have not yet been made.

"We need everybody's cooperation to make this thing go over," stated McMullen. "We hope to operate the Court efficiently and fairly, but without the support of the student body we will have a very tough time."

Other business passed at Tuesday's business-packed meeting was Senator Lawler's Bill to create a Secretary of Labor, who will act as the representative of working students at FSU. Despite the declaration by Dean Warren that the Faculty Review Board would probable veto the measure, the Senate unanimously enacted the legislation.

Final action was also taken on a proposed amendment to the first article of the UGA Constitution. The Senate had already given its OK to the provisions of the amendment that called for redefining

University Announces Regulations Banning All Overnight Parties

Official word was issued by the university this week of a new ruling banning overnight parties by student groups at Flordia State University.

IN AN OFFICIAL release from President Doak S Campbell which was delivered to the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Panhellenic Association Wednesday night and yesterday morning, Mr. George Heilman and Dean Katherine Warren announced that the university will not recognize any university sponsored, overnight party, regardless of chaperoning.

This action was taken in the Fall during a meeting of Dean Warren, Dean Otis McBride, and Dean Culpepper with Dr. A. B. Martin and President Campbell.

IT WAS STATED by Dean McBride that this action has been directed particularly at parties formerly held at the coast and Alligator Point area, although it pertains to any student house party planned as an overnight affair.

Prior to this action the University permitted woman students to spend the night at "nearby coast houses or cottages" after an invitation from the hostess of the affair had cleared the office of the Dean of Women.

AT THESE AFFAIRS, two mature married faculty members and their wives or husbands could be selected with university approval as chaperones. Regulations also stated that an organization could give only one house party a semester and it could only last from 5 o'clock Friday afternoon to 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

Dr. Campbell Pays Tribute to Society In Tax Ceremony

The ultimate survival of our society depends upon the extent to which every child that is born has the right to be provided with the opportunity to develop.

This was brought out today by Dr. Doak S. Campbell, in an address before the Children's Home Society of Florida in Jacksonville, in ceremonies celebrating the Society's 50th anniversary of its founding.

AS TIME goes on and the complexities of human society increase, the need for serving childhood will continue as a major social need," Dr. Campbell said.

The University president praised the work of the Society in its efforts to provide every child with a real home and for its care in placing children in carefully selected homes by adoption.

DR. CAMPBELL said one characteristic that accounts for the Society's success is that it considers each child to be the individual human personality that he is.

"This is in contrast to treating the child impersonally and objectively, merely as another unit in our social structure or as an

Class to Study TVA at FSU

3-Month Treatment To Begin Feb. 9th

The first case study ever made of the Tennessee Valley Authority by an American college or university will be made on this campus from Feb. 9 until May 1.

Leading officials of TVA, including Gordon R. Clapp, chairman of the Board of Directors of TVA, will come to the campus as visiting lecturers for advanced students in the School of Public Administration.

DR. WILSON K. DOYLE, dean, said. "This course brings to the student in the nature of a case study a close view of an actual federal department at work, its organization, procedures, and problems, as presented by officials of the department."

The students will also hear the viewpoint of some critics of the TVA program who believe aspects of its program should be undertaken solely by private enterprise.

SOME OF THE programs that will be discussed, in addition to the organization and procedures of TVA, will include River Control; Regional Power Development; Land Use and Productivity Related to Regional Development, including Forest Resource Development, Reservoir Management, Recreation and Public Health Problems, the Tributary Watershed Development, and other national and regional resource problems and programs.

TVA officials who will appear on campus after Clapp will include John Oliver, general manager; Lawrence R. Durisch, chief of government research; Harry L. Case, director of personnel; John H. Clark, chief budget officer; Stefan

Farewell Address to Senate Given By Senator Evans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following speech was given as a farewell speech by Senior Senator Jimmie Evans before the University Senate on Tuesday, Jan. 28. Senator Evans' resignation takes effect at the end of this semester.)

My Fellow Senators:

I feel that before going out of office, it is but fitting and proper to present to you in some written and official form these measures which I have supported and still support. I do this because I do not wish to be misquoted in the future as has undoubtedly been done in the past. Hasty glances at the bills and proposals which I have backed have made it exceedingly easy to hang on such epithets as "dangerous," "radical," and the like.

MOST OF THE ideas which during the last three and a half years I have endorsed are but rephrasals of the first ten amendments to the United States Constitution, commonly known as Bill of Rights.

Along the line of the student courts, I am opposed to the double jeopardy to which they have subjected some students on various occasions. Freedom from double jeopardy is just plain common sense: If a sentence is to be changed to a more severe penalty, the faculty review board should shoulder the blame and not allow the student courts to do their dirty work!

ALONG THESE lines I would like to see amendments to the constitution similar to the Bill of Rights forbidding (1) double jeopardy (2) requiring a person accused to testify against himself. (Refusal to answer to accusations should not be interpreted by the courts to be a virtual admission of guilt. It is the job of the court investigators, whoever they may be, to prove the accused party innocent and not the job of the accused to prove himself innocent. That is the way we do things here in these United States.)

I supported public court records and I still do. The students have a right to know and it is the obligation of all recipients of the some five hundred thousand dollars of student activity money to inform the ones who pay that money just where that money is going and what they are doing to give services which are justifying the spending of that money. All elective officers should consider themselves the servants of those who elected them and render to them acceptable reports as to their official activities. If we are to have a strong and efficient university government, the electorate should and must know what their officials are doing so that at the next election they may justly reward them—victory or defeat.

CAREFUL INVESTIGATION should be made by the senate before accept any budget appropriations. The money which is appropriated is not the money of individual members of the senate, but is the money paid in by the students. The senate should require that the latest, most complete records of expenditures of all recipients of the student activity fee should be bared before at least the finance committee of the senate. Again I say, what student money is spent for is student business. Doesn't that make sense? People who invest in stock have a right to know what the company is doing and furthermore, they have the right to see the financial records of the firm.

We should all work together to formulate a set of election laws so that future senates and secretaries of elections will have some definite set of precedents to follow. I further feel that in these laws, some plan should be adapted so that senators who are elected shall be assured of receiving the needed constitutional majority. In America, the majority rules. Let us make sure that the senators who are elected are representing the majority of the voting students. Lines of candidacy should be more clear-cut, so that candidates will know who their opponent is. So clear should these lines be that the voting public is able to know the individual stands taken by the man who is seeking the job of representing him in the legislative body.

LAST, I would admonish the senate to let what comes out of the senate be student opinion, not faculty or administration opinion. If the faculty review board differs and desires a reversal of the action, let the reversal come from them, not from the student senate. Thus far it has been far too convenient for them to push the job of reversal off on the elected students and thus be able to duck out from the responsibility of having the reversal traced to themselves. If they want something reversed—let them reverse it themselves! These things may be done with no animosity in the heart and with the air and spirit of friendship and honest difference. Simply standing upon one's own convictions is no grounds for loss of friendship. The members of our administration are intelligent, educated people who understand honest differences and who do not take out revenge for students' differing.

In closing, I would like to re-enumerate these stands which I have taken during the three and a half years which I have been participating in our university government: (1) A bill of rights preventing double jeopardy and the students being required to testify against himself, (2) Public records in all phases of student government, (3) Careful investigation before approval of budgets and the baring to a senate committee of all financial records of recipients of student money, (4) The election laws and a more orderly and a constitutional system of election of the senators, and (5) As representatives, boldly speak the voice of the students and stand by those convictions. Require the faculty review board to do its own dirty work.

It has been a great pleasure working in student government. Truly, I shall never forget these days for they are the greatest years of our lives.

Letters to the Editor

Farewell

Dear Fellow Students Faculty and Staff Members:

Since I will not be able to say good-bye to each and everyone of you, I would like to thank all of you, who have helped and encouraged me during my three and a half years at FSU.

These past years really have been a wonderful and unforgetable experience for me and wherever I am, I will remember your genuine friendship and kindness to me, as a foreign student.

I have enjoyed so many honors at FSU which I know I could not have begun to attain without your advice and aid. For everything I am deeply grateful.

After graduation, I will return to my home in Hamburg, Germany (on February 11, 1953). I can assure all of you that my thoughts, love and prayers will be with each and everyone of you here at our wonderful Alma Mater, FSU.

I hope I shall be worthy of the principles that are held high by our university and shall be looking forward to hearing of your and our university's successes in the future.

Sincerely yours,
Margaret F. Krasemann

honor for security. "For in the final choice," he said, "a soldier's pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chains."

He said that each of America's free citizens should place the cause of his country before the comfort of himself, as "our nation's strength and security . . . is a trust upon which rests the hope of free men everywhere."

AMERICANS SHOULD honor the identity and heritage of each nation of the world, said Eisenhower, and should "never use our strength to try to impress upon another people our own cherished political and economic institutions."

His fifth point was that America will help these nations to achieve their own security and well-being, but will count upon them to assume within the limits of their responsibility their full and just burden in the common defense of freedom.

THE FOSTERING of trade was his sixth point, while Eisenhower said that he hoped through the United Nations to build up friendship as well as within our own hemisphere.

"Defense," said the President in making his eighth point, "like freedom itself, is one and indivisible . . . we hold all continents and peoples in equal regard and honor. We reject any insinuation that one race or another, one people or another, is in any sense inferior or expendable."

AS HIS NINTH point, he said Americans should recognize in the United Nations a living sign of all people's hope for peace. This symbol he said, we should strive to make into an effective force. "And in our quest of honorable peace, we shall neither compromise, nor tire, nor ever cease."

"The peace we seek then, is nothing less than the practice and the fulfillment of our whole faith, among ourselves and in our dealings with others.

"THIS IS the hope that beckons us onward in this century of trial," he concluded. "This is the work that awaits us all, to be done with bravery, with charity—and with prayer to Almighty God."

membership to UGA to include graduate students, but had hit a snag at the section which called for chopping the Association off of University Government Association. At the insistence of Senator Lawler, the Senate gave its required approval to the full amendment, by a vote of 15-4. The amendment will now go to the student body for ratification, sometime this spring.

THIS CASE STUDY is part of a program which has been under way for a number of years in the School of Public Administration. It is designed to enable students to see governmental processes at first hand, and is planned to help bridge the gap between government in theory and government in action by bringing current governmental officials and their problems directly into the classroom.

Last year the case study was on the Department of Commerce and was formally opened by Secretary of Commerce, Charles Sawyer, who was followed by key officials in his department.

DR DOYLE SAID, in discussing his program, "Effective education for government requires effective cooperation between education and government in the development of better ways of training future government officials and better ways of meeting current governmental problems so that government may serve the American people with a maximum of economy and a maximum of service.

"Both education and government in the programs of "visiting lecturers are able to join in a common search for truth in respect to government and society, which is one of the basic aims of education."

The Feminine Touch

Alpha Xi Delta Cage Champs

Glancing around all girls' sports: The Alpha Xi Delta's captured the girls' intramural basketball trophy Wednesday by defeating the Zeta Tau Alpha's, 26-15.

Four leagues were active in the girls' cage program for dormitories and sororities, and the four league champions participated in a single-elimination tournament.

In first-round contests, the Zeta's shaded Jennie Murphy, 22-20, and the Alpha Xi's edged Phi Mu, 28-24

The next girls' sport for intramural competition will be softball, scheduled to start soon after the opening of the second semester.

The Evens polished off the Odds in two straight contests last week to cop the girls' volleyball champion ship.

The Evens, composed of several top-notch freshmen, turned back the smaller Odd team, 28-27 and 32-19.

The next sports set for Odd-Even competition is basketball and badminton.

anted: One Football Coach

Nobody Leading' in Search for FSU's Mr. X

By PAT HOGAN
Flambeau Sports Editor

Five days have passed ce Coach Don Veller de- ed the folly of football become Dr. Don Veller, ed professor, and the rch is still on for a suc- sor to the "grand old minole."

nd while the nama of Vaughn cha, the people's choice, fig- the more prominently in the -awfulest rumor war since Panty Raid scare, the latest from the FSU echelons is "nobody has an inside track" the job.

APPLICATIONS FOR the post ted by Veller are pouring in and Dr. Howard Danford, Florida State's amiable, industrious athletic director, has indicated that the position will not be filled "until the athletic committee has had a chance to consider all applications."

In the meantime, rumors are circulating. Reports are that a petition is making the campus rounds asking that the students should get a voice in the selection.

THE TALLAHASSEE Democrat is running ahead in the speculating promenade, forecasting a bit of this and that with the names of Mancha and Tom Nugent, the VMI mentor, leading the field.

Mancha met with the athletic committee in a closed, two-hour confab yesterday. The former All-America center at Alabama, popular among the players and townsfolk, came to State to take over the center and linebacking coaching tasks under Veller last Fall.

JUST WHAT MANCHA and the athletic committee discussed was not disclosed. In fact, most every stride taken since Dr. Veller stepped aside has been valled in secrecy.

The reason for the hush-hush, though, is natural. The committee wouldn't want to embarrass any of the applicants—who numbered more than 20 when this edition went to press—with their present employers.

DANFORD DID elaborate, however, on the situation as it now stands.

"There is a strong possibility," Danford said yesterday, "that a coach will not be named until the latter part of next week, if that soon. We want to talk to a few people first.

"AND WE ARE not limiting our search only to the coaches who apply," Danford continued. "We're going to contact some coaches, some good ones, on our own."

Danford reiterated an earlier announcement that whoever is chosen as the next Seminole coach will not work under a straight football coaches' contract.

IN OTHER WORDS, Mr. X will sign on under somewhat the same terms as Veller had. That is, he will talk salary in less than five figures in return for some long-range job security promises.

The athletic committee is unanimously in favor of hiring a coach who is interested in establishing tenure for a future as a teacher when he gives up coaching.

"WE WANT A MAN who will feel secure in his job," Danford said. "Psychologists tell us that the want of security is one of the four basic drives of man. We believe football coaches are human."

"I'm sorry we can't tell you anything," Danford told this reporter. "It's not a matter of secrecy on the part of the athletic committee," he continued. "It's just that wa want to keep the faith of the coaches who are applying."

IT'S A GOOD guessing game," Danford concluded.

A Visual Picture of the 'Long and Short' of Seminole Basketball

Exams, Lull In Schedule Slows Indian Cagers

Open Long Road Trip At Rollins January 31

Florida State University's basketballers,, now in the midst of a two-week layoff due to a lull in the schedule and semester exams, aren't slated to hit the hardwoods again until January 31, when they meet the Rollins Colegt Tars in a return tilt down in Winter Park.

Ths Seminoles had previously downed the Rollins five here in a pre-holiday contest, 90-8°, setting a school scoring record.

After the Rollins encounter, State will embark on its longest road trip of the season when the Indians travel to Memphis and Jonesboro, Ark., for games with Mamphis State and Arkansas State.

The Seminoles, who have copped fiva of eleven starts, have won over Georgia Teachers, Rollins, Mercer, Mississippi State and Florida Southern, while losing to Mercer, Central (Mo.) College, Sewanee, Loyola of New Orleans, Miami and Tampa.

Hoover Heads FSU Lettermen

Fred Hoover, veteran student trainer for varsity athletics, was elected president of the lettermen's "F" club Wednesday night, succeeding football tackle Mac Huey.

Billy "Cooter" Mills, new vice-president and baseball infielder, succeeds Dick Turk, reserve fullback on the 1952 grid squad. Marvin Mollnow, who was a hurdler on last year's track team, replaces football co-captain Curt Campbell as secretary, and Earl O'Neal, most valuable player on the football team, succeeds Hoover as treasurer.

In an effort to strengthen the nucleus of lettermen interested in the "F" club's activities, Hoover has appointed footballer Steve Kalenich as head of a membership committee. It includes Jimmy Lee Taylor, in charge of football, Woody Parker, track, and Cooter Mills, baseball.

Mac Huey will supervise the drawing up of a new constitution with the help of Bill Waggoner and Jule Hurst, from the track team. Quartermiler Pete Nimkoff is in charge of publicity.

Also at Wednesday's meeting, gold "F" charms were ordered, and February 11th was set for the next 7:00 p. m. meeting in the East Campus gym.

Dick Ireland's the Name

DICK IRELAND
An All-Around Boy

'Dandy' Dick Ireland New Trampoline Hope

By TOM CONKLING
Flambeau Gymnastics Writer

With the banning of Dick Gutting, national collegiate trampoline champion, the hopes of Florida State University winning its third straight NCAA Gymnastics title rests upon a budding trampoline star named Dick Ireland.

Dick, an all-around athlete, hails from Harvey, Ill., where he was a star football player and diver for the Thornton High swimming team.

IRELAND LETTERED four years as a fullback and three years on the springboard, captaining both squads in his senior year. The stocky, 170-pounder made the all-state Illinois high school football team in his last year and once received the award as high school "Player of the Week." He turned down football scholarships to the University of Michigan along with offers from various other mid-western colleges to come to FSU as a trampolinist.

Dick's progress on the trampoline has been amazing, according to coach Dr. Hartley Price. He never saw a trampoline until he was a senior in high school and in less than two years has mastered such difficult tricks as the "fliffis," rudolph, double-back, double twister and the triple twister. Tha triple twister, a very difficult trick, has been mastered by only a few in the sport. Even Gutting has yet to attain this trick.

LAST YEAR, his first as a competitiva trampolinist, Ireland placed second in Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League, second in the Florida AAU Meet and third in the Georgia AAU Open.

In last year's NCAA meet at Boulder, Colo., Dick scored for the Seminoles with a tenth placa in national competition.

THE 19-YEAR-OLD prospect could win the national collegiate title and scoring in the national AAU open this year, according to Price.

"Ireland is a great competitor and a hard worker," saye Price. "He posseses that real determination and spirit to reach the top."

DICK GIVES much eredit for for his success to F. E. Frosch, his high school coach, who inspired Ireland to continua his trampoline work.

Dick is a sophomore majoring in physical education.

Ham Wernke—4 Out of 10

Hammerin' Ham Wernke, the most prolific point producer to dribble down a Seminole basketball trail since Boh Hartman played a record-setting, 493-point tune in 1951, is rubbing shoulders with the elite these days.

The nimble, second-semester freshman from Batesville, Ind., ranks among the nation's top 15 "small college" scorers on the basis of his 245-point spree in Florida State's 11 games this season. There are nine regular-season games to go.

WERNKE, WHOSE PAPA tebbed him 'Ham' when he was just a trifle bigger than a basketball, has averaged 22 3 points every time he'a pulled on the Garnet and Gold this campaign.

Ham has cashed in on 88 of 205 field goal attempts for a sizzling .429 percentaga In plainer language, the 19-year-old youngster, who sports a crew cut and a phenomenal shooting eye, has connected on more than four of every 10 shots he has taken.

Wernke, who attributes some of his success to the fact that "I don't have a girl at FSU to worry about," has canned 69 of 94 free tosses for a .735 reading. His 245-point aggregate easily gives Ham the team scoring leadership.

SOPHOMORE JERRY Westhafer is the only other Seminole who has passed the 100-point mark. Jerry has 117 pointa for a 10.6 average.

Westhafer is the team pacesetter in rebounds. The long-armed, 6-4 forward has picked off 81 rebounds, five more than runner-up Wernke, who has cleaned the boards 76 times.

Jimmy Oler, the bearded, 18-year-old freshman guard from Economy, Ind., has been the most accurate Seminole regular from the free-throw line. A 5-11 speedster who delights in driving inside to draw fouls, Oler has dunked 30 to 40 bonus efforts for a neat .750 percentage.

WERNKE HAS committed the fouls, although he hasn't been given the heave-ho because of too many in any one game. Ham has been assessed 31 times.

As a team, tha Seminoles have fared well in the statistics columns. The Tribe has hit .302 per cent of its shots from the floor and is averaging an even 70 points per outing, more than any previous FSU squad.

For a better prospective, take a look at the Seminole Cage-Gram on this page, which lists the cumulative totals for 11 games played to date.

Matherly, 31 FSU Newcomers Wind Up Early Baseball Work

Baseball ended its 10-day, first-semester fling at Florida State University Wednesday and Seminole diamond Coach Ralph Matherly termed the early workouts as "very satisfactory."

Matherly has been drilling some 30 freshmen and transfer diamond prospects on the West Campus field for the past two weeks, in an effort to get a line on what he is to axpect this spring.

MATHERLY SAID "the pitchers were way ahead of the batters," and that "the fielding was better than average."

Matherly paired the Indians off for an intra-squad game last Saturday and the result was a close, 6-5, nine-inning contest. And what pleased the Seminole mentor the most was the fact that only five bases on balls were given ao by the several pitchers who took part.

The Seminoles, who will begin training in earnest tha first day of the second semester, open their season against Georgia Teachers Collega March 20. The rest of the schedule will be announced later.

THE 1952 SEMINOLES, under Matherly's direction, won 17 games while losing only four.

The hopefuls who hava been working out for tha past few days—and the list does not include holdovers, six lettermen, and a few boys who are expected to enroll at mid-term, are:

PITCHERS — Max Long of Jacksonville, Jim Atwood of Hollywood, Wally Higginbotham of Woodbine, Ga.; Charles Whidden of Cairo, Ga.; George Heatman of St Petersburg, Robert Pace

'Federal Aid to Veterans' Is Dr. Dillingham's New Book

Too much has been done for veterans who suffered no disability, but not enough for disabled veterans or dependants of those killed in service, according to Dr. W. P. Dillingham, economics professor, in his new book "Federal Aid to Veterans, 1917-41."

The author favors federal aid to veterans which will help reestablish them in civilian life, such as home loans and educational benefits, "but that is enough for veterans who do not have a service incured disability."

A DEVELOPMENT to watch in the field of aid to veterans, he says, is possible pension agitation for World War I veterans as they reach the age of 60. Dr. Dillingham is concerned over the economic burden such pensions would place on the nation, but it is hopeful that the Social Security program will continue to take care of new veteran problems.

Publication of Dr. Dillingham's book by the University of Florida Press, was backed financially by Duke University. The material was originally used for his doctor's dissertation at Duke in 1950. It was chosen for the publication after it was judged the best of all doctors' dissertations there that year.

DR. DILLINGHAM is starting his fourth year on the FSU faculty staff. Before coming to FSU he was on the faculty of the University of Georgia.

He did his undergraduate work at the University of Florida, received his MA at the University of Tennessee in 1942 and his PhD at Duke in 1950.

THE PUBLISHERS describe the volume as important for everyone interested in the veteran and his affairs. "The Bonus March, organized veterans' groups, the handling of allotments to families of veterans, civil-service preference, hospitalization and medical care, distribution of federal aid by succeeding political groups . . . these are only a few of the vital topics brought forth in this most readable volume."

Original Drama Is Presented By Campus Wesley Players

By ORCHID ALONSO

The Florida State University Alpha Nu chapter of Wesley Players presented an original one-act play at the Wesley Foundation last Friday night at 8 p.m.

The play, "Never Until Then," written by Sophomore Donn Teal, depicted a young, unglorious American soldier in Korea who found faith in the battered ruins of a South Korean home.

THE POSTERS advertising the play spoke of a soldier, a wife, and a child. Neither of these three were related except in the circumstances developing when Sam, an American soldier, played by Paul Wragg, finds himself completely at loss as to his religious status.

Sam reveals a real Korean problem when he asserts "That's what we need, to talk to someone else once in a while!" June Barber, who played Chingjon, the young Korean widow, displayed ability in facial expressions, which constituted much of the effect of her humbleness on Sam.

JOE, CAST as the "would-be pal" was the complete villian who, although had no big part in the play, had his acting ability proved in the hostile feelings that arose at his entrance.

The story was strung together loosely and in need of readjusting; playwright Teal could have lost effect if it hadn't been for an impressive talk given prior to the opening scene. His talk went into a series of questions, climaxed by the statement, "Never until then do you realize."

THE RECEPTION by the audience was exceptionally good for an original play, and the reason may lie in that the original play was exceptional in its class, being the first put on by the Wesley players.

A singular effect was the sound and lighting used, under the direction of Gerda Poddick and with sound tracks from WFSU.

THE PLAY was directed by the author, Donn Teal. Committees working on the production were staging and lighting. Hazel Bryant, Helen Whisler, Allen Gurley, Jane Smith, Jackie Dupont, and Betty Hule; publicity: Donna Gray, Bunny Amos, and Sara Whitehead: Typist: Claire Sappington; Make-up: Myra Hicks, Martha Hawthorne, Delores Kieper, Joan Colsen, and Arlana Peterson; Costuming: Anne Brown, Mary Ann Howee, Nell Stanfill, and Joe Donaldson; properties: Ellen Kiuru and June Mizell; sound effects: Phyllis Platts and Gerta Poddick; programs: Carolyn Johnson and Carolyn Goode; invitations: Carol English; and house management, Mary Katherine Freeman, Richard Hildebrand, and Joe Donaldson.

'Shakespeare' Is Dr. Rogers' Topic

Dr. Carmen Rogers, of the English department, has a review in a recent issue of The Shakespeare newsletter upon Professor Lawrence Babb's "The Elizabethan Malady," a publication of the Michigan State College Press.

This noted malady, more popularly known as melancholy, had universal appeal in the psychologically inquisitive age of Shakespeare. Its diverse uses for laughter and tragedy in the dramas of Shakespeare hold interest for his readers today.

Dr. Rogers devotes a paper to the subject in the "Florida State University Studies," Number 5, under the title of "English Renaissance Melancholy, A Prologue: —Of men and Moods." This study has been abstracted by the editors of The Shakespeare Newsletter for its spring issue.

Meeting Planned By Newman Club

A general meeting of the Florida State University Newman Club has been called for Sunday, according to Bert Hollander, president.

After the business meeting there will be a bull session. "Many things of importance will be discussed," comments Bert, "so everyone should try to be there."

Donna Ridge, chairman of the spaghetti supper held last Sunday at the Newman House, wishes to extend thanks to everyone who helped make the supper a success. "I would especially like to thank Al Pierce and Marty Hall for their part in cooking the spaghetti real Italian style."

Mass will be said daily as is customary at 7 a. m. until the week of exams. An announcement will be made then pertaining to morning mass during midterm holidays.

It has been estimated that only about seven per cent of human physical variations can be assigned to cause other than inheritance.

Griffin addressed a large group of Sigma Xi members and their friends Wednesday evening and told of his experiences in excavations throughout the state.

He told of exavating in 1948 the Fort San Luis site located on the old Messer plantation outside of Tallahassee. The speaker said he found a few remnants of the wooden log fort itself which has since disintegrated with time.

The speaker also told of exca ing in Fernandina, both at the Spanish fort in "Old Town" and the American Fort Clinch.

"Castillo de San Marco, St. A ustine, is the oldest existing in the state," Griffin said. He ded, "Historical records indic that the moat was dug in 1648

Dr. Hale Smith, head of the F department of archeology and thropology introduced the archeo gist.

First FSU Recital Given By Kilenyi

Edward Kilenyi, American concert pianist and recording artist, presented his first recital on the FSU campus on Wednesday evening, Feb. 11 in the Opperman Music Hall. He has been appointed professor of piano in the School of Music, beginning this semester, according to Pres. Doak S. Campbell.

The program consisted of the Ricercar from the "Musical Offering by Bach, the Beethoven "Hammerklavier" sonata, four preludes by Debussy, and a group of modern pieces, including the "Ruralia Hungarica" of FSU Prof. Ernst von Dohnanyi.

PROF. KILENYI was born in Philadelphia, and having shown unusual talent, was taken to Europe at the age of four years to study with the greatest pianists of his day. He was a student at the Hungarian Royal Academy of Music for four years, where his teacher was Ernest von Dohnanyi, who has been professor of composition and piano at Florida State University since 1949.

Kilenyi and Dohnanyi formed a firm musical friendship, and Maestro Dohnanyi selected this young prodigy as duo-artist for a concert tour in 1928, commemorating the centenary of the death of Franz Schubert. Schubert wrote a great many works for piano duet, and Dohananyi and Kilenyi played many of these works that year.

AT THE FRENCH-Hungarian Liszt Festival in 1938, Kilenyi was heard by the great Ignace Jan Paderewski, and was highly praised by the famous pianist.

Kilenyi has appeared as piano soloist with nearly every major orchestra in Europe and the United States, and in addition has concertized in North Africa, Canada and Cuba.

DURING WORLD War II, he served four years in the U. S. Army, rising from private to captain. During 1945-46, he was Music Control Officer for the German province of Bavaria, serving with the U. S. Army of Occupation.

As a recording artist, Kilenyi has been especially distinguished. In 1938, he was awarded the Grand Prix du Disque, the highest award of the French recording companies, for his recording of Liszt "Todentanz." He has made more than fifty recordings for Columbia Records, including works by Chopin, Beethoven, Liszt, Schumann and Dohnanyi. Among the latter is the "Suite en Valse" by Dohnanyi played by the composer and Kilenyi.

KILENYI HAS BEEN musical director of Remington Records for the past two years, resigning that position to come to Florida State University. As recording director, he supervised the recordings made two years aso by Ernst von Dohnanyi and Albert Spalding, both members of the FSU music faculty.

Coastal Parties To Be Debated

The overnight coast party may come back to Florida State.

A delegation of Bobby Drake, Senior senator; Don Waters, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council; Phoebe Reyerson, Pan-Hellenic president, and Mary Ruth Summers, UGA president, met with Dean Otis McBride, Dean B. J. Culpepper, Miss Elizabeth Lynn, and George Heilman the same day the announcement was made in the Flambeau that the administration had banned the parties.

There seemed to be an agreement that if the students would follow the rules, the parties could be reinstated. "It is up to the student body if we get overnight coast parties again," said Pres. Summers, "since everyone who goes down to a group must agree to follow the rules, which are to be in at 1:30 a. m. and no drinking for women students and no drinking for men students when in the company of the opposite sex."

If the students could be on their honor as a fraternal group and personally also . . . "if I could get this assurance," said Pres. Summers "I feel sure we can get them back."

Don Waters, IFC president, said action is being taken to form some concrete plan for the fraternity parties to be University sponsored, Waters is expected to call a meeting of the fraternities to discuss the situation

Speech Majors Go To Miami Debate

Four debaters represented Florida State University at the Sixth Annual University of Miami Debate Tournament. Those who attended were Arlene Amend and Katherine Skogstad, senior speech majors from Miami, and Bert Bradley and Bill Carmack, graduate students in the department of speech.

Nine other universities attended the tournament and debated the national proposition: Resolved, that the Congress of the United States should enact a compulsory fair employment practice law. Those were University of Florida, University of Texas, the Naval Academy, West Point, Wake Forest, Notre Dame, University of Georgia, Florida Christian College, and the host school, the University of Miami.

The two finalists in the tournament were the University of Miami and the University of Florida. The affirmative team from Miami won the decision as the best team in the tournament.

Military Group Gets Recognition By Committees Here

A new military honorary on campus, the Pershing Rifles, now has been officially recognized by the Student Organizations Committee and Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

The Pershing Rifles had its beginning in 1894, and is one of the oldest American societies of its kind in existence. The purpose of the organization is to encourage, preserve and develop the highest ideals of the military profession, to promote American Citizenship, to create a closer and more efficient relation and to provide appropriate recognition of a high degree of military ability among the cadets of senior Reserve Officer Training Corps units.

THE NATIONAL Society of Pershing Rifles is no stranger to the campus in as much as provisional members of the Pershing Rifles drill team paraded during the recent Homecoming celebration and performed precision drill prior to the beginning of the Homecoming football game.

The unit has been meeting regularly, pending recognition both at FSU and by the National Headquarters at the University of Nebraska, when on Jan. 20, it was given a provisional designation of Company M, Fourth Regiment, Pershing Rifles. The initiation ceremony will be held at a later date by Pershing Rifle dignitaries from other universities.

'Subversion and Lack of Discipline Influence US University System'

"In this country we spend a colossal amount of money, time, and energy in educating people from the age of six years upward and the results in terms of genuine education, of culture, and of civilization is appallingly weak and small"

This is the state of our contemporary college system says Louis Bromfield in the article, "The Shame of Our Colleges," appearing in March Esquire. Among other things, this "tragic condition," says the author of "The Rains Came," stems from three ugly seeds: "Our failure to discipline our children, our tolerance of downright subversion in the schools, and our emphasis on the college degree rather than the college education."

"WITHOUT DISCIPLINE," says Bromfield, "education is impossible . . . the lack of discipline begins at an early age in the classroom. Sometimes in the elementary and grade schools physical discipline is made almost impossible by conditions of overcrowding, or very nearly impossible through the irresponsibility and anarchy of the American home carried over into the school room. During recent years," continues Bromfield, "this lack of discipline has been accentuated by the system of 'progressive education'."

Writing about the "ugly seed" of subversive education, Bromfield feels that arguments about Marxian socialism and true democracy should be presented with complete objectivity and, finally, the student should make up his own mind. Such a process rarely occurs in the U. S. and in all too many instances both teaching and textbooks degenerate into mere propaganda.

AMERICA'S SMALL regard for the status of its professors, unlike in other countries, provides us with the answer as to why many of them turn to Marxian socialism, writes Bromfield. America thinks little of its professors and as a result they fall victim to the Communist doctrine, which promises everything to everybody but the staunch individualists. Under this influence many of them cease to be objective teachers and become engulfed in propaganda. Undoubtedly this kind of teaching is one of the reasons we get such bad results from our schools and colleges.

"The answer is not to exact oaths of loyalty" says Bromfield in March Esquire "It lies in the vigilance of parents, editors, legislators, school principals, and our college presidents . . . The professor who emphasizes propaganda rather than fact . . . is incompetent and a bad influence on education and deserves discipline or dismissal"

ELABORATING ON our emphasis on the college degree rather than the college education, Bromfield feels "there are too many young people in our institutions of higher education who are there not to acquire knowledge but to get a job somewhere, or to make a club, or to escape from their father's business, or, most commonly, simply to please their parents. There are too many who don't want to be there at all and make passing marks only because their teachers nag them or their parents scare them."

"But whatever the reasons," says Mr. Bromfield in March Esquire, "education at its present state in the U. S. seems to be merely messy."

Opperman Hall Will Present Two Programs

Strings Are Featured In Clinic To Be Held Ending With Concert

Two programs will be presented this week-end in the Opperman Music Hall, both being offered in connection with the Second Annual String Clinic, which is being held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Tonight Albert Spalding will play a solo recital at 8:15 p. m., which will be open to the public without charge. Spalding, who is visiting professor of violin at FSU, will be accompanied at the piano by John Boda, assistant professor of piano.

SPALDING'S PROGRAM will include the "Sonata in D Major" by Handel, the Romance in G by Beethoven, and "Allegro" by Pascetti and the Follio by Corelli, both the latter arranged by Spalyding. The "Partita in E Major" for violin alone, by Bach will conclude the first half of the program.

For the second portion, Spalding and Boda will play the "Sonata in G Minor" by Debussy, the "Fountain of Arethusa and Tarantelle" by Karol Szymanowski, and two pieces by Paganini, arranged by Sapiding, "The Hunt" and "The Campanile."

TOMORROW EVENING, the String Orchestra of the String Clinic will present a concert at 8:15 p. m., which will also be open to the public without charge. Conductors for the program will be Ernst von Dohnanyi, K. O. Kuersteiner, and Robert N. Sedore.

Dorothy Rearick, violinist, will be featured soloist for the program, playing the first movement of the "Concerto in G Major" by Charles de Beriot. Miss Rearick, a senior at Miami Edison High School, was selected as student soloist for the concert in auditions held in Tampa and Tallahassee during January.

THE STRING CLINIC, offered for the second consecutive year, has this year attracted students and teachers from Florida and southern Georgia, according to Music Dean Karl Kuersteiner.

Ticket Sales For Sandspur Continue Through Feb. 20

Ticket sales for the 1953 presentation of Sandspur, "Heaven Forbid!", and the subsequent dance featuring Claude Thornhill started yesterday and will continue through Friday, Feb. 20.

Bill Hess, chairman of ticket sales, announced that only 1.500 tickets will be sold for the dance. The tickets for the Sandspur Dance will sell for $1.50 per person, while tickets for "Heaven Forbid!" will be $.75 per person.

TICKETS MAY be bought at the following places between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3 p. m.: the bookstore at the Student Center, Amber House, Mecca, Longmire Information Desk, and the bus stop in back of Westcott.

Bess urges that the students buy their tickets early, due to the limited number of dance tickets to be hold. "We want this to be a dance the students can enjoy," he said.

TED MORRIL and Paula Bailey will play the leads in the production. Morrill will be Byron Donnally, jilted by the women he loves. Nick Pappas is Chuck Prince, his comical friend, who attempts to convince him that his lost love can be replaced.

As the setting of the musical is of the age of space ships and rockets to the moon, Byron and Chuck have an opportunity to investigate a new space ship, during which they meet Commander Curtin, Harrison Fisher, and Jackson, Charles Boghdan.

A CREWMAN, Ed Thomas, aids in a confused flight which deposits Byron and Chuck upon the planet Venus. Here King Vanda, played by Ronald Martin, and Queen Lavinia, Beverly Bennett, accumulate a host of "down-to-earth" ideas due to their visitors from earth.

Phoebe, Bette Mullins, gets a crush on Chuck, and Roxanne, Marian Mattair, renews Byron's love until he hears Maxine sing. Maxine is portrayed by Paula Bailey.

ONE OF THE big scenes of the production is the festival to celebrate the crowning of Prince Raylu, Fred Bennett, and his queen of the festival.

The production beginning Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. in Opperman and playing through Friday night and a Saturday matinee at 2:15 p. m., will have a dozen songs as well as special dances and choral arrangements.

Pops Concert Will Be Given

Famous Orchestra To Appear At Leon

Some tickets for the Boston Pops concert are still available in the Public Relations Office, Room 10, Longmire Building. Students may obtain tickets at no charge upon presentation of coupon number 6 from the second semester activity book.

The concerts on Feb. 25 will be in the Leon High School Auditorium. The matinee will be at 3:30 and the evening performance at 8:15. The orchestra will be under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, one of the world's most famous directors, and will feature as guest artist Miss Hilde Somer, internationally acclaimed concert pianist. She will play Liszt's "Hungarian Phantasy" for piano and orchestra in the afternoon. At the evening concert she will play Dohnanyi's "Variations on a Nursery Rhyme."

Versatile Pianist

HILDA SOMER

Advisor for Foreign Students to Lecture

Mr. J. Benjamin Schmoker, Executive Secretary of the National Association of Foreign Student Advisers, visited Florida State University recently to confer with faculty members and foreign students.

The executive, who is also director of the Committee of Friendly Relations Among Foreign Students, met with foreign students, faculty advisers and members of the FSU Administration. The committee on planning activities for foreign students at FSU played an important part in the conferences designed to strengthen relations between American students and their foreign-born classmates.

At an informal dutch-treat luncheon at the student center where he met FSU foreign students, Schmoker stated in a talk, "International student life in the United States is favorable." "However," he told the group, "The United States student should open his mind to share and receive from the foreign student part of the foreign student's culture, as well as giving part of his own culture.

The lecturer conferred with assistant deans of Men and women and later made many practical suggestions for the counseling programs here at FSU. He sees great progress in the field of foreign student counseling and praised the present attempts that have been made at Florida State.

"Atmosphere," according to the speaker, "plays a major role in conducting a program for the foreign students." "There is a good healthy interest here at FSU," he continued, "and you have the faculty and equipment for the kind of living desirable to the foreign students."

Mr. Schmoker's visit was arranged and sponsored by the office of Coordinator of Counselors and other administrative offices. Sam Baptista, of the office of the Coordinator took charge of arrangements

Mr Baptista is presently conducting and intensive study into the needs of foreign students at Florida State who are at present awaiting a somewhat decentralized system. Baptista employs recordings of his individual interviews with foreign students in forming a centralized program to help foreign students better acclimate themselves to life in an alien country.

Naval Film Plays At Dorm Tonight

"The Frogmen," a film story of the U. S. Navy's UDT's, Underwater Demolition Teams, plays tonight at 8 in the Frehsman Men's Dormitory. The movie stars Richard Widmark, Dana Andrews, and Gary Merrill.

The story points up the bravery and daring of those men who work under water unarmed, and handle high explosives. The movie contains several retriving action and knife battle scenes.

Starting Monday will be the dramatic Western, "Rawhide" with Tyrone Powder and Susan Hayward. The story is centered around Rawhide, a stagecoach line relay station between San Francisco and St. Louis. Outlaws ambush the gold-laden Eastbound stage, and the story enters into dramatic and suspenseful action.

The movie shows Monday night at the O Club at 7:30; Tuesday South Cawthon; Wednesday, Magnolia; Thursday, Senior Hall; and Friday at 8 in the Freshman Men's Dormitory.

Display of Books, Rare Manuscripts Becomes Mobile

A collection of books and manuscripts dating back to 3.500 years before Christ is presently on display in the "Magic Carpet on Wheels," a trailer-housed collection of writing and printings from Babylonian to modern-day literature.

The exhibit, which has been open since yesterday, is stationed directly in front of the West entrance to the Seminole Dining Hall. The Book of Knowledge publishers, Grolier Society, sponsors the capsule museum as a public service to take the story of the "printed word" into areas remote from large libraries and museums

ACCORDING TO Miss Louise Richardson, FSU Librarian, "the rare books, illuminated manuscripts and authentic examples of ancient writing continued in the exhibit show a complete history of the written and printed word for more than four centuries."

The oldest items in the display are cuneiform writing on clay, recording deeds of sale and royal decrees from ancient Babylon and Sumeria

THE EXHIBIT is open today from 8 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m. for students and 4 to 6 p.m. and 7:30 to 8 p.m. for the general public this evening.

The showing of the Rare literature exhibit was arranged by Rod K. Shaw FSU business manager and Miss Louise Richardson, FSU librarian.

APO Book Exchange To Be Open Today

The Alpha Phi Omega Used Book Exchange will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. today to sell and receive books. Students may name their own selling prices for books.

Tomorrow the Exchange will be open from 8 a.m. until noon.

Graduates to Find Job Opportunities In Good Supply

Job opportunities for Florida State University mid-year graduates are excellent with the demand greater than the supply, Director G. E. Tully of the university vocational guidance and placement service has announced.

Tully runs the campus employment service. It has a centralized placement system—seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences and all the various schools and departments of the university register for jobs in his offices. Registration is voluntary.

GRADUATES IN scientific fields — engineering, chemistry, physics, are most in demand, preference usually being for men. But women are desired for secretarial, nursing and teaching positions.

In the educational field, the great need is for teachers of elementary, commercial and home economics subjects, Tully pointed out. There are always openings for librarians, he added.

HE PREDICTED, "The manpower shortage of college graduates will last another decade," explaining that many men are deferred to finish their educations, but soon after graduation are called into service.

Tully's work of placing graduates is a long-range job. The graduates stay on his books for years, until they are satisfactorily and permanently placed.

THE PLACEMENT director has noticed a tendency for business and industry to recruit college graduates, and then train them for specialized jobs after they start working.

This training method makes graduates with general education background good candidates for careers in a wide range of jobs, from business and industry to government.

AN INCREASING number of nationally important recruiters are coming to FSU. Personal interviews with applicants are arranged, screening tests (brief intelligence tests) are given, followed by aptitude tests.

"Placement registration would be expected to decrease when jobs are plentiful," Tully concluded, "but the reverse is true. Students feel they can secure better jobs through our service. Over 80 per cent of the current graduating class is registered with us."

FSU Coed Stars In Store Window

Barbara Rynski, Reynold Hall freshman woke up yesterday to find over a thousand people watching her.

Yesterday afternoon, Preston, a hypnotist making a personal appearance at Leon High, hypnotized Barbara and sat her in the window of a local department store where passersby could gape at her dazed form sitting peacefully on a chair.

Barbara was still in hypnotic state when Preston called for her and drove her to the high school. She did not wake up until she was on stage. Asked what her reaction was, Barbara replied, "It was a strange, wonderful feeling. I found out later that my house-mothers were plenty scared. I wasn't."

Oyster Enemies Lurk In Florida Waters!

Oyster enemies in Florida waters of high salinity completely kill off the oysters in vast areas that could otherwise produce a very favorably supply of this shellfish.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Nelson Marshall, associate director of the Florida State University Oceanographic Institute, on the basis of research at the institute's laboratory, located on the gulf 40 miles south of Tallahassee.

DR. MARSHALL, the former director of the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory at Yorktown where he was in charge of the research program on the oysters in Chesapeake Bay, noticed the oysters along Alligator Harbor grew almost entirely in the intertidal zone.

He knew oysters often grew better below the low tide line rather than in the intertidal zone. So, he designed experiments to determine the reason oysters did not grow well below low tide in many Florida coastal areas.

AMONG OTHER THINGS, Dr. Marshall gathered several hundred single oysters and divided them into two equal parts which he spread over a favorable bottom below the low tide zone. Around one bed he built a fence of hardware cloth.

In two months almost all the oysters in the unfenced group had been destroyed. Those in the protected bed were healthy and growing.

"WHAT HAPPENED," Dr. Marshall said, "was all the oyster enemies that move about below the low tide line had come into the unprotected bed and feasted on the oysters."

In his observations the oyster specialist found the oyster's major enemies in Florida waters include: the common left-handed conch, the horse conch, the crown conch and the gulf coast boring snail whose damage has been so widely observed by oyster biologists.

"IN ADDITION," he said, "there is little doubt of the harmful work of stone crabs and the mud crabs.

These crabs seem to do most of their oyster eating at night. Also during the warmer nine months of the year, the stone and mud crabs are augmented by hordes of blue crabs which also kill oysters.

IT IS DR. MARSHALL'S opinion that there is a high population of these oyster enemies in all Florida waters not diluted very much by fresh water. He added that his experimental procedures, considered as a whole, have demonstrated that in many Florida localities predators are entirely responsible for the elimination of oysters.

Dr. Marshall points out excellent oysters have been grown in such areas by placing small "seed oyster" on wire-bottom trays which stand on posts driven into the bottom.

THE TRAYS would be below the low tide line, but sufficiently out of reach of the common oyster enemies to eliminate serious loss of oysters.

"It may not be economically profitable to grow oysters on trays in this manner because of the cost," Dr. Marshall said.

HE ADDED, however, that the solution obviously lies either in special growing techniques that are practical, or in special predator controls yet to be found.

The Oceanographic Institute is a department of the FSU College of Arts and Sciences directed by Dr. Harold J. Humm. It serves the marine interests of nine FSU academic departments including all the various phases of science.

Silk Screen Prints Attract Recognition

International recognition focused on Assistant Professor William Boughton of the art department for his exhibition of Silk Screen Prints shown in Paris, France, from December 11, of last year through January 13, 1953.

Professor Boughton is one of the charter members of the National Serigraph Society who sponsored the exhibition. It was accumulated when the American Ambassador to France requested a showing of the developments in the field of silk screen painting to be shown in France as a gesture of cultural friendship and co-operation.

The silk screen process is a graphic art of reproduction while the process of making original prints is labeled serigraphy and hence the name of the graphic arts association.

Serigraphist Boughton is represented by three prints; Intangible Regions, Le Bal des Beaux-Arts and Accuse d'un crime abominable. He is nationally and internationally-known for his contributions to the development and techniques of modern serigraphy.

Librarians Attend Lecture Given By Dr. Luther Evans

Prominent librarians from over the state came to Florida State University to hear Dr. Luther H Evans lecture on "Censorship and Literature" this week.

As Librarian of Congress, Dr. Evans heads a unique institution which offers extensive services to members of congress, and also to scholars from all parts of the world. There are over eight million books and a valuable collection of manuscripts housed in the Library of Congress.

DR. LOUIS SHORES, dean of the Library School, made arrangements for Dr. Evans to appear on the University Library School lecture series.

How best to procure materials for the Library of Congress which can be directed toward enriching the total national holdings, is a question constantly facing Dr. Evans and members of his staff.

"THE PRINCIPAL meaning of the Library of Congress derives from its democratic participation in a free library system," Dr. Evans said. "The wisdom and vision of great men of the library's history—Spofford, Hanson, Martel, Hastings, Putnam, MacLeish—and the generous and understanding support of Congress over many decades have made it possible for the Library of Congress to play a great role in the library community."

The speaker is a native of Texas, and received his AB and MA from the University of Texas, and his PhD from Stanford University. Dr. Evans also has a LHD from Yale. He has taught Political science courses at Stanford, New York University, Dartmouth and Princeton and was named National Director of the Historical Records Survey of the Works Progress Administration.

HE LATER served as Director of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress, becoming chief assistant in 1940 and Librarian in 1945. Among the honors that have come to him are Director of the American Book Center, Honorary Consultant of the Army Medical Library, and membership on the U. S. National Committee on UNESCO.

He is a member of the ALA, National Archives Commission, Biographical Society of America, Society of American Archivists, American Antiquarian Society Clubs, and the Board of Trustees of Biological Abstracts. He has contributed many articles to professional magazines and is the author of "The Virgin Islands," from Naval Base to New Deal.

Jerry Olinski, newest addition to the National Hockey League refereeing staff, is a former hockey player. He played with Indianapolis in the American Hockey League.

Newman Club Valentine Dance Scheduled Tonight in Longmire

A Valentine's dance will be held tonight at the Longmire Auditorium sponsored by the Florida State University Newman Club.

The Raven Quintet, a new orchestra on campus, will provide the music, according to Bert Hollander, Newman Club president.

THE DANCE, free of charge and open to all FSU students, will begin at 8:30 and continue till 11. A feature of the dance will be an intermission stage show previewing the "latest Paris fashions." Models will be the men of the Newman Club, including Jim Friend, Dick Correvesu, John Pistone, Don White, Fred Impesato, and several other male members.

The Ravens, who made their first appearance last Saturday night at the Student Center for the Cavalier-Cotillion dance, is composed of John Lopez, Gary Thompson, Larry Abt, Bill Nebett, and Ray Bolin. All are FSU students. The Newman dance will be the second appearance of this group on the campus.

BETTY GOOCH, general dance chairman, announces that there will be refreshments for all. "Also," urges Betty, "I want everyone on campus to feel free to come. This is not restricted to Catholics or Newman club members."

Master of ceremonies will be Rick Webber, who is also in charge of entertainment. The reception or door committee consists of Carolyn Gola, house president of Jennie Murphree; Bert Hollander, Newman president; and Mrs. E. Sharkey, Newman House Mother.

OTHER COMMITTEES include decorations, Dick Correveau, Ann Yeoman, Mary Lou Brevelle, Betty Gooch, and Bert Hollander. Refreshments, Jan Courtney, Betty Palermo, Donna Ridge, Sonia Marcellino, and Ann Yeoman. Invitations, Don White, Ginny Lundy, and Bert Hollander. Favors, Malinda Usina.

Publicity was handled by Orchid Alonso, publicity manager, Bebe Bisbee, Mary Lou Brevelle, and Ann Yeoman.

The 'Fashion Show' is scheduled to start at 9:45.

FSU Radiation Cytologist May Find Cancer Cure

The experiments of slim, young-looking Dr. Robert W. Rogers, possibly Florida's only radiation cytologist may turn up the results that will save lives.

Dr. Rogers, a Florida State University assistant professor of zoology, studies the effects of various types of radiation upon living cells.

THE RADIATION cytologist is continuing experiments at FSU which he began when a graduate fellow with the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Dr. Rogers, who joined the faculty in September last year, has been awarded a grant by the FSU research council to continue his experiments.

"I'M PARATICULARLY interested in the effects of alpha-particles on cell division," said the scientist who wrote his doctoral thesis at the University of Tennessee on the effect of alpha-particles on cell division in grasshopper embryos.

Alpha-particles, he explained, are positively charged particles, or rays, emitted during certain radioactive transformations with a velocity about 1/20th that of light.

"YOU SEE," Dr. Rogers said, "the actively dividing cell is more sensitive to various radiations than one in the so-called "resting stage," as are the bulk of the cells in the mature human body, for example.

"Advantage is taken of this fact in a very practical sense in the treatment of cancer in humans by x-ray or radium.

"CANCER CELLS are ordinary body cells undergoing abnormal and rapid cell division, and they can be destroyed by doses of irradiation, exposure to various types of rays, relatively harmless to the surrounding normal tissues whose cells are in the "resting stage."

"Now, what we don't know yet," the cytologist pointed out, "is how various radiations such as x-ray, gamma rys, alpha and beta — particles affect living cells."

DR ROGERS said with small doses of irradiation the effect in retarding or stopping cell division may be temporary, and apparent recovery is observed.

"Genetically speaking, however," Dr. Rogers said, "even very small doses of irradiation may produce inheritable alterations in the chromosomes (small structures in the cells of plants and animals which determine physica lcharacteristics and sex).

"OUR FIRST problem will be to devise an accurate measurement of the amount of radiation received by the living cell," Dr. Rogers said.

He said that a second problem will be to observe the degree of biologocal injury produced by radiation.

"OUR EXPERIMENTS will be aimed at fin danswers to these two problems among others," Dr. Rogers said.

Dr. Rogers has a start on the investigation of these problems. While at Oak Ridge, Rogers devised a method whereby the passage of a single alpha-particle through a target the size of a typical living cell (approximately 1/1900 inch) can be accurately detected.

POLONIUM (Radium F) was used as the alpha-particle source. Dr. Rogers said he will continue to use polonium in his experiments plating the radiactive material on special holders of his own design for biological studies.

Polonium alpha-particles passing through living cells may deliver a "wallop" of about five million electron-volts. Dr. Rogers will bombard living cells with the alpha-particles of polonium and study their effects.

THE SCIENTIST said the research program might take a year to be in full swing as he is now in the first stages of setting up a laboratory . . . much of which he is building himself. Most of the equipment is electronic.

James Teaches At Church School

Walter James, assistant professor of voice, was a member of the faculty of the "Christian Worker's School" sponsored by the Methodist churches of Jacksonville recently.

James taught a class in the "Music of the Church," which met each evening during the school. About 1,500 church workers in all fields of church activity attended the school.

In addition to his faculty position at FSU, James is Minister of Music at Trinity Methodist Church in Tallahassee. He holds the bachelor's and master's degrees from the Eastman School of Music, and has done advanced study at Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

Marines to Offer ROTC Graduates Officer Positions

The Marine Corps has announced that due to the current expansion of its regular officer strength it will offer a number of commissions to mid-year 1953 Army ROTC graduates.

This program has been approved by the Department of the Army as in the best interests of the Armed Forces and the national security. Major Army commanders and PMST's have been notified of the requirements of the program.

THE MARINES expect to appoint a "substantial" number of ROTC graduates to the grade of second lieutenant in their regular corps under this program, states the announcement.

To be eligible an applicant must complete ROTC instruction and the necessary academic requirements for a bachelor's degree between November 1, 1952, and April 23, 1953.

ONCE COMMISSIONED, the second lieutenants start a five month Special Basic Course at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Virginia. After completing basic school, over half of the new officers will be assigned to specialist training at one of the Marine Corps' 16 specialist schools. Such schools as Engineering, Naval Gunfire, Tank Supply, Motor Transport, Communications and Naval Flight Training are being utilized to the fullest extent.

Army ROTC graduates interested in the Marine officer program are advised to contact their PMST for further information on application procedures.

FSU Sees Show About Electronics

More than 65 branches of the electronic field were covered by an exhibit shown here this week by Arthur H. Lynch and Associates of Fort Myers.

Dr. Guenter Schwarz, head of the department of physics, arranged for the electronic exhibit to be shown at FSU. The students expressed interest in a device for measuring frequencies to an accuracy of one part in one million, remaining within that limit a month at a time. It is known as a Hewlett-Packard frequency counter, used for rapidly measuring crystal frequencies such as those employed to control the emitted wave from broadcasting stations, police and fire departments, fishing boats and other commercal radio transmitters.

Also among the items exhibited was the Sierra Amplifier. When used in conjunction with special transducers, it will accurately measure the bend in a three foot one inch thick wooden table produced by the weight of half a dollar. One of its commercial applications is to provide instantaneous measurements of displacement of the road surface on a highway bridge produced by the passing of trucks of various weights.

The FSU showing of this group of instruments was the first in the state. Before it is returned to the home laboratory it will be exhibited at several Florida cities and military bases.

The electronic exhibit makes a special appeal to science students, air force base personnel, electrical and radio engineers, oil well operators and various technicians in such fields as music, radio and television.

Air Cadet Team Will Visit Campus To Interest Men

An Air Force Aviation Cadet Selection team from Moody Air Force Base, Ga., headed by Major Ben Nelson will visit Florida State University on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 25 and 26. The purpose of the team's visit will be to discuss Aviation Cadet Pilot and Observer Training with college men interested in a career in aviation.

Major Nelson states that the team is in no way connected with recruiting but is here merely to disseminate information and accept applications from students who wish to take the Air Force mental and physical examinations to determine if they are qualified.

Due to the expansion of the Air Force to 143 Wings and the necessity for additional trained flyers and rated officers, an excellent opportunity currently exists for qualified young men, he says. Aviation Cadet training is open to all men between the ages of 19 and 26½ who are unmarried citizens and have completed 60 semester hours of college, regardless of the major subject. Applicants must pass mental and physical examinations as prescribed by Air Force standards.

Librarians Close Two Day Meet At Florida State

Florida school children could profit from more books, films and recordings in the school libraries.

This was brought out in a panel discussion by state school librarians at the close of a two-day state school library conference, recently sponsored by the Florida State Department of Education and Florida State University held on the campus.

CONFERENCE members agreed that although "school libraries in Florida are advancing on all fronts and an increasing amount of attention is being given to books and audio-visual materials, there is still need for a greater variety of these library materials to provide for the individual difference of pupils."

The conference also agreed to support the proposed standards for accreditation of Florida high schools as now being studied by educators in the states . . . especially those pertaining to school libraries.

DR. FRANCES HENNE, associate dean, graduate library school of the University of Chicago, discussed new developments in school library service.

Miss Laura K. Martin, associate professor of library service, University of Kentucky, discussed the use of news magazines for children.

MISS FANNIE SCHMITT, consultant in library service, Alabama State Department of Education, outlined the manner in which a state department of education supports the local school library program in consultant services.

● MORE EMPHASIS NEEDED

Yesterday's Honor Emphasis program gave FSU students a peek at an effective honor system. The system at the University of Virginia as described by guest speaker Charles Melton has long been famous as an example of one of the best honor systems in the nation.

The honor program at the University of Virginia is one that is supported by every student. It is a program of which all of the students are proud. No one at the University scoffs at it or ignores it.

The honor system sets up a rigid code of ethics for the university. Dishonesty in the form of lying, cheating or stealing is not tolerated. There is no deviation from the code. A student either abides by it or leaves the university. The only penalty for a violation of the honor code is expulsion from the university.

The honor system at the University of Virginia has been successfully in operation since 1865. It is completely student operated and enforced. The burden of upholding the system is on the individual student and not on an elected or appointed honor committee.

If a student sees another student cheating on an exam, he will personally take it upon himself to tell that student to pack up his bags and leave within 24 hours. If the accused student is not guilty or will not admit his guilt, he appeals to the Honor Court for a trial. If he is found guilty by the court he will then leave the University and never again set foot on University of Virginia property. If he is acquitted, all records of the trial are destroyed and the incident is forgotten.

This all the way or nothing system of honor must have astonished many FSU students who are used to a lackadaisical system. We are used to a system that can be ignored if the students wish. We are used to a system that brands a student as an informer or "tattle tale" if he reports an offender. We are used to a system that scoffs at an individual who lives up to the honor code.

As long as there is any evidence of dishonesty in the classroom there is no real system of honor on this campus and we are violating every privilege that we have been granted.

It is up to the students to decide. If we as individuals do not have personal integrity enough to at least conform to such a system, then we would do our fellow students a favor by moving on. At least then we would be contributing to the honor code's success by removing the obstacle that has continually plagued all efforts toward an ideal system.

We pace the Senate floor and cry for student rights and we rant and rave when instructors proctor exams. We howl with pain every time some student right is infringed upon or some privilege is taken away. It is beginning to look as though we want something for nothing.

If anyone is naive enough to wonder at the close watch over students in this university, would that he could have viewed the "riding" and other forms of open cheating which existed during this past exam week. Naturally, this type of thing is in the minority The students as a whole would never consider an action of this sort, but as a few apples spoil the barrel, so can a few dishonorable students spoil an excellent system. We cannot increase the scope of student independence and student power if we are not big enough to support the ideals embodied therein.

As the Virginia representative so aptly said "there is no such thing as a little cheating." If there is any cheating, there is no honor involved, and we cannot achieve those student rights and privileges for which we clamor until we prove ourselves adequate citizens.

The Honor Committee and the Honor Court have made excellent strides in the advancement of the system this year. With the support of the student body, it will one day assume its rightful place as the most important phase of student government on this campus. Perhaps there will be a time when there is no necessity for an Honor Day.

When the time comes that the Honor Code is the most revered tradition at Florida State, then and only then will the students, their government, and the opportunities that are offered here come into their own. Then Honor Day will stretch into a year-round affair, and our goal will be in view.

● BEWARE OF BLACK CATS

If you're superstitious you shouldn't be reading this. In fact, if you're superstitious, you shouldn't even have your eyes open. You shoulda stood in bed today.

Today, and we say this with diabolical laughter, is Friday, the wicked, wicked Thirteenth.

But since you are already up and about, caught unawares by the calendar, maybe you'll live through the day . . . if you're careful.

One of the best safeguards from bad luck is to take a dawg with you to classes. This way, if he sees any cats, black, white or variety, they won't have a chance to get near enough to cross your path.

Keep your eyes downcast in all classes. In fact, don't so much as move your big toe or you will probably attract your economics professor's attention. And on such a day as this his question of course would be something like describe the economic conditions of the Gotmire bean farmers in southwestern Ethiopia.

Don't join friends for lunch; you may end up with the check. Better still, don't eat; you may end up with food poisoning. Don't break rules; you may get caught, and by all means, go to bed early.

And if you step into one of these holes they are digging for camellia bushes, just stay there until tomorrow.

NSA President Answers Charges Made By Students for America

By RICHARD J. MURPHY
President, USNSA

The United States National Student Association (USNSA) has recently been charged with being a "subversive" and "insidious left-wing pressure group." These charges have been leveled by an extreme group known as Students for America through a monthly magazine and a speech delivered by its president before the National Interfraternity Conference in New York City last November

USNSA takes no exception to the right of any group or individual to criticize its program, policies, and activities. USNSA, however, will not stand by and allow its reputation to be damaged by irresponsible and unfounded charges such as those that have been recently made.

USNSA is positively non-communist and participates in absolutely no political activity whatsoever. USNSA co-operates with no subversive organizations. USNSA is not listed on any of the so-called subversive organizations listings, and it has not been cited by any of the security agencies for disloyal activities. Such charges are baseless and libelous.

USNSA is not engaged in activities to destroy fraternities as has been charged. Nowhere does USNSA demand conformity to any policies, and no policy calls for the destruction of the fraternity system. Many outstanding leaders in USNSA at present and in the past have been fraternity members. USNSA does stand for the eventual elimination of discrimination in all student organizations, a policy that has been adopted as a recommendation to member student governments.

USNSA claims to be the most representative student organization in the United States today by virtue of the active membership of 300 student governments widely diverse in type of school and geographical location whose jurisdictions extend to over 600,000 American college students.

Abroad, USNSA is successfully waging a campaign for the extension of democratic student life in the face of strenuous Communist propaganda efforts to win student support. Through the International Student Conference, USNSA works closely with 35 other democratic national student associations in promotion of mutual projects of assistance At the present time, more student associations are co-operating in this effort than ever participated in Communist-inspired programs of the past.

USNSA is proud to have the active participation of an advisory group including such outstanding Americans as Harold E. Stassen, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Very Reverend Vincent J. Flynn, Dean Althea Kratz Hottel, and Reverend Celestine Steiner, S. J. Such Americans would not be actively associated with any organization of questionable loyalty.

As President, I call upon student governments in the United States and its territories to join in strengthening USNSA and in enriching its program and activities by active participation.

SEMINOLE SCENES

ROSES ARE RED AND VIOLETS ARE BLUE

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Tomorrow is the day that all roses are red and all violets are blue, regardless of the fact that roses also come in yellow, pink and white and that violets come in 52 different shades of purple.

Everybody will be in love. Even amoebas will be pinching themselves in two tomorrow with more vim, vigor and vitality than the hio student watching them can keep up with. It will be Valentine's Day.

It all started:

Way back yonder in ancient Rome, the wolves were mighty bad. Of course this isn't implying they are any better today. Anyway, the Romans set up a big festival day called Lupercalia, in honor of Lupercus, the wolf destroyer. Nowadays girls use hat pins, as we no longer call this holiday Lupercalia.

The early Christian Church liked the idea of having the holiday, but wanted to do away with old superstitions The clergy then picked out a Roman who in 270 AD had been clubbed and beheaded, and called the day after him. St. Valentine's Day.

The custom of sending Valentine messages then evolved. As to why this day became tagged with love, one bright English author of an old dictionary said, "In England about this time of the year the birds choose their mates, and probably thence came the custom of the young men and maidens choosing Valentines or special loving friends on this day." (Oh, well. It's just a theory).

Some interesting customs have come about regarding St. Valentine's. At one time in Scotland, the first man a girl saw on that day was supposed to be her Valentine for a year. She also had to give him a big smack to make it official. I even hear some ardent suitors were known to sleep outside m'lady's chamber all night in a chair.

The idea of giving presents came from England. Some gal who had a yen for bon-bons probably started the craze.

Some people today bemoan the fact that we are getting away from old Valentine traditions. Nobody is hearts and flowers anymore, they say, and they blame it all on the telephone. George calls Ann up and says, "Happy Valentine's Day," hangs up and goes out to shoot pool with the boys.

But if the following example is the hearts and flowers kind, then I'm elated we're going modern. 1756 a girl wrote: "Last Friday was Valentine's Day, and the night before I got five bayleaves and pinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow and the fifth in the middle and then, if I dreamed of my sweetheart, Betty said we should be married before the year was out. But to make sure I boiled an egg hard and took out the yolk and filled it with salt, and when I went to bed ate it, shell and all, without drinking or speaking after it."

Absolutely touching, but my stomach doesn't like egg shells, and most of the characters I dream about, it's for sure I wouldn't want to marry. Who wants to see a five-eyed dragon avec the breakfast table every morning?

Another quaint custom is for the young couple to meet at sunrise and go out in the woods to try to snare one owl and two sparrows.

Still another is for the young man to attach his Valentine to an orange or apple and throw it through his true love's window. This doesn't seem satisfactory. Some lovers are near-sighted, and woe be unto the fellow who threw a ripe orange into some father's window, thinking he had aimed it right.

Tomorrow is Valentine's Day. And love, like the trees around here, will be busting out all over. Better watch yourself. Valentine's follows too hard on Friday the Thirteenth to absolve it from all dangers.

SITTIN' ON THE SIDELINES

WILL YOU BE MY VALENTINE?

BY BETTY LEE HERROW

"Worryin', worryin', worryin'—is you—or ain't you—Gonna Be My Valentine!" or "When taxes are abolished, and money grows on trees; when somebody discovers the moon is made of cheese . . . THEN I'll be your valentine!" Yes, tomorrow you will send or receive the message you've longed for all semester.

Hearts, and flowers and lace!—all are a part of the gay and swirling Spring of Cupid's delight. How drab the world would be if there were no secret little ways to tell your favorite "special" just how you feel! What would happen to the only miss or man, if there were no tiny cards of affection for friendship! St. Valentine must have known that without his ribbon of love tied around a pumping heart, springtime romances would perhaps never bloom.

There's always the fun of clamoring through the amorous crowds at the dime-store in search of just the card to suit your hidden admirations. To show your love is true, you emerge from the throngs with a black eye and a stumped toe, but then you could apply the theory—anything worth having is worth fighting for! After staggering from the counter, the realization hits you that you forgot to buy the envelope. No—you have one—but—the size is way too small! These are mere trifles suffered for a very honorable cause.

If you're a gentleman, you can always buy the young lady a scrumptious box of chocolate. She of course, will exclaim, "Oh are these for me'"—as if you had brought them to her mother. Then again—maybe you did bring them to her mother! Anyway, you hope for a piece of chocolate-covered taffy, but does she offer you one?—No! Instead she passes it out among her family—not neglecting the Poodle Pup, and wonders why you feel dismayed at the thought of the five dollars which you cherished almost as much as she. Yes— Ain't love grand!

If by chance you've spent all your moola before St. Valentine's day, you can create your own lush poem, and with a bit of glue, paint and paper, you may design a card that would surely turn the head of your Dulcinea. Try it sometime! Deliver the Valentine in person, if you can unglue it from your fingers dabbed with red tempra and white lace. She'll swoon with delight at your efforts, and you'll swoon with terror when you receive the cleaning bill for your pain-splashed suit. Don't fret because the barber shaved your head to clean the paste from your locks!—Life can be beautiful—especially on February 14.

Now ladies—what can you do to win the favor of that man who simply stirs you from tip to toe! Let him sample your new valentine lipstick—the kind that doesn't rub off. No other gal will trod his tracks while he is stamped with a brand that refuses to vanish no matter how many times scrubs his cheek. Or perhaps you should send him a magnificent valentine—adorned with all the trimmings. He'll be overjoyed—until the rest of the football team discovers in his gym locker the monstrosity of lace and frills and flowers. You'd be safe to sign it anonymous—but then you'd be right back where you started and St. Valentine would revolve in his grave — absolutely!

In spite of all the problems Cupid shoots with his arrow, all young souls rejoice at the chance to reveal themselves as "the secret pal". If you're still a secret, what has been gained — Well—maybe even such an obscure hint as secret pal will bring a little pleasure into an otherwise dull Saturday. To know that someone cares about us in our own little world of classes and books is a certain remedy for the study blues.

Not even a card is really necessary on this day of friendship; an assuring word, a smile, a warm hello, are all the valentines needed in celebrating our day of hearts and flowers.

Honor System

Dear Editor:

Notice that Thursday was called, "Honor Day" How about the honor committees on campus preaching "honor" to the instructors who proctored up and down the aisles during the exams. History 101's final quiz was pathetic. We were told to sit one seat apart and then were watched as the instructors went up and down the aisles. From what I hear, this occurred in many other subjects. How about it? Do we work with the "honor code" or no?

State Shows New Western

BY JUNE MORGAN

Two neophyte script writers hit the Hollywood jackpot with the unusual new western Naked Spur, that is currently showing at the State theater.

Sam Rolfe and Harold Jack Bloom sat down in a Brooklyn cafeteria for dinner one night last year, decided to write a movie story of the early West, and sealed the partnership with a salami sandwich. Their handiwork forms the framework of the desperado-gang-story that stars cowboy James Stewart, a newly-blonde Janet Leigh and badman Robert Ryan.

ALL ROOFE and Bloom knew of the West was what they had read in books or had seen in their automobile jaunt across the sagebrush country but the finished Naked Spur is an unusual Western that is believable as it is exciting.

The plot involves three hostile strangers, an embittered rancher, an old prospector and an ex-army officer, who join forces to capture a killer with a reward on his head. After the capture, the outlaw plays on his captors' weaknesses using his girl as a weapon.

RECENTLY NAMED Hollwood's outstanding Western star, James Stewart captures the center of attention in his vivid portrayal as one of the greedy pursuers who captures wily outlaw, Robert Ryan. Jane Leigh in her close-cropped-peroxided role as the homeless desperado girl adds an exciting touch to the Western. Ralph Meeker appears as the ex-army officer.

SUNDAY IS A redletter day for musical comedy fans because that is the date one of the most delectable film of that variety opens at the Florida. Meet Me At The Fair starring Dan Dailey, and Diana Lynn combines tenderness, humor, and a picture of the past with the nostalgic old songs.

Meet Me At The Fair is the story of a young orphan, who escapes from the most nightmarish of detention homes, equipped with gray walls and a hatchet-faced matron, to join Dr. Tilbey and his two-man traveling medicine show. The boy becomes a big issue in the on-coming political campaign and party bosses try countless unscrutable plans to recover him.

DAN DAILEY is the devil-may-care Dr. Tilbee and Diana Lynn, the innocent member of the orphanage board who complicates the story's plot and provides romantic interest.

This is one musical that is more than crooning and hoofing. I guarantee it will be one of your favorites.

Seminoles to Meet Moccasins Tonight

Florida State's rejuvenated Seminole basketeers, 10-point upsetters of Stetson's Hi-Hatters here Tuesday, move after another state victory tonight when they entertain the Moccasins of Florida Southern. The West Campus contest is billed for 8:30 following a preliminary.

The busy Seminoles will play here again tomorrow night, facing Tampa's rugged Spartans in a game which stacks up as one of the season's highlights.

Coach Bud Kennedy's cagers will rule slight favorites over Florida Southern tonight and will be the underdog against Tampa tomorrow night.

The Redskins staved off a late rally by the Moccasins in Lakeland January 13 to post a 71-69 victory. That's the main reason for their favorites' role tonight.

Tampa sheared the Seminoles by four in a rousing Cigar City battle January 12.

Tonight's meeting will be the 13th between FS and FSU. State holds a 7-5 lead in the series.

Tampa is one up on the Seminoles in 11 previous outings, having won six while State has captured five.

Kennedy has nominated as his starters' tonight Jerry Westhafer, Duane Gordon, Gary Wold, Ham Wernke and Jimmy Oler.

Redskin Tennis Squad Plans 20 Matches in '53

Coach Donald Loucks Releases Net Agenda

Dr. Donald Loucks, Florida State University tennis coach, today released a tough 20-match slate for his 1953 netters that includes meetings with four top Southeastern Conference schools — Louisiana State, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Auburn.

In addition the Seminoles will again be facing old and tested rivals Rollins, Tampa, Florida Southern, Emory and Mercer.

At the same time, Loucks announced that official practice would begin on Feb 27, giving the Indians nearly a full month of drills before the opener with the University of Georgia here on March 23.

THE DOCTOR will have five lettermen on hand this Spring that include Dan Boda of Tallahassee, Jack Egan of Bradenton, Tom Cundy of Bellevue, Ky.; Joe Harris of Memphis, Tenn., and Dave Kennedy of Tampa. Boda is a senior, Egan a junior, while Cundy, Harris and Kennedy are sophomores.

Others who will try out are Jack Hanley of Terre Haute, Ind.; Derwyn McElroy of Panama City; Tom Morgan of Tallahassee; Hal Schaus of Mansfield, Ohio, and Don Wyly of Jacksonville Beach, a holdover from the 1952 squad.

While five lettermen are returning, gone is Jim Berry, number one singles and doubles player last year. However, Loucks hopes that Schaus will be able to take up some of the slack left by the loss of Berry.

LOUCKS, who guided the Seminoles to nine wins against five defeats in 1952, called the new schedule the best he has ever had. "The addition of several new opponents plus three lengthy road trips should make our schedule the most interesting yet," added Loucks.

All home matches will be played on the East Campus courts.

The schedule: March 23, Georgia at Tallahassee; 26, Spring Hill at Mobile; 27, Louisiana State at Baton Rouge; 28, Loyola at New Orleans; 31, Kenyon (Ohio) College at Tallahassee; April 6, Montclair (N. J.) at Tallahassee; 9, Auburn at Tallahassee; 11, Mercer at Tallahassee; 13, Valdosta State at Tallahassee; 15, Tampa at Tampa; 16, Florida Southern at Lakeland; 17, Rollins at Winter Park; 22, Valdosta State at Valdosta; 29, Georgia at Athens; 30, Georgia Tech at Atlanta; May 1, Emory at Atlanta; 2, Mercer at Macon; 5, Auburn at Auburn; 7, Florida Southern at Tallahassee; 8, Emory at Tallahassee.

Dr. Veller Becomes Coach Again, But This Time It's Golf

Dr. Don Veller, who recently resigned after five seasons as head football coach at Florida State University to accept a full professorship in physical education at the school, has been appointed golf coach at FSU.

The announcement was made by Dr. Howard Danford, FSU director of athletics. Veller has assumed the duties of golf coach, formerly held by assistant football Coach Bob Harbison.

Danford stated concerning the shifting of duties in the department: "Because of the conflict between golf and spring football practice, it was necessary to make a change. The change was agreed upon by all parties concerned. It would have been done long ago had we had anyone to handle golf."

Veller said he expects some 12 candidates for the varsity links team, including lettermen Frank Hurt of Tallahassee and Jimmy James of Miami.

Seminoles Shock Hi-Hatters, 77-66

With Forward Jerry Westhafer and Guard Ham Wernke peppering the nets for 50 points between them, Florida State's Seminoles upset the Stetson Hi-Hatters, 76-66, in the season's biggest surprise in the West Campus gym Tuesday night.

Coach Dick Morland's Hi-Hatters were riding a six-game winning streak and hoping to wrap up the mythical state intercollegiate cage championship

But the Seminoles, playing before a capacity crowd in perhaps their best showing of the campaign, shocked the visitors by grabbing an early 10-5 lead they never relinquished.

Westhafer and Wernke, the old reliable, played major roles in the triumph, which ended a three-game FSU losing skein. Using a deadly, finger-tip push shot, Westhafer canned 13 of 22 field-goal attempts and finished with 29 points. Wernke, with a first-quarter spurt of nine points, bucketed 21 points.

IT WAS a team effort, however. Working the ball better than they had in weeks, the Tribe relied on a clicking, pass-weave pattern and carefully-planned screens to move inside for short-range lay-ups.

At one point in the third period, just after Westhafer swished a 20-footer from the corner, the Seminoles led by 20 points. Stetson, in their only rally of the night, closed the gap to six points soon after the final chapter opened, but fielders by Westhafer and Wernke pushed the Tribe out of the Hi-Hatters' reach.

The win was FSU's sixth against nine losses, the last three suffered on a painful road trip to Rollins, Memphis State and Arkansas State over the break between semesters.

STETSON'S RECORD was whittled to an 11-6 mark. The DeLand Dandies previously had beaten the Miami Hurricanes and bowed by only three points to the University of Florida, the Southeastern Conference's second-place quintet at present.

How You Gonna Keep Him Down on the Farm?

In Blue Jeans or Satin, FSU's Jim Oler Loves Basketball

By PAT HOGAN
Flambeau Sports Editor

From a makeshift blacksmith's hoop nailed on the barn "back on the farm" to the polished arenas of college basketball. That's the Cinderella story of Florida State University's dapper Jimmy Oler.

An "economy"-sized youngster from Economy, Ind., basketball's land of milk and honey, Oler has traveled a long way since he shoveled snow in the Winter-time" in order to have a place to play.

Oler, a freshman who looks older than his 18 years, has blossomed into one of Florida State's most promising hardwood pupils in the short time he's been in the Sunshine State.

Teamnig with Ham Wernke, a native of Batesville, Ind., and currently the nation's 17th leading scorer among small colleges, Oler is helping provide FSU with a one-two guard punch that is causing more than a few eyebrow raisings in Seminole territory

ALREADY THE relatively little man (5-10½) in a big man's game has served notice of better things to come. Displaying an intense competitive spirit which earned him a starting role almost before he had unpacked his clothes at FSU, Oler is now the Seminoles' fourth best point-maker, with 93 in 13 games.

That's an average of seven points per outing, not bad for a first-year collegiate who was wowing them in high school only a season ago.

Jimmy hopes to improve his output, when, as the modest, unassuming youngster puts it, "I get used to all the people."

Oler comes from the outskirts of a busy little Indiana community which lists only 251 residents. After doing his prep schooling at Economy — where the four-grade total enrollment was an infinite 45—it's difficult for him to fathom the 7,000 students at FSU.

"I WAS A little awed by all the kids at first," Jimmy says, "but I'm beginning to feel at home here."

A well-constructed 180-pounder, Oler is an adept dribbler, ball handler and much faster on his feet than it might appear. He excels in quick drive-ins under the basket, making him probably the most "fouled" Seminole, and shoots well from the outer regions of the keyhole.

It's not hard to see how Oler averaged 20 points a game over a four-year span in high school.

Jimmy, who says he doesn't have a nickname, gives much credit for his basketball background to his high school coach. But it was on the farm, when he was scarcely largar than a basketball himself, that he got his real start.

"I REMEMBER playing with a miniature ball before I started to school," Jimmy recalled. "A blacksmith fashioned us a hoop and we tacked it to the side of the barn, which, of course, served as the backboard.

"We played tha yaar round, with a little time out for baseball, and even shoveled snow so wa could play in the Winter-time."

Oler's love for the game hasn't dimmed over the years.

Whether he's outfitted in blue jeans or Seminole satin makes no difference. As long as it's basketball, Jimmy Oler loves it. —Hogan.

Florida Volleyball Meet Set For Miami

Florida's 1953 state AAU volleyball championship tournament will be held at Miami Jackson High School February 28, Dr. Howard Danford, Florida State University director of athletics and district AAU volleyball chairman, has announced.

Some 18 teams are expected to compete in the one-day affair, sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union and the United States Volleyball Association.

Entries for this year's competition must be in the hands of Dr. Danford not later than Friday, February 20

Bill Olster of the Miami YMCA will direct the tournament.

Not Simple to Keep An Eye on the Ball

Athletic activity at FSU moved into high gear here Monday when students treked back to campus for the opening of the spring semester.

With the addition of spring football drills, which were launched by new head football coach, Tom Nugent, Tuesday, Seminole teams are competing for practicing in nine sports—football, basketball, baseball, track, swimming, golf, tennis, volleyball and gymnastics.

Commissions in US Air Force Offered to Recent Graduates

Mid-term college graduates who completed degree requirements in January may apply for immediate direct commissions in the United States Air Force Reserve and assignment to basic meteorology graduate training in June, according to an announcement by Major General W O. Senter, Commanding General of the USAF Air Weather Service.

Qualified graduates who must have received credit for one year of college physics and mathematics through integral calculus, will receive complete application forms by writing to the commanding general, Air Weather Service, Washington 25, D C. College seniors both men and women, who will graduate in June with required physics and mathematics credits may also apply at this time for commissions to be awarded following graduation. June graduates will enter graduate meteorology school in September.

THE JUNE CLASS which will be of limited size, was established specifically to provide an early entrance into weather school for mid-term 1953 graduates. Since several weeks is required to process the application forms and obtain approval from the participating university, qualified graduates are being urged to submit application forms as soon as possible. Mid-term graduates who fail to submit their applications in time for the June class by March 1 will be considered for the September classes.

Participating colleges and universities offering the government-paid basic meteorology courses include the following nationally prominent schools: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, New York University, University of Chicago Pennsylvania State College, University of California at Los Angeles, Florida State University, University of Washington and St Louis University. Only one of these schools will offer the special June class.

THE NEW opportunities offered young men and women by the USAF Air Weather Service assume greater importance today as new horizons are being opened to people trained and experienced in the field of meteorology. Weather officers in the Air Force now are permitted to progress up to the rank of full colonel, either in the field of command or in the field of research. For men and women not selecting the military as a career, many new careers are now in existence in civilian business and industry requiring practical knowledge of forecasting and climatology, subjects covered thoroughly in the Air Weather Service training program for its weather officers.

During the graduate training in either basic or, later, advanced meteorology, all tuition and other expenses are paid by the government and the student receives full pay and allowance in his current grade. For a second lieutenant who is married this amounts to about $350 a month.

Following completion of the basic weather officer course, the officers will be initially assigned to officer basic military course and then to duty in an Air Force weather station.

Lecture Is Given By Gem Authority

Mrs. Gladys Babson Hannaford, diamond authority, gave a lecture to the Geology Club this week.

She told how she has seen individual prospectors mine for diamonds with only a pick and a pail, and how she has also seen expensive modern machinery used to blast diamonds out of the throat of an old volcano three-quarters of a mile under the ground or dig them from under 40 feet of dune sand.

Mrs. Hannaford also discussed the long development of the process of cutting diamonds from the times of the ancient Indians who merely cut off the rough corners of the stone, to the Belgian who first invented modern cutting methods about 1475, to the 20th century method in which each facet is cut at the best possible angle for obtaining maximum brilliance.

Her story of the part diamonds have played in history were illustrated with replicas of the Koh-i-noor, the Hope and other famous stones, including the most important diamonds of the British Crown Jewels, which will be worn in the forthcoming Coronation

Girl From Iceland Receives Degree In Record Time

Like "The Man Who Came to Dinner," Elin S. Haraldsdottir of Reykjavik, Iceland, arrived in New York late in 1946 as a 17-year-old school visitor, and has been in this country ever since.

Sha just received her MA degree in political science at Florida State University, making her the first woman of her country to receive such a degree. She accomplished the BS and the advanced degree in record time, just 4½ years

ELIN HAS the driving ambition of her rugged island ancestors. The 4½ years represent a period of hard work, Summer school every Summer following each full school year. She worked as a student assistant in the university library, later as a graduate student in the political science department.

The Iclandic girl has no family in this country. She has made her own friends among faculty members and students at FSU. The political science department helped her obtain a scholarship.

OLDEST IN A family of eight children, Elin made the trip to New York with a high school friend, Margaret Gundnundsdottir, who had a married sister living in Fort Myers. After spending some time in New York, the two friends journeyed to Fort Myers for a longer visit. Margaret then returned to Iceland according to plan, but Elin made new plans entirely on her own—Tallahassee, FSU was her goal

This week Elin will go to Washington, D C where she intends to get a job. With her master's degree from FSU and her first citizenship papers, she is confident. In the Fall she expects to enroll in the George Washington University law school where she will work on her doctor's degree in the field of law at the same time she works for her law degree. Of course, she will still be holding down a pot boiling job at the same time

AT FSU ELIN had little time for extra curricula activities. Her one social interest was the International Students' Club which she helped organize in 1943 as the Foreign Students' Club. She was the first president of the organization and has helped it grow to a membership of 63.

Speaker Describes System of Honor At His University

"On my honor I have neither given or received aid on this examination" is the pledge all University of Virginia students write and sign on examination papers, Charles Melton of Richmond, Va., told Florida Staters Thursday night.

The speaker, who was introduced by Dr. Doak S Campbell was brought to Tallahassee by the FSU Honor Committee. Ted Steinmeyer was master of ceremonies during a quiz part of the program.

MELTON CONFERRED with the FSU Honor Committee and student government association officers during his two day stay here, comparing operating details of the two universities' honor systems.

The Honor Committee consists of June McMillan, chairman; Joan Roone, Margaret Nash, Jean Williams, Ray Gregory, Mary Loutharn and Bert Miller.

MELTON TOLD his audience that the University of Virginia honor system, one of the oldest in the country was founded in 1842 by students and faculty working out the system together.

In its present form the honor system is operated by six student committee members, representing medicine, law, education, engineering, arts and sciences and the graduate school. They are annually elected by the student body, hold closed trials when cases are brought to their attention and serve as a jury.

MELTON SAID only six students at the University of Virginia were accused of violating the honor system this past semester. Three left the university without requesting trial, thereby admitting guilt; one was found guilty and immediately left the university, and two were tried and acquitted, remaining at the university with clean records.

Rehearsals have been held nightly from 7 p.m. until about 10:30, and now "from dawn to dark whenever possible" Director Lambert said. The sets, almost completed yesterday, were built at the Workshop at West Campus, which is so cold according to Skipper, that ice they had bought wouldn't even melt overnight.

THE ELABORATE costumes were partly made by Sarah Howard, while some were ordered from a theatrical agency. The music for the show was composed and arranged by Les Bruch, who will also conduct the Sandspur orchestra. Director Lambert calls the music 'anything but trite; it's good, progressive music." Bruch has worked with dance bands and some of the most noted people in the entertainment world.

Tickets for "Heaven Forbid!" are 75 cents each and are being sold at the Mecca, Sweet Shop, Westcott bus stop, Amber House and Longmire Information Desk. The Village Vamps will usher at each night's performance, at which seating will be on a first come, first serve basis.

DIRECTOR LAMBERT urged as many students and faculty as possible to go to the Wednesday and Thursday performances, as this will avoid an overcrowded Friday night audience, and might mean better seats.

The director said that stage hands and makeup men are still needed.

THIS YEAR'S show will contain 14 tunes and a dozen dances. A pit chorus will also be used.

Director Lambert was high in her praise of Nick Pappas, a four year veteran of Sandspur. Pappas is in the role of Chuck Prince, the comical side-kick of

WORTHWHILE STEP TAKEN

During the regular session of University Senate last Tuesday afternoon, the President's cabinet was apportioned an additional member, increasing its total number from seven to eight. Appointed hy President Summers and confirmed hy Senate the new officer was provided for in a hill recently passed "to create a Secretary of Labor".

Although this legislation has just appeared, it is the product of two years planning, beginning with the organization of the cahinet aystem. Sections of the hill, which ia now referred to as statute number three, provides that the Secretary of Labor shall serve as a liaison officer between the University Government Association and student employees and all employers of student help. He will investigate atudent working conditions and keep records on file in the office of the UGA President. He will also recommend legislation to the University Senate in the area of atudent labor. The Secretary of Labor shall generally aid in promoting the welfare of working students.

The idea behind this new cahinet office had its beginnings in the University of Florida Constitution which provides for a similar office. The position in Gainesville has been carrying forward policies identical to those in Senate's new act with continued success. It handles additionally an annual faculty evaluation and supervises a hureau of employment with the purpose of investigating and making availahle aummer johs for students. The need for auch an office on thia campus has long been evident. Opportunities contained herein are many fold.

Primary functions of the new secretary shall be as an active spokesman for student labor in all labor disputes and prohlems that may arise. For the first time the students can boast a well informed representative whise joh shall be to investigate complaints, in turn suggesting solutions and fairly explaining student viewpoints to the faculty and administration.

Activities of the Secretary of Labor would in no way interfere with work now carried on hy the office of Vocational Guidance, nor would it he senseless repitition. His duties would instead parallel and reinforce the present arrangement.

Needless to say it would be less difficult for the supervisors of student work to descend to the student level in prohlems with a spokesman to interpret and make availahle information. A secretary, to whom small jobs can be referred, will be an invaluahle time saver.

Eatahlishing a Secretary of Labor has worthwhile motives other than along the lines of labor. One more member in the Cahinet would be a welcome increase to all concerned, for with it comes representation for a wider segment of the student body. At the same time it provides another member to assist in deciding policies and lessens the overall work picture.

This year's Secretary will have to start from scratch. His joh will not be easy, hut he can formulate ideaa and policies for his successors. A record of his errors and advancements in a file will facilitate and improve the duties of those that are to follow in his footsteps. Advantages of the Secretary of Labor far outnumber any disadvantages that might be cited.

Although experience at FSU with auch a field is meager, an old adage is still appropriate—nothing ventured, nothing gained. The Flambeau offers CONGRATULATIONS to University Senate for the most worthwhile step taken this year.

RESOLUTION FOR INSTRUCTORS

A new semester is always the time for resolutions The past semester's mistakes are forgotten and everyone atarts out with a clean slate.

This semester we would like to suggest a resolution for faculty members to make—one that would be appreciated greatly hy their atudents.

We suggest that all faculty members resolve to begin and dismiss their classes on time this semester.

Ten minutes between classes is not very long when you think in terms of our growing campus. Going from a class in the Women's Gymnasium to one on the third floor of the Science huilding or from one in the Diamond House to one in the James huilding involves a good ten-minute walk. This time is quite often cut down hy delayed lectures of over-zealous instructors.

Any professor who has been annoyed hy tardies ahould realize that his overtime lectures may well be the cause of latecomers in other classes. Our suggestion to instructors is to think twice before keeping a class overtime.

Equally aa bad but not as widespread is the hahit of starting classes early. The same principal of limited between-classes time applies.

With classroom huildings planned for the space west of the Student Center, the poor student can only huy a pair of track shoes and hope for the best. Unless we plan to develop a race of "distance runners," early and late classes have got to go.

Two members of the hygiene department at Harvard University have warned students that the use of "No-Doz" is partially responsihle for the nervous collapse of many students around exam time

Dr. Arlie Bock hygiene professor, terms the taking of "No-Doz" pills "self-inflicted injury." He adds, "If a fellow can't do his work without resort to such drugs, I would say he doesn't belong in school."

CROWDED AGENDA AWAITS SECOND SENATE

By MARCIA MORRIS

The second University Senate meeting of the semester is scheduled todsy. Judging from a preview of the crowded agenda, today's session promises to be a lengthy one. The constitutional committee plans to introduce new amendments for the required first reading In addition, an amendment "to make statutory provision for class officers other than president" will come up for the second reading and a probable vote.

A rewritten form of the amendment "Changing the name of the University Government Association to "University Government," and defining the jurisdiction, franchise, and purpose af the University Government, will also be brought back to senate. This last bill will be presented in order to confarm with various suggestions of the facolty committee on student affairs, which were made when the original bill cama up for review. The faculty cammittee will reconvene in a special meeting on Wednesday to reconsider the "University Government bill"

When the amendment to Article 1 of the UGA Constitution is reintroduced tomorrow, it will be one more atep in a long series of attempts to chaneg the name of our government association and grant the privilege of voting in government elections to graduate students. This legislation, the object of many diverse opinions, has accumulated the most interesting history of any bill presented in Senate this year.

The first reading was an December 2, 1952, with the second reading and vote falling during the following meeting an December 9. However, a division of the question was requested with the result that Section 1—changing the name—was defeated. A motion was made to appoint a committee for suggesting alternative names. After a faur week period nothing had been accomplished, and on January 20, 1853 Senate pased the section in its original form.

The bill continued on its journey from one office to another, and it only recently came before tha faculty committee where it acquired a few additonal changes. On February 10, last Tuesday, the bill was reintroduced in Senate and tabled. Now it has been rewritten and will be reintroduced.

Supporters of tha bill hope that today will mark its last appearance on the floor of the Senate. Surprisingly enough tha question af graduate vate which provided grounds for a great ruckus last year has nat been the bona af contentian. Chief drawback seems to stem from the fact that everyone has his awn preference of names for the University Gavernment Association. At any rate, with the cooperation of Senate and the faculty committe,e and barring any unforeseen squabbles by Wednesday the Canstitutian will contain several more significant changes.

Incidentally, the measures atated to be submitted tomorrow will bring the number of bills written by Senator Lawler this year to a total of seventeen. In fact, every bill introduced in Senate this far has ben written by Senator Lawler wtih the exception of two. It remains to be seen what is accomplished during the next few months of the semester by individual Senators.

Other amendments being submitted tomorrow deal with the Honor System, the filling af vacancies in the affice af editors of publications, redefining executive powers of the President of UGA and ebanging his title and the titles of certain cabinet afficers, and the limitation of campaign expenses and restatement of electon procedure.

State Shows Romantic Epic

By JUNE MORGAN
Feature Editor

The hit musical "Showboat," the new best seller "Steamboat Gothic" and now a third epie of Louisiana and the Mississippi, Mississippi Gambler occupies the entertainment spotlight.

Starring Tyrone Power and Piper Laurie, the new film opens Wednesday at the State for a seven-day showing

TYRONE appears in the role of the riverboat gambler, Mark Fellon, a handsome adventurer, adept at cards, dueling and lovemaking, who sets out to build himself a fortune throuah honest gambling. He wins his point, and the love of headstrong New Orleans society belle portrayed by titian-haired Piper Laurie, but not until he has fought his way to success with the cards stacked at every turn of the game New York critics dubbed Tyrone's latest role one of his greatest.

Opposite him, Piper throws off some of the signs of teen-age inexperience that spoiled her last role in "Son of Ali-Baba." She says it's quite an experience playing opposite the man whose fan club she presided over just a little over two years ago

No one was allowed to light a cigarette or strike a match within 15 feet of Piper while she wore her inflammable Southern belle gowns on the set. The 1850 period dress has 12 yards of material, firemen said would disintegrate in a matter of seconds if it caught fire. Adding to the precaution, the studio wardrobe department dressed the actress in a fire-proof bustle and equally fire-proof long underwear which she wore under the flowing dress.

The research department of Universal-International uncovered several unusual facts in preparing for the filming of "Mississippi Gambler" They revealed that Mississippi steamboats do not rock, although they often display a shimmying motion from the vibration of the engines Fashionable gents in New Orleans smoked cigars approximately five inches long just prior to the Civil War and lamp-lighters wore no uniforms, but plied their trade in top hats and ordinary street clothes.

MISSISSIPPI GAMBLER" was directed by Rudolph Mate and produced by Ted Richmond.

Yankee Buccaneer, the tale of the courageous early American sailors who sailed to wreck the Spanish Maine, is the technicolor adventure film that opens a four-day run at Florida, Wednesday.

RUGGED Jeff Chandler handles the lead role opposite petite Suzan Ball. The film also stars Scott Brady.

Vince Ragunas, New Backfield Aide, Is Only Addition to Staff

Vince Ragunas, a former backfield coach for Tom Nugent at VMI is the only addition to the football coaching staff since Nugent replaced Doctor Don Veller as head coach. The 28-year-old native of Pennsylvania is the aide Nugent said he would bring to FSU when he was first hired.

Ragunas was a standout fullback for VMI in 1946, '47 and '48. Then after a year's try at professional football with the Pittsburgh Steelers he returned to VMI as an assistant coach. Besides his football achievements, Ragunas also was a varsity trackman and a member of the freshmen basketball squad. He put in a two-year tenure as Keydet frosh basketball coach and then last Spring took over the varsity when the head cage mentor, Frank Summers resigned.

Ragunas entered VMI in 1942 from Plymouth High School (Pa.) but only got in a season of freshmen football before he entered the Army. He spent the next three years in the tank corp, mostly in the European theater where he was wounded in the leg and foot.

Returning to VMI in 1946, Ragunas took over the starting fullback position which he held for two seasons. In his senior year, '48, he was transferred to the blocking back spot. This was the position he played, in the season he spent with the Steelers.

Ragunas, who will get a $4,500 a year salary, joins Bill Armstrong, Tom Roberson, Vaughn Mancha and Bob Harbison on the coaching staff.

The new aide does a little singing besides playing golf and tennis.

Seminoles Have Most Success On Home Court

Florida State's cracker-box-styled West Campus gymnasium, an arena which has proved more than moderately hostile to some Seminole basketball teams in past years, has turned into a true friend this season.

With Saturday night's convincing decision over Tampa the Seminoles now have a 6-2 record in their home playpen. That's a .750 batting average and speaks well for FSU's over-all 8-9 reading.

With only one more game set for Tallahassee—that one against the Miami Hurricanes here February 23—the Indians are a cinch to be a winner at home.

Coach Bud Kennedy's Redskins have trimmed Rollins, Mercer, Stetson, Mississippi State, Florida Southern and Tampa at home this season while losing only to rangy Loyola of New Orleans and Central Missouri College.

The Seminoles haven't fared so well on the road, winning only two of nine starts.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

SHEEDY was all wet. All the flappers ducked when they spied him. The wave in his hair disappeared. Then he floated a loan of 29¢ for some Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's favorite hair tonic. Contains soothing Lanolin. Non-alcholic. Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Grooms the hair. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test. Now he's back on the ball, a flippant lover who flabbergasts all the girls with his good looking hair. So waddle you waiting floe? Get in the swim with Wildroot Cream-Oil. Buy it at any toilet goods counter, and ask for it at your barber's. Remember, you mustache fur Wildroot Cream-Oil. Then the girls will put their seal of approval on you.

Seminoles Defeat Tampa and Mocs

With a pair of victories over the weekend to their credit the Florida State Basketball team is still hopeful of receiving a bid to the District 25, NAIA tournament, in Orlando February 27 and 28. The two wins, one over Florida Southern Friday and the other against Tampa Saturday, brought the Seminole's record to 8-9 one win away from the .500 mark.

If Coach "Bud" Kennedy's cagers get a bid it will be the third time in a row they have competed in the tourney. In the first appearance in 1950 the Seminoles reached the quarterfinals in Witchita before being eliminated. However, last year they did not fare as well, getting evicted in the second game by Tampa.

THE SEMINOLES in the throes of a three game winning streak since besides the wins over Tampa and Southern FSU ended Stetson's six game winning streak last Tuesday with a 77-66 victory. The three wins all notched in the West Campus gym were all the sweeter because they came against inter-State rivals. ¼ ¼ ¼ ¼

Florida State will have to wait until Saturday for an opportunity to run the streak to four. On that day they will be in New Orleans to play a strong Loyola of the South quintet. Earlier in the year Loyola turned back the Seminoles 72-66. The contest is one of the three remaining on the schedule with only one slated for the home floor. Miami will be here Monday, Feb. 23.

IN BEATING TAMPA, 83-74, the Seminoles had to overcome a sluggish first half and a 45-37 deficit at half time. But in the third quarter FSU caught fire, knotted the score at 50-all and then went on to outscore the Tampans 27-11. The whole second half was handily controled by the Seminoles as witnessed by the fact that they tallied 46 points to Tampa's 29.

Balanced scoring, featured the Tampa fray, as five of the Seminole cagers hit for 12 or more points. However Freshmen Jerry Oler led the way with 18 followed closely by Jerry Westhafers' 17. Frosh Gerry Wold and FSU's top scorer each notched 14 and Duane Gordon threw in 12. But the scoring honors for the night were captured by Tampa's George Montz. The slightly round by dead-eye guard notched up 10 baskets and 11 free throws for 31 points. Montz was the state's leading scorer last year. His team mate, Marty Brooks, got 20 points.

MOCS FALL, 79-77

ANOTHER UP HILL fight had to be waged Friday night before the Seminoles finally overcame Florida Southern, 79-77 in a wild, somewhat sloppy contest.

Behind 37-35 at the half time, the victors finally worked their way into a 58-56 lead midway in the third quarter and then diligently guarded the two-point margin until the final gun.

Although the cagers as a whole were not up to par against Southern Jerry Weathafer continued on his scoring rampage by notching 28 points—a scant point lower than his 29 point effort against Stetson, last Tuesday night. However, Weathafer's point-production was not high enough to take scoring honors, as Southern's Fred Lapper tossed in 30 points for the honor. The loser's usual high scorer, Bill Leach (over 30 points so far this year) was limited to a mere 6 points, chiefly because of the defensive work of Gerry Wold.

Ten Contests On FSU's '53 Grid Slate

Four major college elevens are listed on the 1953 Florida State University football schedule announced Friday by Dr. Howard Danford, director of athletics. The four big boys on the slate are Miami of Florida, VMI, Furman, and North Carolina State. The latter three are members of the Southern Conference and played FSU in 1952.

The '53 Tribe menu lists six games at home and four away and stacks up as an attractive crowd-pleaser. The two new teams gracing the '53 slate are Miami and Abilene Christiau. Miami replaces Georgia Tech while Abilene Christian replaces Wofford. Home games are with Louisville, VMI, Furman, Stetson, North Carolina State and Abilene Christian

IN ADDITION THE Seminoles take to the road for games with Miss. Southern, Louisiana Tech, Miami and Tampa.

FSU opens its '53 schedule on the road facing Miami in the Orange Bowl on September 25. The Tribe played Miami in 1951, dropping a 35-13 decision.

The 1953 Florida State University football schedule follows: September 25—Miami, Miami; October 3—Louisville, Tallahassee; October 10—Abilene Christian, Tallahassee; October 17—Louisiana Tech, Ruston; October 24—open; October 31—VMI, Tallahassee; Nov. 7—Miss. Southern, Hattiesburg; November 14—Furman, Tallahassee; November 21—Stetson, Tallahassee; November 28—N. C. State, Tallahassee; December 5—Tampa, Tampa.

Nine Meets Slated For FSU Trackmen

A nine-meet schedule for the 1953 Florida State University track team was announced today by trackmaster Dr. Ken Miller. The schedule lists meets with Georgia and Georgia Tech of the Southeastern Conference and participation in the Florida relays and Georgia AAU.

FSU opens its '53 schedule on Feb. 28 at the Southern Conference indoor games, slated at Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

Miller has been working the 40-man FSU squad for several weeks. Fourteen lettermen are on hand from the '52 team that posted a 6-1 mark.

The 1953 Florida State University track schedule follows: February 28—Southern Conference indoor games, Chapel Hill; March 28—Florida relays, Gainesville; April 4—Mercer, Tallahassee; April 18—Florida AAU; April 25—Georgia—Georgia Tech, Athens; May 2—Loyola, Tallahassee; May 9—Miami, Coral Gables; May 16—Miss. Southern, Hattiesburg; May 23—Georgia AAU, Atlanta.

Nugent Searches for Material As Rough Grid Workouts Continue

With only four of the allotted 20 days of spring practice behind his Florida State University Seminoles, head coach Tom Nugent is convinced of one thing—he needs some more football players, and badly.

Nugent, who ran the gridders through a stiff but not rough two-hour and 30 minute session Friday afternoon said at the conclusion of the workout "we have a terrific shortage of football players. In my opinion our No 1 problem is the rounding up of sufficient manpower to play the 10-game schedule we have lined up.

"We must locate 30 or more outstanding freshmen to supplement the comparatively few good prospects that we now have."

When asked where he thought he could recruit the needed talent at this late date when most schools have filled their squads, Nugent replied, "I can't say specifically. I hope that we can get the bulk of them from the state of Florida. If not, we will have to go outside the state. We have a definite shortage of quarterbacks, centers, ends, fullbacks, well, just about everything

"I'm certain that we can still get good boys. That's our goal, though a very thorough screening job is necessary to get the kind we need."

Nugent, who started installing the Split-T formation Friday by putting in three basic plays, seemed pleased with the drill after first making it clear that he "hasn't got the horses he needs." The former VMI coach called Friday's workout "satisfactory," and said he was particularly pleased with the progress some of the linemen have shown in making the transition from the single wing which Dr Don Veller taught last year to the split-T.

Among the linemen who have caught Nugent's eye in the early workouts are tackles Troy Barnes, George Boyer and Jim Olson, guards Jerry Jacobs and Al Macowiecki and center John Otis Skinner.

Boyer, a Jacksonville Beach boy. Barnes and Jacobs are lettermen. Olson, from Quincy, and Macowiecki were red-shirts last year while putting in their year of residence, and Skinner enrolled from a junior college.

A backfield of quarterback Harry Massey left half Bobby Fiveash, right half Stan Dobosz and fullback Ronnie King ran through dummy drills this afternoon at the top unit

Massey, a 184-pound junior collegian from Canton Miss., has been stamped as the No. 1 split-T quarterback prospect. Fiveash is back at the left half slot he filled for Veller and may move on again to fullback. Dobosz lettered at fullback last year, while King was an end.

Massey and Leonard Swantic from Columbus, Ga. loom as the prospective starting quarterbacks for the garnet-gold game which will wind up spring drills early in March. Both lack some of the quickness Nugent likes in his men under center, but they appear tops in the current crop

Nugent said that the squad will skip tomorrow and resume work Tuesday. Several players are bothered with colds and coughs, and

Of the 87 men who have reported since the opening of practice on Tuesday, only 45 were on deck yesterday. The others have dropped from the squad, and in many cases have returned home. Among the players who dropped was one letterman, 246-pound tackle Dossey Merritt from Lakeland.

Women's F Club Begins Semester Tapping Fourteen

The Women's F Club athletic honorary, began this semester's activities with the tapping of 14 women.

Those who have been selected to undergo the traditional "goating" period before initiation are Connie Bassett, Marilyn Cobb, Jackie DuPont, Carolyn Gola, Nancy Graham, Bessie Hawes, Pat Hawes, Ione Marraine, Janet Reed, Margaret Reeder, Virginia Peck, Jo Powell, Liz Palmer, and Jean Williams.

Tuesday night these girls were met in the various dormitory offices by groups of F Club members. A tea was held last night in honor of the new taps, who must go through a probationary period prior to initiation at Camp Flastacowo.

The requirements for being tapped for F Club are the making of two Odd-Even teams within a year's time, an overall average of one point and an average of one point the preceding semester. Tapping takes place in the Fall and Spring.

Joan Webb, president, and Anna Athanason, vice-president, head the large organization which is responsible for such campus projects as the Campus Chest Box Supper and the fountain and gate decorations for Homecoming.

Study and Analysis Necessary In Fight Against Communism

Dr. Luther H. Evans, Librarian of Congress, told a Florida State audience Friday night that American people should fight communism intelligently . . through searching study and analysis.

Introduced by Dr. Louis Shores, dean of the Library School, the speaker explained all information on such a threat as communism should be made available through books, newspapers, periodicals, radio and television so that people can study and discuss all sides of communism openly and calmly.

DR. EVANS said curent censorshop of ideas is a threat against the basic American way of life; the censorship movement is depriving people of individual rights in a democracy. He called the movement a menace growing out of a national feeling of frustration.

"American people are jumping up and down on a hot skillet," was his illustration of the national hysteria resulting from censorship of ideas.

ADULTS ARE upset, angry and in a dangerous mood—they are in danger of destroying themselves, he said. "They are afraid of international as well as national relations."

He said people must have easy access to other people's ideas. He thinks the solution lies in educating individuals to exercise self restraint, tolerance and a willingness to recognize other people's rights.

PEOPLE SHOULD realize the threat of censorship because public interest is involved, Dr. Evans said. "The government cannot control the movement and it is not responsible. It cannot be dealt with by probation or legislation," be added.

His overall solution for the threat of censorship is intelligent democratic action at a community level.

THE 51 year-old Librarian of Congress, a native of Texas, was brought to FSU as third in a series of internationally prominent librarians to supplement the Library School's training and service program.

on April 24, 25, 27 and 28 in Conradi Theater.

THE "COMMEDIA" dell'arte type of performance, the most popular kind of theater with the great mass of people for three centuries, is still flourishing in some localities today.

The modern circus clowns derive, in part, from the traditional characters of the "commedia." For instance Punch of the Punch and Judy show is a "commedia" clown. He appears in "The Last Lesson of Pantalooe."

THE TYPE of acting is very broad and much in the tradition of Charlie Chaplin and the Marx Brothers, says Graves. Also most of the characters wear masks and fantastic costume in the "commedia."

included are Lyonel Feininger's "The Red Fiddler," James Fosburgh's "Juke Box," Jimmy Ernst's "Drum Improvisation," Max Beckmann's "Self-Portrait with Trumpet," Kurt Roesch's "Snake Charmer," and works by Hoffman, Motherwell, Kihchner, Sekula, Gray, Goto and Lasker.

The eight pieces of sculpture range from DeGas' bronze "Dancer" to Alexander Calder's mobile "Dispersed Objects with Brass Gong." Others are by Dachaise, Lipehizt, Barlach, Marcks, Gallery and Pousette-Dart.

AN ARTIST series presentation, admission free, the exhibition was selected from works dealing specifically with musical subjects. An introduction points out how modern abstract art particularly tends to approach music in its emphasis on formal or emotional effects rather than representation.

Library Displays Gospel Facsimile

A facsimile of the Book of Kells was displayed in the Florida State University Library recently.

The Book of Kells is an illuminated manuscript of the Gospels in Latin with certain records in the Irish Celtic style of the 7th and 9th centuries, preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, since 1661.

Miss Louise Richardson, FSU librarian, said: "The glory of the book is the amazing beauty and infinite variety of its illumination and ornament. Taken as a whole the book is a beautiful document, surpassing all other works of its kind, and by far the finest example of early Christian art in Ireland."

Miss Richardson added that in the pages of the manuscript northern and southern art styles appear side by side, Christian and pre-Christian, mingled with Celtic, Coptic and Romanesque.

constitution, several changes in Senator Lawler's Traffic Court bill. The committee also approved the bill redefining class standing.

After a few minutes of consideration the Senate tabled the amendment to Article one until next week's meeting. The Senate unanimously passed certain amendments, most of them minor in nature, to the Traffic Control Code in order to make that act acceptable to the Faculty Committee.

ACCORDING TO the resolution passed by the Senate the student body will go to the polls on March 31 to artify or to reject the several amendments that the Senate will have proposed by that date.

Senator Judy Simkins introduced a bill "providing for an amendment to Article VII of the UGA Constitution to make statutory provision for class officers other than president."

THIRD TIME A CHARM?

When Tom Nugent took over at Florida State University February 1, he became the third head football coach in FSU history. Ed Willyiamson coached the first Seminole eleven (1947) and Dr. Von Veller tutored the Tribe for the past five seasons (1948-1952).

Europe Student Tours Planned for Summer

Organized tours for students and professional people are being planned by Travel and Study this year to bring visitors into contact with those abroad who have the same interests.

The address of Travel and Study, Inc., is 110 E. 57th St., New York City.

FOREIGN ASSIGNMENT for students of journalism and current affairs will be directed in 1953 by Dr. Ralph O. Nafziger, director of the School of Journalism, University of Wisconsin. The experience of the past few years shows a growing awareness on the part of the free governments of Europe of the importance of such direct contacts.

Seminars for the students are conducted by prominent European statesmen, and personalities such as Spaak and Monnet, representing the unified Europe of tomorrow, are encouraging this current of private intellectual exchange. National and international institutions open their doors wide to the participants of the tour, who through their studies at the Sorbonne and visits such as those to SHAPE, the United Nations European Headquarters, and the International Press Institute have occasion to gather a wealth of direct background knowledge on current European affairs.

IN AN ENTIRELY different field — Fashion — Travel and Study's tours have for the past four years, given a behind the scenes introduction to the European fount of inspiration and Fashion creation. This year's workshop centers on Italy, England and France. Last year after a lecture to this group, Alex Maguy stated jokingly: "We are training competitors, but I guess that a little competition will be good for la Haute Couture."

This year's innovation is the Junior Tour, a specially designed first class tour for young people between the ages of 16 and 18. The program concentrates on French language and civilization and the group will be under the personal supervision of Mme. Jeanne Romillat Ernst of the Dalton School, New York.

OTHER TOURS include: Art, Theater, Music, with visits to the major Arts Festivals in Europe; East and West—a study of the rise of Western civilization taking in England, France, Italy, Greece, Turkey, the Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, Egypt and Israel; a Northern Tour featuring the 700th Anniversary of Stockholm; and special low-cost tours for students of art and architecture at the University of Rome and for political science and economics at the University of Paris.

Elementary School Interns Get Teaching Methods Instruction

Elementary intern activities are so diversified that they may include a teacher principles discussion, a game of "Upset the Fruit Basket," followed by a "faculty meeting" with directing teachers. All are usual parts of a morning at building 305 West Campus.

The approximately 60 student teachers are learning actual methods of teaching as they plan with instructors, carry out a unit, decorate their classrooms and accumulate files of material to be used in the actual internship period that begins March 5 and continues for eight weeks.

DR. R. L. GOULDING is the man responsible for placing elementary and secondary interns at scholos in all parts of Florida. His work begins as he contacts prospective directing teachers the semester before interning takes place and extends until all the students are placed.

Interns are split up according to the region they've been assigned to. In the pre-intern classes they study theory, and special methods, keep a log of their experiences, hear guest speakers, accumulate materials and reference work under their campus teachers.

MOST OF THE student-teachers have already met the directing teacher they have been assigned to. Their classroom experience may vary from passive observation to complete control of daily activities. During their internship period each student is required to present and carry out a unit or an integraitve experience, the plans and description of wihch is to be turned in when they reutrn to the campus for a five weeks seminar.

Edna Parker, associate professor of Education, is chairman of the pre-internship classes. W. T. Edwards travels around the state as part of the placement program and Mildred Swearingen is chairman of the Education 105, 205 and 305 sequence.

Formal Dance Closes Run Of Annual Sandspur Show

Claude Thornhill's Orchestra Plays In Suwannee Room Saturday Night

Claude Thornhill's danceable music will close a dramatic four days of "Heaven Forbid" tomorrow night at the Sandspur Dance in the Suwannee Room at 9.

Tickets are selling fast for both the Sandspur production and dance. A limited number of tickets remain and the students are urged to get theirs while they are still available. Tickets for "Heaven Forbid" are $.75 per person, while the tickets for the Sandspur Dance are $1.50 per person.

THE TICKETS are available at the following places between the hours of 10 a. m. and 3 p. m.: the bookstore at the Student Center, Amber House, Mecca, Longmire Information Desk, and the bus stop in back of Westcott.

Claude Thornhill renowned for his famous "Snowflake" and "Snowfall" will play strictly soft and sentimental music.

BY REMOTE CONTROL the campus radio station, WFSU, will broadcast the Thornhill music directly from the dance between 9:30 and 11.30 p. m.

Under the direction of Floyd Fogle, dance chairman, the bandstand will be decorated with stars, comets, and colored lights to carry out the theme of "Heaven Forbid."

THE SANDSPUR production began Wednesday night at 8:15 and is playing through tonight with a Saturday matinee at 2:15.

Ted Morril and Paula play the leads in the two act, ten scene musical comedy. Morril portrays Byron Donnally, who has been jilted by the woman he loves, Paula Bailey, who plays Maxine.

THE PLOT revolves around the two principals. Several other entangled love affairs enter the scene gloriously sprinkled with comedy and a lot of laughs. Betty Mullins, as Phoebe, pursues her annual achase of Nick Pappas. Nick portrays Chuck, a friend of Byron's.

The two earthmen find themselves on the Planet Venus early in the play where they meet Byron's temporary love, Roxanne, Marian Mattair. Roxanne takes Byron's mind off his real love, Maxine, with whom he finally is re-united.

WHILE ON THE planet Venus, the characters find the jolly King Vanda, Ron Martin, who has his own problems. Vanda succeeds in straightening out the loves by solving his own problems—finding a wife for his nephew, Raylu, played by Ken Nelson.

The production features 14 tunes and a dozen dance routines following a futuristic theme. Music was written by Les Brooks and lyrics by Skipper Lambert.

THE USUAL behind-the-scenes crisis popped into the Wednesday performance. In a final check in the Opperman Hall schedule, it was found that someone else had signed for the hall from 3 to 8 p. m. A second check revealed the "someone else" was to be Sandspur producer Jim Harris, himself.

Some quick thinking by Don Remington, who plays a crewman on the trip through space, averted another crisis. The parachutes, a prop for the space ship scene, could not be found Wednesday night. Remington ad libbed the scene which brought many laughs from the unsuspecting audience.

PRODUCER HARRIS, has expressed his thanks to the entire Sandspur staff, cast and crew members for their cooperation in making "Sandspur 1953," a success.

Senate Hears Bills Presented For First Time

In University Senate meeting on Tuesday, action centered about the passage of a bill changing the name of the University Government Association to University Government and granting the privilege of vote to the graduate students.

The bill in its original form had been passed by Senate and submitted to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs where it met with suggested changes. The new measure, introduced by Senator Gene Lawler on behalf of the Constitutional Committee, was written to incorporate several of the recommended changes and was resubmitted to the Committee on Wednesday.

ALSO PASSED by Senate was a proposed amendment to make statutory provision for class officers other than president. This measure, clarifying the wording of the present constitution, received unanimous senatorial support.

Appearing on the floor of the Senate for the first time were six bills introduced by the Constitutional Committee clarifying elections procedure, restating the Honor System Article in the Constitution, providing for succession to offices left vacant by Editors of Publications, providing for honor notices, revising the legislative branch and redifining certain executive powers. Each of these bills will be presented for the second reading and a probable vote in Senate next Tuesday.

THE HONOR notices bill stated that notices of each case tried before the Honor Committee shall be printed on the front page of the Florida Flambeau, giving no indication of identity of persons involved, but stating the date, offense, and penalty.

The proposed amendment re-

Faculty Group Rules Office Non Existant

Secretary of Labor Returned to Senate For Further Changes

The Faculty Committee on Student Affairs sent the Secretary of Labor bill, authored by Sen. Eugene Lawler, back to the Senate without their stamp of approval.

This means, said UGA Pres. Mary Ruth Summers, that as far as the faculty group is concerned, the office recently taken by Bill Hess as secretary of labor does not exist. She said the Senate will possibly make revisions in the bill and send it back again.

DEAN KATHERINE Warren, chairman of the faculty committee, said that commentary on the objectional parts of the bill would be sent through Milton Carothers, chairman of the Senate, before being released to the press.

The committee also killed a bill to give graduate students a vote.

THE MEMBERS of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs consist of Dean Warren, Dean J. Broward Culpepper, Dean Otis McBride, Prof. Grace Fox, physical education; Assoc. Prof. Florence B Cole, physical education; Asst. Prof. Myrtle Lee Floyd, nursing; Asst. Prof. Mary Magginis, English; Prof. Mildred Morgan, home and family life; Asst. Miss Judy Gives Illustrated Lecture On Life In Spain

An illustrated lecture on "Enchanting Spain" was given by Miss Marjorie S Judy, instructor in modern language, this week in the Longmire Auditorium.

The lecture was one of a series sponsored by the modern languages department of which Dr. Dorothy Hoffman is acting head.

In commenting on the present economic condition of Spain, Miss Judy said the country is primarily agricultural Its chief products are olive oil, grains, cork and wines. It exported 270,000 metric tons of olive oil in 1949 the few factories are small and the work is done by hand because of the lack of water power to be used for the production of electricity.

MISS JUDY gave a brief survey of the early history of Spain—the land was inhabited many centuries before Christ. Different invaders all left imprints of influence on the Spanish people.

The speaker described places of interest she visited last Summer, and presented colored pictures which were a special loan to her from the Spanish Embassy. Robert DeVett operated the projector.

AT THE COFFEE hour which followed the program, the Spanish colors, red and yellow, were emphasized in decorations and refreshments. Miss Myrtle Dolbee and Mrs. Edward Hauch presided at the coffee table Members of the modern languages department assisted in receiving and serving the guests. Miss Judy also had an exhibit of articles made in Spain, and various pictures and books of the "enchanting country."

Sunday Morning Begins Intelligent Faith Week

Gordon Clapp TVA Speaker Reviews Work

Atomic work at the Oak Ridge plant has gone along at a fast pace because of the power supplied by the Tennessee Valley Authority, said Gordon R. Clapp, chairman of the TVA board of directors Tuesday night as he told a Florida State audience of the results of the program.

Dr James Norton assistant professor of the department of public administration introduced the federal official as the first in a series of TVA officials to address classes in the FSU department.

THE CASE STUDY of TVA by the public administration department will run through May 1. Last Spring semester the public administration department brought Department of Commerce officials to the FSU campus.

Clapp analysed TVA as an agency of the federal government to provide for the unified development of all the resources of the 41,000 square mile watershed of the Tennessee River and its tributaris.

HE TOLD HOW the agency, created in 1933 by an act of Congress, grew out of the "Muscle Shoals white elephant" of the Wilson administration

He said the TVA is a federal corporation functionally, serving seven surrounding states directly and 22 additinnal states in the agricultural field.

THE TVA has built 19 large dams, bought some, and controls five others so that there is a total of 29 dams on the Tennessee River and its tributaries—there is another one still under construction, according to the board chairman.

Speaking of the vast power system of the project, he said 80,000 square miles are now served by its electricity "TVA is now engaged in the largest construction period of its history. In the next three years it will more than double its power system," he predicted

HE DESCRIBED the greatly increased navigation on the Tennessee River between the Middlewest and the Southeast, and mentioned the million acres in the Valley made more productive by phosphate fertilizers and addition of lime

"Essentially, TVA attempts to enlist enlightened interest for a better economic structure in the use of natural resources," Clapp said.

The concert will be in the Leon High School Auditorium in an evening performance at 8:15 and a matinee at 3 30 Students may obtain tickets at no charge upon presentation of coupon Number Six from the activity book at the Public Relations Office, first floor Longmire

FOUNDED in 1885 as the Promenade Concerts, and still known as the Boston Promenade Orchestra in Europe, where it is the largest record-seller among American orchestras, the Boston Pops and its conductor Arthur Fiedler have created a national reputation for their sprightly programs.

Comprised of semi-classical music, Strauss waltzes, marches and the latest song hits, these programs, next to the famous Boston baked beans are probably the city's most popular export. The Boston Pops' many best-selling RCA Victor records also have given it a national reputation which is high ranking.

THE FACT that the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra is, for the first time, appearing in 60 cities is as unique as the musical stature it has earned through concerts, records and radio. Commencing Jan 20 in Troy, N. Y. and ending March 28 in Syracuse, the tour will take the orchestra as far south as this state, west to Texas and Oklahoma and north Wisconsin and Michigan.

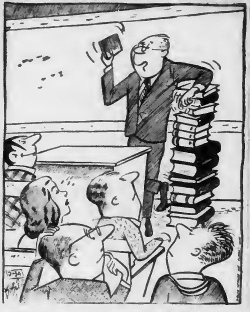
LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler



"This'll be the text for the undergraduates taking this course, but I'll expect a little more work from those enrolled for graduate credit."

● LET US GROW UP

The joy which prevailed in many corners of the campus over the Senate's recent creation of a Secretary of Labor positioni n the UGA cahinet was premature. Thc Faculty Committee on Student Affairs vetoed the measure Wednesday afternoon. Poof, presto and ka-put! Like so many othera, it is no more.

Many of the student senatora had a feeling that the Secretary of Labor bill would not pass the Faculty Committee, but believing their cause to be a just one, they had gone ahead with crossed fingera and pusbed hard for the bill. This in itself is a step forward, since so often the Senate's code is hands-off all legislation opposed hy the administration.

This defeatist attitude on the part of the Senate is easily understood, however. They know from long experience that when the administration opposes a measure, said measure is a lost cause from beginnng to end. Still the senators like to stand up on their hind legs once in a while and pretend that they are directing the show.

The fact is that the student sovernment bas no inberent rights. Any powers that they have are only what the administration is kind enough to give them. The sovereignty rests with the administration and the UGA is solely a branch or a tool of the administration. This is not the way the majority of the students would like to picture their government, but facts are facts until someone changes them.

Evidently the administration is in favor of retaining the status quo. They don't believe that the students on this campus are capable of guiding their own destinies. The situation aa it is now is ideal for the inhabitants of Westcott's ivory towers. They have complete control over the welfare of their cbildren, while the students have the semblance of a governmental machine with which to amuse themselves. The little bit of student government there is also serves to take care of certain details of administration which the administration itself would have to attend to otherwise.

Although a few students have seriously questioned the motives of the administration, most will agree that said body has the best interests of the student body in mind. The fly in the ointment is that the administration's idea of what is best for the students is not necessarily the same as that of tbe students tbemselves.

Would it not be wiser in the long run to give the students at FSU a cbance to develop themselves, rather than to continually coddle them and attempt to shield them from life's every stress and strain? A college graduate should be as prepared as possible to meet the many difficulties of life. Such preparation is almost impossible to attain here at FSU where we are perpetually treated as though we are little children.

How can the students here be expected to act like mature adults wben they are continually surrounded by this atmospbere of over-protective mother love. Please, dear people on the hill, won't you stand back and let us grow a little?

● INTELLIGENCE NEEDED

I have no religion . . . Someone juat made that statement. It is said by every age, race, and walk-of-life; every week, every day, every hour. You, or the person that sat next to you in your last class, might have just said it. Yet, everyone of these people is wrong.

Everyone has a religion. Everyone has to have a religion. It is that driving force, that extra push, that gives us the will and power to strive for our ultimate purpose in life. Without it, there is no life. Intellect alone can not furnish the will to survive. A faith in some cause, or a devotion to some ideal, is an ahsolute necessity to human beins.

This faith or devotion constitutes many forms, depending on the ideal set forth. The Primitives of years gone hy were devoted to idols. We now wonder how they could have been so silly as to sacrifice their very lives and souls to such outlandish images Yet idol worabip is not outmoded even today. Human lives are being sacrificed at this very minute for some inconsequential cause.

Yes, we have graduated from the worship of carved figures and jewel encrusted gods to the worship of even more grotesque symbols. "How can this be?" you say. "We are a cultured, civilized people. Other countriea might practice such worship hut not the good old United States. Why, our American Democracy is proof of this." But you are wrong. People all over the world are devoted fanatics to money, power, and self.

Of tthese symbols, money is probahly the most common. During these times, men of our own country have sold its secrets; the newspapers have daily reported investigations being carired on for political graft; U. S. manufacturers have sold munitions to alien nations. . . . And all of this, for the little idol of green paper.

Power and self, other such idols, are almost synonymous. Examples of this worship are seen in everyday life; in Communistic movements and in the fulfillment of selfish desires.

To what does this misplaced devotion lead? Defeated nations, corrupt governments, and ultimately, the loss of faith, after it is too late to change, are resultant.

These disastrous consequences must be avoided.

Let us, this Intelligent Faith Week listen and talk to these religious leaders who have seen the tragic outcome of unintelligent faith. Their experiences can help us to form a basis for an intelligent answer to the vital question: "What is your faith and where does it lead?"

SITTIN' ON THE SIDELINES

BOOK SNATCHERS INCONVENIENCE OTHERS

By MARCIA MORRIS

There is a vandal on campus! He has long arms, a hazy knowledge of the Honor System, and absolutely no consideration for his fellow solicitors of higher learning. He is either very cagey or very absent minded. But whatever else he may be, he is not humorous—at least not to me and other poor ID card faithfuls like me. His antics are even less humorous wben I trudge up to the Librarian's desk with guilty look and crimson face and invest my last fifty cents in an overdue volume. In fact, our friend the BOOK SNATCHER is just plain annoying. He gets his material free.

However, he has gumption. And he must be pretty smart, else he never could hava devised this whole business in the first place. Yet, he isn't intelligent enough to realize the consequences his deeds will have. If this keeps up, the rest of us will hava to suffer; and if this nervy gent or lass ever gets caught, it will require a big dose of ingenuity to smooth over several very ruffled feelings. There are those who have their dander up.

Yep, quite a bit of comment has rounded the campus—and not just lately. So many books have been found missing from the library shelves that students will soon find it difficult to do their parallel reading Searches are made, notices are sent—no answer. Then one day the books just appear, cards still in them, never having been checked out. Evidently the books jogged, walked, trotted, sneaked, or just plain ran right by the desk. Sometimes they don't reappear. Books are expensive and there is no way of tracing.

Florida State is exceptional in the fact that open stacks are maintained for browsing. At other large colleges and universities, students are not allowed near the books. They write an unfamiliar name on a scrap of paper and the Libarian waltzes back with some grimy volume. Not intresting? Tough! Language way above your head? Too, bad!

Indeed it will be a sad day when history prodigies can't whiz through the shelves measuring the size of the print, the size of the page, and the amount of space at the top, bottom, and between the lines. When that day comes we shall be mortally wounded! One of these fine days when the stacks are closed, and you wind up with a thousand page book measuring eight and one half by eleven with a print of magnifying glass caliber—then, my friends, perhaps you will muse upon the problem of the BOOK SNATCHER.

Things will certainly be a fine kettle of fish if our little man with the "gimmie" fingers and the "gee, I forgot mind" is still around when our new dream of a library is viewed across the Landis Green. Think of it! Several millions invested in a fabulous building with beautifully bound books and then — whoops! Empty shelves

Granted this sounds a mite exaggerated. Perhaps it is—now. But the habit on this campus has always been bad and recently it has become worse! If students wis hto keep their freedom in the library, then we had better see what we can do to lick this thing. We fuss because we have to show ID cards in order to check out books; but we brought it on ourselves.

This, then, is my gripe for the week. Those with whom failure to go through the proper procedure in checking out books has been a slip up—please REMEMBER from now on. To those who just didn't have the time, the ID card, nor the honor to care—please REFORM! To those (like me) who have stacks numbering six books-each over due—run write paps for more allowance. Then please get 'em back. Pronto!

Touch of Modernism Added To '53 Sandspur Production

By JUNE MORGAN
Feature Editor

"WANTED—an audience with imagination, patrons of the modern arts, dreamers of the universe" would be a good ballyhoo line for the 1953 Sandspur production, Heaven Forbid.

Everything about Heven Forbid is modern, unusual imaginative, stylized, and simply presented, so will especially appeal to people of the aforementioned tastes.

HELEN'S ERICKSON'S set designs are simple, functional, and stylized, leaving much up to the imagination. It took a major production catastrophe to teach the neophyte stage crew of the importance of few uncomplicated props and small, easily handled scenery. First designs for Heaven Forbid were for a fabulous space palace and the technically authentic interior of a space ship. Production costs and time problems threatened to stymie the crew and to top it all off, the first completed construction for the space ship was condemned for being unsafe.

Ingenuity and imagination of the crew resulted in a new space ship that is nothing more than a half wall trimmed with a pointed nose, instrument panel, and a mobile made from wire coat hangers

ANOTHER setting used for Heaven Forbid consists of a stylized dias on one side of the stage with the banner "Club Venu". On the other side of the stage, cast members cluster around a barbecue spit. Modern furniture completes the irrational setting for the second act.

In an attempt to hold down production costs, wily Sara Howard, Sandspur costume designer, created exciting black and white dance costumes that would make a theatrical Fath or Balenciage set take notice. She has created skin-tight short black suits with flashing white-sequined lapels, and has modified the costumes to be outstanding for three dance numbers. The short suits are modified first, by the addition of knee-length black and white slit skirts, and later by, gauzy short skirts of white tulle and sequins.

THE FINALE of Heaven Forbid features five girls in Ziegfield tradition, garbed in fantastic costumes with gigantic headdresses as they appear as the Elements. These and similar expensive costumes for the production were hired from a theatrical costuming agency

Strictly on the modern side are the compositions of Les Bruch, that make up the background of the musical. Songs like "Here Today and Gone Tomorrow" and the title song "Heaven Forbid" are so singable as to take their place among current favorites from local juke boxes Lyrics for the music were created by Beatrice Lambert.

FRANCE STOKES director of choreography for Heaven Forbid created and supervised the show's unusual routines of modern ballet.

Just after recuperating from a broken ankle that occurred in a fall during Gymkana rehearsals last semester, Frances began listening to Les Bruch's music for Sandspur and creating the dance steps for the show. She assisted in selecting the 14 dancers who appear and has steadily coached them. Daily rehearsals would usually be steady grinds of practicing, changing, and reprecticing from 1 to 10 p.m The final dance was completed just four days before the show when Frances received the music

ALSO AN accommplished skating star, Frances wears the same solo costume in her Sandspur numbers that she wore for the National Skating Competition she appeared in last year.

Some unusual effects have been added to the dance routines this year according to Frances Entrances from the aisles and tumbling acts give the choreography of Heaven Forbid, extra appeal

OTHER SOLOISTS beside Frances Stokes are Barbara Vickers, Patsy Cooper and Kent Heberling

'Friends' Society Offers Summer Work to Students

College students interested in working and willing to do hard work are needed for summer jobs offered by the American Friends Service Committee.

Units composed of approximately ten to fifteen students each are needed at institutions, among them the Institute for Mental Health, Independence, Iowa, and at Clinton Farms Reformatory for Women Clinton, New Jersey.

IN THE MENTAL hospital, unit members serve as ward attendants, and in correctional institutions as college matrons. In both positions, they are regularly employed personnel, earning the same salary and assigned the same duties and responsibilities as other employees of similar status.

College students are used to fill a need for personnel. Students who work on these units increase their insight, experience and knowledge so that they might be interested in the cure and prevention of ills in society.

HELEN HAMILTON a sophomore from Jacksonville, was on one of the IUS units last summer, working from June to September 1 Helen, who is majoring in Psychology and Social Work was one of nine members of a unit composed of students from all over the United States This unit was sent to East Moline State Hospitel, East Moline Illinois.

Besides Helen, there were students from Dartmouth Washington State, Wilmington, Ohio, Augustonia Rock Island Decatur, Millican and two from Obalon.

EARNINGS ARE room and board plus one hundred dollars a month. Of this hundred dollars, ten per cent is taken out the first two months and five per cent the third month to further the work of the American Friends Service Committee.

Girls were housed in a nursing home and properly chaperoned, boys were housed in a dormitory provided at the hospital for male attendants.

THEIR SERVICES consisted of helping in madication under supervision, serving meals, helping patients with exercise, surgical dressings and other forms of work "The work was hard," commented Helen, "but, we didn't have to scrub floors or any such thing."

Although there were three shifts, student employees were only required to work on two of them They alternated weekly in the 7 to 3 p m. shift and the 3 p m to 11 p m shift

ACCORDING TO Helen, the service units offer wonderful opportunities for group activities Besides their own group, they had contact with college students working at the same hospital and all hospital staff activities included them

"We had numerous parties and even attended a Summer Theater Program. The groups of kids are fine, really wonderful, and interested in their work We had a spiritual life there too Each of us conducted services of our own faith, and we had quite a representation of religions in our groups One of the girls' fathers was a buddhist priest "

THIS YEAR, the work offered at the Mental Institute includes laboratory and clerical work Members may also help with the craft and recreational therapy programs of the hospital

At the Clinton Farms, there are imprisoned girls of 18 years or over There are thirty to seventy children there under two years of age The farm operates under the honor system and has neither barred windows, locked doors nor high walls.

Helen plans to work on Work Camps and Community Service Units this summer, if not, she will return to work for the ISU

STUDENTS INTERESTED in this type of job may contact Institutional Service Units, American Friends Service Committee 20 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia 7 Pennsylvania

In addition to the ISU Program, the Service Committee also sponsors five youth service projects, Work Camps in the United States, Quaker International Voluntary Service (Overseas) Community Service Units in Mexico, International Student Seminars and Interneships in Industry and Community Service

The SPORTS Line

By JIM EADY.

A man who is a member of that rapidly growing "fraternity" of ex-college football coaches gave a few reasons why he is one of said group. The man is Dr. Don Veller and his reasons are many, but in particular, one gathers from his attitude that health and peace of mind and increasing pressure were what really made him vacate the head coaching job at FSU.

Veller made these revelations in an informal talk at the Graduate Club luncheon, yesterday attended by about 60 intent listeners. Actually, when he quit he indicated why he had taken tha action, but yesterday Mr. Veller went into the subject deeper. He threw additional light on his motives. But the former head mentor did not limit his talk to just his own particular plight. He also delved into the subject of recruiting, alumnae pressure and other evils which plague college football . . . though not insinuating such evils exist at Florida State.

BEFORE LAUNCHING into the more serious matters, mentioned above, Dr. Veller injected a little humor into his talk. Speaking aboot the eccentricities football coaches are supposed to exhibit, he related the story of the coach who gave a talk at Chattahoochee Mental Hospital. After he was finished one af the inmates came up to him and said:

"My that was a wooderful speech . . . all of us certainly enjoyed it."

With this, the coach threw out his chest and asked with an air of complete satisfaction:

"Well that's fine . . . tell me, why do you think it was so good?"

"Well" replied the inmates. "We just feel that you are one of us."

THEN, VELLER moved on to the subject of unemployed coaches with the anecdote about the one who was fired because he couldn't produce a winning team. Out of a job, this unfortunate fellow searched the want-ads for another. But he was unsuccessful. Finally he saw an article telling that the pet monkey of the zoo had died. Seeing his chanoe for employment he went to the zoo keeper and talked him into latting him put on a monkey suit and replace the deceased monkey. In his first day in the cage the now-employed coach, trying to appear as a true monkey, jumped around, swung from the ceiling and finally, in his exuberance, leaped over the partition into the adjoining cage.

The occupant was a ferocious-looking lion. The ex-coach of course, yelled and screamed with fright and tried to escape the lion. However, the beast remained undisturbed and said:

"Don't run you idiot; you're not the only coach out of a job."

FIRST COMMENTING that "it would take six or sevan days to give all the reasons why I quit and the pit-falls a coach encounters," Veller tried to da it in half an hour. He was quite successful.

Before he actually resigned, Veller related, he looked at tha careers of many of the country's top coaches.

"I tried to put myself in the place of the coaches who had at one time been successful but then had failed to coma through and so had lost their jobs. Carl Snavely, former coach at North Carolina, for instance, who as a coach for some 25 years had the respect of all connected with the game. But when his team did not fare so well, he had to quit under heavy alumnae pressure."

Incidentally, after Snavely resigned last fall, he blasted college alumnae groups which cause the coach so much grief.

On this subject Veller philosopied: "There's no real alumnae pressure at FSU now but the situation could change in ten or 15 years."

ANOTHER COACH, Veller related, who fell before the pressure from the old grads was Bernie Bierman of Minnesota (formerly).

"Back in the thirties when he had some great teams everybody loved him . . . ha could have gotten the presidency of the school, but then his team started to lose too much so he was finally kicked out. Bierman, then applied for the office of Director of Athletics at Minnesota, but he was held in so little regard that he was refused the job."

"And this has happened to many other coaches," Veller said.

So to prevent this sort of thing from ever happening to him Valler resigned. Other things of course, entered into his decision, such as health.

"Taka Frank Thomas, for instnaec, who developed so many Rose Bowl teams at Alabama. I have heard that friends can hardly recognize him, he looks so thin and haggard, or Nobe Kaiser, who coached at Purdue when I was in college . . . he became a physical wreck and died when he was about 35," Veller related.

IN REGARDS to his awn health, the soft spoken Veller, coinfessed that "I couldn't sleep the night before the game or the next two nights after . . . whether we won the game or nat. The anly solution to the problem was to quit."

Present day recruiting came under attack during the talk as Veller called it "the worst part of tha game today." The big schools, especially those in the Southeastern Conference and the Southern Conference give four year scholarships and other booty to lure in all the top high school talent . . . more talent than the school can usually use. But they are given scholarships anyway to maka sure they don't go to another, rival, institution.

This practice, Veller said, defintiely hurts tha smaller schools since the "demand is greater than the supply for good football players. Many get scholarships who are 'punks' or inferior" for competition against FSU's opponents.

All this might lead you to think thet Veller has lost all love for the game. However, this certainly isn't tha case as he said "I still think it is a wonderful game." And it must be when you think of the millions of people who watch football every fall. But it's hoped that the evils which made Veller and his many comrades quit the coaching profession are eliminated. If they aren't football will cease to be the "wonderful game" it is now.

Nina members of Michigan State's undefeated football team appeared in five post-season bowl games throughout the U. S. and Hawaii.

Against Lovola the Tribe will attempt to square accounts for a 72-66 early season loss to Loyola and also will attempt to hit the .500 mark for the season. FSU has won eight, lost nine to date.

After dropping three games to Rollins, Memonis State, and Arkansas State on the road two weeks ago, the Tribe returned homa last week and enjoyed its best week of the campaign. FSU downd three state rivals in a period of five days, tripping Stetson, 76-66, defeating Florida Southern, 79-77, and closed out the week with an impressive 83-74 triumph over Tampa.

The about-face by the Tribe could be attributed for the most part to the fine play of forward Jerry Westhafer After a slow start this season Westhafer got into high gear here last week to score 27 points against Stetson, 29 against Florida Southern, and 17 against Tampa

In addition to Westhafer's showing, the rebound and defensive play of Freshman Center Gary Wold, a 6-8 performer, was a highlight.

The three wins last week kept Florida State hopes alive for a bid to the District 25 NAIA tournament.

Since San Jose State started football in 1896. the Spartans have had 36 captains Only one was a quarterback.

Joe Black of the Dodgers needed 154 innings, or eight more than he pitched, to lead the National League officially in least earned runs last year His ERA was 2.15. Giant Hoyt Wilheim led the league with 2.43 based on 159 innings.

March 10 Set As Blood Drive

"Give the Blood Day" has been set aside for Tuesday, March 10, according to an announcement from Dean of Men, Otis McBride. Students, faculty and staff will be asked to contribute.

Dean McBride has set up a calendar in his office indicating five minute intervals from 8:30 a.m. on into the afternoon. Those who wish to donate blood should call and make an appointment.

THE LEON COUNTY Blood Bank has said that if the Faculty Blood Bank keeps its deposit above 25 pints, citizens will be allowed to use blood on a one for one replacement basis In the past, the blood bank operation has been that each pint used must be replaced by two pints because of expense and other such factors.

This made a difficult situation, said the Bank, as if 20 pints were on deposit and four were used, eight donors had to be secured to get back to the original 20

THE BLOOD BANK now has the necessary 25 pints to place it on a one for one basis "It would be extremely foolish to tap that reserve, and replace it on a two for one basis, since we have this other opportunity" said McBride The student blood bank is in the same situation, he said.

One hundred or 75 people will be needed for donations. Appointments will be scheduled for two for every five minutes. The Blood Bank will bring the equipment and nurses to handle that situation rapidly, and there will be enough Infirmary beds, said McBride.

Foreign-born students are especially welcome to this informal discussion of world problems announced Miss Ray Warner, director of Broward Hall. The leader will be introduced by a student of FSU

"We expect to be challenged by some constructive questions and constructive thinking" Miss Warner added. The meeting is open to both men and women.

Religious Leaders Assemble Here Bringing Students Intelligent Faith

Threats to World Peace And Religious Impacts Discussed

Religious leaders from all parts of the world gathered in Tallahassee Sunday to lead the students toward the goal of Intelligent Faith.

The faculty members and students of FSU will have the opportunity of exchanging ideas with several Intelligent Faith Week guests—Wednesday night in the Opperman Music Hall.

In the place of the originally planned program, there will be a panel discussion on: "What can we do to avoid World War III?" The panel is scheduled from 7:30 until 9:30 tomorrow evening. Dr. George Lamsa will discuss the Arab-Jewish Question: Dr. Giza Soos, The Eastern-Western Crisis in Europe; Dr. Samuel Maqbul-Wasih, The Crisis in India.

Dr. Ray Phillips, Crisis in South Africa; Dr. Horace Ryburn, South East Asia (with particular emphasis on Indo-China); and Dr. Frank Cooley, China, Formosa, Korea and Japan. Each speaker plans to summarize the issue as he has seen it from his part of the world. Following the summations, the panel will be opened for questions.

Since the problem discussed is one of common concern, there will, no doubt, be a number of constructive questions raised.

Monday, many classroom rostrums became the voice of Intelligent Faith Week. Dr. Giza Soos was yesterday's guest speaker in Philosophy 228. Dr. Soos, who has led a Christian resistance movement against Nazism and Communism, emphasized the importance of searching for the truths in religion

He said that many Christians who are seemingly tolerant of other religions are actually "indifferent," so if all the ways of truth are checked with an intellectual, objective mind, one cannot remain indifferent to the threats of atheistic movements. He stressed that the "nominal" Christian is an ally to Communism—a tool in its workshop. Dr. Soos urged "When you find the truth, be faithful to it!" He has found these truths in the Christian faith—love freedom, and mission Various religions may lack one or more of these characteristics, but in the New Testament of the Bible are found all three.

Throughout Intelligent Faith Week, classroom visits will continue. These meetings, however,

Air Cadet Team Will Visit FSU February 25-26

An Air Force Aviation Cadet Selection Team from Moody Air Force Base, Georgia, headed by Major Ben Nelson, will visit Florida State University on Wednesday and Thursday, February 25 and 26. The purpose of the team's visit will be to discuss Aviation Cadet Pilot and Observer Training with college men interested in a career in aviation.

Major Nelson states that the team is in no way connected with recruiting but is here merely to disseminate information and accept applications from students who wish to take the Air Force mental and physical examinations to determine if they are qualified.

Due to the expansion of the Air Force to 143 Wings and the necessity for additional trained fliers and rated officers, an excellent opportunity currently exists for qualified young men.

Major Nelson says the team will be located on the main floor of Westcott, near the front entrance, and will welcome any questions concerning the program

Campus Political Parties Are Subject For Forums Program

"Campus Political Parties: Are they the answer?" will be the UGA Forums program for Wednesday at 8 p.m. over WFSU.

Expressing their opinions pro and con concerning the organization, effectiveness and value of a party system in University Government will be Jim Ball, former president of Omicron Delta Kappa, and now a graduate student; Gene Lawyer, Sophomore senator; Tom Woods, Freshman varsity debater, June Conyers, vice-president of UGA in charge of women's affairs, and Milton Carothers, vice-president in charge of legislative affairs

THE CHOICE of this topic for discussion and debate on the UGA's "Town meeting of the air" has resulted from recent interest stirred up by Terrel Sessums, president of the University of Florida's student government, who visited this campus over the weekend and gave a group of students information on how the party system works at Florida.

With the onset of government elections in the spring, the topic of campus political parties which has been discussed for several years past, is once more the subject of debate among aspiring candidates for office and others interested in campus politics.

FOR TOMORROW night's forum the discussion has been broken down to three main areas: (1) what's wrong with the state of university government that would be corrected by a party system of elections? (2) what are the difficulties of organizing and financing a party, or two or more parties? (3) What advantages and or disadvantages does a party system of government have to offer the students?

If students' interest indicates a continuation of the topic, tomorrow's forum will serve as an introductory one, and different phases of the question will be discussed in future forums, with different speakers each time to get a more accurate representation of student opinion. For this reason the forums committee would like for students interested in getting certain views aired to contact Jan Arbogast, forums chairman, or call WFSU, make those views known and suggest speakers to represent those opinions on subsequent forums.

Running Gives Piano Recital

Faculty Series Sets Program Friday Night

Joseph M. Running, instructor in piano, will present a faculty piano recital in the Opperman Music Hall next Friday evening, Feb. 27, at 8:15 p.m. The program will be the tenth of this year's Faculty Recital Series, and will be open to the public without charge.

Running is an American concert pianist who has distinguished himself in two separate fields of music, as a concert pianist and choral director. He graduated from St Olaf College in Norfield, Minn., where his student career as a piano major and member of the famed St. Olaf Lutheran Choir foreshadowed the two routes his professional career was to take.

As a concert pianist, he went on to study at the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music, where he was a pupil of Olga Samaroff-Stokowsky and Paul Nordorff. He has appeared in concertos and recitals in ten mid-Western and Western states and throughout the South.

Running has been a choral director at St. Olaf College, at San Jose (Calif) State College, and at Stanford University. He is presently director of the nationally famous Women's Glee Club at WFU, and choral director at St. John's Episcopal Church here.

Besides his extensive concert activities in the U. S., Running has presented piano recitals in Japan, where he was an interpreter with the U. S. Army of Occupation. He has appeared in Tokyo, Kyota, Hiroshima and other Japanese cities.

U. G. A. Cabinet Discusses Plan For Male Cheerleaders

Male cheerleaders may join the ranks of Florida State fans when football time comes around again.

In the last University Government Association Cabinet meeting Bob Ducker, secretary of elections, reported that Omicron Delta Kappa, service honorary, had studied the possibility of adding male cheerleaders and had come up with a few suggestions. Ducker is also a member of ODK.

HE SAID the organization thought the logical groups to handle the project would be the two P clubs Men's P Club, he said, also is looking for a worthwhile project to undertake

Former football coach, Don Veller was suggested as the faculty member to support the project, and the money might be gotten from the University Recreation Association, since they have a large budget, said Ducker

THE CABINET members decided to let ODK keep the project since the student poll showed that a tremendous majority of the student body is in favor of the male cheerleaders. Ducker was appointed Secretary of Research since he was in the position to report both to ODK and the Cabinet.

Bill Petry, Secretary of Recreation, reported that he is compiling a pamphlet composed of five sections: (1) places and facilities available for student use on campus, (2) bibliography of books on party games to be found in the library, (3) party themes and organization of party picnics, (4) procedure for planning parties, and (5) all regulations and requirements governing parties. A committee appointed by Petry is now studying a way to limit the number of organizational meetings and parties planned at one, or conflicting times.

PRES. MARY Ruth Summers led the Cabinet in a discussion of UGA Week, which will be the week of April 13. The purpose of UGA Week is to inform the student body of the various offices and the duties connected with each in order that the candidates can choose the office they would like to run for.

The Cabinet also decided that the actual election should be held on a Monday, Wednesday or Friday, as the members felt there would be a 50 percent better turnout. The reasoning was that many students do not have any, or few, Tuesday and Thursday classes.

JO NELL Proctor, president of Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary, said that the Student Poll, taken last semester, will have all written comments evaluated by that organization.

The president also informed the Cabinet that the first performance of Circus on April 29, would be given for the Legislature Bill Petry was put in charge of the picnic for the legislatures, and Pres Summers urged all Cabinet members to become acquainted with their representatives in state government during the Spring holidays.

FSU Receives Acceptance By Chem Society

Florida State University is now on the approved list of schools registered with the American Chemical Society.

Announcement that the committee on approvals of the Chemical Society has been greatly impressed with FSU Chemistry Department's progress was made recently by Dr. Doak S. Campbell FSU President

THIS ACCEDITING also permits FSU graduates to become eligible for senior membership in the society within two years after graduation and two years' practical experience in the field.

American Chemical Society approval is granted, according to a release, only after a careful scrutiny of the complete record of a school. This includes the staff and curriculum in chemistry at FSU. Also, a personal representative of the society's committee on professional training visited here.

ACTION ON THE move was stirred in 1950 when Dr. Karl Dittmer, head of FSU Chemistry Department, felt the department was ready for a visit by the Chemical Society. According to the records, however, the invitation was delayed in order to observe a ruling made by the National Commission on Accrediting that no further visitations could be had until January, 1951.

Renewal of accrediting activities by this association spurred on a visit last Fall to FSU, resulting in the recent acceptance.

Dr. Rider Speaks In Library Series Thursday Evening

Dr. Fremont Rider will be the fourth speaker in a series of lectures by outstanding librarians sponsored by the Library School. He will speak Thursday evening at 7.30 in the Science Lecture Hall. The public is invited

Dr. Rider is widely known among librarians for his revolutionary ideas regarding microcards, small cards containing photographed pages of books greatly reduced in size. He has proposed that the space problem which now confronts large research libraries may now be solved by the use of microcards.

The subject of Dr. Rider's address will be "Microcards to Date"

Dr Rider is known also as an outstanding university librarian and author. His biography of Melvil Dewey, a pioneer in book classification, is one of his most highly praised works In another book, "The Great Dilemma of World Organization," he has presented his argument that representation to such a world organization as the United Nations should be based on level of education attained rather than size of population.

In the field of librarianship, his major contribution has been "The Scholar and the Future of the Research Library" in which he presents his arguments favoring the use of microcards.

FSU International House Sought By Student to Promote Society

(Editor's Note: The following article was written by a student at Florida State University from Egypt.)

By EZZAT YOUNATHAN

The rapid evolution of the international relations and scientific progress during the last decade emerged into an important conception, namely the indispensible need for a world order. This idea, which was the happy dream of philosophers for many ages, is rapidly becoming a necessity if our modern civilization is to survive.

Our generation is witnessing a major transition in the patterns of life that has to be met with a similar transition in our attitudes. Moving toward a "Free World Society" is one of the most comprehensive ideas ever conceived by man. However, it is a serious mistake to think that this problem is the main concern of statesmen alone. In fact it is too large to fall within the capacity of one group of people. This task toward Free World Society is the job of every person in every country.

During this week of Intelligent Faith, when we try to explore our beliefs, let us all think of our responsibilities toward this universal aim. Whatever our religions, nationalities, or beliefs may be, we all can adopt one faith, that by tolerance, good-will and understanding, we can undertake our share of this common responsibility.

The goal we seek has a number of diverse but inter-related approaches. Two of these seem to be of particular importance: Adapting our large-scale international face-to-face relations.

Education was once defined as the process of training the individual to be a good citizen. This definition will no longer be valid unless we mean by "citizen" the "world citizen." The establishment and progress of the World Society are determined in the minds and hearts of men, and it is the responsibility of educators to initiate these intellectual and emotional developments in the individual.

The educational programs in all nations have to be modified to meet this urgent need. Compulsory courses about the United Nations and various aspects of international cooperation must be arranged at various levels of education to stampt out "international illiteracy" among children, youth and adults. In the coming few years, it will be no longer conceivable to grant any academic degree to a person not familiar with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights or the Charter of the United Nations.

The important consideration as Dr. S. Everett puts it, is that, "We have to move as rapidly as possible in the direction of international understanding, world citizenship, and a World Society. Anything less than this, is not only doing disservice to students of our day, but also to the generations to come."

Besides education, face-to-face international relataions play an equally important role. This approach includes exchanging students and teachers, team work in international camps, studying together in international seminars and world conferences, study tours, etc. I can hardly overstress the effect of these contacts upon internationalizing the attitudes of the participants. Those who have taken part in any of these international activities, share with me the belief that in such communities, differences of background and nationality rapidly become as naught. Face-to-face relations combined with working together at common tasks, is the most promising approach for building attitudes favorable to a World Society.

Realizing that these interactions do not work except within the frame of a community or group life, I express the need of establishing an "International House" on our campus. Three of these houses have been established in New York, Chicago and San Francisco, and their success is beyond dispute.

However I do not ask for similar expensive houses, in fact we can start the project on an experimental basis, with no expenses at all, by housing together all men-foreign students with an equal number of American students in one of our men's dormitories. With the present number of foreign students, Magnolia Hall or Senior Hall would serve the purpose. To gain highest benefit, the American residents can be replaced each year to give a chance for others to participate in the program.

The project is not intended by any means to segregate the foreign students but rather to gather them with the American students in one building. Besides, this house would serve as a center for the various activities of the International Students Club which was organized on our campus this year.

In this unique community the participants would develop a sense of international responsibility and a real feeling for other cultures. He would gain the knowledge necessary to grow as a member of the world community, and on the whole, he would build up a new attitude that can never be created elsewhere. Such students are the key persons through whom we expect to direct the thinking of the public toward a free world society.

Not only do we anticipate the establishment of this house on our campus, but we long for the day when we will see a similar one on each campus in the United States, hoping that this system will finally develop into an integrated world-wide federataion of international students.

Such centers, if properly managed, would render to humanity a service not less than that offered by the United Nations itself. The project, however needs years of courageous work, but any effort in this direction will never be in vain.

During this week of Intelligent Faith, may God grant us all a true feeling that we belong to a world-wide family, working together toward the same end, the realization of love on earth.

Letters to the Editor

Praises NSA

Ohio State University

Dear Sir:

I am writing this letter at the request of my friend, Jack Cookston, who is Prisedent of our Student Senate. He asked me to give the fraternity system's view on NSA.

Originally I was one of the opponents of NSA. My opposition was based on my misinformed ideas regarding NSA and their stand on fraternities. When I realized the formation of NSA, its ideals and its acceptance as the voice of the College student, I became interested enough to delve deep into the problem. My findings were very different than I expected to find and very gratifying.

The policy set up by NSA on fraternities was meraly part of the Policy Declaration which are

In other words, it mean that of the delegates at the last Con- not binding on member schools. gress the majority felt this way.

If this stand is to be accepted as the voice of the student then the job is to review this voice by adding friendly voices to it. By having strong fraternity schools, such as yours and ours with this issue as a crux, join and attempt to put across our point we will soon change this misconception. Add this thought to the values known to be associated with NSA and you soon see why I and the fraternity system here backed our reentry into NSA.

As for the Students For America, I met the group first at the National Interfraternity Conference at New York this fall and needless to say feel their group to be questionable and objectionable. This feeling prevailed in almost every mind there as the question and answer period showed. Suffice it to say that I left NIC with a more concrete sense of faith and interest in NSA.

Believe It Or Not

U. S. Teacher Tells Story

When an American succeeded in teaching in a Tokyo college all during World War II she lived a story that sounds like something out of the late Robert Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" strip.

But that in a nutshell sums up the experience of American born Mrs. Marguerite Iwamoto who insists the Japanese people are as friendly as they profess to be to Americans.

IN FACT Mrs. Iwamoto states that the "Japanese were as shocked by Pearl Harbor as were Americans. She returns again to Japan upon completion of her scholarship studies at Florida State University.

Speaking with authority as an American teacher who lived in Tokyo from March 1925 through September 1952, Mrs. Iwamoto states that "The United States army occupation after the war, nor the destruction of the atom bomb did not change the genuine liking of Japanese for Americans."

SHE EXPLAINED that the Japanese have never forgotten America opened Japan to the modern world. She referred to Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry's mission in 1953 which resulted in establishing trade relations between the United States and Japan.

"The Black Ship Festival was celebrated annually at Shimoda, where Perry's naval squadron anchored during treaty negotiations for over half a century before World War II. That the festival has been revived since the war, is still commemorated, is proof of Japan's lasting gratefulness to America," she pointed out.

HER HUSBAND, Masahito Iwamoto, who belongs to an old Japanese family, because an adviser of the naval attache's office in the American Embassy 12 years before the war. He has recently moved back into his old post in the rebuilt Embassy proper where he is working on a strategic bombing survey in the counter intelligence division, also as court interpreter for the International Military Tribunal of the Far East.

Mrs. Iwamoto taught from 1927 to 1946 at the Union Mission College, Tokyo. The college was never bombed although it was damaged by machine guns. Raids were usually anticipated and time of classes shifted accordingly. "No matter how the war ends, you will need English," she told her students

THE AMERICAN teacher was treated with the greatest kindness all during World War II, she said. She was never once slighted or made to feel uncomfortable as an enemy alien.

Since 1946 Mrs. Iwamoto has taught in one of Tokyo's oldest universities of literature and science, now called the University of Education. She teaches a general humanities course, all classes conducted in English.

LAST SUMMER when she was offered a scholarship from FSU through efforts of a school friend she wanted to take advantage of it, but did not want to leave her family. When her husband said "Go," she came.

Mrs. Iwamoto received an official leave of absence from the Japanese Department of Education which continues her salary. The main purpose of her visit is "to take modern America back to Japan." She is delighted with the many new gadgets she finds in this America she had not seen since 1924 also with classes at FSU.

AS A PARTING gift to Florida State University she presented two of her prized books to the university library, an eighth century "Anthology of Japanese Poetry" and Lafcadio Hearn's "History of English Literature" with American notes.

The Iwamoto's have only a daughter, Mari-Ko, who made an American debut in 1950 at Town Hall in New York.

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE—The neat-looking little ite-framed cottage with dark green shutters at 850 st Tenth Street in Tallahassee was no different than st homesteads.

There was the usual yard paraphernalia such as grass, wers, trees, chairs and all the finery a guy dreams of oving when, at the age of 80, he finally has collected ugh sheckles to own his own.

But things were quite different when your reporter, an errand last week, climbed the steps, pressed the zer and was ushered into that peaceful-looking Tenth eet domicile.

It was like waltzing out of a library into a Normandy asion.

Seven—A Natural

For on the inside were the seven (count 'em) members the Tom Nugent family.

Before we could get used to the storm after the calm, had met Mr. Nugent, who everyone knows as FSU's head football instructor; Mrs. Peg Nugent, and the e little Nugents.

We came to know the little ones as Patty ("Call me ty-Watty"), aged two; T. D. (for Terrence Daniel), d four; Peggy, aged six; Kerry, aged eight, and Tommy, eldest at nine.

You think Dagwood and Blondie have their sad mo- ts?"

Peg Nugent was trying to round up all the little Nu- ts for a family sitting. It seemed that a photographer nted to get a shot of the seven new Florida residents.

An Amoeba, Maybe

Tommy Nugent was more in the mood for finding out what that weird bug was doing on his miniature roscope. Patty-Watty was trying her derndest to find eone in the crowd who had a spare piece of Wrigleys. one did.

Peggy and Kerry were getting a last-minute brush on their hair and T.D. (which also stands for touch- n) was wondering what this sudden intrusion by out- rs was all about.

Mr. Nugent was doing his best to carry on a telephone versation.

We didn't know what to do.

Finally, Peg Nugent, as vivacious and full of life as football-coaching husband, got things under control.

"How would you like for me to baby sit sometime for " someone said.

"You'll be sorry," was Mrs. Nugent's smiling answer.

The Nugent Story

Then the talk turned to football. And Mrs. Nugent ided the story of how she met Mr. Nugent.

"I was writing a chatter column for a weekly news- er in Lawrence, Mass., when I met Tom," Peg began. olumn I was doing was a sort of gossip thing and anything for the intellectuals to mull through on day afternoons after church.

"Well, a mutual friend told me about a football coach was doing a wonderful job with the boys at Essex ining Center nearby. I knew a little about football but enough to think that all football coaches were tough mbres.

"Without giving much thought to the idea, I referred e coach as the local 'Simon Legree' of football. Need- s to say, the coach was Tom Nugent and he was quite et over my statement.

"He called me about it and said he didn't like what d said about him. He went on to say that he didn't t or curse his boys; that he was a gentleman's type h and not the rough-and-tumble kind.

No Walking Stick?

"I still didn't know who the guy was," Mrs. Nugent ated. "He might have been 80 years old with a long, y beard, for all I knew. So I told him to see the editor.

"The next day the coach, still very irked, came by to me. That was the first time I had ever met Tom gent. To make a long story short, my mistake was n forgotten and we started dating. You can guess the ."

A few years and a few football games have gone under bridge since that day the Nugents met in a Massa- setts newspaper office. And now they're in Florida.

"Florida has long been my favorite state," Mrs. Nugent d. "We've been wanting to come here for a long time."

If Mr. Nugent can bring good football to FSU, and re are hundreds who believe he can, there will be a of Seminoles who are glad the Nugents came to Florida.

And with the confidence, spirit and optimism Mr. Nu- t has brought to FSU, most people are already happy Nugents are here.

Nugent Foresees Bright Future for Seminole Gridders As Spring Football Practice Moves Into Third Week

Spring football moved into the third week at Florida State University yesterday as Tom Nugent, the likeable head football coach, began pairing off the Seminoles for the Garnet and Gold clash set for Doak S. Campbell Stadium in early March.

Nugent, who was more than a trifle disappointed after his first gander at the Seminoles on February 10, was feeling more chipper after last week's drills, which ended the first eight days of the NCAA-allotted 20-day spring practice period.

"We have some very good football players, more than I thought we had when practice first opened," Nugent admitted. "Some of our boys, for example, are definitely Southern Conference calibre. The lack of depth in top-flight personnel, however, does frighten me. We still have to recruit 35-40 top players by August to tackle the schedule we have lined up."

SOLID TEAM

Nugent, who resumed work Monday on full scale after giving the boys a two-day break over the holiday, noted, "I am far more optimistic about the future now than I was when practice opened. I believe FSU is going to come up with a solid team in the near future. I just hope that we can get by next Fall without inexperience wrecking us."

Going back again to the new talent that he hopes to land, Nugent said, "I still think we can get some more good boys and the emphasis is on boys from Florida. We definitely are interested first in boys from this state, though we will probably have to supplement them this year with players we can get in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New Jersey, Virginia and the Carolinas."

The former VMI head man, who several times last week praised the spirit and hustle of the squad, repeated yesterday that he was immensely pleased with the attitude of his squad. "They are deadly serious on the field, and we have the earmarks of something good in football at Florida State."

HERE'S BREAKDOWN

"I am confident," Nugent concluded, "that we are going to have a good ball club, but I don't know how soon it will come about. You can say though, that it is definitely in the making."

After eight days of drills here is a breakdown by position and the leading candidates for the jobs this spring:

Right end — letterman tackle Troy Barnes (190) of Chickasaw (Ala.) shifted to the post, leads; Barnes is rated the only real contender at present.

Right tackle — George Boyer (225) of Jacksonville letterman '52 center leads Dan Strickland (215) of Sopchoppy and Ted Williams (190 of Tallahassee, in running.

Right guard — Steve Kalenich (188) of Akron (O) 52 end letterman, battling letterman Don Powell (190) of Birmingham (Ala.

Center—Otis Skinner (200) of Minden (La.) junior college transfer leading but pushed by letterman Boo Crenshaw (175) of Miami, and shifted tackle Bill Mote (230) of Hapeville (Ga.) may be heard from.

Quarterback — Bobby Fiveash (180) letterman from Bainbridge (Ga.) and Harry Massey (185) of Canton (Miss.) waging hot race.

Right half—letterman fullback Stan Dobosz (180) of East Chicago (Ind.) leads, newcomer Carl Grenn (160) of Brookhaven (Miss.) and letterman Joe Ben Casaady (170) of Statesboro (Ga.) are contenders.

Left half—Al Woodham (170), letterman from Albany (Ga.) leads pushed by letterman Jimmy Messinese (170) of Jacksonville and letterman Louis Leonhardt (180) of Louisville (Ky.).

Fullback—letterman end Ronnie King (205) shifted to the power post, far ahead of others. He's from Daytona Beach.

Seminoles Drown Georgia 46 to 38

Florida State University's powerful Seminole swimmers avenged their lone loss of the season at Athens, Ga., Saturday, beating Georgia, the elite of the Southeastern Conference, 46-38.

Coach Bim Stults' Indians went after their fourth consecutive triumph over Atlanta's Emory University in the East Campus pool here yesterday.

Four new school or pool records were set as the Seminoles evened the score for a 45-39 setback suffered at the hands of the Bulldogs in Tallahassee earlier in the season.

THE VICTORY was FSU's sixth against one defeat.

Georgia's Reid Patterson set a new Southeastern Conference dual meet 100-yard free style swim record and tied his own 50-yard mark in the defeat.

BULLETIN

Florida State University's swimming team vaulted to their sixth straight win of the season yesterday when they beat Emory University 60-24. This makes a total record of six straight wins against one loss suffered at the state of the season.

Patterson won the 50 in 32.8 seconds, tying the mark he made last week against North Carolina. In the 100 he did 50.3 seconds to better his old mark of 51.0 made against Miami last month.

But Patterson's most spectacular performance was in vain in the final event — the 400-yard free style relay—which if Georgia had won, would have given the Bulldogs the meet, 45-39. Patterson, anchorman for the Bulldogs' relay quartet began his leg trailing the Seminoles' ace, Dick Wells, fully half the length of the 25-yard pool. Patterson, swimming faster than ever before, made up all the deficit but a yard was clocked unofficially in 49.6; only two-tenths of a second short of the accepted American record of 49.4 by Alan Ford of Yale in 1945.

FSU'S MOST valuable man was Freshman Ernie Stock of Royal Oak, Mich., who was selected to the All-America high school team last year. Stock has just entered school at FSU and did not take part in the meet last month at Tallahassee when Georgia won, 45-39. Saturday he took the individual medley and swam an important leg of the crucial free style relay.

300 yards medley relay 1—FSU (G Cooper, Dick Rhoton, Dick Wells) Time 3:02.9 (new pool and school record)

220 yards free style: 1—Floyd, Ga; 2—Chuck Biersborn, FSU; 3—Jack Burnett, FSU Time 2:19.6

50 yards free style 1—Patterson, Ga; 2—John Baruch, FSU; 3—Ryan Ray, FSU Time 22.8

150 yard individual medley 1—Ernie Stock, FSU; 2—Stolz, Ga; 3—Chuck Crowe, FSU Time 1:39.1 (new pool and school record)

Fancy diving 1—Mitakis, Ga 103.8 points; 2—Bob Stuke, FSU 100.2 points; 3—Boyd, Ga, 94.8 points

100 yards free style 1—Patterson, Ga; 2—John Baruch, FSU; 2—Dick Wells, FSU Time 50.8

200 yards back stroke 1 G Cooper, FSU; 2 Karry, Ga; 3—Mike Castagna, FSU Time 2:19.0 (new school record)

FSU Diamond Hopefuls Perk Up Practices

They won't begin curving 'em for keeps for almost a month but Florida State University's baseball candidates are putting in a lot of spare time on the diamond these days.

Coach Ralph Matherly, who guided the 1952 Seminoles to a banner FSU year of 17 wins and only four defeats is looking toward another good season.

"We're getting along fine," Matherly said as the Seminoles wound up last week's drills. Some 40 aspirants have been hustling through pepper, infield and batting-practice drills for the past three weeks or so.

A few cold and rainy days have sent the Seminoles scurrying indoors, but for the most part the Tallahassee weather has been agreeing with the baseballers.

Seven lettermen and a host of talented newcomers are in the Seminole camp. FSU opens a 24-game agenda against Georgia Teachers College here March 20.

"B" Team Loses To Turner AFB

Paced by former University of Kentucky football star Bill Leskovar, Turner Air Force Base, turned back the Florida State University B team, 89-77, in a fast basketball game in Albany, Georgia, Saturday night.

Leskovar tallied 26 points as Turner got revenge for an earlier defeat handed it by the Baby Seminoles here last month.

Gary Ashley, diminutive freshman guard, was high for the FSU 'Bees' with 18 points. Center Wally Higgenbothem notched 18 points before fouling out in the third quarter.

The Seminole B team met Whiting Field in the West Campus last night. Major Donald "Buck" Johnston, assistant professor of Air Science and Tactics at FSU, is coaching the B team.

Seminole thinclads draws nearer.

Dr. Ken Miller, head track coach, said the 37 Seminoles out for track are rapidly rounding into shape. The first squad time trials of the season were staged last week.

FSU Gymnasts Take Top Honors at AAU

By BOB GUTTING
Gym Team Sports Writer

In the fourth annual Florida AAU senior open championships held Saturday in the East Campus gym, FSU gymnasts swept the field by taking first, second and third places in all but two of the events.

By BOB GUTTING
Gym Team Sports Writer

An interesting fact about the meet is that FSU's team competed not only against the other teams, but against each other as well. FSU gymnasts were divided into two teams, Garnet and Gold. This is a system being employed by Coach Hartley Price in order to further instill a competitive spirit in his gymnasts.

In the girls' open championship held earlier in the afternoon, two FSU co-eds, Brownie Rich and Paula Rowe, took first and second places in both the balance beam and flying rings events.

Brownie placed first and Paula second in both events. Also entered was Effie Zipperer, who took second place on the trampoline. The three girls did not compete for Florida State but entered the meet unattached.

During the meet FSU gymnasts appeared in good form, especially Bill Roetzheim, who lived up to his nickname—"The Rocket"—by winning five of the championships.

Newcomer Joe Taylor looked good in calisthenics and still rings while Jack Miles, national AAU rings champ and a probable contender for the NCAA rings championship, gave a stellar performance.

"Bouncing Bob" Bollinger did a good routine to win first in tumbling and also did some terrific tricks on the trampoline, only to lose to Koehler of Gadsden by a slim two-tenths of a point.

FSU Trimmed By Wolfpack 85-77 at La.

Loyola's rangy Wolfpack—generated by a brother combination that accounted for 47 points—rallied for a big fourth quarter to trim Florida State's Seminoles, 85-77, in New Orleans Saturday night.

The Seminoles going for the victory that would have evened their season's record at nine wins and nine setbacks, played the Pack on even terms for three chapters before Loyola's winning spurt.

Loyola raced to an early 25-14 lead but the Seminoles closed the gap to within three points at intermission. Then, with Ham Wernke, Duane Gordon and Jerry Westhafer providing most of the scoring punch, the Seminoles tied the count at 56-all at the third-quarter rest.

But Gus and Ronnie Reynoir, the Wolfpack's talented brother act, headed a last-period rush which netted Loyola 28 points to FSU's 21.

Ronnie Reynoir was the game's high individual scorer, bagging 26 points. Both Gus Reynoir and the Indians' Wernke gathered 21 points. FSU's Duane Gordon meshed 15 points.

The Loyola triumph was the second of the season over the Seminoles. The Wolfpack waltzed off with a 72-66 decision in the West Campus gym here last month.

Fiedler Brings

begins with "Toccata" by Frescobaldi and Kindler, Beethoven's "Symphony No. 5 in C Minor," Overture to "La Gazza Ladra" by Rossini and Clair de Lune by Debussy.

Also, "Variations on a Nursery Air" for piano and orchestra, by noted PSU faculty member and artist Ernst von Dohnanyi, and "Marche Slave" by Tchaikovsky, which will feature soloist Hilde Somer at the piano.

POPS CONDUCTOR Arthur Fiedler is credited with making the Pops a national synonym for light, enjoyable, classical music. According to many, Fiedler, a tall, graying father of three, is a man who combines serious musical talents with an unquestionable spark of life. It has been said that, "If you want it to seem like spring, be sure to hear the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra when it comes to your town."

Fiedler has appeared at such notable places as Montreal, Minneapolis, San Francisco and San Antonio as guest conductor with the cities' symphonies during his 23 years with the Pops. According to spokesmen for the orchestra, Fiedler's service of 23 years is the longest any one conductor has spent with the same orchestra in the United States. The Pops repertoire, through Fiedler, has grown to a point where it exceeds the so-called symphonic repertoire, the releases continue.

TODAY THE POPS plays, in addition to standard works from ballet and opera, selections from folk music, marches, waltzes, dance music and such popular favorites as "Fiddle Faddle" and Jazz Pizzicato."

In answer to many puzzled questions as to where the organization got its name, the best explanation so far states that the word "Pops" probably first meant "Popular." The word continued to be used, according to historians, because of its "fitting, nonchalant, explosive jauntiness."

IN THE EARLY years of the Pops, it is said, it was not unusual to see glasses of beer on the tables in the heat of the summer as patrons of the arts sat in Boston's Symphony Hall.

After the summer heat cooled down, the Pops became a part again of its mother organization, the Boston Symphony for the winter season. The Pops still remains a part of the Boston Symphony, the light-headed little sprite that breaks from heavy symphonic works to give the musical world a lighter, easier-on-the-ears type.

FIEDLER'S MUSICAL philosophy is that the lighter compositions are as important as the heavy works. For that reason, his "Pops" concerts have been given the unofficial title of "Dessert a la Fiedler."

Officers to Accept Applications For U. S. Naval Reserve

A Naval officer procurement team will be on this campus March 6 for the purpose of accepting applications for appointment to commissioned rank in the U. S. Naval Reserve from college graduates and college seniors, both male and female, who are within 120 days of graduation.

Male applicants must have reached their 19th but not their 27th birthday at the time the application is submitted. However, there are certain restricted designators available to male applicants up to their 33rd birthday.

Female applicants must have reached their 21st but not their 27th birthday at the time the application is submitted.

Applications for the Navy Nurse Corps will also be accepted from graduates of accredited schools of nursing who are between the ages of 21 and 40 years.

Interviews for all programs will be granted from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily during the visit of the team. It will be possible for applicants to be completely processed for appointment leading to commissions in the Naval Reserve. By taking advantage of meeting with the team, applicants will obviate the necessity of appearing in person at the office of Naval officer procurement in Macon, Georgia, to accomplish this same purpose.

Famed U.S. Violinist Now Creats Novel

Albert Spalding, America's greatest violinist, has returned to his winter home after another week of teaching here at Florida State University where he is a visiting professor of violin in the School of Music.

After 45 years on the concert stage at home and abroad, the Chicago born violinist, is spending more of the winter monhts in Florida. The spot he and his wife chose for home is Captiva Island, just off Fort Myers.

THE FAMED VIOLINIST makes several flying trips to Tallahassee during a winter season to teach students of strings, make concert appearances at the university and see his good friend, Ernst von Dohnanyi, FSU professor of composition and piano.

Spalding's big public concert days are over. He announced his official retirement in 1950 after an appearance with New York Philharmonic. Four and a half decades of touring around the world to keep appointments was enough, he said. He has crossed the Atlantic more than 200 times.

HE IS VERY enthusiastic about about teaching students. "They are the heart of the matter," he says, adding, "It is the students who will make history for the FSU School of Music."

"It is the quality of work done not the quantity," he teaches stressing that much can be accomplished in half an hour of affirmative, constructive work Spalding said. "It is the use of time that is important."

HE WARNS HIS students against spreading themselves too thin against trying to do too many things at one time. He tries to make his students self critical so that they will ultimately become their own teachers. He likes working with promising young students, particularly FSU violinists.

The story behind the Spaldings' choosing their winter home at Captiva Island is quite amusing. Mrs. Spalding bought the property sight unseen because she was captivated by the name of the island. She was in New York at the time of her purchase. Mr. Spalding was in New Orleans so she sent him a telegram asking him if he though her "utterly mad."

HIS ANSWER WAS, "utterly mad, but sometimes it's fun to be mad." This little incident occured seven years in the lives of the Spaldings. Today they have a little home built on their beach front lot and have had a lot of fun on Captiva.

Spalding is now pouring his creative talents into writing a novel, to be entitled" A Fiddle, A Song, A Lady." It concerns Giuseppe Tartini, celebrated 18th century Italian violinist. The book will be published the latter part of March by the Henry Holt Company, publishers 10 years ago of Spalding's autobiography, "Rise to Follow."

Art Educator Sees Similar Expression In Artist, Child

Children and artists have a lot in common when they paint because they communicate their feelings, ideas and understanding about the people and objects they put in their pictures.

This is what Dr. Manuel Barkan of Ohio State University told art educators from Alabama, Georgia and Florida this weekend. He addressed about 50 art educators on this campus for a conference on "Realizing Human Values Through Art Education."

Dr. Barkan emphasized the problem in art education for children is to come to understand the meanings and values in creative activity. In this way, he pointed out, the arts can make its maximum contribution to children's social and emotional development.

Fellowship Elects Religious Officers

Luncheon Ends Intelligent Faith Week As Students, Faculty, Guests Gather

June Conyers was elected president and Dick Moore, vice-president, in a unanimous vote of the Inter-Church Fellowship, at the luncheon yesterday which climaxed the week-loog program of Intelligent Faith.

Terry Stein, the student overall chairman, retired as president of the organization.

APPROXIMATELY 175 people attended the luncheon as a final tribute to the visiting religious team. Dr Sam Neel, University chaplain, recognized the members of the executive committee, committee chairmen and student house directors for their role as a supporting cast of the program.

The keynote of the luncheon was a farewell address given by Dr. Roger W Blanchard, director of the College Conference. He urged that these five days of spiritual emphasis be used to promote and spread a steadfast Christian Faith. He said that through interest and study of other nations, students can further develop Christianity. He also stressed the importance of campus groups participating in religious activity, and the importance of prayer—for peace.

AT THE WESTMINSTER House each morning, speakers and FSU students and faculty chatted over coffee and doughnuts. Following informal breakfasts, students ended the hour with talks on the more serious aspect of religious thought.

One of the highlights of the week was a panel discussion held Wednesday night in the Opperman Music Hall. Each speaker spoke on behalf of his nation in an attempt to answer the question: "What can we do to avoid World War III?" The speakers approached the problems as seen through the eyes of their own people.

Plans Announced For Replacement Of Westcott Aud.

Question of the week, "What's to become of Westcott auditorium?"

When interviewed, Mr. Rod K. Shaw, business manager of FSU, seemed quite surprised to hear that everyone on campus doesn't know of the plans.

"In March, 1951," Mr. Shaw said, "the auditorium was condemned and the state legislature of that year appropriated $400,000 to tear down the old building and replace it with a larger one on the same site But, he said, "a government restriction on steel for auditoriums has postponed the planned action until recently." Mr. Shaw seemed quite sure, however, that the architect for the board of control is completing his plans now and demolition on the old auditorium should start within sixty days.

Mr. Shaw hastened to add that the removal of the plants behind Westcott is being done not to create work, as some students seem to think, but to make room for the new addition.

Student Senate Takes Action On Five Bills

Newly Revised Act Creating Labor Post Resubmitted to Faculty

University Senate, in its regular Tuesday meeting, considered seven bills, tabling two until the next meeting and passing five. Among the bills discussed was the Secretary of Labor which had been returned to Senate by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs with several suggestions for changes.

Senator Gene Lawler reworded the act to conform with the committee's suggestions and Senate unanimously voted to resubmit the bill in its revised form

AMONG LEGISLATION passed was a constitutional amendment which states "that the office of Editor-in-Chief of a student publication shall be filled upon the recommendation of the Senior Staff of that publication with the confirmation by two-thirds vote of the University Senate" Previously there has been no provision for a Sente confirmation, but this move is considered a safeguard and merely follows procedure already used for other offices.

Other measures passed provide for a revision of the legislative branch in the constitution and changes in the title of President of the University Government Association and several cabinet officers. This later bill also serves to redefine certain executive powers.

THE FINAL of the new amendments sets definite dates for elections, and provides limitations of campaign expenses, in addition to restating certain election procedures. All of the measures will take effect upon ratification of the student body in a constitutional referendum scheduled March 27, except for the Secretary of Labor bill which will become law when it passes the Faculty Committee

Under committee reports Senator Wayna Terry, Chairman of the Absentee Committee, reported that he had received a letter from Vice-President of Men's Affairs,

Alphabetical System Praised by Registrar

By AL PIERCE
Asistant News Editor

"A to Z" registration, used for the first time at Florida State University's Spring enrollment, will probably become a regular policy from now on, according to Charles Walker, FSU registrar.

Walker made this statement following a recent meeting of the Student Welfare Council, called to review the results of the new-type registration procedure here. He said the worth of the alphabetical system was discussed by the group comprised of the deans of men and women, the registrar, director of Vocational Guidance, and coordinator of counselors.

"ALL FELT the February registration was the best we have yet had," said Walker "None of the group reported any complaints about the new system"

At the Spring registration students with last names beginning with A through L enrolled on Friday, the 8th. Those with last names of M to Z registered the next day. The "A to Z" system aplied only to upperclassmen, acocrding to Walker, who noted that freshman appointments were made according to the individual student's counselor's name.

"For instance,' he said," counselors to freshmen whose names begin with A met all their charges at an apopinted hour in the gymnasium"

THIS LAST note points up the brunt of the alphabetical system. According to the Registrar, the old method had all registrants in one class, senior, junior or on down, crowding at one section of the gym in order to get into a certain required major or general education course This has been eliminated. Also, it was formerly thought that seniors and graduate students should have priority on certain courses they needed for graduation

"Under the alphabetical system," Walker stated, "all departments and course sections are going at once and registering is distributed evenly over a two-day period. "Freshmen can keep up a steady, even stream in registering for their general education course. Seniors are doing the same with their 400 courses."

THIS, AS Walker sees it, is a big advantage over the old bottlenecked procedure. He also pointed out other advantages to the Student Welfare Board

"The new system frees counselors to advise registrants in courses, sections, and the like," he said.

FORMERLY, he noted, the educational counselors were harassed by flash-type crowds and were forced to hand out class cards without talking to the individual and possibly helping him arrange a better schedule

Walker stated that the alphabetical system is used by most universities and colleges throughout the country

"BOTH UNIVERSITY of Illinois and Indiana have definitely found the system to be the best so far" he said, adding, "even though many schools don't use an IBM system, as we do, they employ some form of alphabetical procedure at registration."

Walker ended his talk before the board by stating the FSU experiment proves that, "there was no reason to follow the old system seniors priority on classes."

SINCE THE board met, it has been hinted that the Council of Deans has adopted a resolution to make the alphabetical procedure a permanent part of FSU registration. This was not confirmed, however.

Leroy Thompson Is Key Speaker At Business Meet

The key to intellectual growth is to read something dynamic and alive every day, Dr. J. Leroy Thompson, education director of the Wall Street Journal, told students Wednesday.

Dr. Thompson, who spoke before a meeting sponsored by the School of Business and Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, suggested the students read newspapers every day.

"READ A VARIETY," he said. "But read those that stimulate your thinking, those that raise new questions for you to ponder on their editorial pages, those that inform you of the world and its happenings."

"And may I suggest," he added, "you read the editorial page first, before turning to the comics and sports page."

THE EDUCATIONAL director said he couldn't stress too strongly the value of building the reading habit early and maintaining it throughout life.

Dr. Thompson also discussed the problems of gathering and publishing business news for his newspaper. The speaker received his MA and Ed. D at Columbia University. He is a visiting lecturer and author of numerous articles on business topics.

A reception followed in the Longmire Building.

Marketing Professor Writes For Magazine

Dr. W. Bruce Weale, associate professor of marketing at Florida State University, has an article, "Retailers Beware," in the current issue of The Red Barrel, nationally known industrial magazine.

Fiedler Conducted Orchestra In Spite of Backstage Fire

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, failed in at least one of his talents at the Wednesday afternoon concert in Leon High School Auditorium.

Fiedler, who is a noted amateur fire chief, conducted his orchestra right trough a small fire which burned several large holes in the expensive velvet curtains

AS MISS HILDE SOMER, soloist with the famed orchestra, was playing Lizst's Hungarian Fantasy, small clouds of smoke puffed their wey to the ceiling Musicians and audience sniffed apprehensively, all maneuvering to see what was going on. But Fieider kept the music going, and the fire kept the smoke coming.

Soon the smoke filled the floor of the stage like a low fog But adhering to the old theatrical adage of the "show must go on," violinists kept fiddling—a little nervously—while glancing quickly from Fiedler to backstage

THE MUSIC even had the accompaniment of smiles and light laughter, although the damage done was not at all laughable when it comes to the repairs. Velvet curtains cost up into the thousands of dollars.

The evening performance had its own dramatic touch, this one not quite so expensive.

A SURPRISE spotlight sought out Ernst von Dohnanyi, instructor in piano, after his composition had been played by guest soloist, Hilde Somer. Dohnanyi walked to the stage, greeted Miss Somer and walked back to his seat in the middle of the audience while the audience applauded.

PHYSICAL SCIENCES ARE NOT ATTRACTIVE

By BRUCE GALPHIN

As a major in one of the physical sciences, I have often wondered why physics, chemistry, meteorology and the several others in the "physical" classification were not attracting more students.

It is no longer true that the scientist represents to most people a peculiar duck who sits in dark little university rooms thinking up ideas of no immediate interest to the general public drawing a salary that could hardly be called an existance.

That prototype was prevalent in the public mind for a long time, but the events of recent years have vastly altered it. The average citizen, while he may still not understand much about science, is certainly aware that it can whip up such marvels as nylon and atom bombs, Dynaflo and chlorophyll.

And the employment picture is certainly different today. Over and over are examples of industrial concerns "raiding" colleges to get their share of the graduating seniors in engineering, chemistry, physics, etc. The federal government is aware of the need for trained scientists, too, and some of the top paying jobs it now offers are in the physical sciences.

The fact is that the demand for students in the sciences is increasing by leaps and bounds each year, while student enrollment in these fields is continually dropping. In accordance with the old supply and demand laws, the salaries for scientists are reaching all-time highs.

So neither standing in the society, variety of choice of work, nor economic possibilities present any obstacle for enticing students. It must be something on the pre-graduate level that deter them.

Most obvious is the impression that the sciences are "hard" and accessible to only a few. They certainly are not trivially simple, and in these days when students are looking for a quick buck and an easy way to security, there are obviously more primrosy paths than the sciences. But the idea that the sciences are obscure, that few people can ever learn to say the magic word "wave function" and "integral" is quite false. The answer to the problem must lie elsewhere.

Some people feel that the time required to get a major in the sciences is a deterrent. That is, they might assume that the student is unwilling to spend the unreasonable number of hours out of his college days that the sciences require. This, too, I believe to be at best a partial answer.

Students may dislike spending too much time on something really different, but the average collegian is so indoctrinated with the idea of spending all his time in his major that he is more likely to be glad to "get rid of those darned general education courses" than to feel that he is not getting a broad enough picture of the culture in which he lives.

Probably the greatest single cause for the dearth of science majors is one connected with the idea that science is "hard;" few people really know how to teach it. Teachers in the sciences must realize, first of all, that they must convince students science is interesting. They are dealing with technical subjects, of course, and cannot escape being technical; but they should never lose sight of the aim of making their courses interesting and presenting their fields as part of a whole picture.

If they can convince students science is an interesting, important facet of our culture and then continue to teach as if it were, the battle is largely won and the vacuum will begin to be filled

So an explanation of why more people are not taking up science as a career goes back to the very beginning, and before much improvement of the situation is made there is going to have to be a lot of soul-searching right on that early level.

Classes Hear Intelligent Faith Speaker

Fox's Social Work Class Hears Talk by Blanchard

A Criminology Class taught by Dr. Vernon Fox, School of Social Welfare, heard a speech by the Rev. Roger W Blanchard, here for Intelligent Faith Week, Wednesday.

Rev. Blanchard said he originally intended to become a prison chaplain, but has been working with college students instead.

THE EPISCOPALIAN minister said every priest in thrust in some way into the idea of penology because many of his congregation come into conflict with the law.

He said one important thing about being a prison chaplain is making the individual feel important and wanted by his fellowman.

REV. BLANCHARD said at one prison for which he and his fellow clergmen were trying to set up a football team, 80 of the inmates wanted to play on the team. He said they could find no one who would oppose them, so ten of the students from the Seminary composed part of the team, while a student from the Law School rounded out the eleven. "You even forgot that these men were criminals when you got into the game," he said.

This, the Episcopalian said, is an example of the new theory of penology—rehabilitation of men. Rev. Blanchard illustrated this by telling his audience of Norfolk Prison Colony in contrast with the prison in Charleston.

"WHEN IT comes to walls at Norfolk," he said, "they were not primarily the walls to keep men in, but rather to allow these men as much freedom within the walls as possible"

The prison contains 23 dormitories, he said, each with individual roms, with toilet facilities, recreation centers and a counselor. The food is good also. A community self-government cooperative program has been set up composed of staff and inmates who plan the rehabilitation of prisoners. Guards have no part in this; their only function is to guard, he said. The prison also has on its staff capable psychiatrists and social workers.

ON THE OTHER hand, Charleston, is the typical bastile type prison, Blanchard said with its high walls and many storied buildings with long wings and central corridors.

In Norfolk the program is one of work, but in areas that could be followed after the prisoner returns to society. He may learn such trades as plumbing and electricity and continue his education, even so far as learning beyond the high school level.

IN CHARLESTON the prisoners also work, he said but it is in making license plates, which will do them no good after they get out of prison

"Certain politicians in Massachusetts," Rev. Blanchard said, "had people in their wards who came into conflict with the law and they tried to make it possible for them to go to Norfolk since it was a fine institution. Those at Norfolk had a constant fight on their hands to keep it for those who had a chance for rehabilitation." The founder, Howard Gill, he said, is no longer there, but "I understand they are trying to hold to fragments of the original system"

REV. BLANCHARD said there are three major theories of punishment for criminals. One is that of vengance, which "does not reduce or solve the problem of crime." Another deterrence in which people are used as examples, is not right, said Rev. Blanchard, because one person is "made to suffer in order that someone else can be prevented from committing the same crime. Each individual has the right to be treated and judged as an individual," he said.

The last and most reasonable theory according to the minister is that of rehabilitation

"PROBABLY MOST of us will not be criminologists" he told the class, "but each of us is responsible as laymen for the problem of law violations in our own community." He urged the students to become members of citizen committees that look into conditions in local jails, county, state and federal prisons. "Become politicians," he said, "entering into the field to see that men receive decent treatment in these institutions"

He said citizens certainly ought to go into the field of crime prevention, and should enter into programs for juveniles. Somewhat harder to do but very important he said is to accept the ex-convict and make a place for him in the community.

"SOMETIMES IT is harder for a man to get into a church than to get a job after he's been in prison," Rev. Blanchard said "And, of course, this is a damning, indicting part of the church."

He ended his talk by saying the most important thing to do for a prisoner in jail for a short term is to "be concerned with him: visit him and show interest. Do something about the jails if the conditions are bad Some of them are a shame."

Ford's "Quiet Man" Plays

By JUNE MORGAN
Feature Editor

My first experience with The Quiet Man was overhearing that this movie is a leading candidate for the '53 Academy Award. The movie starring Maureen O'Hara, John Wayne and Barry Fitzgerald, shows through Tuesday at the State Theater.

Since it was Director John Ford who provided the stepping stone to stardom for red-headed Maureen O'Hara in a picture which won for him an Academy Award, it was inevitable that the same Irish combination should make a picture on Irish soil that makes a leading bid for Academy recognition this year.

IN 1942, DIRECTOR Ford summoned the striking auburn-haired Maureen to America to play the leading feminine role in "How Green Was My Valley," which was his Academy winner and launched her on a spectacular motion picture career.

A product of the "auld sod," Maureen was born in Doublin, Ireland, and made her stage debut at the age of five. At 17 she had her first film contract with London Films where she was later discovered by Charles Laughton to play opposite him in "Jamaica Inn."

JOHN WAYNE, who plays the "Quiet Man," began a motion picture career as a prop man and has catapulted to the peak of the profession. The big fellow with the easy smile has been voted the top box-office star by exhibitors for two years running in the Motion Picture Herald-Fame annual polls.

In the whimsical role of an Irish marriage broker, Barry Fitzgerald comes near to equaling his Academy winning performance in "Going My Way."

"THE QUIET MAN" is the picturization of Maurice Walsh's famous Saturday Evening Post story. It was actually filmed in the picturesque Irish village of Cong, which consists of 200 inhabitants, a handful of cottages, a few shops, four taverns, the lovely church of St. Mary's, a ruined abbey and the Ashford Castle Hotel.

Visitors from all over Western Ireland flocked to the city to become extras or collect autographs, while local youngsters became camera conscious and crowded into the coutnryside scenes being filmed.

THE MOTION picture's title signifies a state of wishful thinking rather than a quiet man. It is the story of an Irish-born American who is forced by circumstances to fight every inch of the way to gain a foothold in America. It is only after the tragic death of his opponent in the prize ring that he seeks quietude and peace in his quaint birthplace in Eire.

Contrary to his hopes, the "Quiet Man," finds nothing but turmoil from the moment of his arrival. Throughout the turbulent atmosphere flows the canny and comic romantic maneuverings of John and Maureen by lovable Barry Fitzgerald.

IN THE STRONG cast of supporting players, important acting contributions are also made by Victor McLaglen, Arthur Shields, Eileen Crowe and two newcomers to the American screen, famous Abbey Theatre players, Charles fitzSimons and James Lilburn, brothers of star, Maureen O'Hara.

FLORIDA'S native Indians and the adventure of wars in the Everglades make exciting fare in Seminole the technicolor firm that plays at the Florida through Saturday, Feb. 28.

Rock Hudson and Barbara Hale co-star in the new movie, while Anthony Quinn and Richard Carlson make up the supporting cast.

War Movie Plays Last Time Tonight

The story of prisoners of war in Japanese concentration camps, "Three Came Home" will play for the last time tonight in the Freshman Men's Dormitory at 8.

The movie stars Claudette Colbert, Patrick Knowles and Sessue Hayakawa

W. Somerset Maugham's famous story, "The Razor's Edge," begins Monday night at 7:30 at the O Club. It is the powerful drama of a young man's quest for spiritual peace among the anxieties and frustrations of a modern world and his atempts to be a positive force for the good.

The movie, screened against the background of Chicago Paris and the Himalayas features Tyrone Power Gene Tierney, Herbert Marshall, Anne Baxter and Clifton Webb.

It will show at South Cawthon on Tuesday; Magnolia Wednesday; Senior Hall Thursday, and the Freshman Men's Dormitory on Friday at 8.

Avoidance of World War Discussed by 5 Leaders

Suggestions on how to avoid World War III were given Wednesday night by five world religious leaders in a panel discussion on the campus at Florida State University.

The panel, with the question: How can we avoid World War III? was part of a five-day program of "Intelligent Faith Week" being conducted at the University.

IN DISCUSSING the social turmoil and current hot war in Asia, the Rev. Horace W. Ryburn, Presbyterian missionary with 13 years experience in Asia, said:

"The Basic struggle in East Asia is not Communism. The basic fact is that the Communists are taking advantage and exploiting a social revolution that is sweeping Asia . . . a social revolution set in motion by the challenge of the Christian Religion to the existing Asian cultures."

REVEREND RYBURN said that America and the West, to win Asians as friends must set the example of freedom and justice for all people in our own country.

The Rev. Samuel Maqbul-Masih, one of the leading Christians in India, said:

"India is attempting to play the role of peace makers in world affairs. In our own difficulties with Pakistan," he said, "we have adopted the attitude of give and take in our relations and have thus far avoided serious war."

Reverend Maqbul-Masih said the nations of the world must adopt this same spirit of give and take to avoid war. "We must treat all others as our neighbors and take them to our hearts," he said.

GEORGE M. LAMSA, a native of Assyria, recently returned from the Middle East, said:

"The struggle over Israel is extremely dangerous to world peace. He said the Arabs are determined to have another war with Israel.

"THE ARABS FEEL they have been unjustly pushed from their country and will not rest until the 800,000 Arab refugees from Palestine have returned," he said.

Lamsa added that he felt if the big nations of the world were not trying to get Middle East oil, and would leave the Arabs and Israel to work out their own solution in Palestine, peace there could be found in a few months.

"AS IT IS, there is no hope for peace in Palestine," he said.

Dr. Ray E. Phillips, missionary to South Africa since 1918, said: "Conflicts and strifes among small nations have repeatedly caused world wars"

He said the "hot war" race riots in South Africa "are the Boer War still going on," and dangerous to the world

DR. PHILLIPS said many African religious and civic organizations are making extensive studies of the African situation and are attempting to resolve the conflicts He suggested America could best help by withholding criticism of South African affairs until they have had a chance to survey all the facts on both sides

Professor Giza Soos, once head of the Hungarian resistance movement against Nazism and Communism, said:

"THE DOCTRINE of Jesus Christ and Prayer is the bulwark of the world against war."

The religious leader added that there was no other way for Europe to survive destruction than to form a United States of Europe, based on a "spiritual, intellectual and social plan of Christian principlee"

THE REV. ROGER W. Blanchard, executive secretary of the Division of College Work for the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was moderator

Reverend Blanchard was assisted by Mrs. Monica Burrell Owen field representative of the Division of Home Missions, National Council of Churches

BARBARA BREWTON, introduced the panel members.

The IFW is sponsored by FSU Religious Council under the auspices of the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies

THE ANNUAL religious week opened Feb. 23 and the program has included over 90 classes, seminars and discussions held on campus and in dormitories, sorority and fraternity houses.

Climax of the week will be today when more than 300 students and faculty members assemble to hear summaries of the week's activities

Education Association Elects New Officers

The Florida State University Student Branch of the Association for Childhood Education elected officers for the coming year recently.

The student branch was installed March 7 and 8, 1952. During its first year on campus the organization has sponsored two major projects, the Junior Artist Series for children and caring for children whose parents attend PTA meetings at the Demonstration School.

Air Force Guest Is FSU Musical

MOODY AFB—A former conductor of the Stockholm Philharmonic Orchestra, Sweden, was a guest of the 569th Air Force Band at Moody Air Force Base recently.

He is Bertil H Beer, composer and faculty member at Florida State University, Tallahassee. He conducted the 569th through one of his own compositions, "Nordic Suite," which has become popular at several universities in this country within the past year.

Beer studied music at Berlin, Vienna and the Royal Conservatory of Music in his native Stockholm. As a former lieutenant in the Swedish army, he conducted the First Royal Regiment Band. Later, he was conductor of the Stockholm Philharmonic Orchestra.

The Swedish composer has been in the United States about five years and has written two symphonies, an oratorio, an overture and several band compositions.

Seminoles Face Mercer Tonight in First Game Of NAIB Basketball Tourniment in Deland

Florida State University's "Comeback Kids," winners in four their past five games, move er this district's most coveted basketball championship when the -team District 25 NAIA playoffs n in DeLand's Airport Arena night.

Coach Bud Kennedy's improved Seminoles, who have fans buzzing with their late-season victory pa- e meet Mercer College's high- garded Bears in the tourna- ent curtain-raiser Friday.

The host Stetson Hi-Hatters and Rollins College Tars, last-minute substitution for the Tampa Spartans, who declined an invitation, vie in the second game.

The Spartans, reportedly, withdrew from the tourney because of the expense involved in sending a team to DeLand. Also many of the basketball players are having scholastic troubles because of the many game trips Tampa has taken already this year.

The winner of the two-day, sudden-death eliminations will represent Florida and South Georgia in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament in Kansas City next month.

Friday night's clash between Mercer and FSU will be the third and most important of the campaign. The Bears, an all-senior team from Macon, Ga., which finished the regular season with a dandy 19-4 record, walloped FSU by 16 points in the Seminoles' opener back in December. The Indians, however, turned the tables on Mercer, taking a one-point overtime decision later in Tallahassee.

It will be the third NAIA district showdown for FSU to as many seasons. The Seminoles copped their first outing two years ago, bringing Florida State its first cage crown, and went on to spill South Dakota State and Pepperdine before bowing to Millikin in the quarterfinals of the national tournament in Kansas City.

Last year the Indians finished second in the district, losing to Tampa in the final after upsetting Miami in a first-round surprise.

After losing nine of their first 14 games this season, the Seminoles have since rebounded to stop Miami, Stetson, Tampa and Florida Southern while dropping a close decision to Loyola in New Orleans last Saturday night.

THE ONLY Junior on FSU's basketbetksll tasm is Jarry Westhafer who is second, behind Ham Warneka, in scoring. The 6 ft 4 in. native of Indiene will lead the Seminoles against Mercer in the first geme of tha NAIB tourney tonight.

Bill Armstrong Gets Coaching Job At Leon

Was Backfield Aide At Florida State

FSU's assistant backfield coach Bill Armstrong left that job yesterday, to take over the head coaching position at Leon High in Tallahassee which was vacated by the resignation of Ben Clemons on February 16. Armstrong, who has been busy with the Seminoles daily spring workouts, will instal lthe split-T at Leon.

Head Coach Tom Nugent revealed yesterday thet no replacement has been found for Armstrong, but "one would be found very soon."

Armstrong, who will receive a contract at Leon calling for $5,000 a year, is expected to remain at Florida State until June. In addition to his current duties as an aide to Nugent, he teaches two classes in the physical education department.

A native of Indiana, Armstrong is returning to Florida high school coaching ranks ofr the second time. After serving as a graduate asistant at FSU in 1948, Armstrong took over the head coaching job at Columbia High in Lake City and rolled up e 15-4 record in the football seasons of 1948 and 1950 with the Tigers. He left Lake City after the '50 campaign and returned to FSU as a backfield coach.

Armstrong, who will be 27 years old on March 3 is a native of Evansville, Indiana. He was an all-city halfback there for two years prior to enrolling at Unileteted for four years from 1944 through 1947 under the late Alvin "Bo" McMillin. After the 1947 campaign Armstrong was selected to play in the annual Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Alabama.

Armstrong came to FSU early in 1948 after Veller had been named head coach. Bill served on the Seminole fotoball staff, and was head baseball coach until he was called to active duty with the U. S. Air Corps, which has stationed him at FSU with the ROTC unit.

Volleyball Team Seeks State Crowns in Miami Tournament

The Florida State volleyball team begins its quest for tha state AAU championship, tomorrow when they play the Miami YMCA. The AAAU tournament, with nine teams entered, is being held in Miami and the 10-man Seminole squad left for that city early this morning.

Volleyball Coach Bill Odeneal, looking past the opening match against Miami, said yesterday "If we can get by St Petersburg, we have a good chance of coming through if our defense holds up." St. Petersburg recently won the St Petersburg's Open volleyball tournament, which the Seminoles also competed in.

Odeneal further commented that his squad "has plenty of offense and we're using a new style of attack this year." So it appears thet FSU's chances hinge on the defensive performence of the sixtet.

The other teams entered the two-day meet are Pinecastle Air Force Base, Cecil Field FASRON 109, West Palm Beach YMCA, St Petersburg and two teams from the Miami Fire Department. Missing from the entry list is tha Pensacola Navy who won the title last year.

The FSU opening match starts at 8 tomorrow morning in the Andrew Jackson High School gym.

State Swimmers Go After AAU Title

Southern Meet Starts Tomorrow In Atlanta, Ga.

Leoming as the class of Dixie's swimmers, the Florida State University swimming team will try to lay official claim to that title in Atlanta tomorrow when they compete in tha Southern AAU meet.

The Seminoles tied for the championship in 1950 and were rated the best colleee swimming team in the Deep South that year.

This year Coach Bim Stults' charges are enjoying one of their finest seasons ever. The Indians kicked off their seventh win of the season here Monday afternoon by drubbing Emory University 60-24.

However, the Seminole tankmen hit their peak last Saturday when they splashed past Georgia 44-38 in the Bulldogs home pool. Georgia had previously handed the tribe its only loss of the campaign here back in January, and at the moment appear as Florida State's chief hurdle for the Southern crown.

In addition to Georgia and Emory, the Seminoles have defeated Georgia Tech, Texas A&M, Northwestern Louisiana State and Jacksonville Navy base.

Much of the Indians success during the last half of the season can be attributed to the fine performances turned in by newcomer Ernie Stock, a freshman Royal Oak, Michigan.

Stock, who did not swim in the first meet with Georgia, excels in the individual medle event, and along with Georgia and Dick Wells forms the Seminoles record-breaking 100-yard medley relay team. The trio set new records in both the Georgia and Emory meets.

State's 300-yard medley relay team have broken both school and pool records in each of its last two meets. The team bettered the previous school mark of 3:05.7 last Saturday against Georgia by covering the distance in 3:02. Then against Emory here Monday the same trio shattered the mark with a 2:58.8 performance to set a new FSU pool and school mark in the event.

Volleyball Wanted As Intercollegiate

The State University of New York has launched a campaign to introduce volleyball as an intercollegiate sport. In its announcement colleyball group said.

"Most intercollegiate sports cannot be played as one grows old but volleyball players, like good cheese, improves with age."

The Florida State volleyball team only competes with noncollege teams, since none of the colleges in this section of the south sponsor volleyball.

Cagers Finish Regular Season With Victory

Beat Stetson, 83-79 For 13-9 Record

A 83-79 victory over Stetson gave a happy ending to Florida State's 1952-53 regular basketball season. The wto, paced by Ham Werneke's 24 points, was the second of the week for the Seminoles, as they upset Miami, 81-75, Monday night in the West Campus Gym.

Against Stetson, FSU held the lead throughout the game, except for the three times Stetson tied the score early in the game.

Stetson forward Jim Imgrund was high point man for the night with 26, followed by Werneke's 24. Behind Werneke, in the Seminole scoring column was frosh Jimmy Oler with 19 points and Jerry Westhafer and Duane Gordon each with 14 points.

MONDAY NIGHT, in the last home game of the season, the Seminoles fought a nip and tuck battle all the way before stagnig a short scoring slurge in the fading minutes to win 81-75. Triumph over Miami was the ninth achieved on the home floor and the 12th of the year. It also avenged the early season 93-65 victory by Miami.

Pacing the winners, was Ham Werneke who contributed 22 points, but he aided by the 20 points of six-foot-seven, Rick Benson and Westhafer's 19 and Oler's 18.

Sophomore Benson's performance was his best of the season and should brighten FSU's hopes in the NAIB tourney starting Saturday.

The high man for the evening was Miami's center, Howie Keene who netted 25 points.

Accuracy at the foul line was a big factor in the win as the Seminoles hit 21 of 34 while Miami could only post 15 of 34.

Girls' sports on campus.

There will be plenty of excitement Friday afternoon when the Odds and Evens have their first basketball scrimmage. These coeds have been working hard for the past few weeks, so they should play an outstanding game tomorrow afternoon. With such sharp shooting forwards as Jo Anne Young, Jo Anne Thorpe, Betty Ann Haynes, and Shirley Simpson, the Odds should pull some fancy plays out of the bag. Not to be outdone, the Evens will really be on their toes and their ace forwards such as Charlotte West, June McGill, Connie Stuart, Pat Crum, the Bassetts' and Virginia Peck, who will really be in there pitching.

In the guard positions for the Odds will be such top notch players as Sadie Presnell, and Joan Guard, while holding down this position for the Evens will be sensational guards as Doogie Mickler, Pat Folsom, Anne J. Winter and Myrt Herndon.

Tarpon Show Starts Monday

Tarpon will be presented during the week of March 2, and this year's theme will be Calendar Days. A number will be presented to represent every month of the year. These girls really deserve a lot of credit for the hard work which they have done in order to present a show of this kind for your entertainment.

Dr. E. N. Harvey Addresses Group On Biology Realm

The ability to emit light is characteristic of about 40 different groups of animals and two groups of the plant kingdom, bacteria and the higher fungi, Dr. E. Newton Harvey, Princeton University biologist, told a Sigma Xi audience here.

Dr. Harvey was introduced at the science honororary meeting by Dr. Francis Robert Hunter, head of the physiology department, who did his major work at Princeton under Dr Harvey.

"THERE APPEARS to be no definite evolutionary trend toward light producing animals, since one species may possess a luminous organ and a closely related species may be non-luminous," the speaker said.

Luminous animals are either marine or terrestrial he asid, adding there are two exceptions—the snail and fire-fly larva which live in fresh water.

SOME ANIMALS have developed lights of two or three different colors, Dr Harvey said. He cited a deep-sea squid observed alive only once as being patriotic with red, white and blue lights and the "railroad worm" of South America with a red light and two rows of yellow lights, giving the appearance of a train at night.

Scientists do not know the whole story of how animals use their built-in lights. In some instances, Dr. Harvey said, the lights attract sexes for mating, lure other animals for obtaining food, frighten away larger animals, and in the case of deep sea fish help them recognize each other.

EXCEPT IN bacteria or fungi where the luminescence is continuous, Dr. Harvey said light appears only after stimulation such as electrical or mechanical. In higher forms, he pointed out, nerves carry the impulse for stimulation—in the case of fish, the light is hormone controlled.

Vivien Postell Is Methodists' Guest

The Wesley Foundation will have as their special guest this weekend Miss Vivien Postell of Lakeland. Miss Postell is a graduate of Paine College in Augusta, Georgia, and now teaches the third grade in Lakeland.

Miss Postell will present a concert of religious, popular and spiritual music Saturday night at the student house. At Sunday School Sunday morning she will speak on "Higher Education for the Negro in Florida."

This project is being sponsored by the World Christian Community Committee with Carolyn Johnson as chairman and Mary Ann Sperry, Dot Cooke, Gloria Parrish and Joy Thornton as members. This committee brought Isaac Phillips, a student from India who was at Emory University, to the campus for a weekend last year.

Gymkana Performs in St. Pete

Two Shows to Be Given At Annual Charity Ball

By BOB GUTTING
Gym Team Sports Writer

This weekend the Gymkana Troupe, under the direction of Dr Hartley Price, will perform at the Annual Charity Ball being held in St Petersburg. The troupe will put on two performances. The first, on Friday, will be held at the St. Petersburg Colliseum and the second, on Saturday, will be held at the Vinoy Park Hotel Ballroom.

George Cary, director of recreation for the city of St. Petersburg and person in charge of obtaining acts for the Charity Ball was so impressed by a previous performance presented by Dick Gutting that he was especially enthusiastic about obtaining him for the ball. Gutting, better known as "Plastic Man" and holder of the National Collegiate Trampoline Title, does a sensational comedy routine that is well known throughout the country.

Other acts that will be presented at the ball will include the famed "Lunatics," spectacular trampolette act performed by Benny Wallace, Harmer Weichel and "Plas" Gutting, a rhythm tap by "Big Jim" Fadigan and Francis Stokes and a magic act, latest addition to Gymkana.

Francis Stokes, who performs the magic act, ends her show with an unbelievable feat of memory. She amazes the audience by reciting in order, 30 objects which the audience had called out at the beginning of the show.

Others who will accompany the Gymkana Troupe are Susi Jones, "Miss Gymkana" of 1952, who will preside over the program and Jamie Hudson, student manager.

In the ALL Around Championship held last Saturday, Bill Roetzheim placed first, Jack Miles, second, and Don Holder, third. It was mistakenly reported last Tuesday as Holder second and Pat Signorelli third.

Nothing-no, nothing-beats better taste

Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!

Ask yourself this question: Why do I smoke?

You know, yourself, you smoke for enjoyment. And you get enjoyment only from the taste of a cigarette.

Luckies taste better—cleaner, fresher, smoother! Why? Luckies are made better to taste better. And, what's more, Luckies are made of fine tobacco. L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike Means Fine Tobacco.

So, for the thing you want most in a cigarette . . . for better taste for the cleaner, fresher, smoother taste of Lucky Strike . .

GIRL GRAD GETS SAGE ADVICE

Career Girl Faces Budget Problems

Independence, budgeting, morals and the first steps of the new grad just turned career girl are discussed in the March Mademoiselle which poses the question "Can You Live on Your First Pay Check?"

To get the answers the magazine's Jobs and Futures Panel, (young newspaperwomen in twenty big cities around the country), interviewed over two hundred first jobholders from the class of '52 and got them to talk about their pay checks. From this survey there emerges a composite picture that jibes with what's been called the prosperous tenor of the times. Even so, according to Mademoiselle, being on one's own in a first job means scrimping some on everything or scrimping a lot on something. It's a budget-dominated life.

THE MYTHICAL typical '52 grad earns $49 a week before deductions. Sometimes she makes supporting herself easy by living at home where she contributes a nominal $10 a week toward household expenses. More usually, unless she's married, a girl in her first job lives at a boarding house or a girl's club. Or she shares an [illegible] but not attractively furnished apartment, which she hopes to pretty up, with three other girls.

Forty dollars a month is the standard outlay for rent as share of a shared apartment. Thirty to $35 goes for food, plus a few dollars more if our grad eats more than a stand-up lunch Clothes are a special budget bugaboo; the alloted $10 a month doesn't go far when you need new everything as many grads do. Most girls concede that they save on food to buy clothes. Or that they do without clothes to get to the theatre or to manage fix-it-up touches for the apartment.

IT'S A TREND among the very attractive to budget nil for entertainment. Men are friends and companions but also a means to movies, plays and concerts—even to a certain number of dinners out a week.

Struggle, however, is considered preferable to taking dole from home. Consensus is that after four years of college parents have paid long enough. And independence is a jealously guarded commodity. Less than half of even the girls away from home accept help of any kind from their families.

INDEPENDENCE on a first pay check is usually not declared. Never of the light-up-a-cigarette-on-a-street-corner kind, anyway. A girl may enjoy freedom from the pattern of life that's accepted in her own home town. But in general she keeps the same hours and the same morals that she'd keep at home. As one girl puts it: "The only difference is that this way I don't worry if I should get in late, for instance. I know I'm not worrying my parents."

There are no grand or rash claims about never calling on the family in emergencies, either. It's just that as much as possible first jobholders want to be on their own.

ACCORDING to Mademeiselle they feel that paying their way entitled them to make their own decisions. Some have the idea that both of these are good for them, like cod-liver oil or vitamins.

ODK To Sponsor 'Give Blood Day'

Omicron Delta Kappa will sponsor the "Give the Blood Day" which will be held Tuesday, March 10.

The Leon County Blood Bank stated that nurses would come out to the FSU Infirmary to take blood at the rate of two persons every mintue.

The purpose for the "Give the Blood Day" is to get enough faculty and staff and students at five minute intervals to bring forth the Faculty and Student Banks far above the 25-pint mark. If a 25-pint mark is obtained blood would be paid back on a one to one basis, instead of on the two to one basis which held true in the past.

Anyone willing to give blood is requested by Dr. Otis McBride to call extension 5381, Dean of Men's Office.

Educators Applaud Circus As Valuable FSU Activity

By JUNE MORGAN

Swinging on a trapeze or gliding through the air is as important a part of learning as textbooks and teachers, according to educators, who applaud the Florida State University Circus as a rich source of educational experience for its over 200 performers.

A performance of "Flying High" means two hours of thrills, laughs and entertainment and valuable learning situations the student troopers couldn't achieve in formal classes. Perhaps the greatest of these is the precise teamwork upon which the lives of the performers and the success of the show depends.

BECAUSE it is recognized as a worthwhile educational activity as well as a top flight public relation's booster, the touring circus has become a major highlight of the FSU campus.

Students from all divisions of the University take part in the aerial feats and comic reliefs that make up "Flying High." Going through the circus routines each day, they develop muscular control and balance, and could find no better means for keeping physically fit.

POISE AND personality are also among the rich rewards of concomittant learnings. Each year thousands of spectators from Miami to North Florida make up the audiences, before which the student artists perform. The presentation of the Circus involves all varieties of creative dramatics.

After long hours of training and practice, if they master their act and perform with style, they receive their only reward—applause, their recognition for a job well done.

COACH Jack Haskins, associate professor of physical education for men and director of the Circus says, "No matter how small the act, troupe members are always waiting backstage to congratulate performers upon their return to the dressing room."

"Flying High," with all its music, pageantry, drama and rhythm, provides a world of entertainment. But at the same time, the student acrobats, dancing girls and frolicking clowns are building invaluable living patterns that will help them take their place in the world after graduation.

THESE FOUR fraternities, according to George Heilman, counselor for fraternities, have been placed on social restrictions. This means that they will not be allowed to sponsor or participate in any social function during this semester.

The idea of social restrictions is not one just thought up by FSU, Heilman said. It is based on other universities, and some national fraternities even enforce social restrictions on their chapters if grade averages are low, he said. The National Inter-Fraternity Council also recommends social restrictions.

AS A WHOLE, fraternity men on this campus let their grade averages drop this semester in comparison with last. According to the record, the second semester, 1951-52, showed an overall average of 1.2055 to last semester's 1.0834.

The leading fraternity, Pi Kappa Phi had a 1.3738 then to its 1.4449 now. One week will be given for complaints. After that week grades will be mimeographed and sent to the national offices.

THE AMBER HOUSE

Dr. Richard Morse Conducts 'People and Juice' Research

Human guinea pigs aren't the easiest things in the world to experiment with when it comes to testing preference for citrus products.

Studies on this campus are proving that it's no small job to determine what types of orange juice people like best.

THE "PEOPLE and juice" research has been conducted during the past five years by Dr. Richard L. D. Morse, professor of family economics in the School of Home Economics. He's working now with nursery school children to determine what kinds of orange juice they like.

Finding an effective method for determining human beings' likes and dislikes in citrus juice is the important phase of Dr. Morse's study.

EXPERIMENTS are being financed by the Florida Citrus Commission and the FSU Research Council. Also cooperating is the Florida Citrus Experiment station at Lake Alfred. There the juice is packed to specifications of the researchers.

Sweetness and acidity of juice can be measured. Juices with thesetwo factors varying have been fed to FSU students and faculty families. The "human guinea pigs" reported their reaction to the juice taste in reports which Dr. Morse compiled and analyzed.

INDIVIDUALS in the tests did not know what type juice they were drinking. The cans were labeled with symbols that were meaningful only to those conducting the study.

In some respects human beings are not as reliable as rats or guinea pigs. They can't be caged and observed. "But scientists have trouble with the four-footed animals, too," adds Dr. Morse. "People who have been drinking juice for us have been most cooperative and we appreciate it," he remarked.

IN REGARD to the method of testing, Dr. Morse has drawn these conclusions: only a few juices should be tested at a time (too many juices confuse the "guinea pig"); time of drinking juice has little bearing on how individuals rate the taste, and by putting juices in households and having each family member rate the juice is a satisfactory method of research.

Panel Discusses Exceptional Child

The needs of exceptional children in the Tallahassee area were discussed by community leaders in a panel discussion Monday in the Caldwell Building Auditorium, during which three Florida State professors took part.

Dr. Ralph Witherspoon, professor of child development, gave a report of the constitution committee. Dr. Mary Kate Miller, professor of recreation announced preliminary plans for a proposed recreation project.

The discussion headlined a general chapter meeting of the capital area chapter International Council for Exceptional Children, according to Miss Marjorie Gretsch, assistant professor of psychology and president of the chapter.

Panel moderator was Capt Duane Greer, Salvation Army. Panel members are Dr. Joseph M. Bistowish, director, Leon County Health Unit; Rev. Vergil Gaither, president, Tallahassee Ministerial Association; Judge Lawrence W. Renfroe, Leon County Court, and Miss Bobbe Wheeler, representative, American Red Cross and former FSU student.

FSU And U of F Not To Combine

Attempts to consolidate Florida State University with University of Florida under president will fail. The statement was made Monday night by Kenneth Ballinger of this district at a dinner meeting of Pilot and Altrusa Clubs

A measure to bring the state-supported universities under one heading has been proposed this year by some legislative representatives from the standpoint that it would cut costs.

Ballinger said the 1953 legislature, which will meet in April, will probably not be able to justify such a move because harmful duplication of courses does not exist.

He said the State Board of Control is adequate to control three state institutions, FSU, University of Florida and Florida A&M, and that a chancellor would simply be a fifth wheel.

Date of Style Show Announced by Dames

The Program Committee of the Dames Club met Monday to discuss plans for the Style Show to be in the Suwannee Room March 11, at 8 p. m.

Faculty Wives will be guests for the evening.

Present at the meeting were Mrs. Eugene Lawler, Mrs. Dwight Goodner and Mrs Hugh Hinely, faculty advisors; Mary Asplund, president of the Dames; Jan Decker, program committee chairman; June Zintgraff, social chairman; Ann Dunning, Hazel Rudick, Wynelle Boyd and Barbara Hebert.

Box Office Opens For Speech Play

Tickets Go on Sale for Department's "Life of Man" Tomorrow at 10 a. m.

The box office for ticket sales for "The Life of Man" by Leonid Andreyev, will open tomorrow morning at 10. This third major speech department production will be presented in the Conradi Theater on March 6, 7, 9, 10.

The box office will be open through the days of production from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. The special student rate will be 40 cents

LYNN E. ORR, director of the play, says the production will prove to be something slightly different from the usual realistic dramatic production "The play," he says, "is an excellent example of symbolic writing. It will not be presented in a representational style, but rather in a non-real or presentational style of production."

"The Life of Man" will bring several invitations to the FSU theater. Among these are unusual lighting effects, both symbolic and expressionistic, musical effects, mask-like makeup and formalised costumes

"THE PLOY-DIMENSIONAL setting which has been designed for this production has made use of the concept of space and plasticity as dynamic factors in the production," says the director He also says that properties have been completely ignored. "These have been eliminated so that many extraneous objects will not be present to attract attention and thus detract from the mood and quality of each scene"

The movement will also be highly formal. The sudden "freezing" of characters, and the physical objectiveness of the breakdown of Man's mind in the final scene are all physical as well as objective expressions of the subjective moods and thoughts of Man

SETTING AND lighting will be designed by Charles I Reimer, with costumes and makeup by Douglas A Russell.

Andreyev, author of the play, is included in the group of dramatic writers just prior to and during the First World War who were to lead the drama into new directions. From these early beginnings, the nationalistic, the expressionastic, and the symbolic writers took their cue The influence of the style of writing found in "The Life of Man" is seen in the writings of Eugene O'Neill

PERHAPS THE best known play by Andreyev is "He Who Gets Slapped" which had a successful revival on the New York stage a few years ago

Members of the cast will be Dorothy Womble, Nancy Dickinson, Joanne Williams, June Mizell, Jayne Gardner, Robert Straoe, Charles Bogdahn, Lloyd Kay, Leah La Plante, William West, Suzanne Alford, Julian Hodge, Sara Margaret Davis and Delmar Hansen.

Senate Mulls Over All-Male Soph Council

The male counterpart of the Sophomore Council will be on the agenda of Men's Senate when they meet tomorrow afternoon in the Alumni building. Names for the nucleus group of Sophomores will be chosen.

Action on this organization was started by David Dreis who contacted Jim Dye, chairman of Men's Senate, and spoke before the male legislature The measure was voted in unanimously and a constitution was drawn up.

SINCE OCTOBER, the constitution has been held by the Organization Committee where the main conflict was the amount of members and the method of selection

Speakers before the committee explained the Senate's stand on the measure wherein they set the number at twenty-five. Committee members thought this number inadequate considering the number in the class. Spokesmen explained, "There are many men in the Sophomore class, but basing our selection on their Fresh-

Test Applicants Should Submit All Data Now

National Headquarters Announces Deadline As Midnight, March 9

National Headquarters of Selective Service today reminded college students that applications for the April 23, 1953 Selective Service Qualification Test must be postmarked not later than midnight March 9.

The deadline is necessary to allow the administrators of the test, the Educational Testing Service at Princeton, N. J., time to process the application and assign each applicant to the testing center, of which there are 1,000 requested by the student—or to the closest possible alterative center. This will be the last test given during the current academic year.

APPLICATION BLANKS may be obtained by students from the nearest local board. They do not have to return home to the local board which has jurisdiction over them.

To be eligible to take the Selective Service Qualification Test, an applicant, on the testing date (1) must be a selective service registrant who intends to request deferment as a student; (2) must be satisfactorily pursuing a full-time college course—undergraduate or graduate—leading to a degree: (3) must not previously have taken the test

MAJOR GENERAL Lewis B Hershey, director of selective service, has stated on a number of occasions that new regulations, which will substantially tighten the deferment criteria by raising the standards, are in the process of formulation because the limited manpower supply no longer justifies deferment of so many students and because veterans are now returning in sufficient

Forum Ponders Fate of Booze

"Arid" Campus Asks; "Is It All Worth It?"

"To drink or not to drink?" that is the question, for Wednesday night's UGA forum to be held at 8:00 over WFSU. This week's speakers will include four women and one man since it was felt that the question concerned the coeds primarily. Ellen Avis, senior, and President of Mortar Board, together with Helen Lawler and Dick Yeager, graduate students, Mary Lou Camm, and Pat Temple, undergraduates will discuss several phases of the liquor question.

Jan Arbogast, Forums Chairman and moderator for this question discloses that this will be one of the year's "hottest topics" designed to rouse the students from an apathetic attitude towards the observance of and underlying reasons for the rule against women drinking beer and other alcoholic beverages.

AFTER THE USUAL introductory opinions made by each speaker, the moderator intends to throw out several questions to the group as a whole. First, if beer and/or intoxicating liquor is not legally sold in the state or county how can the University permit its use on campus? Secondly if men students are allowed to drink beer, why should women not be? Why is it that the University of Florida's campus is so notoriously 'wet"?

How effective is the drinking rule on FSU's campus? Does widespread drinking among women students affect the reputation of the University? As a follow up to that last one: do you think drinking would be any more widespread if the rule were lifted?

Working Students Affected By Rule

Students working for the University will have to keep one eye on their marks next year, according to the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

Recently revised, the requirements for students to hold jobs starting next Fall say now that all student assistants will have to hold down a semester or overall average of "C" or go on probation till they pull it up.

THE NEW RULE does two things of major importance. First, it permits freshman women to work off-campus as soon as they register for their first semester at Florida State University. Before this, Frosh women weren't allowed to work off campus until their second semester. This move serves to equalize women and men students here

The second major change influences all students working for the university except freshmen. Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors employed by the University will have to maintain a "C" average overall to keep from going on a semester's probation. This is the general picture according to Harold Smith, Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

SMITH GOES ON, "There are two ways a student assistant can get off probation. (1) if he gets an overall average of C or better, he immediately goes off probation and keeps the job."

Smith cleared up this statement by saying that, for instance, this spring semester's average will be considered to determine the student's eligibility for work next Fall. From then on, the previous semester's grade average will be used to determine the

Sororities Tangle As Thetas Seek Powder Puff Win

Serious scrimmage sessions have become the order of the day for the Pi Phi Indians and the Theta Wildcats as they swing into their last two weeks of football practice before the traditional Powder Puff Bowl game Saturday, March 14 at the Hockey Field.

This year's clash will mark the sixth meeting between the two sororities. The Pi Beta Phis, who have suffered only one defeat in the series so far and who have been victorious in the last three games, are out to chalk up another win and stretch their string of victories to four straight.

THEY ARE BEING coached by Mac Huey who is assisted by Fred Hoover. Jean Nydegger, polished quarterback who guided the Pi Phis to victory last year and amazed spectators with her cool, deceptive ball handling, will call the Indian plays again this year.

Mike Sellers and John Karlowicz are coaching the Thetas who will be out for revenge and victory when the afternoon of March 17 rolls around. E. O. Holton, senior and veteran guard for the Theta team is shaping up again this year as the mainstay of the Wildcat forward wall and as the guiding spirit behind the Wildcat team

IN 1948, PI PHI took the first game of the series 18-0. Theta's lone win came in 1949 when they reversed the previous year's score in their favor. The Indians came back in 1950 to win 12-0, repeated in 1951 to the tune of 8-0, and then ecked out a 19-18 win in last year's thriller.

There will be no admission charged to see the game, but contributions will be accepted and all proceeds will go to the Campus Chest.

First Organ Recital In Opperman Hall Planned by Beard

The first faculty recital to be played on the Opperman Music Hall organ since it was moved from Westcott Auditorium will be presented Wednesday evening by Ramona Cruikshank Beard, associate professor of organ. The program will be at 8:15 p.m., and will be open to the public without charge.

This recital will present the first opportunity for the public to hear the organ in a formal faculty program since it was removed from Westcott and re-installed in Opperman Music Hall. The complex job of dismantling the organ and re-assembling and tuning it in its new location required several months last year.

Mrs Beard, soloist for Wednesday evening's program is a former dean of the Tallahassee Chapter of the American Guild of Organists, and active in AGO activities on a national scale. She has played organ dedication programs in Miami, St Petersburg, Gainesville, Winter Park and at the Ringling Museum in Sarasota.

Last year she presented an organ recital for the convention of the Southeastern Division of the American Guild of Organists She also presented three FSU students in the playing competition at the convention, the first time that FSU was represented in this event.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"Warthals Not a fast player, but there's a great piece of deception in the way he can swallow air."

College professors are becoming reluctant to speak on controversial issues, either on or off the campus. This was the opinion expressed recently at the Eastern Regional convention of the American College Public Relations association.

A panel discussing academic freedom charged that professors' unwillingness "to stick their neck out" has hit the campus hard and is proving harmful to higher education.

The New York Times quotes one of the educators present, Dr. Carrol Newsom, associate commissioner of education in New York, as saying that teachers are afraid of being labelled "red" or "pink." They tend to stay right in the middle of the road, playing it cautiously and safely.

The student council at Emory University is trying to decide whether or not membership in the National Student Association is profitable for a southern university.

The Emory Wheel put the dilemma this way: "Either to stay in the national organization along with the great universities of the North and East, which see far enough beyond the narrow confines of their own region . . . or to withdraw from the group and form a select circle of Southern Universities which . . . can remain in the cozy comfort of their little fireside corner and perpetuate the petty prejudices of their own region."

Ohio Wesleyan is up in arms because a recent poll of two women's dormitories showed 387 of the total 611 women had no dates on Saturday night.

The male editor of the Transcript, lamenting the apparent lapse of traditional one-to-one ratio, says "social pressures" at Wesleyan may have something to do with the situation.

"After two dates you are considered 'going together' and soon after people wait expectantly for the 'pin planting'," he says. "College men and women should be mature enough to enjoy casual dating without fearing or dreading the fate of 'getting serious'."

"The only trouble with getting to class on time," comments the Cavalier Daily, University of Virginia, "is that there is seldom anyone there to appreciate it."

Moscow university expelled 302 students during the last academic year for insufficient achievements. Fifteen were dropped because of unsatisfactory knowledge of Marxism-Leninism.

In a recent survey, the National Students Association found that out of 273 colleges polled, only 38 reported having some kind of honor system.

Convention Chooses President of FBLA

Juanita Davis was elected state president of the Future Business Leaders of America at the recent FBLA convention held on this campus. Annibel Kelsey, also an FSU student, was made treasurer. Other offices are held by high school students from over the state.

The convention was the third of its kind in Florida, and about 200 high school delegates attended. Special guests during the weekend were Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of FSU, Dr. A. B. Martin vice-president, Dr. J. Frank Dame, dean of the School of Business, and Dr. Glen Murphy, acting head of the business education department, who is state chairman of FBLA.

PRESIDING OVER the activities of the convention was Joan Simms, retiring president of the state-wide organization.

A workshop was conducted by Miss Gladys Peck, Louisiana State FBLA chairman, while Mrs. Annabella Jackson, faculty member of the Technical High School in Miami, presented problems of organizing an FBLA chapter as a realistic case to be considered in the workshop.

ENTERTAINMENT for the high school students included a picnic at Camp Flastacowo and a bus tour of Tallahassee and the FSU campus. Secty. of State R. A. Gray also arranged for the students to tour the Capitol. The convention was climaxed with a banquet.

Students who provided musical selections during the convention were Mrs. Viola Cater of the Tomlinson Vocational School, St. Petersburg; Sybil Furney, J. M. Tate High School, Gonzales; James Harris, FSU, Stevelyn Ausley, Ocala High School, and a brother trio composed of Bill, Benny and Mike Crews, Wauchula High School.

Walter Bunckstock English Professor Publishes Poetry

A book of 100 poems by Dr. Walter Blackstock, assistant professor of English, has just been published by the Wings Press.

"Eternity . . . how strange a permanence for fickleness to claim" is the ending for the title poem of the volume, "Call Back the Swallows."

A philosophical collection of poems, it covers a wide range of subjects including "The Suicide," "Return of a Veteran," "Serenity," "Through Spendthrift Blood," "For a Little Girl," "Music Heard Inside," and "By Prodigal Design."

A majority of the poems are objective, but "Old Houses" for example is given a subjective treatment.

Men May Apply For Draft Test

All men students who are looking for a way to escape the draft should apply for the College Qualification Test at the Local Board No. 11, 319 East Gaines St., as soon as possible.

The testing will be on April 23 by the Selective Service system. Students should fill out their applications and mail them immediately in an envelope provided. Applications must be postmarked no later than midnight, March 9, which is next Monday.

Regardless if the student is applying for the April 33rd test or a later one it will be to his advantage to file an application at once, says the Selective Service. The results of the test will be reported to the student's Selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student.

President Mary Ruth Summers of University Government has moved that the constitution be given back to the senate and for them to choose the nucleus group. All constitutional problems would be straightened out while the group is in progress. All agreed that there is plenty of work for the new council to tackle and it was assured by many Sophomore Council members that that group favored the organization as well.

student's status for the following semester's work.

"THE SECOND WAY the student can clear himself for work," Smith continued, "is to keep his current semester average above C even though his total cumulative average might not be a C.

"If this is the case," he states, "the student goes on probation for a semester, but still keeps his job for the semester and has a chance to bring up his cumulative up to C."

THE OFFICE stated the reason for this move has been the greater number of people applying for jobs at school. Right now there are 660 positions on campus worked by student help. To date this year, the office noted, there have been at least 1000 FSU students filling the openings, due to withdrawals from school, graduation and the like.

"Jobs on campus are filled usually 1½ to 2 times a year,' said Smith.

ANOTHER REASON for the move, noted Smith, is the fact that appropriations from the state board for student help payment haven't increased along with the greater number of applicants for jobs.

"Therefore we must be more selective," said Smith.

"COPIES OF the new regulations have been mailed out to all student workers and supervisors. The Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement urges all concerned to pick up copies in the Westcott office if they don't get them by mail.

numbers to take the places of college students drafted.

The G. I. Bill of Rights provides generous financial assistance to veterans just entering college or who had their college careers interrupted by service in the armed forces and who re-enter after completion of their active duty obligations. Regulations are issued by executive order of the president.

THE PRESENT CRITERIA for consideration for deferment as a student are either a score of 70 or better on the Selective Service College Qualification Test or class standing among the male members in the upper half of the freshman class, upper two-thirds of the sophomore class or upper three-fourths of the junior class. Seniors accepted for admission to a graduate school satisfy the criteria if they are among the upper half of the male members of their senior class, or they make a score of 75 or better. Students already enrolled in graduate schools may be considered for deferment so long as they remain in good standing. Presumably, these criteria will be tightened "all up and down the line."

The criteria are guides for the local boards. The local boards are under no compulsion to follow them, but any local board classification is subject to appeal. The appeal must be filed in writing with the local board within 10 days of the date the local board mails the notice of classification.

GENERAL HERSHEY has urged all eligible students to take the test so they will have scores in their files when the local boards reconsider their cases to determine whether or not they meet the criteria for deferment as students. He has emphasized many times that the present criteria are variables which may be raised or lowered either to increase or decrease the number of students as the national interest shall require.

General Harshey also has repeatedly stressed that no deferment is an exemption. "A deferment is a delay or postponement," he said, "and in no way cancels the duty of the registrant to meet his obligations. Liability of a college student for service remains until he is 35 years old."

MANY STUDENTS have been confused in differentiating between the I-S and II-S deferments. The II-S deferment is considered on the basis of class standing or qualification test and is discretionary on the part of the local board.

The I-S deferment, on the other hand, is provided for by the law. A college student ordered to report for induction while he is satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course is entitled to this I-S deferment until he finishes his academic year provided he has not had his induction postponed or been deferred as a student prior to Jan. 19, 1951. He may be given but one such deferment and it is incumbent upon him to notify his local board of his status when he receives the order to report for induction.

FSU Golfers Open Against Rollins Today

Veller Unveils Team; James, Hirt Return

Florida State University's golf team—looking forward to one of its best seasons—opens a 10-match slate against the Rollins College Tars in Winter Park today.

Tomorrow the Seminole shotmakers, coached by Dr. Don Veller, will compete in a triangular meet with Stetson and the University of Miami in DeLand. They'll round out a busy, first-week card in the Florida Intercollegiate tournament in DeLand, Thursday through Saturday.

Two lettermen return from the 1952 Tribe links squad that posted a 8-7 mark. The numeral winners are Jimmy James and Frank Hirt, both of Tallahassee.

Hirt, showing considerable improvement over his play of a year ago, was the surprise of Tallahassee's George Washington Birthday tournament in the opening rounds. Hirt was right up among the leaders before blowing sky-high in the final 28 holes Sunday.

Hi-Hatters Halt Seminole Cage Comeback

Stetson University's haughty Hi-Hatters, two-time regular-season losers to Florida State, halted a rags-to-riches comeback story and left Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminole basketeesr 13 points away from Kansas City by taking a 94-81 victory i nthe District 25 NAIA finale at DeLand Saturday night.

The Seminoles couldn't stop a 18-point, first-half scoring spree by Stetson's John Imgrund and lost the right to represent Florida and South Georgia in the National NAIA meet in Kansas City this month

FSU, WHICH had a meager 8-8 record before something transformed the Seminoles into Florida's hottest quintet in February, shocked Mercer in a first-round game Friday night to gain the final against Stetson.

Shooting for their 12th win against 10 defeats in the tell-tale playoff with the Hi-Hatters, the Seminoles were favored to cop the title on the basis of their two decisive victories over the DeLand dandies in the past two weeks. The Tribe had knocked over Stetson in the Hatter's gym as late as Wednesday

For a few fleeting moments in the opening stanza it appeared as if Coach Bud Kennedy's charges might turn the trick for the third straight time when they jumped ahead 2-0 on a double-decker by Jerry Weathafer and a foul toss by Jimmy Oler.

HOWEVER, the host Hatters weren't to be headed and came right back on four straight points by Jack Oksnee Oler contributed another foul shot and Westhafer hit again from the field to make it 6-4

Westhafer then popped with a one-hander from 30 feet out and Ham Wernke, who was the Indians high scorer with 23, added a free toss to run the count to 9-4.

But the Hatters turned on the steam, paced by Imgrund and towering center Jim Yonge, and pulled ahead 21-16 at the end of the quarter

BY HALF-TIME it was 49-37 and from then on out the two teams swapped shots for most of the final half.

Imgrund and company ran hot in the next few minutes and by halftime had jumped to a 49-37 margin over the Seminoles.

It was 71-55 at the close of the third period but the Seminoles managed to cut the lead to 10 points at one place in the final quarter.

Wernke ran his total for the season to 473 with Saturday's performance—20 short of Bob Hartman's all time mark of 493 set in 1951.

Westhaler made 17 eight in the final heat. Oler bucketed 14 and Tom Dellahan who came in late in the third period, got 12.

THE SEMINOLES swept into the final with an impressive 87-77 triumph over Mercer in the tournament opener Friday night.

Hammerin' Ham Wernke, who tossed in 30 points, paced a late Florida State rally that settled the issue with Mercer. Ham hit three fielders in a row in a 32-point fourth-quarter Seminole drive.

Duane Gordon had put the Seminoles ahead, 69-67, when Wernke hit his flurry

The shorter Mercer team out-rebounded FSU but had trouble with the Seminoles' tight defense around the basket Tom Mixon, Mercer's all-around senior star, bucketed 22 points to lead the Bears' losing efforts

IT WAS THE Seminoles' second and, of course, most important victory over Mercer this season The Bears entering the tournament the slight favorite on the basis of their '19-4 record during regular season play, were beaten by FSU by a single point in an overtime thriller in Tallahassee.

Jimmy Oler, with 14 points, and Gordon, with 12 were the main supporters to Wernke's scoring output against Mercer.

Doak S. Campbell Is Guest Speaker At YMCA Dinner

We need to teach the youth of America a wholesome respect for our government and our nation, Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of Florida State University, told members of the Pensacola YMCA in a dinner meeting Friday night.

"Constant emphasis upon what is wrong with the government tends to break down confidence in the government," the University president said.

HE ADDED that lack of confidence in the government destroyed the very roots of patriotic fervor.

"We must labor hard to foster an understanding of the character of government and its ideals," he said. "Then we must study the evils that endanger its proper operation so that the evils may be removed without danger to the life of government itself."

DR. CAMPBELL said young people may be effectively taught social and political ideals either true or false. He said this has been demonstrated in many places in the world during this generation.

The University president said social and political ideals once taught are extremely difficult to modify and their influence upon human welfare is far-reaching.

HE SAID: "All this leads me to conclude that progress can be made only by those who are actuated by a firm belief in the final triumph of right thinking a responsible action.

"The measure of our progress will be largely in proportion to the amount and the intensity of effort on the part of men and women whose lives are dedicated to the improvement of the world in which we live."

Running Previews Boda Compositions

A new group of compositoins for piano, "Three Preludes", by John Boda porfessor of piano was played for the first time Friday night by Joseph Running in his faculty recital.

Running's program included the "Toccata in G Major" by Bach, three preludes by Claude Debussy, and the "Sonatina" by Maurice Ravel, and the "Sonata in B flat Major" by Franz Schubert.

Georgia 'Slip' Costs Seminoles AAU Swim Title

A University of Georgia disqualification in the 400-yard relay cost Coach Bim Stults' Florida State University swimmers the Southern Regional AAU tank championship in a heart-breaking, crowd-pleasing meet in Atlanta Saturday.

Miami's powerful Hurricanes, boosted into the first-place spot in the 400 when a Georgia swimmer failed to touch the bank of the pool on a turn, edged FSU by a single point, 78-77, in what was probably the closest Southern AAU finish in history.

The Seminoles, entering the Atlanta competition with a splendid 7-1 seasonal mark, placed men in every one of the 10 events contested.

FOLLOWING MIAMI and Florida State in the final tabulation was Georgia's Bulldogs, who compiled 62 points, most of them on the record-breaking strokes of sensational Reid Patterson.

Patterson, leading a desperate Bulldog bid for the title, was easily the meet's outstanding swimmer. He set two records, one of them a national mark

Patterson lowered the 150-yard backstroke time to 1:35 0 in afternoon trials, snapping a 1947 mark The other record was the 50-yard freestyle, his specialty, when he was timed in :23.1.

Florida State swimmers won two first places, finished second three times and had five third-place wind-ups.

The Seminoles sprinted home first in the 400-yard freestyle relay (Wells, Ray, Baruch and Stock) and in the 200-yard backstroke (Coopre).

Grid Ducats Dip; Not for Students

Reserved seat tickets for each of Florida State University's six home football games next fall have been reduced to $2.50, Dr. Howard Danford, FSU director of athletics, has announced.

That $2.50 ducat price is $1.15 less than reserved seats for four of last year's Seminole home games, which sold for $3.65. Tickets for two '52 games were $2.50.

Adult general admission ($1.85) and student general admission ($.95) will remain the same, Danford said. But box seats will go for $4 a reduction of $1 from last season's box-seat purchase price.

Season tickets for the six 1953 home games, which include meetings with Louisville, Abilene Christian, VMI, Furman, Stetson and North Carolina State, will again be offered at $15.

Tickets go on sale June 1, according to Ralpo Matherly, FSU business manager of athlatics.

V-Ball Champs Capture Fame

In what was probably their most outstanding showing of the season, FSU's volleyball team captured the Florida AAU championship at Miami's Jackson High School Saturday

Jacksonville's Cecil Field finished third and St Petersburg closed fourth in the one-day, sudden-death tournament.

Pacing the Indians were Ronald Hambrock Dick Bagge, Jim Couch, Howard Gould and Wallace Cox

Hambrock, a 1952 All-America volleyball selection, and Gould were named to the all-tourney team chosen by AAU officials Other tournament all-stars were Ralph Miller and Jack McCollum of the runner-up Miami team, George Winchell of St. Petersburg, and Ralph Callahan of Jacksonville Navy.

Naval Recruiters From Jacksonville To Visit Campus

Coming to the Florida State University campus April 7, 8, and 9 will be Lieutenant R. E. Hanna, Naval Aviation Cadet Procurement Officer, and his assistants, from the Jacksonville Naval Air Reserve Training Unit. Lieut. Hanna will be available to talk to individuals and groups interested in Naval and Marine aviation.

Several thousand young Americans are trained annually as Navy pilots at the "Annapolis of the Air," in Pensacola, Fla. A candidate for Navy flight training must have passed his 18th but not his 27th birthday.

HE MUST not have received orders to report for actual Selective Service induction He must be unmarried and remain so until commissioned. The prospective cadet must have completed a minimum of two years of college and be in excellent physical condition

In addition to passing a physical exam, he must pass aptitude tests and be selected by a screening board, which reviews the qualifications of all applicants. The entrance requirements are stiff, but the Navy prides itself to the selection of top level collegians for its Naval Aviation Cadet Training Program.

THE NAVY has always encouraged young men to stay in college as long as possible but when the time comes to make the decision about one's own military future, the Navy offers an opportunity for college trained men to join the ranks of its Naval airmen as commissioned officers. This opportunity is the Naval Aviation Cadet (NavCad) program.

Interested Girls Visit Campus for Weekend

Five Hillsborough High School girls from Tampa were weekend visitors at Florida State University where they were guests in Reynolds dormitory Friday and Saturday nights.

Patricia Wathen, Shirley Thornhill, Ruth Auliek, Mary Berkham and Barbara Bass were the girls. The first four are interested in education and music, and plan definitely to enter FSU in the near future. Barbara, however, whose major interest is art, is still undecided about her educational future.

The girls talked to faculty members and students, and were taken on a tour of the campus by a staff member of the FSU Public Relations Office.

WOMAN WAR VETERAN

Former WAC 2nd Lieutenant Works Now For 'Master's'

Women veterans of two world wars . .

Few women can claim title to a description like that. But it fits Mrs. Mary Nunez Ten Eick of Tampa, a graduate student at Florida State University in Tallahassee.

WITH THE SAME vigor and energy she used to nurse soldiers through the World War I flu epidemic, Mrs. Ten Eick won the rank of second lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps in World War II. Now she's working toward her master's degree in library science at FSU. Her next goal is to become a military technical librarian.

A native of Tampa, Mrs. Ten Eick went to an eastern school for her college training. Interested at first in mathematics, she later became so fascinated by other subjects that she switched to pre-medical courses, graduating in 1916

THE NEXT MOVE was enrollment in the Army School of nursing degree when influenza made its killing sweep. She herself caught the flu and cheated death by just a few breaths.

That illness, plus the old-fashioned attitude against women in the Army, caused Mrs. Ten Eick to leave the school before completing her training.

THE PERIOD between wars was spent in teaching in Tampa and New Jersey. Along with social work and Red Cross activities came the task of rearing two sons. One boy is now serving in the National Guard and the other in the Air Force.

In 1941 she joined the Women's Army Auxiliary Corp. Thus began 21 months as a private. Most of that time she was stationed in New York working for the Port of Embarkation Postal Officer. She spent some time too with the interceptor command at Miami.

THE DEMAND for women in the Army was growing and in 1942, after passing stiff tests, Private Ten Eick was admitted to the WAC Officers' Candidate School at Des Moines, Ia. She completed the required training there and upon receiving her lieutenant's bars was assigned to Kelly Field, Texas, as administrative officer in charge of property.

Her superior officer, a colonel, turned out to be, she says, "A nice lad I had taught in Tampa."

SINCE THE WAR's end, she she has served as president of the Florida Federation of Garden Clubs, state director of the Florida Historical Society, and Commander of the Tampa Women's Post of the American Legion. She holds an Army reserve commission as second lieutenant.

In 1950 Mrs. Ten Eick wrote and published a 108-page pocket-size book, Florida Plant Check-list. It contains names and scientific facts on 4,200 plants "grown, shown and known in Florida."

MRS. TEN EICK'S description of her work in the armed forces is an indication of the attitude that has made her outstanding: "I didn't go in the Army for glory—just to do a job."

Round-Trip Sailings to Europe Announced by Travel Council

The Council on Student Travel (179 Broadway, New York) announced today two major round-trip sailings to Europe for students and teachers this summer.

The S. S. AROSA KULM, which made several trips last summer for the Council, will sail from Quebec for London, Le Havre and Bremerhaven June 9 and July 4, return sailings will leave Bremerhaven August 11 and September 2 for London, Le Havre and Quebec.

THE COUNCIL also has reserved space for students and teachers on a number of other sailings of the AROSA KULM from May through September, and bookings are now being made on all these sailings.

One-way fares on the AROSA KULM are $150 for space in space in dormitories for six to 14, and $160 and $165 for space in cabins for two, three and four.

THE AROUSA KULM, which is an all-tourist class vessel, was used for several Council sailings last year. Since that time it has been remndeled, making the space more adaptable for student travel. The loung space has been doubled and a sports deck has been added. The overall capacity of the ship has been reduced to $850 spaces. Dormitories have been rdeuced in size: they contain from four to 14 births, with the average containing six to eight berths. There are some 60 cabins for two.

As in past years the Council will sponsor an educational and recreational programs for student travelers. The educational program on the eastbound voyage is directed toward orienting students to Europe, and includes language classes, discussions on European history, politics, art, and culture. On the reutrn voyage students will discuss and evaluate their summer experiences.

THE COUNCIL furnishes a library, a collection of records, both classical and popular, sports and game equipment, and a selection of movies. In addition to the traditonal shipboard pastimes such as chess, checkers, bridge, pingpong and shuffleboard, there will be movies, dancing, talent shows, and many other special programs.

The Council on Student Travel is composed of 37 national educational and religious organizations, and its purpose is to encourage and facilitate international student travel. Since 1947 the Council has provided special transportation to Europe for students and teachers during the summer when low-cost accommodations of regular transportation facilities were overcrowded. The member organizations of the Council, many of which sponsor educational programs abroad, beleive that student exchange is a sound method of building international understanding.

Emory Committee Invites Students To Adopt Orphans

Florida State University has been invited by an Emory University student committee to join in a national student drive for assistance to war orphans under the Christian Childreo's Fund, according to recent announcement by Bill and Nita Hinley, theology students at Emory.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinely are chairmen of the voluntary student committee for the Christian Children's Fund Richmond, Va.

THE STUDENT committee at Emory began operation two years ago, and through "penny a meal" contributions has raised almost $400 toward support of children in Korea, India, and Italy. The "adopted" children of the Emory group now include an Italian boy, and a Korean boy and girl. Pictures and reports on the youngsters are sent regualarly to the foster "parents" by the C.C.F

"We have found so much satisfaction in our project that we believe other students will wish to join to a national movement," declares Hinely "Any student church group, campus club, or fraternity or sorority, can 'adopt' a war orphan. An overseas child can be supported for only $10.00 a month. What finer step can young people take in promoting world understanding and brotherhood than in helping to save these children?" continues the committee chairman.

THE CHRISTIAN Children's Fund is endorsed by the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A., and by such individuals as Dr. Daniel Poling, Faith Baldwin, and Senator Claude Pepper.

Groups wishing to take action in setting up a project similar to that at Emory are asked to write Bill and Nita Hinley, 892 St. Charles Ave., N. E., Atlanta. For more information on the "adoption" of war orphans, write Christian Children's Fund, China Building, Richmond 2, Va.

Weekend Performances End Tarpon Show's Run

Tickets Are Necessary To Attend Friday and Saturday Night Production

The Tarpon Club cast of "Calendar Daze" will end its week-long production tonight and tomorrow night at 8 in the East Campus Pool. This will be the final Tarpon production of the year.

Students wishing to attend the weekend performances of the water ballet production should pick up free tickets at the office of Dr Katherine Montgomery, of the women's physical education department. Tickets are necessary because of initial seating capacity.

THE COSTUMES for the show were planned by a committee headed by Nancy Black and Nancy Herold, but the girls received outside aid in the costume construction. Several campus coeds joined in the sewing circle to create the necessary garbs. Along with costume the swimmers have been sporting new Jantzen bathing suits.

For the first time in the history of FSU's Tarpon Club, underwater speakers are being used. "The mikes" enable the performers to hear the music while stroking beneath the water surface. Also the novelty is a means by which swimming can be directed under water—unknown to the audience.

THE SPEECH DEPARTMENT provided the lights which are used as the curtain between acts, and as mood creators during the show. "The former — blackout method" according to Tarpon President Betty Lou Wharton, is the only way that the girls can scamper backstage without being seen. The darkness, however, makes it rather difficult to arrange props and to remove them from the pool edges."

The props themselves often become obstacles interfering with the smoothness of production. One particular problem solved by the club was the support of the May Pole. Since underwater reinforcements were almost an impossibility three of the Club's Minnows became the supporting

EVEN THOUGH the Tarpon has suffered the usual backstage worries common to any [illegible] the members feel that as a whole, the club has improved in its methods of presenting [illegible] portrayed in water.

The Tarpon president remarked the goal of better synchronized swimming has been reached in "Calendar Daze." "The cooperation of the cast has made the wide variety in strokes possible. The entire group has advanced in aquatic skill."

NOT ONLY the members of Tarpon have contributed to the seasonal acts of the show, but also the male lead of the Duet [illegible] emerged to swim the [illegible] role in the show. He is Jim Jindra, president of Ca-[illegible]. Miss Frances Hall, instructor in women's physical education, is faculty sponsor.

THE TARPON CLUB was founded on Florida State's campus nearly 16 years ago—April 1937. It was organized for the purpose of promoting an active interest in aquatics. Since that date, the club has become known throughout the country.

In 1938 the Tarpon girls were featured in a Grantland Rice Sportlite film entitled "Acquatic Rhythms." In 1941 the coeds swam before the MGM cameras, and the following year the Fox Movietone lenses were focused upon their water ballet.

TODAY THERE are 24 members in Tarpon and 17 Minnows. The girls are already making plans for staging future pool productions. In the meantime they will sum up the year's chlorine dips with the finale "Calendar Daze"—each night at 8:00.

Students without tickets may [illegible] remaining seats after 7:45 p.m.

Broward Culpepper Elected Chairman Of Joint Committee

J. Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare at Florida State University, has been elected chairman of the Joint Committee of the National Education Association and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Dr. Culpepper, who served previously as chairman in 1951, will assume the duties of the chairmanship again for the year 1953.

THE COMMITTEE works at the national level in coordinating activities of the two national organizations in meeting the needs of students and in improving the schools of the nation.

In its program for 1953, Dr. Culpepper said the committee will sponsor at the state and local levels joint action with regard to the following activities:

Interpreting to the public the contributions being made by the public schools to the growth and development of democracy so that present unjustified attacks upon education may not succeed.

SUPPORTING SELECTIVE teacher recruitment so that the shortage of teachers in elementary and secondary schools may be met.

Sponsoring and encouraging wider participation in civil defense programs across the nation.

Encouraging the improvement of audio-visual materials for use in the schools.

FSU's Campus Drive For Blood Gets Underway

Omicron Delta Kappa is holding a blood drive Tuesday for students, faculty and staff.

Anyone wishing to contribute should go immediately to the office of Dean of Men Otis McBride to sign up for an appointment. Those under 21 years of age should sign as soon as possible, as they must obtain parental permission before they can give blood.

DEAN McBRIDE has set up a calendar in his office indicating five minute intervals from 8:30 a. m. on the afternoon. Those who do not have time to come by for an appointment may telephone.

There are separate banks for students and faculty, but both come under the title of the FSU Blood Bank. The families of faculty and staff can also draw from this bank, and for this reason, faculty and staff especially are urged to contribute.

STUDENTS WILL be building up their own bank account. No one can use this blood but students. In case a student is in another state when he needs blood, blood from the FSU bank can be transferred to the hospital there.

The Blood Bank now has about 25 pints, and if the blood is kept at this amount, citizens will be allowed to use the blood on a one for one replacement basis. In the past the blood bank operation has been that each pint used be replaced by two pints because of expense and other such factors.

THIS HAS created a situation such as if 20 pints were on deposit and four were used, eight donors had to be secured to get back to the original 20.

The aim of this blood drive is to keep the blood bank at 25 pints to keep the operation on a one for one basis. One hundred to 75 people are needed for donations. Appointments will be scheduled for two for every five minutes. The Blood Bank will bring the equipment and nurses to handle the situation rapidly, and there will be enough Infirmary beds to handle the load.

FSU Students Officially Meet Football Coach

Men's F Club Stages Welcoming Pep Rally To Honor Tom Nugent

A "Meet the Coach Night" has been set for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Music Amphitheater. During this time Tom Nugent, Florida State's new head football coach, will officially meet the student body.

Nugent will ask the students for their support in the coming football season in the program sponsored by the Men's F Club.

AT VIRGINIA Military Institute, home of the southern Keydet, his teams were noted for the sharpness and military precision with which they hit, the abandon and efficiency with which they made passes; the famous "I" formation, invented by Nugent himself and later adopted by Notra Dame; the "typewriter buddle," also a product of Nugent's imagination, and the "double-quarterback," devised by Nugent.

With Nugent will be Vince Ragunas, former college star at the Institute and pro halfback, Vauhn Mancha, Tom Harbinson, Tom Robertson and Bill Armstrong.

THE UNIVERSITY Marching Chiefs will play for half an hour before the rally begins at 7:30. The cheerleaders, the football team and all F Club members will also be present. Every organization is asked to cancel any meetings scheduled for Tuesday evening.

Opportunity Knocks For FSU Students Seeking Positions

Representatives from at least nine business and industrial firms will visit the campus during the month to recruit men and women for almost every type of work from stenographic to nuclear physics.

ON THURSDAY of this week a representative from Liberty Mutual Insurance Company was in the Placement Office to interview men for positions as claims adjusters. Today a representative from the Naval Reserve Laboratory in Washington, D. C., will talk to Seniors and graduate students in the areas of chemistry and physics.

Speech Department Gives Andreyev's, "Life Of Man"

Play Opens Tonite in Conradi Box Office Sells Tickets Daily

The Third Community Series Play of the department of speech, "The Life of Man" by Leonid Andreyev, goes into its opening night tonight at 8:15. The play will run through tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday.

Tickets, which cost 40 cents for students, should be purchased in advance to insure prompt seating and to prevent the necessity of having to stand in line at the box office at curtain time. All seats are reserved.

THE BOX OFFICE is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Director Lynn E. Orr said that patrons are cautioned to be on time in order to see the entire play. Because of the nature of the drama, he said, no late-comers will be seated during the Prologue.

The play, says Orr, is an "excellent example of symbolic writing." Unusual lighting affects will be used, as well as mark-like makeup. Also different will be the highly formal movements of the actors, with sudden "freezings." Properties will be ignored so that they will not detract from the mood of the play. Music will also be used.

SETTINGS AND lighting are by Charles I. Reimer, with costumes and makeup by Douglas A. Russell. Members of the technical crew are William Peterson, sound; Lee Hildman, Tom Lewis and Carolyn Briles, lighting; Leah La Plante, stage manager, and Sharon Lana, house manager.

Actors and actresses are Robert Strane, Dorothy Womble, Nancy Dickinson, Jayne Oardner, June Mizell, Joanne Williams, Charles Bogdahn, Lloyd Kay, Leah La Plante, Suzanne Alford, Julian Hodge, Sara Margaret Davis, Delmar Hansen and William R. West.

ANDREYEV, author of the play, is included in the group of dramatic writers just prior to and during the First World War who were to lead the drama into new directions. This has led to the impressionistic, nationalistic and symbolic trends in playwriting. This influence is shown in part in the writings of the noted playwright, Eugene O'Neill.

"He Who Gets Slapped," also by Andreyev, has had a successful comeback in New York recently. The play which will be produced on the FSU campus depicts also the physical objectiveness of the breakdown of Man's mind, as well as the objective expressions of the subjective moods and thoughts of Man.

Presidents Made Members of IFC

In a sweeping reorganizational move, the Inter-fraternity Council voted its regular representatives out of office and replaced them with the individual presidents of the fourteen fraternities.

Reasons for this sudden change were apparent apathy and incompetency on the part of many of the representatives to handle fraternity problems a spokesman said. The new council met for the first time Wednesday evening, elected temporary officers and set about completion of reorganization and planning of the IFC State Capers coming up next month.

THE NEW TEMPORARY chairman of the Council is Floyd Fogle of Sigma Nu. He replaces former President Don Waters who was automatically ejected from office since he is not the president of his fraternity, Theta Chi. Bob Ducker of Sigma Chi is secretary, and Bill Skipper of Theta Chi, treasurer.

A Constitutional Revision Committee was set up headed by Jim Ball of Kappa Alpha, and a similar committee to study much needed revision of rush rules is headed by C. M. Booth of ATO. Action taken by the new Council included adoption of a resolution to facilitate collection of overdue bills by fraternity treasurers. Under the new plan, the presidents of the respective fraternities can submit a statement of the bill and the name of the debtor to the Office of Personnel records.

THIS STATEMENT will be attached to that person's permanent record, and will prevent any letters of recommendation being sent until such time as the bill is paid and the statement removed. Plans are also getting under way for this year's State Capers. Dance committees will be set up next week, Fogle announced.

It is hoped that the presidents of the various fraternities will provide IFC with much needed leadership, the spokesman continued. The ability of these men, who are the leaders in their individual groups, to cope with the many problems that arise in the Council should facilitate co-operation and efficiency where these have been lacking in the past.

The Presidents and their fraternities are: C. M. Booth (ATO), Haywood Taylor (DTD), Jim Ball (KA), F. Malcolm McMullen (KS), Bill Suttlemyre (LCA), Buddy Leynes (PDT), Joe Mills (JKT), Jack Williams (PKA), Warren Harper (PKP), Ronald Pickett (SAE), Bob Ducker (SC), Floyd Fogle (SN), Ernie Laroche (SPE) and Bill Skipper (TC).

Poll Of Campus Is Ready Now

Garnet And Gold Clubs Study Student Answers

Comments which students wrote on the Student Information Questionnaire taken last semester will undergo a study starting tomorrow morning by the joint efforts of Gold Key and Garnet Key, men and women's leadership honoraries.

Gold Key had begun work on a student opinion poll and so had the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs. The two were combined into the one which the students took and which was financed by the University.

AT A MEETING of the two organizations Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Ralph Witherspoon, professor of psychology, spoke on how the honoraries could help in FSU's study of itself through student eyes.

He reported that every responsive item for every student had been put on different cards. This, he said, necessitated new IBM machinery and even additional temporary help. About 5,400 students took the opinion test, and work has just been completed on the compilation of the selective answers.

THE JOB at hand now is to analyze the written comments and divide them according to their subjects, and into favorable, unfavorable and positive suggestions. Dr. Witherspoon suggested that the group put the most interesting comments into a separate pile. He said it takes the full time of one person two weeks just to read the written comments.

By Wednesday of next week tabulations of all responses by sex and classification, Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and Senior, should be completed, Dr. Witherspoon estimated. He also said that there are approximately 18 different phases of the opinion poll, such as University Government Association, student publications etc.

DR. WITHERSPOON said that although some individuals took the poll lightly — one person wrote, "whenever you get ready to have another questionnaire like this you can stick it in your ear"—most students seem to answer honestly and seriously.

"One interesting point is that there are lot of things with which the people are satisfied," the professor said. "I would assume in the final report, that it would be interesting to have some typical comments," he said.

TED STEINMEYER, president of Gold Key, said the original intent of the survey was that "we wanted to get comments about trouble spots and give them to those groups responsible."

The two organizations had originally planned to help in the analysis of all the polling, but enough money budgeted by the University to the project was left to tabulate the selective responses.

A GROUP of Garnet and Gold Key members will begin tomorrow at 9 a. m. to read the booklets.

If you can call 11 stories a skyscraper, then Florida State University will have one by April, according to the school's Executive Board.

Tons of steel, concrete and bricks have gone into the building of the largest, most modern men's residence hall this campus has ever seen. Rough figures on the total cost are put at slightly over $1,400,000 by the board, who note that this figure, divided by the 565-odd men to be housed there, shows an "amazingly low cost for dormitory construction."

DESIGNED to give maximum space in the smallest amount of area, the individual rooms feature such innovations as built-in bunk beds of concrete and separate closets, one for long clothing and one for short items.

"Utilization of space has been foremost with the architects," stated John Blackburn, head counselor for the dormitory. "We all agree they have done a fine job of it, too," he added.

THE BEDS are built so that cutaway view of two walls would show an "S" shaped figure, with the bed on one room's wall built into the upper part of the wall. On the other side of the wall, in the next room, the bed is recessed into the lower part of the wall.

"Many have shuddered at the thought of sleeping on a concrete 'slab' as they call it," Blackburn said. He added the "slabs" should be mighty comfortable, however, with a 4½ inch foam rubber mattress covering them.

MEN LIVING in the new dorm will have a closet for their coats and longer articles of clothing and one for their trousers and shorter apparel.

"This may seem a little extreme," stated Blackburn, "but actually it's saving a tremendous amount of space and money in the long run.

"This same dormitory, built like others on campus, Men's Senior Hall, for instance, probably would house only about 250-odd men," he added.

THE LATEST addition to the mushrooming 50-year plan at FSU offers such services as a library-lounge on the 10th floor containing magazines, newspapers and periodical material. The sun deck on the roof will provide men a penthouse atmosphere, while the main floor will feature a complete snack-bar and fountain seating 36 at a time. At latest reports the food operation will be handled by the FSU Food Department and will serve approximately the same type of foods as the other service areas.

The set-up of the new dorm is broken up into three administrative units, according to Blackburn.

"Floors three, six and nine are built with a head monitor's office and room," he said, "with a large lounge on each of these floors." He added there is a lounge on every floor but these last three are larger, making them administrative focal points for the three floors in their section.

THE BUILDING contains two passenger and one service elevator set up to stop at the 1st, 3rd, 6th and 9th floors. Blackburn said the board did this to give better service and "cut down on night stops."

A typical room in the new dormitory contains a lavatory, double chest of drawers, bookshelves, a storage cabinet, a double desk, the built-in beds and the two closets. "Even the furniture has been designed with saving of space in mind," said Blackburn. "Everything that can be condensed and doubled up without sacrificing ease is made into one unit."

MANY A DISMAYED sigh has been heard from students looking off into the distance distance at the new building farthest of any yet from the main part of East Campus. Blackburn noted that bicycles will be encouraged with expansion of the campus. There is a ramp and garage beneath the rear of the dorm especially designed for bicycles. However, there will be bus service at all times from the dorm to campus," he said.

Official announcement of the opening of the new building will be made by the Executive Board later in the semester. It is certain, however, that the building will house a good share of FSU's men students by next Fall.

REJOICING OVER STALIN'S DEATH IS MISTAKE

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Joseph Stalin has so long been a symbol of what Americans fear, mistrust and misunderstand that news of his being near death or dead will typically cause a feeling of relief and even pleasure in this country. If anything, it should rather cause apprehension.

I personally would not mourn the passing of the man. In many ways, Stalin doubtless has been involved in an effort to improve the material welfare of the Russian people, but the evil he as the leader of the Communist movement has done both to his country and to the world far outweigh these accomplishments. He has been a ruthless dictator.

It would be naive to subscribe to the "big man" theory in the case of Stalin, as so many Americans do, however. That is, it is foolish to assume that all the problems Communism has brought to the world are the specific work of one man or even one group of men. The cultural forces which made inevitable the birth of Communism are no less strong today. The social revolution which is sweeping much of the world today will indeed give Communism much fertile soil unless this struggle is provided with other means of fruitition.

In any case, Communism is not going to collapse overnight because one man, no matter how strong, is gone.

Many people feel the scramble for power which will follow the premier's death will result in an internal chaos beneficial to the United States. This is possible. Certainly there will be confusion in Russia. It is impossible, even in so regulated a dictatorship as we are led to believe the USSR is, to have unanimity on policy, and the many purges of the past as well as the program of the present lead one to surmise that much disagreement is going on in the higher echelons of Communism.

But it is far more likely the changes that will come will be more in personnel than in policy. It seems only reasonable to assume that the regime which eventually gains the upper hand will have fairly much the same attitude toward the United States as has had Stalin's.

And a very great danger is that the struggle for power will result in what history shows us to be one of dictator's favorite tricks: Creation of an issue, a "cause," to divert attention and accomplish conformity.

The process follows this sort of pattern: If one group wishes to gain power but faces a strong opposition, it must not only combat the opposition but convince the people the latter group is "evil" or "disloyal." This is accomplished by use of the red herring, such as the danger of an attack from an outside nation.

This not only unites most of the people by virtue of their patriotic emotions but also providea a "valid" excuse for eliminating the opposition They use the logic that those who do not like the government automatically are traitors supporting the enemy nation (or idea).

Anyone familiar with the tactics of a Napolean or a Hitler or a McCarthy should recognize the method.

So there is a very real danger that party strife in Russia could actually put us nearer the precipice of war or even over it.

Stalin's demise should, then, not only NOT be a cause for rejoicing but indeed cause us to keep a wary eye on the Soviet.

"Mademoiselle" Guest Editor Visits Florida State Campus

By JUNE MORGAN

Ohio farm girl wins place on MADEMOISELLE staff, is the headline that would sum up the success story of friendly flame-haired Rachel Mellinger who stopped off at Florida State University last weekend on her goodwill tour as Mlle. ambassador.

A GUEST EDITOR in '51, Miss Mellinger returned to the magazine's Colleg Board Department after graduating from Radcliffe last June. Her Florida tour which included University of Miami, Rollins College, Stetson, Florida Southern College and FSU is an attempt to interest more girls in the annual College Board Contest.

She grew up on a farm in Springfield, Ohio, and for a while in college professed a desire to teach. Graduated from Radcliffe with a degree in English and History, her job with MADEMOISELLE as Campus Reporter, means spending time visiting the nation's colleges and writing profiles about selected campuses. Her article describing life at the University of Michigan in the February MADEMOISELLE was a first long assignment.

In an informal interview, she related her experiences as a College Board Contestant in 1951. A Junior then in college, sha had no journalism experience or art talent but believes she was chosen for submitting several catchy ideas as part of the three assignments each contestant must complete.

STACKED away among the files in her tiny Madison Avenue office, the catchy cover idea she turned in still reminds her of the year of assignments that won her a place as a guest editor. Winning the contest meant spending June in New York, making contacts, living with the other 10 coed guest editors representing colleges from all parts of the country, attending pre-season fashion shows, cocktail parties, receptions, and doing all the tasks involved in getting the Colelge Edition to press. Besides all the excellent experience and invaluable contacts, the twenty guest editors collected regular weekly salaries.

Rachel still laughs about the cover design she turned in. It was in the days of "FLAIR" magazine, and being an impressionable coed, she cut a hole in her design. She couldn't draw, but had a worthwhile fashion idea, so made a tiny figure of copper wire and draped her creation on it. It was just a coincidence that the middy style she suggested several years ago became the last word in the boxy silhouettes of fall '52.

USUALLY only one coed is selected to represent each college or university, according to Rachel. Those who do not win the first year are automatically members of the board as long as they are in college. If several girls of superior ability apply from one college, they are usually both placed on the board. She said University of Michigan has eight college board members this year.

She urged all the girls she chatted with to write a criticism when the contest opened next fall and thus tryout for the board in her tour of the campus she visited several English department classes, and was very much impressed with the Shakespearean and Creative Writing Classes she observed.

IN ALL her talks she stressed naturalness and that "one doesn't have to be peculiar to get along in New York."

She told anecdotes about unusual as well as fantastic ideas she comes across when grading the 700 assignments of this year's board. One girl wrote a vehemenent letter accusing the Mlle staff of neglecting the girls of the Pacific West Coast immediately after a whole edition had been devoted to that very part of the country. Also, she mentioned the many ideas that were snitched directly from previous editions of the magazines and warned prospective College Board members to at least consult older issues of Mademoiselle when plagiarizing ideas.

THIS YEAR'S crop of concontestants is heavy with talented fashion designers and cartoonists, but lacks good writers, acording to Rachel. A girl must be consistently good in the assignments to win an editorship. "Sometimes when girls write that they are too busy to comply with the deadlines, the editors have been known to call them long-distance to encourage them if they showed promise."

After the twenty winners have been selected, the next top fifty Colege Board members receive spcial letters of recommendation that serve as the best of passports to any job in the writing or merchandising field. In a recent survey, sixty per cent of the past guest editors are now working in top magazine and newspaper jobs all over the country.

CUPID LAUNCHES ANNUAL AZALEA ATTACK

By FRANCES CAWTHON

The minute an azalea bud begins to pop open, things on campus start popping, too.

Immediately the words "In the Spring, a young man's fancy. . ." become the byword. People are forced to enroll in Archery to defend themselves from Cupid, who amazingly enough, has been around for hundreds of years, still looks three years old and has the aim of a 21-year-old Robin Hood.

This little fellow, who dresses like a description for a charge of indecent exposure, affects people very differently with his bulls-eyes, but the FSU campus this week was the background for one of the worse cases of which I've heard.

Some girls were chatting in a Landis room the other night, when the telephone rang. The voice from the office asked for Betty So-and-So.

"You have two callers in the office. Please come down."

Betty grumblingly combed her hair and put on fresh lipstick. (Spring does not affect everybody the same way, especially when people are ready to hit the hay . . .).

When she got to the parlor, she passed two young gentlemen who stared hard. She asked the girl a tthe desk who called her. Of course it was the two young gentlemen-who-stared-hard, but these are the type you ignore as long as possible.

The dialogue went something like this:

"She's not the one," one fellow said, shaking his head with a sigh.

The other one took a good look "Nope," he said.

"I'm not what one?" asked the Betty.

"You're not her."

"That depends on who 'her' is."

"I don't know who her is . . I mean, I don't know her name."

"What's your name," asked the other one.

"Betty So-and-So," she answered.

He produced a list, aive it a survey and crossed off the name Betty So-and-So. He did it sadly. "That only leaves one more to go," he said.

The original one looked at the Betty who was curious to say the least and asid, "I am looking for a girl. A particular girl. Her name is Betty."

The Betty groaned in sympathy. "That covers a lot of territory."

"Oh," he said more cheerfully, "but I know more about her. She is from West Palm Beach, Miami . . . or somewhere in between."

"She also is a blonde," added the other proudly.

"She has gym at 2 o'clock in the afternoon," the smitten one continued.

"And," asid the friend, "we think she lives in Landis."

"Thats nice," said the Betty.

The friend looked hard again. "She's about your size," he said with a grin.

"Humm," said the Betty.

The girl at the desk wanted to know how they were coming along. Not so good, the trio told her.

"You see," said the fellow who plainly had been shot through the heart, "we knew her name was Betty, she lived in South Florida, she has gym at a certain time, and she is supposed to live in this dormitory. So we got a list of all the blondes named Betty from South Florida and are trying to find her."

The Betty glanced at the l of about 12 names, all crosse with pencil marks.

"Hope you find her," she sa as she started to leave. When she had gone a few steps, another girl came up and said, "Any luck yet?"

"Not yet. Wasn't her. Just got one more name to go." His eyes had the look of a hound dog deprived recently of a pound of steak as he turned back to the girl at the desk.

"Call Betty This-and-That t the parlor, please," he said.

Wernke took care of two single-game records on his hottest night of the season, against Tampa in the Cigar City January 12. He poured in 38 points against the Spartans for one record and swished 14 field goals for a new FSU high in that category.

Against Georgia Teachers in December, Ham dropped in 13 free throws for a new charity-throw record for a single game.

The new season's marks written by Wernke are the best per game point average (21.3), best percentage on field goal attempts (39.6) and most free throws (134).

Wernke finished with 468 points in 22 games, just 25 points short of Bob Hartman's school record of 493 points, set in 1951 Hartman, however, played in 27 games, five more than Wernke saw action in this season.

Ham rung the nets for 30 or more points on two occasions, soared above 20 points 13 times and failed to score in the double figures only once.

He doesn't like to recall it, but Ham was held to eight points by Memphis State in the mid-South Cotton center February 2. Wernke fouled out early in the third quarter in that one.

THE HEAD COACH commented that at the present the pitching is "far ahead of the hitting." Consequently, the practice sessions lately have been concentrating on batting drills. Matherly fearful of sore arms, has had the pitchers "holding back" because of the cool weather.

Five more caniddates who had been busy with basketball reported for practice this week, including letterman third sacker Ham Wernke. The other four are Duane Gordon, Gerry Ashley, Lavern Williams, and Wallace Higginbotham. Gordon, who played forward on the varsity cage squad, is out for first base.

Matherly also announced that the freshman baseball team will start its nine aame schedule on the night of March 21

Courts Reserved Only for Varsity

The student body, faculty, and public who have had access to the Varsity Courts for approximately 9 months of ing year are requested to use the courts behind the Women's Gym during the varsity season for general play.

It is easy to see the wisdom of this request in as much as it is a physical impossibility to have the clay courts in shape for varsity practice or to conduct this practice with random playing taking place simultaneously. Practice will be held daily and matches will be held both during the week and on Saturdays. The courts have one caretaker who must stagger his maintenance work in order to get his job done Evidence of improper shoe wear is readily apparent Clay courts must have a certain period in which to dry before they can be used.

Students Present Fencing Exhibition At Episcopal Center

The age-old art of fencing will be revived at Ruge Hall, the Episcopal Student Center at 655 W Jefferson St., Sunday at 6 p.m., when, following an informal supper, seven of Florida State University's most accomplished fencers, under the tutelege of Marion Sanborn, FSU fencing instructor, will present an authentic fencing exhibition.

THERE WILL be seating facilities for about 100 and there will be no admission charge for those attending.

Fencing, a sport as well as a method of deadly combat, has been practiced for centuries past. The game as will be displayed Sunday night, although subject to an ever growing code of standardized rules, differs little in the ancient fundamental technique. The colorful spectacle will feature the use of the three traditional fencing weapons, the foil, the epee, and the sabre.

BECAUSE OF the speed of the game, following the play may be at first difficult for those in the audience. But Miss Sanborn's description of the moves and analysis of the play will help the spectators According to Miss Sanborn, "The people attending the exhibition at Ruge Hall Sunday evening will find themselves anticipating the developing strategy and before a few minutes have passed, all will understand why this fascinating sport has held its place in the imagination of men for at least 20 centuries."

Preceding the exhibition, a dinner prepared by Betty Large, Charlotte Ream and Jack Hopkins will be served Bill Skipper, president of the Canterbury Club which will sponsor the match, will introduce the team to the audience. All FSU students faculty and Tallahassee residents are invited to attend.

..F" Clubbers Striving For Improvements

The "F" Club for varsity athletes, under the presidency of Fred Hoover, will sponsor one of its biggest projects soon—that's the "Meet the Coach" rally next Tuesday.

With a new Constitution and Initiation Ritual now in preparation, the club is striving to increase its usefulness as a Florida State University service organization.

Steve Kalenich from football, Cooter Mills from baseball, Woody Parker from track—these are only a fraction of the athletes and sports represented in the eligible membership of the F Club.

Its projects in the past have included the all-important Blood Drive under the leadership of Mac Huey, the handling of concessions at football, baseball and basketball games, and public relations for better co-operation between FSU athletics, her student body and high school athletes.

On the F Club's social calendar is the annual F-Club dance and the banquet for varsity athletes.

Men's Flower Club Elects David Avant As New President

David A. Avant Jr., special student here, was elected president of the Tallahassee Men's Camellia Club last Tuesday evening at a regular dinner meeting held at the Women's Club in Los Robles.

Avant has been currently serving as vice president of the organization and has previously been the club's program chairman and entertainment chairman. The new president was a charter member of the club when it was founded in 1947.

IN ADDITION to being associated in the photography business with his brother Avant is taking special course work at the university in art. He has also taught one year at FSU in this field.

Other officers elected for 1953-54 were Wilbur Overstreet of the State Road Department as vice president; Malcolm Longsdon of Leon High School as secretary-treasurer and two members to the board of directors, Harry Philips of Philips Realty Co. and Lewis Petteway, local attorney.

THE MEN'S CAMELLIA Club is a novelty in itself First, there are very few men's flower clubs in the nation and even fewer clubs whose attenetion is accented on only one flower The local organization is composed of Tallahassee business men and FSU faculty members with aims to propagate and care for the camellias in the city. They hold meetings once a month only during the camellia season from September to March

SNAKE EYES—A. W. Sharer, zoology instructor, gives two of his students a close view of several snakes which he used in a research project. Elizabeth Palmer holds one while Henry Redd looks on. Sharar, right is handling a king snake.

Instructor Makes Study of Snakes

A. W. Sharer, instructor at Florida State University is a man who sees eye to eye with snakes.

For five years he has been experimenting with snakes to discover how well they see in dim light. His studies will help show whether snakes move about much at night and if they do, do they rely on vision or other senses?

SHARER, WHO describes himself as a naturalist, states that snakes usually are gentle animals, attacking only when hungry or if irritated.

There are lots of weird tales about snakes, too, that have never been verified through scientific observation, comments Sharer.

DOES A MOTHER snake "swallow" her little ones to protect them from danger? Sharer says it could be, but no one whose information is reliable has ever seen it.

So snakes die only after sunset? If a snake is injured, even chopped in half, some of him still wiggles because all parts do not die at the same time. This is true with many animals, explains the naturalist.

IN CAGES about Sharer's office are 10 snakes, two of them rattlers and one a boa constrictor that came from South America, on a load of bananas FSU's "Snake man" has been bitten by snakes, but fortunately they never were poisonous ones.

To observe snake eyes closely, Sharer invented a "retaining board" on which he lays the snake and holds him still with rubber bands. The scientist points out that a snake's smell is more important to him than his eyes. As for ears, he hasn't any.

RIGHT NOW one of Sharer's crawling characters, a harmless hog nose snake, is out on loan to a Boy Scout troop that simply had to have a live snake for a snake dance.

MOVIE NEWS:

Unusal Team Portrays Role In New Movie, 'Battle Circus

By JUNE MORGAN

The most unusual romantic team to be starred on a '53 film, June Allyson and Humphrey Bogart provide the love interest in Battle Circus which plays at the State Theater through Tuesday.

Bravaly, resourcefulness and stamina of the men and women of the Mobile Army Surgical Hospital Corps inspired the new MGM drama

ITS TITLE is derived from the circus technique employed by mobile hospital units in Korea and the speed with which such front-line infirmaries can be moved, set up and moved again when necessary.

Battle Circus tells the story of the valiant personnel who dedicate their lives to saving the lives of the wounded More particularly it unfolds the relationship between rugged Major Jed Webbs, Humphrey Bogart, surgeon whose cynicism in regards to manage is overcome by Lieutenant Ruth McCara June Allyson.

AT FIRST contemptuous of the new recruit, Jed is finally awed by her bravery and devotion. Ruth, angered at first at Jed's attempt to use the war as an excuse for an easy romance finally penetrates the shell of the men who has been disillusioned by an earlier marriage which turned out badly.

While the script concentrates on the conflict between surgeon and nurse, its scenes achieve a vivid reality and excitement in their unfoldment against the turmoil of the Korea battlefront.

DIRECTOR Richard Brooks who also wrote the screen play, achieves a chilling tension in depicting such scenes as a rescue of wounded soldiers by helicopter while still under enemy fire, surgery performed while mortar shells hit on all sides, and the navigation of a wounded-laden helicopter through a treaturous snow storm.

Humphrey Bogart who won his last Academy Award as the hazard captain of the "African Queen" changes to the portrayal of rough Jed Webbs. June Allyson turns in a warm moving portrayal of the girl falls in love with him under enemy fire.

KEENAN WYNN is outstanding in the supporting cast former circus roustabout, now sergeant, who is responsible the remarkable efficiency in ing down, moving and erec the massive tents used to the mobile units

Westcott Auditorium Promised According to Chief Engineer

Florida State University will have a new Westcott Audiium by next year, according to Colonel H. D. Mendenhall, chief FSU engineer.

Work is slated to begin with the tearing down of the present building early in April. Contrary to rumors and wild guesses from all over campus, the old structure will be completely torn down and replaced with a modern air-conditioned auditorium seating 1,800.

"THE PROJECT will probably run through next winter," the engineer said.

The cost of the building, according to latest figures is expected to run over the $465,000 allotted by the state.

THE NEW BUILDING will have simple but modernized stage lighting, besides the air-conditioning and other changes.

Work was started on demolishing the condemned building soma time ago, according to the engineer, but a slow-down was forced till now due to the government restrictions on the use of auditorium steel.

THE ORIGINAL Westcott building was built in 1910. This included the old auditorium. In 1921, an addition was made to the hall and engineers found that trenches underground beneath the foundation were causing the whole structure to sag. Many dangerous looking cracks were starting to appear.

The site of the present Westcott was the location of an old college building, erected in 1857. Mendenhall thinks the trenches were there even before this time, probably used by early Indians in fighting.

"WE'VE EVEN found some old cannonballs in them," he said, confirming the war-like ancestors of the FSU site.

Talking about the condemnation of the present building, Mendenhall noted that, after cracks were seen in 1936, the entire north wing of Westcott was torn down and rebuilt. The building has lasted until late years when bigger openings were sighted. Worried students and faculty members asked that something be done, so the school closed the hall.

THE FSU ENGINEERING department will be in overall charge of the construction. State Architeet Guy C. Fulton drew the plans for the new Westcott.

Blood Bank Seeks Donors Here All Day

Students, faculty and staff at Florida State University will roll up their sleeves March 10 to help one another.

That's the day set aside for volunteer blood donors from the campus to build up the FSU student and faculty-staff blood banks . . . which have dropped to the minimum reserve of 25 pints.

University officials explain that with a reserve of 25 pints or more anyone from FSU may draw on the bank, replacing it pint for pint.

If the reserve drops below 25 pints, replacement must be two pints for one

The aim is to build the FSU blood banks as high as possible for the benefit of all.

There are two separate banks, one for students, one for faculty and staff. All blood donated by students is credited to the student bank only.

Blood in the faculty-staff bank is also available to members of the immediate family of faculty and staff.

Anyone wishing to donate must sign up before March 10 in Dean Otis McBride's office in 201 Westcott Building. Students under 21 need the written permission of their parents.

Speech Play Ends 4-Day Run Tonight

Unusual Treatment Of "Life of Man" Proves Popular With Students

The four-day run of Leonid Andreyev's "The Life of Man," as interpreted by the speech department, ends with tonight's performance at 8:15 in the Conradi Theater.

The Third Community Series Play, it is directed by Lynn E. Orr, and is a modernistic, unusual treatment of the drama.

THE BOX OFFICE opens today from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. for ticket sales. Student admission is 40 cents. All students should come early to the play as no latecomers will be seated after the Prologue has started. All seats are reserved.

Different from other recent plays produced here, "The Life of Man" has unusual lighting, heavy make-up, formal, almost stilted movements, with quick freezings of the actors. Properties have also been ignored as they "detract from the mood of the play."

SETTINGS AND lighting are by Charles I. Reimer with costumes and makeup by Douglas A. Russell. William Peterson is in charge of sound; Lee Hildman, Tom Lewis and Carolyn Briles handle lighting, while Leah La Plante is stage managar and Sharon Lane, house manager.

The cast includes Robert Strane, Dorothy Womble, Nancy Dickinson, Jayne Gardner, June Mizell, Joanne Williams, Charles Bogdahn, Llyod Kay, Leah La Plante, Suzanne Alford, Julian Hodge, Sara Margaret Davis, Delmar Hansen and William R. West.

THE DRAMA depicts the breakdown of the mind of Man, and is the symbolic writing which has lead to more recent productions of impressionism and nationalism. The works of Eugene O'Neill are an outgrowth of this influence.

John J. Newman To Address Group Tomorrow At 8:00

John J. Newman, watercolorist, lecturer, author, teacher of painting, will address a group of students and interested laymen in Room 408 Westcott tomorrow night at 8.

Newman, considered one of the foremost authorities on the techniques and methods of paintings, will give a lecture demonstration on casein painting.

Casein is a water-soluble paint that can be used instead of conventional watercolor, tempera or oil pigments. By using varying amounts of water with casein, the artist can achieve the most delicate transparent washes, large areas of opaque color or areas of the rich and heavy texture.

Newman will appear here by special arrangement with the department of art. Commercial artists, members of the Tallahassee Art League and local merchants of paint and artist supplies are extended an invitation

Submarine warfare in the Pacific makes up the plot of the story which is acted out by John Wayne and Patricia Neal. The movie has surface and underwater combat scenes, as well as accounts of the rescues, rammings and sinkings of the U. S submarine Thunderfish.

The playmakers will meet in the Faculty Lounge of Longmire tomorrow night at 7:30.

Seniors to Weigh Scholarship Fund At 7:15 Class Meeting Tomorrow

Seniors will decide whether or not to invest 700 dollars in a scholarship fund tomorrow night as the Senior Class meets in the Longmire Auditorium at 7:15.

At the last class meeting, the fund was discussed, but no vote was taken.

THE 700 DOLLARS is in a reserve fund the Class has. The Seniors also have 100 dollars for a project. "This means," says Bob Ryals, Class president, "that we can have another project besides the scholarship fund." He explained that the Class might also want to vote the 100 dollars into the 700 dollars and include it all for a scholarship. G. E. Tully, director of Vocational Guidance and Placement, will be present to describe how such a scholarship fund would be operated.

Another item on the agenda will be the choosing of the Commencement speaker The Senior Class Executive Council and Bob Ducker, in charge of choosing the speaker, has prepared a list of 20 persons as possible speakers, in order of preference. This list has been sent to Pres. Doak S. Campbell, who will make the final choice. Pres. Ryals said the list included such names as Elmer Davis, Ex-Vice-Pres. Alben Barkley, Sen. Bill Fulbright and James Byrnes.

THERE WILL also be a discussion of caps and gowns, how and where to return them, and invitations, when they are to be ordered.

Pres. Ryals says that he and the executive council recently sent a letter to FSU Business Manager Rod Shaw protesting that the graduation invitations are "costing too much."

FLORIDA STATE has a contract with Drew and Company of Jacksonville, and is further bound by an enactment of the Florida legislature which says state institutions must purchase from Florida printers. The Senior Class council, however, wants a change in the situation

The letter states that the council has made a plan by which bids for printing will go to it, and the members, with the advice of Walter Beyer, asst. business manager; Rod Shaw, business manager, and Gordon Wheeler, manager of the bookstore, would select the bid

"THIS WOULD not make the University liable for breaking a contract or law since it would not go through a state draft," the letter continued. The matter has been presented by Shaw and Pres. Campbell to State Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin to test its legality. An answer is expected today.

The council, if such plan is adopted, would have one person accountable for orders, cash receipts, with all members helping take them. Distribution would be in the same manner.

"WE FEEL that if it can be done successfully in other universities and at a saving to the students, we can, too," the letter said. "Students administer cap and gown orders in the University.

"Our purpose is to serve the students. We are not trying in the least to be radical or antagonistic toward anyone," the letter concluded.

TED STEINMEYER is the new vice-president of the Senior Class. He was appointed by Ryals to the vacancy made by Sue Saxon, who graduated in February and is now a graduate student. Steinmeyer's appointment has been confirmed by the Senate.

Rally Tonight Introduces Coach Nugent to Fans

Meet The Coach

TOM NUGENT—Florida State University's new head football coach will be officially introduced to Seminole football fans at a gala pep rally tonight in the Music Ampitheater. The band, cheerleaders, assistant coaches and the entire football team will also be present at the rally.

Music Amphitheater Is Scene Of "Meet The Coach Night"

By PETE NIMKOFF

Florida State University football fans will "Meet the Coach" tonight at 7:30 when Seminole suporters convene with the Marching Chiefs, Cheerleaders and the "F" club in the Music Amphitheater.

Tonight's rally most ambitious in FSU's young athletic history, will introduce State's new "pride of the Irish," Coach Tom Nugent, as the gentleman who will guide the Tribe's football fortunes in the fall of 1953

THIS RALLY sponsored by the lettermen's F club, will also afford a preview of the heralded Garnet-Gold intra-squad game to be played Friday night in Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

President Doak S Campbell and athletic director Dr Howard Danford will precede the new coach with brief introductory remarks, but the big show is strictly Nugent

"MY FIRST JOB," Nugent told Florida pressmen when he came here from VMI " is to build my team in spring drills.'

"My second task,' he announced, "is to win over the students and get their full support. Without them we can't have a successful season "

IN PREPARATION for tonight's rally the F club and FSU's sports publicity office have sent out state-wide releases on Nugent and his belief in student-supported athletics.

Garnet and Gold tags and the cheerleaders sporting around in convertibles are announcing the rally today.

Also a record especially prepared by WFSU, Voice of the Seminole, will be broadcast over a public address system an campus

BEFORE THE RALLY Bob Braunagle's Marching Chiefs will play from 7 to 7 30. Then, Master of Ceremonies Ted Steinmeyer—who helped lead the cheers at '52 home football games—will get things under way

F-clubbers, headed by President Fred Hoover and Steve Kalenich, will usher

A good looker and a good dresser, Nugent has been called one part coach another showman, and a third—investor

AS A TEACHER of the grid art he compiled one of the finest prep records in West Virginia, then moved up to Virginia Military Institute where his squads were noted especially for the way they passed the Southern Conference dizzy

As an innovator, Coach Tom is responsible for the "typewriter huddle" now so popular, the double quarterback that presents a double-barreled passing threat, and the famous "I" formation which the Seminoles will run some next fall.

As to Nugent's ability as a showman and show-stealer . . . you'll have the chance to judge for yourself tonight

In personal communication with such national figures as Margaret Chase Smith, Anne O'Hard McCormick, Dorathy Thompson, Mildred McAfee Horton, Emily Taft Douglas, Ruth Bryan Rohde and others, she categorized the kinds of advice offered by these women into four parts. These were training of the mind, attitude toward the work, realization of the hard work involved, and satisfactions to be derived from the service.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR . . .

DEAR EDITOR:

The residents of North Cawthon suffered a blow yesterday, when to their surprise the makings of a parking lot began to take place on their front doorstep.

The very word parking lot set off a chain reaction of protest that was felt throughout the campus. A group of house officers directed their protest at Westcott and got the same old run-around felt by other students aiming at student rights. The calls were directed all the way from the vice-president's office on down, and it seemed that the Nob Hill mob had vanished and all that could be heard was "sorry, try tomorrow."

Tomorrow is too late. Without warning yesterday the machines began to roll up strip after strip of grass. Even the counselor was shocked. It is customary to be warned when your front lawn is to be turned into a black mess of tar. Tomorrow is too late; tomorrow it can't be stopped. Tomorrow, 50 years, this money-minded institution will change from the south's most beautiful campus to an Asphalt Jungle."

Why, ask the students, could they not place their parking lot across the street on the vacant lot. It's a cinch they're not building it for Cawthon's fleet of four cars. Where are the defenders of student rights? Is it because the students have no rights? Perhaps so, but we pay a lot of money to such a big place to have so little to say.

The students must face it. There is no say. They'll build a parking lot on Cawthon's doorstep and the girls will just have to make the best of it. They'll have to take extra care to close their shades and to close the windows to keep out the noise. They'll have to get used to the sea of cars that once was a beautiful lawn scattered with trees planted only four short years ago. Their only satisfaction is that they can now, perhaps, have a legal parking space on a Saturday night.

'INCOME TAXITUS' HITS NATION

By FRANCES CAWTHON

Income Taxitus . . .

A rare disease that strikes only in the Spring. Most fathers get it, and so do a few students who make over 600 bucks a year.

Cure? The death of a rich uncle in Hoboken who has made his will out to the victim, one dose of cynide, a visa to Mexico or the overthrow of the entire federal government.

Which all brings to mind the delightful scene which is being enacted throughout the nation between college students and their fathers.

But first let's start back when Junior was in his crib.

Father used to tweek his mustache then, look down at Junior who was blowing bubbles in his milk.

"Gad, what a boy. Going to grow up and make a million dollars. Be a big business man like Peer-Point Morgan (presidents were out of the running those days, so close after Hoover had the blame of the depression laid on his head). What initiative he'll show . . . Gad, what a boy."

Then Father went down to sing second bass with the High Boys Saloon quartet. Junior kept blowing bubbles in his milk.

Junior grew up and went to high school. He began to take on odd jobs like raking leaves after school so he could afford a girl. The allowance doled out by the old man didn't include chocolate sodas, and Junior had a high-class gal who wouldn't settle for Cokes.

Every time he would get a little extra work to bring in a buck or two, Papa would say, "My boy, I'm proud of you. Initiative is what counts. Go out and work. Earn money. Learn the value of the dollar. Yes sir, my boy, that's the only way to succeed in life. . ."

Junior had this pounded into his head for months; every time he would earn a few cents mowing a lawn, Father would go into hysterics of delight . . and every time he would ask Father for a dollar, Father would go into hysterics, period.

So Junior got a Summer job, saved his money and came to Florida State to enroll in the School of Business. While he was learning class-wise how to make gobs and gobs of green, crispy stuff he got a part-time job to gain more practical experience in making gobs and gobs. Father wrote Junior he was proud, proud

So comes March. Father is at home figuring out his income tax when Junior, dear 19-year-old, $400 deduction, comes home for the weekend.

"How much you make this year, son?" Papa asks casually.

"One thousand, one hundred and 42 dollars," says Son

"That's what I like to hear. Initiative, energe . . . what did you say, Son?"

"One thous . . ."

"WHAT! How dare you earn that much! Do you realize how much you are costing me? I not only lose $400 deduction but I have to pay additional! How could you do this to your poor old man." Father sobs.

"But, Pop, you always said. . ."

"I never said any thing of the sort! The very idea. My own son, too."

It'll be around April 25 before Papa will be speaking to Junior again. Mother says it's natural; Papa just hates to see Junior grow up. Junior wonders.

March 15 certainly isn't good for Father-Son relations . . . at least after the very first venture over the $600 mark.

West Campus Parents Tell Baby's Background

Living on West Campus, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Evans bring up three months old Virginia Joan in accordance with the principles they gained in "Living With Children" class, which they audited together in Spring 1952.

One of Florida State University's healthiest and youngest prospective coeds, the alert, blue-eyed baby girl has quite a claim on the campus. Her mother was graduated from FSU last June and her father will follow suit in June. She also has an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lane of Largo, who are also graduates.

FLORIDA STATE definitley figured in the baby's background. Her parents, young FSU students, married March 25, 1951 in St. Petersburg, began making plans for Virginia when she was more a hope than a reality. They enrolled together for the Feb.-June semester 1952 in a class, "Living With Children" in the FSU School of Home Economics.

The class was elective for Joan and Edson Evans. It covers care of children from the pre-natal stage to school age. Both parents are enthusiastic over practical knowledge they derived from the course, and are applying it daily. Virginia is living testimony of their success, has not even had a cold

THE THREE EVANS live in a 35-foot trailer, in a shady park with similar student living quarters on FSU's west campus. The trailer is compactly arranged with baby's nook complete with bed and bathinette at one end, and a combination living-dining room and kitchenette in the middle. It is well equipped with electric refrigerator, bottled gas stove, six gallon water heater and oil heater with blower attachment to heat the floor for the baby's anticipated crawling.

The trailer was purchased in St. Petersburg where the baby was born, as a solution for her well being and the family's budget problems. Trailer and baby were brought to Tallahassee when she was a month old.

WHILE INSPECTING the FSU campus with her father, Virginia beamed silent approval on all she saw. She even visited the current "Living With Children" class her parents attend.

Letters to the Editor

Drinking Discussed

Dear Editor: After listening to the UGA Forum discussion on the question of drinking we would like to voice our opinions on this controversial issue. After carefully weighing the pros and cons concerning this question, we are of the opinion that the drinking regulations prohibiting the use of alcoholic beverages by women students should be lifted.

We believe that as mature college students we should be able to decide whether or not and when to drink. As a step toward this ultimate goal we would like to suggest that a poll be taken of all university students. Such questions as "Do you favor women students endulging in alcoholic beverages?" "Have you ever partaken of alcoholic beverages while under the jurisdiction of the university?" (for women students only) should be included in this poll.

We sincerely hope that the students will consider this question in an adult manner and that the faculty and students together will arrive at a solution in a democratic way.

Sincerely,
NAMES WITHHELD.

"Neo-Plastic Diseases" is to be discussed by Clerence Hardiman at noon tomorrow in Room 414 History Building. This will be part of the Physiology Seminar.

FASHION NOTE . . .

College Coeds Put In Five Categories

EDITORS NOTE: Each year Vogue magazine spons. a a Prix de Paris contest for seniors only. All the assignments, there were three, for 1953 are in now and here's a sample of some good advice one of the Florida State University contestants included in her work.

When the last college magazine edition is laid aside, the last college advisor-salesgirl consulted, the final college skirt and sweater paid for and the final gown packed in the college-going trunk, the nephyte coed has supposedly changed overnite from a high schol caterpillar into a college butterfly.

A formula for such a metamorphosis seems complete, but a look at the majority of coeds on campus today reveals a number seemingly lost in the larvae or pupae stages of the cycle. Blemished skin, dull hair, too much makeup, a poorly-apportioned figure, incorrect posture, the wrong kind of clothes unbecoming colors, unsuitable accessories and dingy wrinkled garments are but a few signs of poor taste and slovenliness that keep many from looking like the model on the Vogue college cover.

IN SURVEYING appearances on today's campuses, five major types of offenders are most apparent, with "the poor little rich girl being one of the most obvious." She's the one who spends until she has accumulated almost every new style on the market, being indiscriminately all sizes, colors and materials. When one sees her on campus, if she's noticed at all, it's mentioned what she's wearing but forgotten how she looked.

Second offender is the coed who looks like an underprivileged urchin in the classroom. She squandered her clothes allowance on cut pajama sets, sultry cocktail dresses, and useless fads that couldn't be passed up in the pre-college merchandise medley, when skirts, blouses and sweaters for class would have been more practical buys.

THIRD is the versatile coed who has one dress of each color of the spectrum, no two pieces that can be worn together and no accessories to make any costume complete. With such clothes resources she never looks chic.

Fourth on the black list is the coed who followed all the rules for selecting her college wardrobe. Her wardrobe is organized around a core color, she has several outfits, the styles and colors she chose are perfect compliments for figure and coloring and she has the right proportion of day time and date time fashions. There however, she put the period to appearance consciousness. All year long she never darkens the door of the dormitory laundry or pressing room, acquaints herself with a needle and thread or makes a journey to the dry cleaners, soon becomes as poorly dressed as the rest.

BUTH THE MOST common offender is coed number five, who is fashion-conscious but not nature-conscious. All the fine clothes become unimportant if she neglects nature's endowments. She's the girl whose skin needs scrubbing, hair needs brushing and figure needs trimming. No matter how much time or money she spends on clothes, the final picture falls short of good grooming

There are the five major types of butterfly larva who never attain the radiant beauty of adulthood, the indiscrimative buyer, the faddist, the multi-colored menace, the porclothes-caretaker, and the unwashed wonder. Of course they are exceptions and these are extremes, but in whole part or mixtures they crawl around every campus. With Spring and a new slate of fashions on the way it's the time to recognize their pitfalls, avoid being like them and complete your metamorphosis.

RAIN OR SHINE COAT

The new 1953 Maid of Cotton will wear cotton on every occasion. Let it rain, let it shine—no matter what the weather she'll be perfectly outfitted in her rain or shine coat designed by Bonnie Cashin for Main Street Fashions. A coat that will take to travel and hard wear is made in wide-wale corduroy with an ear-tabbed hat in velveteen.

FOR A MAID'S DATE

For late-hour dates, the 1953 Maid of Cotton will have a wardrobe of glamorous gowns. A smart example of these is this duet of separates designed by Greta Plattry in rich velveteen. A portrait bodice tops a wide skirt that is quilted and gold embroidered. The waistline is cinched into a small size by a cotton satin cummerbund.

TRAVEL SUITED

A traveling Maid of Cotton can't have too many cotton suits. Korday created this one which will be a smart feature of the 1953 Maid of Cotton's wardrobe. In Julliard striped corduroy, it's in the new boxy silhouette with low-placed pocket interest. For figure flattery, a slim skirt—one of the fashions featured in the recent Paris collections. Hat by Debway.

IT EVER SO HUMBLE—The neat-looking little -framed cottage with dark green shutters at 850 Tenth Street in Tallahassee was no different than homesteads.

The Nugent Story

en the talk turned to football. And Mrs. Nugent un- ed the story of how she met Mr. Nugent.

I was writing a chatter column for a weekly newspaper Lawrence, Mass., when I met Tom," Peg began. The mn I was doing was a sort of gossip thing and not any- g for the intellectuals to mull through on Sunday af- noons after church.

Well, a mutual friend told me about a football coach o was doing a wonderful job with the boys at Essex ining Center nearby. I knew a little about football but t enough to think that all football coaches were tough mbres

Without giving much thought to the idea, I referred he coach as the local 'Simon egree' of football. Need- to say, the coach was Tom Nugent and he was quite set over my statement.

He called me about it and said he didn't like what I said about him. He went on to say that he didn't beat curse his boys, that he was a gentleman's type coach not the rough-and-tumble kind.

I still didn't know who the guy was," Mrs. Nugent ated. "He might have been 80 years old with a long, beard, for all I knew. So I told him to see the editor. "The next day the coach, still very irked, came by to me. That was the first time I had ever met Tom Nu- nt. To make a long story short, my mistake was soon gotten and we started dating. You can guess the rest."

Garnet-Gold Tilt Nears as Work Eases

Gymkana Troupe Treats County Commissioners

By BOB GUTTING
Gym Team Sports Writer

The County Commissioners were entertained at their annual banquet Friday by members of the Gymkana Troupe.

Opening the show was an unusual scene performed by Ted Palant and Bud Chandler. Both were covered with bronze paint and posed as statues of athletes while FSUs' Alma Mater was played. This was followed with an introductory speech by Suzi Jones, "Miss Gymkana" of 1952, who also acted as Mistress of Ceremonies for the show.

The acts included one by Ann Tucker, charming unicyclist from Urbana, Ill., who finished her performance by riding an eight-foot unicycle, a feat that left the audience spellbound. Frances Stokes then performed her magic act, and Bill Kossow, Carmine Regna and Joe Regna did their ladder and chair act called "Stairway to the Stars."

This act is performed by the gymnasts as they balance of top of 7 chairs and two tables. While they were balancing in this precarious position one of the chairs was removed, causing the gymnasts greater difficulty in maintaining their balance and further testing their skill.

Next lovely Barbara Vickers performed one of her dances, known as "Stardust." This was followed by Don Holder, Benny Wallace, Joe Taylor, Dick Ireland, Pat Signorelli and Bill Koslow, who did a routine on the parallel bars called the "Interstallar Olympics." Following this were the "Shooting Stars": Dick Gutting, Benny Wallace, Larry Weston and The Tallahassee Tumbling Tots, who demonstrated some fast and fancy tumbling.

The show ended with a trampoline performance by Dick Gutting, Dick Ireland and Jim Padigan.

This same Gymkana show was presented Saturday night in Valdosta, Ga., and was sponsored by The Loyal Order of Moose of that city.

Joe Taylor did a good job of clowning at both performances, complete with red flannel underwear and rat cap, and kept the audience amused with his clowning anitcs on both the parallel bars and tumbling mat.

A guest performer at Valdosta was Bill Harris, one of the top trampoline men in the country, who demonstrated several difficult tricks. Bill, who is now at pre-flight school at Pensacola, was visting FSU on a weekend pass, but gladly gave up his time to accompany the Gymkana show to Valdosta.

Manager for the show was "Curley" Ninenstein.

FSU Food Researchers Try Experiments to Preserve Mullet

A new day is coming for mullet, plentiful in Florida waters, if Florida State University researchers have their way.

Experiments are being made with new artificial smoke liquids by students and faculty in the FSU food and nutrition department of the School of Home Economics. The work promises to give the common mullet a big boost commercially by prolonging freshness of the fish.

The food and nutrition department has the cooperation in its research of the university Oceanographic Institute at Alligator Point, which supplies the fresh mullet.

AMONG the food researchers is Anna Maria Erdman, FSU graduate student from the Netherlands, who is working to improve the welfare of her people by encouraging their fish consumption. What she proves for mullet will be applicable to herring and cod, principal fish in the Netherlands. "Preservation of Mullet" is the subject of her master's thesis.

Which of the number of smoke flavors on the wholesale market is best, and how much to use, are among questions to be decided in the FSU experiments.

THE RESEARCHERS have found that commercial smoke flavors vary in ability to prevent rancidity. One has no effect, another greatly retards raridity, even in small concentrations.

It has been known for many years that natural smoking protects fish from raridity, Dr. Betty M. Watts, FSU professor of food and nutrition, said. She explained the natural smoking process is hard to control, expensive and too long.

MANUFACTURERS have no data on the effect of artificial smoke flavors on raridity, Dr. Watts said. But some of the experiments being conducted under her supervision are doing the trick of preventing rancidity, she added.

It is all a matter of time. The new smoke flavors have been on the wholesale market only a short time. It takes time for research results to be put into practice. Meantime, there are plenty of Florida mullet.

Tribe Netters Get Ready For Georgia Debut

Hal Schaus No. 1 On FSU Tennis Ladder

Coach Donald Loucks got a look at some of the FSU varsity netters under game conditions Saturday and Sunday as the 1953 Seminole tennis squad engaged in singles competition to determine initial positions on the tennis ladder.

Hal "The Mouse" Schaus won the top position with an impressive 6-2, 6-3 victory over runnerup Tom Cundy in the finals of the tourney.

Enroute to the finals, Schaus had dumped Wyly, 7-5 6-3, while Cundy had trounced veteran Jack Egan, 6-0, 6-1, and Joe Harris, last year's No. 4 player, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4.

Dave Kennedy won the No. 3 slot by beating Joe Harris, 6-0, 7-5 in a thriller. Jack Egan won the No 4 position by outlasting Don Wyly, 6-1, 10-12, 6-3. Wyly, by virtue of his excellent showing in two matches, bids fair to win a starting birth before long. Freshman Tom Morgan played well in losing to Harris, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Players will move up and down the ladder as the result of challenge matches during the coming weeks. The Seminoles open with the University of Georgia, Monday, March 23, at 1:30.

Matches with Georgia during the past few years have been extremely close and this one should be no exception. The Seminoles won, 6-3, last year in the only match between the two schools.

FSU's James Second in Golf Meet; UF Wins

Florida State's Jimmy James shot a three-under par 69, yesterday, and finished second in the sixth annual 72-hole State Intercollegiate golf tournament at DeLand. But the FSU team as a whole did not fare as well and they finished in fifth and last place.

The University of Florida won the meet and their number one golfer, Doug Sanders, took individual honors by shooting a nine-under par 279.

James, who tied with Miami's Joe Brooks, posted a 72-hole total of 284. The 69 James shot yesterday was the lowest score of the afternoon.

The meet was the hihlight of the golfer's trip into southern Florida. Before the DeLand tourney the team, now coached by Dr. Don Veller, beat Rollins and placed second in a triangular meet won by Miami. The Rollins duel was the opener of a 10-match schedule.

The intercollegiate tourney was really dominated by the 'Gator links-men. Besides taking first place, the Florida No. 2 team landed in second ahead of third place Miami. Behind Miami in the fourth spot was Stetson and Florida State followed Stetson in fifth.

The golfers will now have a week a rest before they go into action again, Saturday, on the Tallahassee Country Club course against Stetson. It will be the first home appearance for the Seminoles.

Several Injured But Nugent Sees Good Spring Grid Finish

Florida State University's Seminoles conclude their 20-day spring grid grind here Friday night with the annual Garnet-Gold intrasquad tilt, to be played in Doak S. Campbell stadium. The game gets under way at 8:30 and the public is invited.

High school coaches press and radio representatives from Georgia and Florida have been invited to the game as guests of the University. The visitors will attend a dinner preceding the game in the University dining hall and will hear an introductory address by Head Coach Tom Nugent.

With 17 drills completed, Nugent is in good spirits concerning the upcoming game. "The past few days have produced a very competitive atmosphere in the squad. From all indications the intra-squad game should provide plenty of rock 'em sock 'em play."

Nugent, who will be featured in a "Meet the Coach" occasion here tonight, then cited reasons for his optimism. "The boys hit so hard in recent scrimmages that some 12 of them are on the crippled list. That means that there will be no more contact work before the game. This week will be devoted to light polishing drills with emphasis on timing, pass patterns, and blocking assignments."

While none of the injuries reported are of a serious nature, they are not being overlooked by Nugent. "We want every player to be ready to go Friday night and we shall strive to have all hands in shape."

Among the injured Indians are fullback Ronnie King of Daytona Beach (bruised knee); tackle Nat Polak of Miami (sprained shoulder), tackle Al Mackowicki of Pittsburgh (Pa.) (bruised chest); guard Steve Kalenich of Akron (O.) (shoulder injury), back Jimmy McDonald of Chattahoochee (bruised ribs) fullback-halfback Stan Doboss of East Chicago (Ind.) (pulled leg muscle).

They are Jim Pavy, former FSU basketball captain, now cage mentor at Malone (Fla.) High, and Phil Roundtree, a member of FSU's 1947 grid team. Roundtree is grid coach at Chipley (Fla.) High.

Pavy was elected "Basketball Coach of the Year" by Northwest Conference coaches while Roundtree was elected "Football Coach of the Year." Maline's 1952 team was the state champion in Class C while the 1952 Chipley eleven was undefeated, untied in 10 games.

Swimmers Eye Florida AAU

Runnersup in the recent Southern AAU swim in Atlanta, Georgia, the Florida State University tankmen loom a strong entry in the annual Florida AAU swimming championships slated Saturday on the University of Florida campus in Gainesville.

The FSU team has posted a 7-1 mark in dual meet competition that includes wins over Jacksonville Navy (twice), Georgia, Georgia Tech, Emory, Texas A&M, Northwest (Louisiana) State. The Tribe placed second in the Southern AAU, one point off the winning pace set by the Miami Hurricanes. FSU was runnerup last year in the state AAU meet.

Librarians Discuss Problems Between Library, Scientist

The problems and misunderstandings that exist between librarians and scientists were discussed Wednesday night by Dr. Charles Harvey Brown, librarian emeritus Iowa State College, at Florida State University, under the auspices of the FSU Library School.

Dr. Brown, who was introduced by Dr. Louis Chores, dean, FSU Library School, said a breakdown in communications exists between librarians and scientists.

He said this lack of communications has resulted in obstacles in the activities of both scientists and librarians and a lessening of the services both groups should render to society.

"We need more emphasis on the sciences in library schools," Dr. Brown said. "We need librarians with science backgrounds."

The librarian pointed out that the positions of head librarians and heads of departments in the larger university libraries are almost always filled by persons with undergraduate training in the humanities.

Dr. Brown suggested that smaller librarians be established for scientists near their laboratories with duplicate material maintained in a large central library.

An open discussion of the problems and possible remedies followed Dr. Brown's address.

THE AMBER HOUSE

It's the size of the FIGHT in the man!

That's right! In the U. S. Air Force, it's not the size of the man in the fight—it's the size of the FIGHT IN THE MAN! And Aviation Cadets must have plenty of it. For Cadet training is rugged. If you're good enough . . . tough enough . . . smart enough . . . if you can take it while you're learning to dish it out, you can have one of the most fascinating careers in the world. You'll be equipped to fly the latest, hottest planes. You'll be prepared to take your position as an executive, both in military and commercial aviation as well as in industry. And while you're helping yourself you'll be helping your country.

WIN YOUR WINGS! It takes little over a year to win your wings as a Pilot or Aircraft Observer (Navigator, Bombardier, Radar Operator or Aircraft Performance Engineer). But at the end of your training you graduate as a 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Force, with pay of $5,300.00 a year.

ARE YOU ELIGIBLE? To qualify as an Aviation Cadet, you must have completed at least two years of college. This is a minimum requirement—it's best if you stay in school and graduate. In addition, you must be between 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition.

New Aviation Cadet Training Classes Begin Every Few Weeks!

HERE'S WHAT TO DO:

1. Take a transcript of your college credits and a copy of your birth certificate to your nearest Air Force Base or Recruiting Station. Fill out the application they give you.
2. If application is accepted, the Air Force will give you a physical examination.
3. Next, you take a written and manual aptitude test.
4. If you pass your physical and other tests, you will be scheduled for an Aviation Cadet training class. The Selective Service Act allows you a four-month deferment while waiting class assignment.

WHERE TO GET MORE DETAILS:
Visit your nearest Air Force Base, Air Force Recruiting Officer, or your nearest Air Force ROTC unit. Or write to: Aviation Cadet, Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, Washington 25, D. C.

Pi Phis Seek Fifth Victory Over Thetas In Grid Game

Sixth Annual Powder Bowl Scramble Kicks Off Tomorrow at Hockey Field

Pi Beta and Kappa Alpha Theta will clash on the Hockey field tomorrow at 2 p.m. in football's greatest spectacle, the annual Powder Puff Bowl game, all proceeds of which will go to the Campus Chest.

Tomorrow's game will mark the sixth meeting of the two teams The Theta Wildcats will be out to break their three game losing streak while the Pi Phi Indians are determined to make it four straight over the Wildcats.

THE THETAS will manage to shut out the Indians in 1949 by a score of 18-0 for their only win of the series, are reported to have a strong passing attack this year which should cause the Indians some trouble. They are being coached by Mike Sellars and John Karlowicz, FSU varsity lettermen.

Mac Huey, senior Seminole gridder, is head coach of the Pi Phi team. He is assisted by Fred Hoover, assistant trainer for all varsity sports at Florida State.

THE PI PHIS who are decidedly outweighed by the Wildcat team, will probably play out of the straight "T" formation again this year and will rely on deception and tricky ball handling rather than power to carry them to victory. They have a fast backfield which includes lettergirls Sally Kennedy, and Joe Nell Proctor at the half back slots and Jean Nyasgger at quarterback.

Inexperience may prove to be the downfall of the Pi Phi team since freshmen compose the bulk of the squad this year However, many of the freshmen have shown amazing talent and could be the reason behind another Indian victory

E. O. HOLTON, Wildcat guard who has become almost a legend among female football circles will again lead the powerful Theta forward wall With the graduation of fleet back, Shirley Hair, the Wildcats will probably rely more than ever on passing this year. The Thetas will run and pass from both the straight "T" and the single wing.

The Theta team will be clad in yellow jerseys with black letters while the Pi Phis will wear wine jerseys with light blue letters.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA Sorority will have the refreshment concession, all profits of which will go to the Campus Chest.

Programs and cheer sheets will be distributed at the game.

An example of this latter phase would be the methorology department here at FSU.

Student Body Honors Nugent At Huge Rally

By PAT HOGAN
Flambeau Sports Editor

An enthusiastic delegation of Florida State University students, paying no heed to threatening skies, turned out here Tuesday night for a "Meet the Coach" rally, the first in FSU history.

Gathering in the Music Building amphitheater to issue a formal greeting to FSU's new head football coach, Tom Nugent, the students heard him tell them: "We're going to have the best football team in the world."

A SELF-CONFESSED, eternal optimist, Nugent labeled his address the "magic of believing." "If you believe anything enough —and that word is a big one—it will become a reality." Nugent said. "We already have the best gymnastics team, the best circus and the best School of Music—we shall also have the best football team because we believe we are"

The new Florida State coach, who came to FSU Feb. 1 from a successful four-year tenure at Virginia Military Institute, emphasized that success in anything an individual enters into is 70 per cent the correct mental attitude

"THIS MAGIC is believing first hit me in the form of book I once read." Nugent said. "The book made reference to the values of having faith and confiednce in the people you know.

"One of the greatest human assets is that of believing in one's self and in one's associates." In football, Nugent continued, "the magic of believing must be generated from the coaches first, then spread to the players, and the students. We believe we will have a fotoball team at Florida State that the student body will thrill in when the team comes onto the field."

NUGENT, an energetic 39 year-old family man from Massachusetts, father of five children, was introduced to the student body by University Pres. Doak S. Campbell. Campbell described Nugent as "a young man on his way to great heights and a man who was the unanimous choice of the FSU athletic committee for the job."

Campbell also said that Nugent is a man who, in a short time has already endeared himself to all who know him.

THE RALLY was sponsored by the Men's F Club. The band the Marching Chiefs, played before and after the rally an student cheerleaders directed several spirited yells

Speaker of House Is Featured On Local Radio Station WTAL

C. Farris Bryant, speaker of the house of representatives, will be featured tonight at 9 over WTAL. This is the second in a series of talks by leading state lawmakers sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

C. Farris Bryant

Other speakers to appear later on the program will be Hon. Charley Johns, president designate of the Senate, and Leroy Collins, Leon County Senator.

Because this is a legislature year, the AAUW is taking on the job of sponsoring radio broadcasts by notables in government circles as a forerunner to the meeting of the State Legislature here in April. Meeting every two years for a 60-day stretch, the legislature brings up all new bills proposed by the people of the state, votes on new laws and discusses old and new business.

AAUW WILL sponsor four tape-recorded programs to be given over WTAL in the weeks before April 7 meeting. Dr. Wilson K. Doyle, head of the Florida State University School of Public Administration, gave the first talk recently as an introduction to the lecture series. Doyle said the purpose of these broadcasts is to enlighten the public on legislative affairs of their state. The speaker also noted that this has never been done before by any group, thus leaving many in the dark as to what is going on in government.

ACCORDING TO the public administration head, there are 38 Senators and 95 House of Representatives members coming to Tallahassee from all over the state. He explained that the number of representatives is determined by the size of the individual county. Leon County has two, Kenneth Ballinger and Davis Atkinson.

"We hope these programs will be a means to inspire the people of Florida to investigate their government from other sources," said Miss Daisy Parker, FSU faculty member and member of AAUW.

SHE ADDED, "It is designed to promote active participation of individuals in government."

The taped discussions are in forum form with Miss Parker doing the moderating between speakers and the radio audience.

"The text of the discussions," said Miss Parker, "will be mostly questions on how the citizen can fit himself into the legislature and government circles."

J. KENNETH BALLINGER spoke to an audience of mostly AAUW members Tuesday night in Longmire Building giving a preview of the type of questions to be brought up and voted on in April. He mentioned the crowding of Florida's sanitariums and rest homes and the problems that have resulted. He said that the state exercises little control over the running of nurseries, old-age homes and orphanages. He expects a strong push by the legislature in that direction.

Getting closer to home, Ballinger mentioned the proposed FSU-University of Florida merger and expressed doubt as to whether it would succeed. "FSU would necessarily be a 'junior brother,'" he said, "if the two were put under a chancellor system."

He can not see any real workable chancellor system that would unify the two schools effectively, and have one man at the head.

ON SCHOOL TEACHERS' pay raises, Ballinger said raises will be discussed and definite boosts in present salaries are in sight. The speaker hesitated to say definitely how much the raise would amount to, although he mentioned a $350 a year raise for about 85 per cent of the teachers of Florida.

In commenting on the future speakers, Miss Parker said that Senator Collins, for example, would introduce a bill to do away with the usual bottleneck of huge numbers of bills from one small community making up about half of the total to be considered.

"THERE ARE USUALLY around 3,000 bills in all, 1,500 of them coming from one small local community," she said. Miss Parker added that the Collins bill will propose that these local bills be taken care of on a local system before the time of the legislature meeting

The AAUW sponsored programs have been largely arranged by Mrs. William Blee, a member, and president of the club, Mrs. Robert Miller.

Noted Organist To Lecture Here On Finer Points

Porter Heaps, internationally famous organ virtuoso will conduct an organ seminar in Opperman Music Hall on Monday evening, March 16, at 8:15 p.m. The program will be of great interest to organists and music teachers throughout the local area, and will be open to the public without charge.

Using a Hammond organ to develop his major theme, "Creating Beautiful Tone Colors on Harmonic Drawbars," Mr. Heaps will demonstrate how the proper use of the hamonic drawbars that are a distinctive feature of the Hammond organ can provide an almost endless number of tonal combinations and afford wide flexibility in selection and arrangement of numbers

Mr. Heaps, who has been a church organist and choir director since the age of 18, holds the bachelor's and master's degrees from Northwestern University, and spent three summers studying with the great organist, Marcel Dupre, in Paris.

He has appeared as organ soloist with the Detroit and Chicago Symphony Orchestras and climaxed a tour of South America by an appearance with the National Symphony of Bogota, Columbia

Mr. Heaps' program will include discussion of basic organ technique, planning registration with the use of the hamonic drawbars, and discussion of appropriate music for the various portions of the service The seminar will include a question and answer period, and will conclude with a concert selection.

Senior Class Begins Scholarship Reserve

Small Number Attends Meet; Vote to Establish $615 Fund

The Class of 1953 began Florida State University's first Scholarship-Loan Fund Wednesday night as a group of Seniors voted to combine for this purpose a $615 reserve fund and $100 earmarked for a project.

Only 22 members of the Senior Class, including officers, attended the meeting, but the vote was considered legal by Senior Class Pres. Bob Ryals as "there is nothing in the by-laws to say what constitutes a quorum"

BEFORE THE VOTE, G E Tully, director of the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, spoke to the audience on the ned for an FSU Scholarship-Loan Fund. He said that FSU has one of the highest ratios for student employment in the nation and that the University also has an ample and large loan fund. But, he said, "we are restricted in the field of scholarships."

Tully said he realized the innovation of such a fund would cost a lot, but with approximately $1,000, FSU could start the fund. "We need a germ, something that can grow. Now we don't have anything. This will give us a start." Tully explained that the University had specific funds, self-contained, which had no way to grow or expand. He gave as an example the Dupont scholarship and others under which the student must major in a specific department.

"IF WE COULD get this class to agree to move forward to start this thing, we believe it would grow," he said. Tully also said that state scholarships helped, but the student has to teach for every school year he has the scholarship. This leaves out the person who wishes to major in business or some other field.

Under the new plan, if a student gets a scholarship for $125, he only has to pay back $62.50. This gives not only personal recognition, said Tully, but also the student only has to pay back half the amount instead of all of it as he would if he borrowed the money from the University loan plan.

TULLY SAID he hoped the alumni of the University would also help in getting the fund going

The fund would be called "The Florida State University Foundation Fund" It's probable set-up will be

Museum Piece Reported Gone From Exhibit

Official Makes Plea For Return of Shoes Deemed Irreplaceable

Apair of Iroquois moccasins were stolen yesterday afternoon from the University Museum exhibit, "Iroquois Indians, People of the Long House."

The theft was reported by Dr. Hale Smith, who described the Indian shoes as being of dark buckskin with a pucker toe and beaded and quill decorations. They were men's shoes, possibly around size eight and are not replaceable.

THE MOCCASINS were not University property They were borrowed from the Rochester Museum of Arts and Sciences, said Dr. Smith, who had trouble getting the Museum to loan the exhibit at all. As a member of the American Museum Association, as are most reputable museums, Florida State will have to report the loss in a publication which goes to museums all over the nation.

"These museums will be reluctant—if not refuse—to give us any more material," said Dr. Smith. "Since we do not have archaeological material of our own, we must depend on these loans from other museums"

DR. SMITH said the insurance value of the shoes only amounted to $37.50, but "this is not the point," he said. "They cannot be replaced After all, the Indians who made them are dead and can't make a new pair We would have been happier if they were worth 100,000 dollars and replacable, rather than have something stolen that cannot be replaced," he said

Dr. Smith had assured the museum from which the exhibit came that nothing had been stolen before. This was probably very instrumental in the final approval of sending the material to FSU.

IT IS SUSPECTED that a student took the shoes as checks of the display are made every 30 minutes and during the period just before the shoes were discovered missing, the group visiting the museum were all students "as far as our knowledge goes," said Dr. Smith.

He urged that the person who has the moccasins return them through campus mail to the Museum. "They are easily identified," he said, "as they are marked with india ink in the number AE 3427."

Christian Contacts Discussed by Kirk At S.C.A. Meeting

Christianity is on the defensive in India, according to Dr. William C. Kirk, chairman of the Florida State University Student Christian Association when he spoke to that group recently.

Dr. Kirk, also assistant professor of classics at FSU reported on a recent meeting of the southern area and student council of the YMCA at Atlanta.

The speaker's authority for the India statement, he says, comes from two American students recently returned from that country. They termed the keeping of contacts with Christians in Communist - dominated countries a major problem. The matter was discussed by Dr. Kirk and the group made several suggestions on remedying the situation.

Following Dr. Kirk's talk, Dick Schoenberger, SCA president reported that five Gray-Y clubs in Tallahassee are being directed by members of the SCA here. Gray-Y clubs are junior YMCA's, he explained. Schoenberger went on to say that boys 10, 11, and 12 are eligible to join. SCA member-directors are John Danahy, Yvonne McCarthy, Helen Hamilton, Rufus Register and Kenneth Chadwick.

Juniors Hold Meeting

The Junior Class will meet Thursday, March 19, at 8 p.m in the Longmire Auditorium.

Plans for the Junior-Senior Prom will be formulated, and all Juniors are urged to attend.

Students Ask What For? As Hole Deepens

They're digging a new hole on campus!

There has been much speculation on holes seen around the grounds in the past. Some have guessed they would be classroms after the discontinuance of classes on West Campus; some said they were planting flowers and shrubs; the latest hole is to be the new geology building.

SITTING IN THE Student Center, the coffee-sipping observers of Florida State University look out the northwest windows on great mounds of red clay and industrious bulldozers breaking the ground for the next $348,300 addition to the FSU Fifty Year Plan.

Designed to take care of an expected 10 year expansion period the geology building will take 18 months to complete, according to university officials. The reinforced concrete, brick and steel structure will have 4 stories on one side and 3 on the other. Blueprints include an auditorium to seat 250, offices, classrooms, labs, a seminar room, a display room for fluorescent minerals and a basement.

THE BUILDING will be one of a 3-unit geology section of the campus. Adjacent to it will be a geology museum and a headquarters for the Florida Geological Survey. Funds for the two additions will have to be appropriated from state legislature, however.

• BREACH OF HONOR

An inconsiderate person who lifted a pair of Iroquois moccasins from the University Museum this week today took with him more than he realized..

The insurance value of the beaded Indian shoes on display amounted to no more than $37.50, even if the shoes are not replaceable. But the person who took them robbed more than the Museum, took more than just a dollar and cents value.

The thief is suspected of being a student here, as checks 30 minutes apart of the exhibition revealed that a half hour just before the shoes were found missing, the on-lookers had all been students, as far as is known.

If it was a student, then he has robbed about 6,000 of his fellow classmates of a reputation they enjoyed of honesty and high ideals. This is the first incident of stealing from either the Museum or Art Gallery. Just such an "Incident" as this, though, reflects on the integrity of the whole FSU student body. It is a wrong, but common thing, that entire groups are judged by isolated acts of individual members.

The shoe thief also possibly has robbed the University of the opportunity of getting educational interesting exhibitions in the future. If the moccasins are not returned, the news of their loss will be published in a report going to all reputable museums. This, of course, will mean less willingless of their part to loan FSU valuable materials—or probably total refusal to do so.

Another—and very sad—part of the situation is that the Rochester Museum which loaned Florida State the exhibit from which the moccasins were taken did not want to send the exhibit here in the first place. Dr. Hale Smith, through much argument that we students had a fine reputation for never having taken anything from the different showings here, and with the aid of a friend, finally succeeded in having FSU get the Iroquois material.

Now Dr. Smith and the University and the students are in the unfortunate position of having their word doubted from now on—all because one person, perhaps in joke, took a pair of moccasins valued at $37.50.

If this person would think about what he has done, he will know his actions have made many people pay a far higher price for the article than its worth merits. And if he's got any personal pride about him at all, he'll drop the moccasins in the Campus Mail.

OFF THE CUFF

NO ONE CAN OUT-PEGLER BUT PEGLER

By BRUCE GALPHIN

I want to compliment Westbrook Pegler. He has proven again and conclusively that no one can out-Pegler Pegler but Pegler.

For exhibit A in the demonstration, I point to his column of several days ago on the Agnes Meyer affair.

Agnes Meyer is the wife of Eugene Meyer, publisher of the respectable WASHINGTON POST. Mrs. Meyer, in addition to a busy social life, is given to public speaking with what might be called a moderate political point of view. She has pulled no punches, however, when mentioning the fanatic fringe of McCarthy, Jenner, et. al.

Addressing the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City recently, she said, ". . . our universities and colleges have been selected as the latest victims of that No. one superpatriot Senator McCarthy, together with Senator Jenner and their counterpart, Congressman Velte . . "

McCarthy and Jenner had replies that hardly would be called polite, but it was Velde who thought he had his antagonist on the ropes. He brought forth a letter, which he claimed was written by Mrs. Meyer, expressing "profound admiration for the people of the Soviet Union."

But before long, the lady speaker had the Congressional witchhuntsr down for the count. She first denied that she had written the letter, then produced evidence that it was written by a Mrs. G. S. Mayer of Canada.

For a couple of days Velde refused to do anything; in fact, he never did really apologize, but "On the basis of long acquaintance with Agnes Meyer, the wife of Eugene Meyer, the mock-Republican who operates the Washington Post as a paper I am said he had made an "honest mistake"

It looked as though for once a high-powered Congressional super-snoop had had the tables turned on him and had come out on the losing end of the same. But not if Westbrook Pegler had anything to say about it. The shining knight of arch-reaction and magnificent distortion lept to the defense of his wounded brother qualified to assure Congressman Harold Velde that he need not feel that he mistreated this pestiferous old gal when he attributed to her a statement which, in fact, had been expressed by another woman of a similar name . . . it (the statement) becomes Agnes Meyer, even though she didn't say it."

Pegler continues, "Granting that Velde was slow to admit his mistake, let us anti-Communists remind ourselves that the Reds and their advocates, who pretend to abhor intemperance and false witness, seldom admit that their own lies are lies. Moreover, it is not good tactics in the heat of battle to beg pardon for a petty error which any veteran Red-baiter knows the enemy will magnify into an admission of ruthless defamation."

Weaving a marvelous web of guilt by association, the extremist-columnist notes that the Meyers are friends of Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter (a favorite target for Pegler), who was associated with Alger Hiss. Meyer's son studied economics in London under Harold Laski, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights; perhaps I should note with horror that Pegler is only the loud mouthing of the whom Pegler dubs a "Communist." Finally, to make his case air-tight, Pegler points out that Meyer's daughter married Frankfurter's secretary. Oh, treachery, oh, villainy!

Somewhere along in his rambling pot-shots at his perennial foes, Pegler makes this defense of "good" Americans: "Luce's (Luce of TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE) treatment of the Velde matter rehashed the standard smears against McCarthy and Jenner and was a model of that scurrilous propaganda which is the standard treatment of all good Red-baiters."

Perhaps at this point I should undertake the formidable task of challenging Pegler's many lapses of logic; perhaps I should bemoan how completely he has perverted the traditional American civic liberties as guaranteed by thoughts of altogether too many people in this country today.

But to try to amend pure Peglerism is but sacrilege in the cathedral of contumely.

MOVIE NEWS . . .

'Assignment...Paris' Featured At State Theatre This Week

By JUNE MORGAN
Feature Editor

Summer's the time many college students considering European trips for sightseeing, study, work or adventure. The resourceful and the rich carry out their dreams, but many struggling, average students must get their experiences vicariously through media of books, travel folders and movies. That's why the continental movie 'Assignment—Paris' has a double appeal.

Not everyone goes to Paris to admire the view. Some go for excitement. The story of one such American reporter in the French capital follows his hunch on da girl with a plunging neckline; a sequence of events that are put togehter in Columbia Pictures' latest release that stars Dana Andrews, Marta Toren, George Sanders, and Andrey Totter. Assignment—Paris is the feature film at the State Theatre Sunday through Tuesday.

IN THIS excursion into suspense, Andrews play an American newspaperman who finds romance in Paris with Marta Toren. Andrews who allegedly knows all about guys in black market and girls in black lace, travels from the boudoirs and bistros of Paris to the back-alleys of Budapest on the trail of a story that will change the course of history.

Assignment—Paris, based on Paul Gallico's stinging Saturday Evening Post thriller emerges as a movie of supreme suspense.

Sandre Giglio is featured in a supporting role. William Bowers penned the screen play from the Gallico story, "Trial by Terror." ,ruNh 6sHm tr'CJbj oha m m

TWO lighthearted movies occupy the early weekend agenda at the local theatres.

At the State, MGM produces a new technicolor version of the first sound movie ever produced, The Jazz Singer. Danny Thomas plays the role made so famous by the late Al Jolson.

THE Florida features comedienne, Donald O'Connor in the new laugh hit "I Love Melvin."

Both movies are perfect for the relaxation every student needs after five or six days with the books.

Sigma Nu Initiates 7; Weekend Is Planned

The Zeta Zeta Chapter of Sigma Nu initiated seven new members this week.

They are: James Hickey, Robert Joines, Beaver Ray, Curtis Jackson, Peter Gibson, Randolph Church, and Ralph Atwell.

The chapter is busy making plans for the White Star Weekend which is on March 27 in addition to the district convention of Sigma Nu to be held this year at Florida State. All the Sigma Nu chapters in Florida will be represented by their officers in the first week in May.

Design Class Gives Students Free Rein

Motels of the future are probably being shaped today in the art department on this campus.

In a unique class entitled Architectural Space Development—the only one of its kind known in the United States—students are given an opportunity to shape ad form new ideas in design uninhibited by tradition-written notios.

THE STUDENTS can design anything from racing cars to hotels in the class, but motels headed the list last semester when students in the department of restaurant and hotel management found out about the new class and enrolled.

Consequently most students in that first "guinea-pig" class designed motels , especially motels for Florida climes.

THE CLASS WAS a success and has been added as a regular on the FSU curriculum.

In discussing the course, C. Frederick Holschuh, assistant professor of art who planned the course, said:

"THIS COURSE was designed to meet the new demand in design with a new approach. The paper floor plan was thrown away. No time is wasted in studying the techniques of drawing, since time is needed to experiment and to shape a three-dimensional hollow mass and volume."

"In designing motels, for example, "Dr. Holschuh said, "the students proceeded with the idea that a motel is the outgrowth of demands for convenience in modern traveling . . . a so-called horizontal hotel to accomodate a population on wheels."

The professor said this modern demand of a luxury-loving traveling population on wheels makes it self-evident that neither student nor teacher nor motel designer can afford to be bogged down by tradition-written notions of the old designs of yesterday.

"THE ENTIRE COURSE is geared to explore endless possibilities and to support unusual ideas of the modern mind of the 20th century. We do not believe that any one thing can constitute a house or living space. We not only have to know modern materials, but we must know how to use them directly without the inevitable dangerous outmoded abstract floor plan."

Famous Magazine Mentions Graduates

Two graduates of Florida State University figure in an article in this month's issue of National Graphic Magazine.

They are Rosalyn Cox and Beverly Goodnight, class of '50. The two girls spent a summer in Mexico with other students and are shown in pictures and mentioned in the text of the article, "Experiment in International Living."

Miss Cox, whose hometown is Fernandina Beach, is now teaching Spanish at Julia Landon High School, Jacksonville. Her sister, Jeanette Cox is a senior at FSU.

Miss Goodnight, whose hometown is Pensacola, is now a member of the armed forces

The latest "Who-is-it-on-Campus," the "MR. Preliminary judging, based on each man's appearance in the "After Six" dinner jacket, will take place at local campus shops, where each contestant will try on the new "After Six" white dinner jacket. Al three appeared on the first-team ballot of every conference coach The other two all-star choices are Chuck Mencel of Minesota and Irv Bemoras of Illinois. They piled up decisive, though not unanimous vote totals.

Two points were allotted for a first-team choice and one for a second-team nod. Ebert, Schlundt and Leonard all received 20 points, Mencel got 17 — seven firsts, three seconds—and Bemoras 13—five firsts, three seconds .

Conference coaches never had a better oportunity to survey the field This season for the first and probably the last time, each Big Ten team played every other conference squad twice. The 18-game program created so many scheduling difficulties, however, that loop athletic chiefs decided recently to revert to a 14-game schedule for each school

Governor Needs Pinch-Hitter For Baseball Dinner

A "pinch-hitter" for Governor Dan McCarty for the annual Governor's Baseball Dinner in Tampa may not be named until early next week, according to a report from the Governor's office today.

The Governor is making good recovery from the heart attack he suffered several weeks ago, but is not expected to be able to travel until sometime in April, and must pass up the dinner along with several other March events.

"It may be next week before we know who will substitute for the Governor at the baseball dinner," McCarty's brother John said today, "though we have an awful strong 'bench' to select from," he added, using an old baseball term to describe the array of state officials here from whose ranks the "pinch-hitter" will probably be selected.

Training Qualifications Set By Veterans Administration

Veterans Administration today announced yardsticks it will use in determining whether veterans applying for Korean GI Bill training already are qaulified for their chosen objectives.

The law prohibits veterans from training under the Korean GI program toward goals they have already reached, either through previous schooling and training or through job experience. VA explained that a veteran must select his final goal before training under the law.

IT MAY Be either an educational goal such as the attainment of a college degree; a professional goal, such as law or medicine, or a vocational goal, such as machinist or draftsman. He also must list his previous training and experience on the application form, so that VA can rule whether he's already qualified for the objective. Following are the guideposts to be used by VA in passing on eligibility under the Korean GI Bill.

VA will not approve an application from a veteran with a collegiate bachelor's degree if he wants to take another under-graduate college course merely to reach an educational objective. However, the same veteran may be permitted to take such a course if he shows it is needed to attain a specific vocational or professional objective He would have to show, for example, that he intends to follow a specified occupation, and that his course would qualify him for it. Full credit would have to be given for applicable previous training.

SOMEWHAT SIMILAR rules apply to a veteran who wants to take a below-college-level school course where classroom instruction predominates If he already has a high school diploma he would be allowed to study for a below-college-level course only if it would lead to a vocational objective for which he is not already qualified. And he could take high school subjects necessary to enable him to get into college.

In determining whether a veteran already is qualified for a vocational objective, VA will take into account his previous training — either in school or on-the-job—and his past employment record. For example, if he already is trained as a bookkeeper or accountant, VA would not approve a school course in bookkeeping A veteran who applies for a below-college trade or technical course that consists largely of shop practice will be denied training if:

1. HE HAS previously completed a similar school course for the same occupation.

2. He has at any time in the past held a job as a qualified workman in the same trade for which he requests training However, if the new occupation is at a higher level, he'd be permitted to train for it.

3. HE HAS completed an on-the-job training course which qualifies him for his desired objective, either at the locality where training was completed or where it is to be taken.

A veteran whoh as completed schooling for a profession such as teaching, engineering and the like may not take on-the-job training for the same profession. However, an exception has been made for graduate lawyers in some states that require clerkship training before admission to a bar examination.

VA REGULATIONS contain several other bans on GI job training that apply to certain types of occupations.

VA emphasized that the purpose of its rules and regulations is to set up standards that can be used in determining whether Korean veterans already are qualified for the courses they apply for under the Korean GI Bill. In no way do they serve to deny training to those who need it to gain their goals in life

Florida State Alumni Graduate In Largest Class of Navy OCS

Two Florida State alums were among the 840 enlisted men who traded their white hats for the gold trimmed caps of commissioned ensigns as the Navy's only Officer Candidate School graduated its ninth and largest class in Newport, R. I., last week.

The FSU alumni were Olin J. Shuler, Tallahassee, who received his BS in education in 1952, and Edward E. Sikes, Nichols, who has a BS in business administration in 1951

OVER ONE THOUSAND persons watched the ceremony as Capt Harold O. Larson, USN, assistant chief of Naval Personnel for Education and Training, made presentation of diplomas.

The new officers will join other OCS graduates already serving on every type of combatant and non-combatant ship in the fleet. Some will go into specialists schools.

THE NEW OFFICERS, in four months of intensive study and training have covered the same Naval subjects that college NROTC students do in four years. Foremost in their study was gunnery, navigation, seamanship, engineering, damage control and operations.

To qualify for line officer's candidate schol, a person must be a college graduate, between the ages of 19 and 27, and pass a rigid physical examination. The only exception to age limitation are candidates for restricted line commissions who may be between the ages of 19 and 33.

New Traffic Court Begins Operations

Students Receive Copies of New Rules; Penalization Powers Take Effect Today

Back seat drivers take notice! The Student Traffic-Safety Court announced that parking and traffic regulations on campus will go into effect today.

Replacing the defunct traffic safety court, the new judiciary, headed by Pinky Nowlin, has mailed copies of the rules and regulations to all students. Chairman Nowlin has urged that every automobile or vehicle owner read and become well-acquainted with these statutes which will affect every motor-driven vehicle on campus.

THE NEW LAW, which started as a bill proposed by Senator Gene Lawler in University Senate early in the semester, was enacted and made into law by the Senate February 10. At first, Finley MacMullen was appointed Chiarman of the infant court. MacMullen, however, recently resigned and Nowlin was designated by the Senate to take his place in the judicial chair.

The underlying purpose of the traffic-safety court, according to Nowlin, is to give every student a fair hearing on cases of violations and to enforce the Florida State University vehicular regulations. "The court requests the students' full cooperation with these new traffic regulations," Nowlin said, "which are designed to insure a maximum of safety for all persons using the campus as well as for the student's own convenience"

ACCORDING TO the traffic court bill, the court has the authority to penalize any member of the University Government Association, meaning students, for violation of the rules. Affecting the student pocketbook, the law states that the first parking violation will give the offender merely a warning and it will go on record that it is his first of-

N. Y. School Opens Designing Contest To College Students

A new Design Contest was announced this week by the Traphagen School of Fashion, 1680 Broadway, New York, in celebration of the school's 30th Anniversary—1923-1953.

Prizes will be 15 free-tuition scholarships in the 6-week Summer School at Traphageo, starting the first week of July 1953. In addition, up to 15 duplicate scholarships will be swarded, if the contest judges deem the amount of talent displayed sufficiently outstanding to warraot the greater number—bringing the total to not mora than 30 scholarships, one for each year of the school's existence. In this case, the total prize value will come to over $4000.

Designs are to be made for a campus wardrobe typical of the college represented, a field in which Traphagen believes these young people themselves often create styles which are passed on later to the fashion trade. The contest is beingconducted with the aim of finding some of these young designers who may be destined to contribute to America's fashion prestige and who would profit by a summer course in trade methods.

The Traphagen Design Contest is open to all college and university students, men or women, and entries must be in the hands of the judges by May 1, 1953.

Since judgiog will be based oo originality and suitability of the design, and not on the drawing, students of home economics and clothing will have as good a chance to win as those majoring in art. Entry blanks are available through the heads of college and university Art and Home Economics Departments, and may be obtained until April 15.

HOLD THAT LINE—And the Thetas did for the most part in Saturday's Powder Puff Bowl game on the Hockey field. Spectators were amazed at the brand of football displayed by the weaker sex after five weeks of intensive practice. Jean Nydegger, Pi Phi quarterback, is shown ready to receive the ball from her center as Jo Nell Proctor and Sally Hemner crouch in the backfield and Sally Kennedy goes out in motion.

Thetas Break Losing Streak With 26-6 Power Puff Win

Kappa Alpha Theta broke a three year losing streak Saturday afternoon in the annual Powder Puff Bowl game and defeated a game but outclassed Pi Phi team 26-6.

Led by guard E G. Holton and Pat Merideth, the Theta line ripped the lighter Indian forward wall to pieces. The victory starved Wildcats marched down the field for a touchdown after the opening kickoff without once relinquishing the ball.

THE PI PHI offensive team, which seemed to be as stymied as their defense, lost the ball on downs a few minutes after taking the field following the initial Theta touchdown. Again the Wildcats refused to be stopped and by the half, the score was 19-0.

The Pi Phis, who can still claim a record of four victories to two for Theta in the series so far, finally caught fire in the second half and managed to roll down the field and make their line score of the game on a touchdown pas from quarterback Jean Nydegger to half back Sally Hamner. Their defense tightened up and held the victors to one touchdown, making the final score 26-6.

THETAS WHO scored one touchdown a piece for their team were Janie McNeeley, Pat Meredith, Ruthie Spenser and Nancy Wehner. Under the skillful quarterbacking of Ruthie Spenser, the Wildcats combined a hard running attack with accurate passing and deceptive ball handling to defeat the Pi Phis, and win the coveted trophy from the losers.

Contributions made by the spectators during the half-time netted the Campus Chest an unofficial total of 86 dollars. Alpha Gamma Delta sorority sold cokes during the game with the profits also going to the Campus Chest.

THE VICTORS and the vanquished kissed and made up at an opeo house held at the Theta house immediately followiog the game.

The Theta griddera then bandaged their wounds and prepared for their formal dance scheduled for Saturday night, while the Pi Phis limped home to College Ave. where they began planning a winning strategy for next year's Powder Bowl game.

Museum Receives Moccasins Taken From Exhibition

The pair of Iroquois moccasins, taken from the University Museum last week have been returned, according to Dr. Hale Smith, who first reported the loss.

Dr. Smith said the Indian shoes were on the door yesterday morning. The mocacsins were part of an exhibition from the Rochester Museum entitled "Iroquois Indians, People of the Long House," and were not replaceable although their insurance value only came to $37.50

If the shoes had not been returned, their loss would have been published in a national organ going to al reputable museums, which, Dr. Smith said, would mean future reluctance to loan material to this University.

Smith said he was very glad to see the moccasins returned. It was the first time in the histroy of Florida State that anything had been taken from the University Museum.

Limited Space Is Explanation For Cancelled Meeting

Because no housing accomodations were available for such a large group, the Women's Convocation scheduled last Thursday was not held. Instead, a report was given at each dormitory meeting by one of the Women Senators.

Changes in quiet hours and weekend regulations are a few of the accomplishments made by the Women's Senate this past semester. Quiet hours in the Women's dormitories will be changed to, from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 a.m. Sunday thru Thursday and 12:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

THIS SEMESTER all freshmen women who made the dean's list will be given an extra weekend away. And effective next semester, all upperclasswomen who do not make a "C" average will be restricted to six weekends away.

Also next semester freshmen women will be required to come in at 10:30 p.m. on week nights. It is hoped that weekend hours will be extended to 12:30, but this has not yet passed the faculty.

Also the Senate is trying to have washing and cigarette machines for the women's dormitories approved.

A personal invitation is extended to all to attend any meeting of the Women's Senate. A meeting is held each Wednesday at 5:15 in the UGA room

Dr. Wesley C. Harter, Southeastern District Councilor of Alpha Kappa Psi, introduced approximately 50 members and their guests. Division Councilor Dr. H. J. Vogt and Deputy Councilor Kenneth M. Shaver were also present.

Following the dinner meeting, alumni secretary Horne explained the need for organizing an Alpha Kappa Psi alumni chapter in Tallahassee. Group Calls Meeting To Encourage Parties

Campus Political Organization To be Discussed Tonight at 7

Campus political parties, sbout which rumors have been flying for the last few weeks, will be explained and discussed tonight at a meeting in the Senate room at 7 p.m.

Called by a mixed group of Greeks and independents, all junior counselors, monitors and dormitory government leaders have been asked to attend this organizational meeting to clarify to the student body the purposes and intentions of the new move

THE PLANS so far include the set-up of a party system with its main objective to get people interested in student government.

Contrary to rumors, the set-up will be entirely mixed, that is, not Greeks on one side and independents on the other According to Bobby Drake, temporary chairman of the infant group, the objectives of a political party system at FSU are easily seen.

"FIRST, THEY will give student officers a group (the party) to which they must be responsible," Drake says. "Instead of having one sounding board for student opinion as is the present set-up," he continued, "the party system will make possible several sources for student opinion outlet.

Second, the movie will create much more interest in campus elections than students now show. Third, more students will have a chance to work in student politics than they do now "This will give them a better representation in their government because they will be able to put those people with experience and knowledge of government in office," he said.

IN COMMENTING on the party system at other schools, Drake said that the proposed FSU system will far surpass anything of which he knows. The University of Florida, for instance, for years bad a two party system with Greeks and independents pitted against each other in most issues. Recently U of F students decided to do away with this precedent because they felt more could be accomplished by mixing the political potentialities of both groups.

According to Drake, the proposed system will be a complete turnabout from last year's attempts at political parties at FSU. Engineered by the Greeks, a fraternity bloc was formed with a slote of selective candidates, some of whom did not know they were on the ballot. This was done in secret meetings.

NO CANDIDATES have been picked yet by the group, but Drake hopes after full organization that the proposed party will have a slate in time for University Government Association elections.

Political parties will be the topic of discussion on tomorrow night's UGA Forum of the Air, over WFSU, campus radio station. The panel will include both Greek and independent factions and will further clear up any doubts the student body has about the party move. Drake urges all students to listen to the program and find the answers to their questions.

Reading Set For Conradi Thursday 8 P.M

Speech Department's Is First English Reading Of "Woman of Dawn"

A dramatic reading performance of "Woman of the Dawn" will be given Thursday evening at 8:15 in the Conradi Theater by the department of speech.

No admission will be charged and the public is invited to attend.

THIS WILL be the first performance of the work in English. The play by Alejandro Casona has just recently been translated into English for the stage by Marllyn Nelson, graduate student in the department of speech, who will also direct the performance.

"Woman of the Dawn' is considered by many critics to be the purest theater of all Casona's dramatic writings. The reading is a combination of the fantastic and the realistic. The imaginative element is portrayed by Death in the figure of a kindly woman who visits the homes of the mortals, plays with the childran and almost forgets for a moment the purpose of her visit to the world.

THE REALISTIC element is represented by the other characters of the play and the setting in which they move. Both of these elements combine with a strong lyrical tendency to make "Woman of the Dawn" a non-realistic fantasy.

Nugent Pleased By Garnet Gold Performances in Tilt

Garnets Win With Passes Nugent Lauds Team Spirit

By PAT HOGAN

The Garnets and Golds, bless m wrote the finishing touches the first chapter of Florida te University's newest football a Friday night, but don't put an the book friend The plot only beginning

A weary Tom Nugent the dap- ex-VMI coach who now waves e colors of FSU, sat down in ard-backed chair late Friday ht, took a deep breath, and ed Seminole football, past d future

Nugent's first 30 days at FSU, of them consumed by tedius sions on the practice field, had ended. How did he feel?

"Great" was the first Nugent mment The boys made the nsformation from the single to a fast attack much quick- han I had hoped for

"And what pleases me most," gent continued, "is the spirit c attitude the boys displayed. want them to know how much appreciate the way they accept- me and my ideas—their endliness and cooperation has n wonderful"

Things were completely dif- ent at the end," Nugent said he boys gave a good idication at they want to play football e winning kind

Nugent then presented his ws on the Garnet and Gold ale

"I'm a little disappointed that didn't score more touch- wns" he said But they played rd all the way. When the game ded those boys were all shot. t up dirty and tired"

One explanation Nugent gave the bone jarring play was t it had been six days since teams had scrimmaged "They were hungry for bodily tact" he said

When asked if he had defi- nitely decided on who would play the vital quarterback role, he key to the T, next year, Nugent replied

Bobby Fiveash is our top quar- back right now. But we might him at left halfback next t like Bobby's passing and nning but we'll have to play n where he can be the most p"

You can't count Swantic out gent said, "That boy is a slow eloper and he's coming along a rate that is not too notice- But he has a lot of finesse d is a good defensive man"

Then Nugent said that Ronnie ng the big Daytona Beach lback who played end last ses- n should be the Seminoles' top ner in '53. "King didn't show ch in the intrasquad game but has the ability if he'll put to use"

INEBACKING WEAK

The line is shaping up fast, gent said, but the major weak- ss is at linebacker positions. r linebackers didn't cover like ey should Their reactions were o slow That's one of our big- t problems now

Nugent spoke like he thinks at problem will be ironed out ween the Aug. 25 reporting te and the opening game with ami next fall"

Nugent said that he expects ery player to report in excel- nt physical condition next fall, d he plans to keep them in the st condition possible

"I want to set the boys up under a rigid training program next fall," he said. It is my hope and desire that we will have a training table where the boys can eat together and regularly. I also want the squad to live together "There never was a successful football program but what self sacrifice was an integral part. I believe you can have a successful team and have laxity in training routines. I don't know how FSU teams have trained in the past but I do know how they will in the future."

Nugent said that the Garnet and Gold teams by no means represented a true picture of things to come. "There'll be a lot of new boys and I'll say right now there'll be several freshmen in the starting lineup. By mid-season you'll see a lot of different names and faces on the roster."

How about a prediction on next year's record, coach?

"I'd rather not do that. If you pick a number and win that many games then you've only done what you said you would. If you pick a number and fall short, then brother, you're in hot water"

Although spring drills are over, it doesn't mean a rest for Nugent. He's taking off for the Pennsylvania coal regions in search of talent next week.

Nugent is probably the most confused man in town today The coach, his wife and their five children are in the midst of moving into their new home, a four-bedroom house at 1837 Lake Ella

"It's just like a ship," said Nugent. It has an upper deck—for sunning—with a rail around it

Below is a brief summary of the scoring touchdowns and how they were made

GOLD

From 25 yards out, Harry Massey fliped a short pass to end Buddy Bryant who took it on the twelve, side-stepped a Garnet defender and rushed into the end zone. Halfback Stan Dobosz's try for the extra point was wide but the Golds lead 6-0.

GARNET

Quarterback Bobby Fiveash threw a 20 yard pass to Ted Morrill in the end zone. The score was set-up by Stan Dobosz' fumble which was recovered by the Garnet's Billy Rabon. Billy Graham, a junior colelge transfer for from Bogalusa, La., kicked the extra point and the Garnets led 7-6 at the end of the first half.

SECOND HALF

The Golds went ahead again, 13-6 on 75 yard pass play. A freshman quarter from Columbus, Ga. Leonard Swantic, shot a pass to end Ed Mann who caught the ball on the Gold's 45 and then outran Rabon to pay dirt. This time Dobosz's kick was good

GARNET

The Garnet tied the score at 13-13 when Fiveash heaved a 25 yard pass to end Hal Powell who grabbed it at the 22 and ran over the goal line Billy Graham's kick for the extra point was block by Don Smith.

GARNETT

The wining touchdown was countered, again by a Fiveash to Powell aerial, this time covering 43 yards.

The touchdown followed Bob Grenn's interception of Swantic's pass at the Gold 43 yard line. Again the try for the extra point was blocked but the game ended shortly after with the Garnets winning, 19-13

Golf Team Beats Stetson As James Shoots Low of 68

Dr. Don Veller's Florida State University golfers rallied on the back nine to shade the Stetson Hatters, 10-8, in a tight intrastate dual links showdown at the Country Club here yesterday

The Seminole team, which nipped Stetson in DeLand last week only to finish behind the Hatters in the Florida Intercollegiate playoffs two days later, won two rounds, lost one and tied one in racking up their fourth dual victory against a single defeat yesterday.

Jimmy James the Miami product who is racked No 1 on the FSU links ladder, came up with the day's hottest round to polish off Dick Johnson, Stetson's chief threat, 4 and 3.

James checked in with a medal score of 68, besting par on the rolling tree-lined Tallahassee course by four strokes. Then to make matters even brighter for James, his teammate, in a post-match session, unanimously elected the senior to captain them for the remainder of the season.

The other Seminole twosome triumph yesterday was recorded No. 2 sticker from Tampa, Hard- No. 2 sticker from Hampa Hatwood trimmed Stetson's Nickols, 1 up.

Rudy Boyd, No. 3 man for FSU, and the Hatter's George Herndon were tied after 18 holes. Tallahassee's Frank Hirt FSU's fourth man, bowed to Bryan of Stetson, 1 up.

The Seminoles, in their first year under Veller, will be idle this week. They meet Davidson here a week from tomorrow and oppose Georgia's Bulldogs here the following day

Track Candidates Show Mid-Season Form in Practice

Florida State's track candidates continue daily work-outs on the West Campus track in preparation for the season's first competition in the Florida Relays. The meet, April 28, is slated for Gainesville.

Of the 30 men working-out regularly, head coach Ken Miller singled out four who "are really looking good" The quartet, Carlos Fraundorfer Woody Parker, Dick Mize and Bill Waggoner were the mainstays of last year's thinclads and will probably assume the same role this spring.

Fraundorfer, the Tampa sophomore, has been breaking consistently the school shot put record and he has been inches from the discus mark in practice He also runs the dashes and broad jumps along with his work in the weights.

Coach Miller was high in his praise of Parker, who holds the FSU 440 record, and who, lately, has been turning in some very good times for this early in the season Miller said that Parker "if he wanted to, could be a national champion."

Miler Bill Wagoner, Johnston, Pa., who went undefeated last year as a freshman, has been within seconds of the mile record, Miller said. Another trackster, who has been menacing school standards, is Tom Sebring in the discus.

Miller also commented on two-miler Ken Jarrett, of Eustis, and frosh sprinter, Bobby Jones. Jarrett," Miller said, "is vastly improved since last spring And Jones is probably the outstanding freshmen."

Jones set records in the 100 and 220 yard dashes in the intramural track meet last month.

NOTED PIANIST INTERVIEWED

Reporter Finds Famous Musician An "OK" Guy

By LONA COCHRAN

Interviewing a world-famous musician is a big assignment for any neophyte reporter, so it required many apprehensive minutes of waiting outside the door of 336 music building before bargaining in and interrupting Edward Kilenyi's playing.

Most of the apprehension was caused by past recollections of temperamental musicians who fell into fits of rage at the slightest interruption. But eventually my timid knock was answered by an amiable, "Come in" and I had my first glimpse of the well-known pianist.

In place of the classic looking old gentleman I expected, there lounged a smiling young man who slipped quickly into his coat as I explained my errand.

HE INVITED me to sit down and I poised my pen in readiness to write down his answers to my questions, but before I could begin, I found myself answering his questions. With sincere interest he asked about my major and my interest in the Flambeau. Great or not, this man was human! I decided.

Professor Kilenyi told me that he was born in Philadelphia and had lived in New York before coming here. For two years he was musical director for Remmington Records, at the same time giving concerts and lectures and making several recordings. He also has given concerts throughout Europe and has been guest soloist with several of the leading orchestras here in the states.

He has never been on the faculty of a university before but was connected with The University of Wyoming, Adolphi College, and Wisconsin College of Music. His work here will consist of directive doctoral studies, which means he will guide doctorate students in piano: teaching classes in piano literature and lecturing. He presented his first lecture Monday afternoon on Bach's "Well-Tempered Clavier."

WHEN ASKED how he happened to come to the University he smiled and said it was chiefly because of Dr. Ernest Von Donyan who was his teacher and close friend while he was studying in Budapest. He says he likes Florida immensely and is impressed with the campus, especially the music building.

As I left the studio after the interview, I realized that the true test of greatness of this man is not only in how well he plays the piano, but also in how he displays his greatness to little people like myself. Dr. Edward Kilenyi passes this test with an A plus grade.

New Traffic Court

fense. Statutory fines to apply to all students after the first offense will run from 50 cents for the second offense, $1 for the third, $1.50 for the fourth and $3 for the ifth violation. Fine or the sixth and iaetr violations will be a flat $5. The above mentioned fines refer only to parking.

For traffic violations which include reckless driving, speeding, running stop signs, and failing to obey officer's signals, the law prescribes a $10 fine or turning over of the case to the administration for disciplinary action.

THE LAW FURTHER states that every student will be entitled to a hearing in the traffic court. However, if the violator doesn't want to appear to be tried, he can pay the fine automatically to the UGA secretary in the offices from 3 till 6 Monday through Friday.

Students may appeal the court's decision by a letter to the court clerk requesting consideration by the body. In this case, the law states, no penalty will be imposed until a decision by the court is reached.

IN REQUESTING the FSU student body's full cooperation in starting the new traffic court, Nowlin, expressing the views of the Senate, has particularly stressed the fact that this is a move strictly for the students' benefit. He said that the adminitration has given the students freedom to go ahead and take care of their own traffic problems. This is a major accomplishment, according to the court head, who said, "In order to show the administration that we can rule ourselves, we have to have the full operation of the student body."

"We're asking all motor vehicle owners to observe the rules and do like the citizens of a democracy are expected to do in realizing that only through self-censorship and self-government can a democracy survive."

MR. DON FARQUHARSON, assistant to the business manager, when asked if he thought the administration would really give the students a free hand, said, "FSU students have been given the chance to blaze a trail with the traffic court. They can make or break it, according to how they accept it.

"The administration wants things to run as smoothly as possible in these cases," he said, "and they have seen the value of having the student body take care of its own traffic matters."

FARQUHARSON assured students that faculty and staff violations would not go unnoticed. He said any cases involving these groups would probably be referred to the county courts and local jurisdiction. He further stated that all student cases will now go through the students' own court.

A piano recital open to the public without charge will be presented in Opperman Music Hall this evening, by Carlisle Floyd, pianist. The program will be offered as an event on the Faculty Recital Series of the School of Music.

Carlisle Floyd received his musical education at Converse College S. C., and Syracuse, N. Y., where he majored in piano and composition. He is noted not only for his many appearances in concert and recital on the FSU campus and elsewhere, but also as a composer of opera, ballet and other works, many of which have been performed locally.

This program will be Floyd's first appearance in concert on the campus since his recent study with the noted pianists Rudolph Fir-usny and Victor Babin at the Aspen Institute in Colorado.

For his program this evening, Floyd will play the "Fantasia in Minor" by Mozart, a "Moment Musical" by Schubert and the "Toccata in D Major" by Bach. The "Sonata in B flat Minor" by Chopin containing the famous "Funeral March" will be followed by two works by Debussy, "Gardens in the Rain" and "Evening in Granada." All Photograpers Urged To Enter Competition

Florida State photographers—amateur or professional—have a chance to enter in the eighth annual International Collegiate Photography competition sponsored by Kappa Alpha Mu.

Entry blanks may be obtained from Tom Smith, School of Journalism, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

THOSE STUDENTS who earn at least half their income with photography will compete in the professional division of the contest, while those earning less will go under the amateur label. Each photographer may submit as many as ten prints, with a maximum of five in any one class. Classes are news, feature, sports and picture story. The classification of the prints are left up to the photographer, although judges reserve the right to change classification.

A portfolio, consisting of a maximum of ten but not fewer than seven prints representing at least three classes — not more than five prints in one class—will be eligible for a major award.

PRINTS MUST be eight by ten or larger, and mounted on standard 16 by 20 photomounts, one to a mount. Name, school, address, classification and technical data should be placed on the back of each entry. An official entry blank has to accompany each print.

All pictures must be sent postpaid. If return postage is not included, entries will be returned express collect. A permanent, not college address should be given for the return. Kappa Alpha Mu cannot assume responsibility for damages.

PICTURES MUST have been made since April 1, 1952. Fifty of the best prints from the show will be chosen for the traveling exhibit, and all prints accepted in this travelling show become the property of Kappa Alpha Mu for a permanent exhibit and publicity purposes. Kappa Alpha Mu does not have the right to sell the print; the title is retained by the photographer. Any copyrighted picture must be accompanied by a release.

Closing date is April 1 and prints should be sent postpaid to Paul B. Snider, chairman, Kappa Alpha Mu Competition, Room 13, Walter Williams Hall, School of Journalism, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

ALL PERSONS who place in the show will receive a certificate of merit and two major awards will be given. The eleventh volume of Encyclopedia of Photography, covering every phase of picture making, will be awarded to the portfolio winner of the professional class. The portfolio winner in the amateur class will receive a scholarship to the University of Missouri Photo Workship. A 25 dollar bonus, to be used to help defray workshop living costs, will be given the amateur winner, providing his prints emphasize college life.

The workshop promotes creative photography under direction of leading photo-journalists. First second and third winners in each class will receive certificates of award.

Georgia Choristers Give Performance

Georgia State College for Women and the Georgia Military College singers, composing the Milledgeville Choir, will give a concert at 8:30 tonight in the First Presbyterian Church.

The group of non-professional musicians will sing without accompaniment.

With Max Noah as director, the group goes into its 18th year of choral work. Noah was trained in the Westminster Choir of Princeton N. J., and before going to Milledgeville organized an a cappella choir at Guilford College in South Carolina.

The choir will appear in several Florida cities during its annual tour, with the main stop being Miami.

Ducker Proposes New Election Bill

A proposed election code covering every phase of University Government Association elections from declaration of candidacy to presentation of certificates of election will be read to the Senate at their regular meeting Tuesday night, Bob Ducker, UGA secretary of elections announced this week.

An effort is being made to set up a standardized set of rules for all elections because the Constitution does not provide any set procedure and the policy has been for each elections secretary to devise his own regulations.

GENE LAWLER, chairman of the committee to set up the code, intends to ask for a special meeting of the Senate to meet the stipulation in the Constitution which says a bill must be read at two meetings before it may be voted on. Other members of the committee are Pat Rennick, Junior Senator, and Jere Salyers, Senior Senator.

If the bill is passed as proposed, the first date for declaration of candidacy will be Wednesday, April 8. Blanks for this purpose will be available at the information desk in the Longmire building beginning Wednesday, April 1.

ONE OF THE changes in the present election policies is an increase in the maximum expenditure allowed for campaigning. Candidates for president will be allowed $75, with other offices receiving equivalent increases. Regarding this, Bob said, "We're not raising it this high because we think everyone will want to

Local Composers Present Selections At Spring Concert

Music by three local composers will be played by the Florida State University Symphonic Band in its Spring Concert next Thursday evening, March 26. The concert will be played under the direction of Robert T. Braunagel, director of University Bands. The program will start at 8:15 p.m. and will be open to the public without charge.

Two of the three featured compositions will recive their first performance. These will be the "Music for Concert Band" by John Boda, professor of piano and composition in the School of Music, and "Overture" by Bertil Boer, instructor in theory.

FRANK PRINDL, graduate student in the School of Music, will be represented by his "H.M.E. March." This March, which is dedicated to the Hawaiian Music Educators Association, was written for the Select Band of the Annual Spring Music Festival of Hawaii. It was first played at the Music Festival last May, under Mr. Prindl's direction. Prindl is on leave from the University of Kentucky, where he is director of bands.

Soloists for the program will be Lovanne Self, who will be marimba soloist in the selection "Marimba Capers" by Ernest Caneva, and Lloyd Fish, Ed Santana, Grace Schatzman and Joy Summers, who will be soloists in the "Concertino" by Carl Maria von Weber.

THE BAND concert will be played in honor of the bands from north Florida who will be arriving on the campus Thursday afternoon and evening to participate in the Band Festival to be held on the campus Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Melvin Lectures On Physics Topics

A popular expository lecture on "Relativity and the Expanding Universe" was given yesterday in the Science Lecture Hall by Dr. M. Avramy Melvin, department of physics.

Refreshments were served.

Some of the questions taken up included why one cannot catch up even the least bit with light; is time reversal possible? Also why small and large masses fall in the same time; is switching off gravity possible? Another one way why it seems that the Universe is expending: has it alternately expanded and contracted, or did it start once and for all 3,600 million years ago.

Sears Roebuck Sends Interviewers to FSU

A representative from Sears-Roebuck and Company in Atlanta will be on campus Tuesday, March 24, to interview Seniors in all schools and divisions of the University who are interested in positions with Sears after graduation.

On Monday night preceeding interviews, the Sears representative will talk informally with interested students and their wives or husbands at 8 in the Clubroom of Longmire.

Further information concerning the meeting and interviews may be obtained in the office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

Dr. Wilson Relates Interesting Views To FSU Librarians

Dr. Louis Round Wilson, distinguished librarian of Chapel Hill, N. C., spoke at 7:30 last night in the Florida State University Science Lecture Hall.

The lecture was the sixth in a series featuring an outstanding librarian, to be presented by the FSU Library School.

Dr. Wilson, who is a past president of the American Librarian Association, was born and educated in North Carolina. His professional life, except for 10 years spent as dean of the graduate school, University of Chicago, has been spent in North Carolina. He founded the University of North Carolina Press while serving as librarian at that university.

In his letcure here he outlined the influence of social sciences and humanities on library service, and discussed how literature, adequate to support graduate work in librarianship, has developed.

The Chapel Hill librarian has been connected with numerous major advances in school, public, college and university library service. He has worked with various regional and national groups, and is well known in the overall southern educational program.

Mrs. Givens Explains The "Divine Comedy"

A lecture on Dante's "Divine Comedy" was given by Mrs. Azzurra Givens, instructor in the department of modern languages, Tuesday in the Trophy Room of the Student Center.

Dr. George Yost, professor of English and chairman of the series "Great Books," introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Givens recently gave an illustrated lecture on "Present Day Italy," at which time she presented an exhibit of articles made in her native country.

Campus Politicians Urge Party System

Student Leaders Lay Plans For Reorganization of Politics

In a move to start political parties on campus, both Greeks and independents met Tuesday night to discuss the formation of a party system in Florida State University elections.

Held at 7:30 in the Senate Rooms in Longmire, the meeting drew some 35 interested campus leaders. According to attendance figures the Greeks and independents were evenly represented.

ANOTHER MEETING will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Longmire auditorium.

The essence of the meeting was to determine the advantages to be gained by FSU students in having such a system. University Government Association President Mary Ruth Summers, advocating the move, told the group that she thinks that such a system would do wonders for the individual student.

"SINCE WE elect national officers on a political party basis," she said, "a similar system at a college level will give students a chance to prepare themselves for adult citizenship."

President Summers also feels the student body as a whole would benefit by the move. She said she thought it would promote a much more co-operative spirit among students than now exists.

A TYPICAL QUESTION asked, was, "What are the advantages of a political party system over the present set-up here."

Temporary Chairman Bobby Drake, also a Senior Senator, said many answers were forthcoming. First, he said, "it would give us an organized student body—one which the administration would be willing in give more freedom to if that student body showed more interest."

ACCORDING TO Senior Class Pres. Bob Ryals, many specific questions which the group could not answer were put forth. Those asking questions were directed to find out student gripes about the present set-up and bring them forward at the next meeting.

Ryals said a steering committee for the party will be voted on next Tuesday in a definite effort toward organization. "This steering committee," he said, "will probably be made up of a platform chairman, a finance chairman, transportation and publicity chairman and a candidate chairman."

RYALS SAID this board will probably be designed to meet regularly to hear student complaints. "When the party is in operation," he said, "this board will make possible better qualified candidates. Candidates who will be responsible to the party through the steering committee will not want to shirk responsibilities which would put them in bad standing."

Ryals feels the students are interested in a party system and want to change the present situation. He continued by saying that the student body wants to see its candidates stand on a definite platform. With someone to be responsible to, they must follow their campaign promises.

ALL ATTENDING the meeting agreed that with students showing an apathetic attitude toward what's going on around them, the administration is not and will not be willing to trust them with responsibilities now handled by University officials.

Ryals noted that the record vote in UGA elections in the past has been 1,500, a mere fraction of the voting potentialities of the FSU student body. He said it naturally follows that the administration is unwilling to give students too much freedom when such an unconcerned attitude exists.

Pop Concert Is Season's Finale For Symphony

3 Tallahassee Artists Are Featured Soloists With Florida Orchestra

Three soloists will be featured in the final concert of the State Symphony of Florida season, which will be played in Leon High Auditorium next Monday and Tuesday evenings, March 23 and 24, according to Dean K. O. Kuersteiner, conductor of the symphony.

J. Dayton Smith, tenor, Patsy Gilliam, dancer, and Robert Sedore, violinist, will be featured in the program. Sedore will play the brilliant "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso" for violin and orchestra. Smith will sing two famous tenor arias, the aria of Azael from Debussy's "The Prodigal Son," and "Celeste Aida" from Verdi's opera, "Aida."

PATSY GILLIAM, noted local dancer and dance instructor, will dance the "Symphonic Scenario from South Pacific" with the orchestra. This will be a large scale production number according to Dean Kuersteiner, with special lighting effects and the orchestra concealed behind a semi-transparent curtain.

The Monday evening program, which will begin at 7:30 p. m., will be a special benefit concert for the Leon High School Band and Choruses. The concert is planned for young music lovers, Dean Kuersteiner said, but adults will be admitted at student rates if accompanied by someone under 18 years of age. Ticket price is 50 cents for this concert.

THE TUESDAY evening concert will be a "pop" concert featuring light symphonic works, plus the three soloists. Season ticket holders will be admitted to this concert, and in addition a few tickets are available at the School of Music. Ticket price is $2.00 for the Tuesday evening concert.

Freshmen Students Have Low Average For First Semester

The Freshman class had an overall grade average of .9 last semester, according to figures released by the Registrar's Office, which means the Class of '56 is going to have to bury itself in the books if it intends to graduate.

The high scorers, of course, were the graduate students, who have a 2.1 average. (Maybe it is because they have to have at least a 2. to get that MA or Phd.)

Next in line comes the Senior Class with a 1.8 average; and then progressively downward to the Freshmen: Juniors, 1.5; Sophomores, 1.3. Special students made a 1.4, while the veterans averaged a 1.4 also.

The average for all men enrolled at Florida State comes to 1.2, while the women are ahead with a 1.5. Coeds in sororities held an edge over fraternity men with a 1.5 average to the 1. of the "brothers."

Junior Closs Meets

The Junior Class met last night and chose committees to prepare for the annual Junior-Senior Prom. The Junior Class also discussed the possibilities of the Juniors assisting the Seniors with sponsoring the Scholarship Fund, the class of '53 recently voted into existence.

APO Pledges Five Members

Eight Men Initiated Into Service Honorary

Alpha Phi Omega, men's national service honorary, initiated eight new members last week and Wednesday evening pledged five more.

John Adams, acting-president of the organization who is finishing out the term of office adbicated by Jimmy Evans three weeks ago, commented that he was very pleased with the calibre of men interested in service to Florida State as well as to their community and that he could only see a greater success for the group in the future.

The men initiated were Bert McIntosh, David Dreis, Wayne Terry, Gene Lawler, Paul Sorsparu, Rick Nasrallah, Ed Andrews and H. B. Quattlebaum.

New pledges for the service fraternity are Dave Kennedy, Hal LeVay, Joe Pierce, Art Kennerly and Shorty Adams.

Because many of those accepted into pledgeship to the group were unable to attend Wednesday evening's meeting because of social fraternity committments, another pledge ceremony for those accepting will be held next Wednesday night at 7:00 in the club room of the Longmire building. Election of new officers will follow.

Members of Alpha Phi Omega besides those who were initiated are John Adams, Tommy Bowen, Jim Evans, Pete Williams, Dick Yeager, Carrol White, Tom Simmons, Tom Rogero, Jay Ladd and Clint Storm.

Twenty-One Bands Of Florida Schools Compete In Festival

Tallahassee and Florida State University will play host Thursday to Saturday, March 26 to 28 for twenty-one high school bands from North Florida. The bands will be here for the Sixth District Band Festival.

About 100 young musicians are expected for the competition festival, according to Oliver Hobbs, bandmaster at Leon High School and general chairman for the event.

Events for the competitors will include concert-playing, sight-reading, solo and ensemble playing and baton twirling. Most of the events will be held in the FSU School of Music and will be open to the public without charge.

Marching exhibitions will be staged the last two nights of the festival in Doak S. Campbell Stadium. Each band will give an eight-minute performance. Tickets will be sold at the gate both evenings.

Bands performing Friday night, the 27th will be Chattahoochee, Choctawhatchee, Wewahitchka, Monticello, Chipley, Graceville, Madison, Marianna, Leon and Pensacola.

Uke and Guitar Duet Win Prize In Annual Cavalier Stunt Night

The uke and guitar duet of Charles Singer and Jimmy Hanks won first place in Wednesday night's Stunt Night, sponsored by Cavaliers, men's dancing honorary.

Dick Gutting, Benny Wallace and Harmer Weichel presented a gymnastics act which brought them second prize, while Jacqueline Schofield, a violinist, was given third place.

Prizes ranged from a 15 dollar to a ten and a five dollar gift certificate for merchandise in downtown stores. The 25 dollars in prize money was taken out of the Cavalier's treasury, said Pres. Jim Jindra, as the local Chamber of Commerce would not permit solicitation of prizes from merchants.

Others taking part in the vaudeville show were vocalists Ken Haskins, Bob Parrish, Mary Ellen Sellers, Joan Pearson and Ken Nelson. John Adams and Pat Smoak played a piano duet; La Vetra Armstrong did a gypsy dance.

Extra acts, not entered in the contest, included a mambo by Mickey Robles and Bill Neolett and a tap dance by Barbara Vickers and Jim Fadigan. An accident happened during one of the extra acts. Ann Tucker, riding a unicycle approximately eight feet high could not make a turn because of the narrow stage and had to swerve sideways and fall back to prevent falling off the stage. She received no serious injuries.

During the acts, Georgie Bee and his orchestra provided music. Patsy Neal, vocalist with the orchestra, and a new quartet called the Debonaires, sang. Members of Cotillion, women's dancing honorary, ushered.

Cavalier Pres. Jim Jindra says the organization is offering free dancing lessons every Thursday night from 7 until 9 and plans are now underway for the ann[illegible] May Dance.

SITTIN' ON THE SIDELINES

PARTY SYSTEMS TAKE CAMPUS SPOTLIGHT

By MARCIA MORRIS

Student government is embroiled in another political controversy—the second of the year. NSA, which attracted attention during the first semester, has simmered down—in fact, faded away to a slight murmur. The question of introducing a party system on this campus has now assumed the spotlight.

Until this time discussions and planning have of necessity been under cover, but now UGA elections are scarcely five weeks off and a course of action must be formulated immediately or forgotten.

At election time last year there were vague attempts to inaugurate some sort of system on this campus. However, well meant attempts merely resulted in a block—some labeled it a fraternity block. Results were negligible.

Now student government leaders are interested and their efforts at organization have been echoed by a fairly representative cross-section of the student body. As yet, only one definite group is working with any basis for foundation, but there are hints that opposition will not be long in forthcoming.

The essence of the party system depends upon the existence of at least two strong groups. That is, if keen competition is a sought after principle. The aim in these beginning stages should not be efforts at campus control, but a concentrated campaign directed at stepping up student interest and participation in their government.

At this writing only a smattering of the student body has any knowledge of what transpires in the Senate chambers and the President's office in the alumni building. And these, at best, only have a vague insight. Proponents of the party system believe that here is the so-called medicine needed to give UGA a shot in the arm. Here is a serum to quicken participation.

For three years election voting has been meager on this campus. In reality, most officers receive backing from a slight percentage of the student body. Election officials and other interested workers have tried various and sundry methods to stir up a fair sprinkling of candidates and a liberal turnout for the primaries. However, nothing seems to work adequately. In the last UGA election the deadline for qualifications was extended in an attempt to lure more than one candidate into running for each office. Still the slates have not been overloaded. Political parties, say their backers, are the remedy for this situation.

This school, say the opponents of the system, is not ready for such a set-up. They cite Universities like Gainesville where party politics are anything but peaceable, pick out the disadvantages in Greek versus Independent squabbles, and conclude that the "each for his own" method is more ideal. In this way, they say, anyone, at least, has the privilege of competing on an equal basis.

Naturally initial tries at any new idea are going to receive a few bumps. The students who favor political parties expect rough going. But they also feel that the time is ripe to move forward. The main stumbling block, quite plausibly, seems to be a lack of assurance on the parts of candidates and voters as well. Prospective seekers o. office fear to walk out on a limb and have it sawed off. The average student has never come in contact with this system before and is suspicious. Perhaps rightfully so. The question remains, what to do?

Elections are just around the corner The meetings continue, as students puzzle over which way to cast their lots. No crystal ball is available. The only way to solve the problem now at hand is through the trial and error method.

The candidates, if parties are formed, will serve, in some respects, as guinea pigs. FSU can not know the benefits or disadvantage of political parties until it has tasted of the main course. Discussion has very well served as an appetizer. To some, the advent of parties is inconsequential, but no one can deny the need for lively competition and a little spirited interest come election time.

The ball has been set rolling. It is time for the students themselves to give it a shove or two in one direction or the other.

KEFAUVER ADDS REASSURING NOTE

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Viewing with alarm the chaotic abandonment of constitutional freedom by congressional committees run by publicity seeking congressmen swept up by the wave of hysteria prevalent in our country today, Senator Estes Kefauver has added a calm and reassuring note.

Senator Kefauver on February 10 of this year introduced two resolutions: one to provide the basic procedural methods for investigating committees, the other to deal with derogatory remarks made by members of Congress in debates.

Commenting on these resolutions, the Tennessee senator said in a recent magazine article, "I took this step because I am convinced that in our struggle against Communism we are in danger of losing many of our most cherished liberties. Unless we curb those who have lost touch with the meaning and value of our traditions and have adapted tactics and attitudes frighteningly similar to those which mark the totalitarian mind in all its guises, we will lose them. The task of meeting this threat rightfully belongs to the United States Senate."

He lists five points on which Congressional committees have been criticized:

Committee hearings too often assume the proportions of a full-dress trial of individuals without giving these individuals the regular court proceedings.

Congressmen in committees seem to be both prosecuting attorneys and judges.

Innocent witnesses may be subjected to loss of jobs, character assassination, or injury to reputation, just as a result of the attendant publicity.

The procedures for conducting committee hearings is not prescribed by Congress.

The legal rights of individuals guaranteed by the Bill of Rights are abridged by Congressional investigations.

The first study of Congressional committee tactics was undertaken by the Committee on the Bill of Rights of the Bar Association of New York City in 1948, and as a result of this study there have been several attempts, beginning with the Seventy-ninth Congress, to introduce standardized practices.

The main provisions of his resolutions are:

That a person or organization shall be notified of the nature of the charges against him, of the matters to be inquired into, and of the derogatory material to be presented.

That he be given an opportunity to present evidence in his own behalf.

That he be permitted counsel, who shall be entitled to question him within the appropriate limits in order to bring out all pertinent facts.

That he be permitted to file a limited number of interrogatories to be answered by witnesses who have testified to derogatory materials.

That he be permitted to file at the conclusion of the evidence a rebuttal statement

I wish Senator Kefauver's resolutions success in this Congress. There are definitely inequalities in the way committees are conducted. Sen. Kefauver's crime investigating committee was generally regarded as being fair to witnesses, but many other committees have been tremendously reckless in what they have done.

I am not overly optimistic about the resolutions' chances, though The "public mind" is in such a state these days that it is almost impossible to talk sense You can go through a detailed and reasonable explanation of how our underlying freedoms are being undermined, and the only reaction you typically get is a sort of blank staring off into space This does not seem to be a time to talk of important things

Eh, bien!

EVERYBODY HAILS FROM IRELAND

By FRANCES CAWTHON

This week everyone on campus had ancestors from Ireland—even if the family tree had been a cocnut palm in Polynesia for the past thousand years.

It was March 17 this Tuesday and that's St. Paddy's Day, and when it's St Paddy's Day it goes so far that all baritones are Irish tenors. If you aren't wearing at least a green pin-stripe somewhere in your attire on St. Patrick's Day, and there's a bit o' Eire in your veins, you have committed the unforgivable cardinal sin. Sacriligious. Everybody knows that a little bit of heaven fell one day and it looked so good there the angels just let it be

I sometimes wonder why the Irish have got such a high spot in the hearts of everybody. Surely the country isn't the richest one on the globe; the people not the most educated. But there is something about the flat-footed policeman from County Cork that appeals—and as was said before, there's something about everybody that's Irish. How the Irish people spread themselves around so much is some question for migration experts. Even the potato famine couldn't do that much.

Why the Irish pick St. Patrick's Day to go wild is another puzzle The fellow was a foreigner as he came either from Scotland or Armoric Gaul—wherever that is. To top it all, his old man, Calpurnius, was a judge of a Roman colony.

Pat got into Ireland by mistake. At 18 he was unfortunate enough to get himself captured by somebody and sold into slavery in Ireland. (Little did he know he had been sold as a slave on a piece of real estate leased by celestial realtor headquarters). He looked after sheep for a while and then escaped. But happiness didn't last long. After all, who likes to leave Heaven?

He decided he'd go back and convert the Irish if he could, so he studied for about 20 years, made a trip to Rome and got permission from Pope Celestine to return. He made his return trip about 432 AD, and he was not the first who had gone with the idea of conversion. The Druids, a heathern priesthood, had other ideas, though, and had eliminated the effectiveness of other attempts.

The story goes that when he landed he began talking about the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, three Persons in one God. Now the inhabitants weren't about to listen to a character spout forth such nonsense so they began picking up rocks and aiming them at Pat's head. The traveler, however, is said to have quietly picked up a clover and said.: "Is it any more strange that three Persons should be united in one God than it is for these three leaves of clover to grow upon one stalk?"

This seemed to make sense, so the people accepted him and he worked diligently in the Isle until he died a very old man on March 17, 465, a man who had converted almost all Ireland to Christianity.

Every since then, 50 per cent of all boys born there are named Patrick—called Pat by the gang. Every local area, too, has its own legends about St. Patrick. One of the most widely known is that about his driving out the snakes from the Emerald Isle. An Irishman will swear to this and dare you to find a serpent on the whole island.

People have been celebrating the day ever since, too. In 1731, a Charitable Irish Society was formed in Boston for relief of poor and indigent Irishmen reduced by sickness, "shipwrack," as they call it, old age and other infirmities Many were formed like this, and now on St. Patrick's day members wear green sashes. (Green is the color of the shamrock, the island, the flag Everything is green. In fact, I suspect they've been using chlorophyll in their toothpaste at least 20 years before we ever thought of it.)

Yes, yes The Irish are certainly wonderful people And that is the only way we can be modest and truthful and pat our own backs and everyone else's

After all, EVERYBODY is Irish!

Call Me Madam Plays Next

BY JUNE MORGAN
Feature Editor

Twentieth Century-Fox is presenting Ethel Merman in the style to which she is accoustomed in Irving Berlin's "Call Me Madam" which opens at the State Theater Wednesday, April 25 for a seven-day showing For her co-stars in this Technicolored musical comedy, produced on an extravagant scale, Producer Sol C. Siegel assigned Donald O'Connor to the role Russell Nype played during the play's two-year run of Broadway, gave Vera-Ellen the Princess Maria part and induced George Sanders to sing for the first time on the screen in his characterization of General Cosmo Constantine, the hand-kissing Secretary of State of the Grand Duchy of Lichtenburg, the role Paul Lukas created in New York.

MISS MERMAN, who plays the part of Mrs Sally Adams, the party-giving American Ambassador to the Grand Duchy in "Call Me Madam," returns to the screen after an absence of 13 years during which she played 800 performances on Broadway in "Call Me Madam" besides appearing in 11 other successive hits. Her last screen appearance was in "Alexander's Rag Time Band."

For the scenic investiture of the colorful musical, Twentieth Century-Fox erected some of the most impressive sets seen on the screen in years, including the castle of the Grand Duchy of Lichtenburg with rare, hand-covered wood panels from the famous Vanderbilt mansion in New York. The set for the Lichtenburg Fair, the most spectacular scene in the story, required the largest studio space ever alloted to one set to provide adequate space for the scores of Old World style amusement booths and concessions comprising the carnival scene.

PETITE VERA-ELLEN has the honor of wearing the costliest and fanciest peasant dress ever to reach the Technicolor screen Costing an estimated $1,175, the dress required more than 400 man hours of labor and was designed by New York designer Irene Sharaff who was brought to Hollywood to create the costumes for the picture

To make Miss Merman feel perfectly at home in the picture version of the Irving Berlin hit, Arthur Sheekman's screen play called for few changes in the Russel Crouse - Howard Lindsay story which was tailored to the unique talents of the ebullient songstress

Only a single number, "I Like Ike," was deleted from the film, purely on the basis of timeliness, and substituted for it was a Berlin composition of earlier vintage, "International Rag." All the other show-stopping tunes have been retained They include "Hostess with the Mostes' on the Ball," "Something to Dance About," "Can You Use Any Money Today " "It's a Lovely Day Today," "Marrying for Love," "Best Thing for Me Would Be You," "You're Just In Love," "The Ocarina," "What Chance Have I With Love" and "Washington Square Dance "

BESIDES ELEVEN of Berlin's gayest tunes sung by Miss Merman O'Connor and Sanders, "Call Me Madam" includes a variety of spectacular dances by Vera-Ellen. O'Connor and the others In one of the dances Vera is tossed through the air like a human cannonball.

Director Walter Lang, with this top-notch cast of performers has fused all the elements of song, dance and spectacle into one of the most elaborate screen musical comedies to come out of Hollywood in years.

Finds Court Amusing

Dear Editor,

This new idea of the Traffic Court is really very amusing to most of us. "Student Court" is also a laugh. I'd like to see the court just try to do something about the traffic problem here on campus, and try to solve it once and for all If they suggested a place for a parking lot, which is the only way to solve the parking problem on this campus, they would not get to first base. The "Student Center" and the student "self-government" would get stopped so quickly it would not be funny.

They like us to believe that at least we have a "self-government," but as I have just said let the government try to get something done so as to solve the problem and they will soon see that we really have no self-government at all.

Before the "traffic court" starts to fine students why don't they find the students a place NEAR the main buildings to park ? ? ? Without a place to park there will always be violations. The administration has been very cooperative with finding us a place to park The new parking lot on Call St was a wonderful place—except who has classes within four blocks of the lot? What good did it do to put the lot there? Just who is going to walk half way across campus to their car? The University could have put a lot in a more suitable place than that

Another point, and that is before the "Student Traffic Court" fines anyone for parking on the grass, sidewalks, and restricted zones I think it would be a good idea for the members of the court to stop parking anywhere they went to on campus They must think that we will "do as they say, not as they do."

In conclusion I say this to the traffic court, and I am sure I have most of the students with cars behind me on this: Get us a parking lot in an adequate place on campus, and we will park in it. But until then forget about the fining—you'll have a hard time collecting all the money from the violators.

I do hope that no one will be shocked when they see my car parked on the hall in Westcott, because it is the only place there is to park.

Again I say: FIND US A PLACE TO PARK AND WE WILL PARK IN IT.

President Campbell Tells Graduates Of Southern Education

Florida State University President Doak S. Campbell told the weekly Graduate Club luncheon members that The Southern Regional Board for Education is working well.

Speaking to the group which meets in the university dining hall, the president said the Regional board was organized 4 years ago to coordinate the various programs of study offered in colleges and universities in the South.

The speaker outlined the action when the board was set up and said that fifteen states now participate.

Dr. Campbell said that schools in the South save duplication of courses and money for teaching the same type of courses through the cooperation of the board. He cited an example

If Florida students want to major in veterinary science he said, one of the southern veterinary schools accepts that man on the same basis as if he were from that state and enjoyed the state's privileges

Dr. Campbell also pointed out that the economy of this type of program is popular with the legislatures, as they are spared the job of appropriating hundreds of thousands of dollars for schools within their own states

After Dr Campbell's address Graduate Club officers were elected for the coming year Wallace Dynes is the new president Helen Lawler, vice-president Samuel Baptista, publicity chairman.

Seminoles Play Georgia Teachers in Diamond Opener

The SPORTS Line

By JIM EADY

KENNETH "TUG" WILSON is the athletic commis- ner of the Big Ten, a group of institutions of higher arning with very respectable athletics. It includes Michi- n, Illinois, Ohio State and etc. Now this gentleman, Tug lsoo, has some very noble and admirable views on ath- cs in U. S. A. It's a subject about which many gentle- en have noble and admirable views or ideals. But, how- er, it seems that these ideals have in many cases failed find their way into athletics.

Anyway, Mr. Wilson recently expounded some his views a Sport's banquet in Michigan. Admittedly, this locality y seem a little remote to us here, in the Deep South, but s subject was one of interest to all sections of the country. matters little where he spoke his piece.

HIS PHILOSOPHICAL out-pouring began with the claration; "We are going through some exciting times athletics." Then he explained this statement by citing e tremendous growth of athletics and the increase of the blic's interest in sports.

There's no argument to this observation, for sports nk higher than most national affairs to the majority of merican citizens. In fact, it's a neck and neck race between orts news and the comics for the biggest number of fol- wers.

With "Tug" Wilson's next observation, we also agree. e said: "We were not giving the entire student body of lleges and universities a chance to play. Too much em- hasis was put on the varsity team. Then came the intra- urals to ease the problem."

Notice how he accurately used the word "ease," since ramurals haven't solved the problem . . . just "Eased" It. 'll take much more than intramurals to accomplish this at of solving the problem of "too much emphasis."

However with Mr. Wilson's next comment, we must d a dose of criticism; "There's not much wrong with the uth of today . . . it's the people who are pulling the rings to make it as it is." Of course, what he says here, is ery accurate . . . truer words were never spoken. How- er, what deserves critic a comment is the fact that Tug" Wilson said these words.

THE REASONS why we think Mr. Wilson wasn't ex- ly the proper individual to utter the above words are: ere seems to be some not-to-proper "string pulling" go- g on in the organization, which Wilson heads; the Big n. It appears that nine of the ten schools in this con- rence are bent on kicking out the tenth, which happens be Michigan State, the number one team in the nation st year. Their reasons for such attempts to expel MSC ve been kept pretty well a secret. But it's clear that the her schools are bitter about the way Michigan State pulls owds and athletes away from the other members. And rther, the Conference seems willing to take any steps cessary to ostrasize Michigan State . . . by fair means or ur. It'll probably be the latter.

In other words, before Wilson strikes out at the string-Pullers" he should take a look at his own little roup and their activities.

Outside of this, we'll follow along . . . especially with s remarks about the kibosh put on the "two-platoon stem."

"I was the most astonished man in the world when ey (NCAA) did away with it" stated Wilson. Then he ave his opinion why the big change occurred. He refully avoided a commented on whether he was for or ainst it.

"Fifty-three colleges dropped football last year be- use the two-platoon system was ruining them." Accord- g to Wilson the reason for the step were one or all of e following: 1. It takes too many coaches, 2. It takes too uch equipment and 3. It requires too much travel and ex- nse. In other words, it just took too much money.

Incidentally about 15 of the 53 schools which dropped otball will probably, again, resume the sport because of e abolishment of the free-substitution rule or the "pla- on system."

BEFORE THE TALK was over, Wilson took aslap at asketball as played today in the nation. "I'm discouraged the way basketball is going . . . anytime a team can win

Four FSU Coaches Attend Meeting In Cigar City

Four members of the FSU men's physical educaiton department are in Tampa this week, attending the annual Florida Education Association meeting. They will be among the many coaches from all over Florida who are expected to attend the gathering which started yesterday.

The four are. Head Football Coach Tom Nugent, football assistants Tom Roberson and Bill Armstrong, and Basketball Coach J. K. Kenendy. All the coaches registered, yesterday, at the Tampa Terrace Hotel.

The board of directors and officers met Wednesday night at Rubin's Restaurant. They will submit their annual report at a meeting to be held at 3 o'clock Friday in the Elk's Club auditorium.

Committee meetings, which will include coaching school, basketball, baseball, fotball, track, tennis and golf, were held yesterday morning. And in the afternoon, a series of lectures were given by various visiting coaches. There will also be several talks today by coaches.

Tonight, the coaches will hold an annual dinner at the Bayshore Royal Hotel. Wally Butts, head coach at the University of Georgia will be the guest speaker.

'Gators Begin Spring Practice

Spring practice got under way, yesterday, at the University of Florida as 73 football candidates turned-out for Coach Bob Woodruff. The players immediately started the sessio nwith intensified drills in blocking and tackling. The usual time spent for conditioning was neglected since the grid candidates have been working-out on their own for two weeks before official practice started. The NCAA allows 20 days of official spring practice.

The biggest problem facing Woodruff is finding capable replacements for the loss of 19 lettermen from last year's squad. Also, he'll be faced with the task of shaping his team to perform under the new limited-substitution rule. Last year, the Gators used the two-platoon system to fullest extent with only one man playing both defense and offense. The decision has not been definitely made, but it is expected that Woodruff will require all footbal players now engaged in other spring sports, to take part in the grid drills. This would mean that seven or eight athletes would have to quit track and baseball at the present during spring football practice.

The 72 candidates are being lead by Gator co-captains Jack O'Brien, end; Rick Casares, fullback and Sonny May, guard.

Optimist Club Hears Dr. J. V. McDonough

Teams Clash Today at 2:30 Several Frosh to Start Game

Florida State's young and untried baseball team gets it's first taste of action this afternoon, at 2:30, when they play the Georgia Teacher College "Professors." The contest, the first of a two-game series and an ambitious 24-game schedule, will be played on Tallahassee's Centennial Field. The second tilt, slated for Saturday, will be at the same time and location.

It will be the second meeting of the two clubs. In 1948, the Seminoles swept a two-game series from the Professors, 5-2 and 12-8.

With their youngest—24 of the 38 squad members are freshmen—and perhaps the most talented team in history, the Seminoles hope to get the same running start that helped them cop 17 of 31 games in 1953. That was the best record ever compiled by an FSU team, now in their sixth year of baseball.

HEAD COACH Ralph Matherly plans on giving all of his 10-man pitching staff a brief turn on the mound during the two games. However, he'll probably give the starting assignment to big Ed Lockard, FSU's righthanded ace from Jacksonville. Lockard, who posted a 8-1 record last year, will work the first three innings. He also will get the starting assignment in the Monday contest against the University of Georgia.

Probably sharing the pitching with Lockard, today, will be Chuck Sanders of Monongahela, Pennsylvania, and Max Long, a freshman from Jacksonville. The two are the only left-handers on the pitching staff. Sanders is a sophomore.

Although Matherly is not definitely set on the starting line-up as the FLAMBEAU goes to press, it looks like four freshmen will draw starting assignments. The four are. Jack Morgan, Altoona, Pennsylvania, first base. Manuel Yglesias, Tampa, third base: Joe Fernandez, Tampa, left field, and John Cuesta, Tampa, catcher.

Probable starting line-up:

Jack Morgan (1b), Billy Campbell (3b), Manual Yglesias (3b), Ralph Blinn (ss), Joe Fernandez (lf), Bob Hudson (cf), Billy Mills (rf), John Cuesta (c), Ed Lockard (p).

'Post' Ghost Writer Is Former Teacher

Dora Byron, native Floridian and former teacher in Crescent City and Ocala high schools and in Florida State University, is "ghost writer" of an article to appear this Spring in the Saturday Evening Post.

The article, entitled "Preacher and Working Stiff" is a story of the summer experiences of Dr. Thomas Anderson, pastor of the Central Congregation Church in Atlanta, who spends his vacations as a lumberjack, a taxidriver, a hospital orderly, etc

The Post paid the doctor and Miss Byron $1,350 for the article, although the usual price is $750. The reason for the advanced price is that the article is a product of collaboration.

Miss Byron, who is now news editor in the Emory University Office of Public Information and lecturer in journalism, was for six years Florida "stringer" for the New York Times. She has done newspaper and publicity work throughout Florida. She attended Palatka and Crescent City high schools and Florida State University.

She has contributed articles to other leading magazines and to the feature sections of the Chicago Tribune, Christian Science Monitor and the Atlanta Journal.

Georgia Foe For Monday

The Seminole baseball nine runs into one of it's toughest opponents on the 1953 slate, Monday afternoon, when they clash with the University of Georgia Bulldogs at Centennial Field On the following day, Tuesday, they'll meet Jacksonville (Ala.) State, also on the local diamond.

Both games are slated for 2:30 and with the two contests against Georgia Teachers, tomorrow and Saturday, it gives the Seminoles a very busy four days. In fact, the 24-games schedule is the heaviest ever attempted by a Florida State baseball team.

The Bulldogs of the Southeastern Conference, opened their season against South Georgia earlier this week. Yesterday they played the Florida Gators in Gainesville.

Commenting on the Bulldog's prospects, head coach Jim Whatley said: "The infield looks strong, but the outfield is weaker than last year We should have about a .500 record in conference play — about the same as last year—but if our pitchers come through, we can look for a pretty good season."

Seven Night Tilts On '53 Grid Slate

The 1953 Florida State University footbal, team could well be termed "gridiron night owls." Seven of the Tribe's 10 games will be played under the arcs.

Three of the night contests are home games (Louisville, Abilene Christian VMI) while four of the games are on the road (Miami, Louisiana Teach. Mississippi Southern Tampa).

Peggy Tapp Gives Graduate Program

Peggy Tapp, graduate student in piano in the Florida State University School of Music, presented a grauate recital Tuesday evening in Opperman Music Hall. The program was open to the public without charge

Miss Tapp, a pupil of Carlisle Floyd, FSU insturctor in piano, played the Toccata in G Major by J. S. Bach and the Sonata in E Minor, Opus 90, by Beethoven. This was foloiwed by Two Rondos on Folk Themes by Bela Bartok and the aPssacaglia by Aaron Copland.

Three pieces by Claude Debussy, from the first group of Images were played by Miss Tapp. The program ended with the Mephisto Waltz by Franz Liszt.

All those interested in learning how to fence or who already know are invited to join the Fencing Club.

The club meets every Thursday night at 7 30 in the Women's Gymnasium. Recently the club put on an exhibition at Ruge Hall, Episcopal student center. Miss Marion A. Sanborn, instructor in physical education, is faculty sponsor.

Gymkana Performs Tonight at Turner Air Force Base

Florida State University's nationally famous "Gymkana Troupe" makes its third appearance in Georgia in recent weeks Friday night with a showing at Turner Air Force Base in Albany.

The troupe has performed in Valdosta and Bainbridge recently.

Dr. Hartley Price, director of the "Gymkana Troupe," has announced that he would take the entire 40-man cast to the air base and that the full 17-act production would be staged.

"Gymkana" came to FSU in 1949 when through the efforts of Dr. Price this talented group was organized. Since that time the troupe has performed throughout the South. Last year more than 100,000 spectators attended showings.

Described by Dr Price as "gymnastics plus showmanship," the troupe is composed of varsity gymnastics performers, university co-eds and the increasingly popular "Tallahassee Tumbling Tots."

The 17-act production follows: FSU alma mater, salutary address, rocket launching, celestial parade, space tots, side horse, mercury cycle, Royal Children of the Sun, astral beam, Stardust, Stairway to the Stars, shooting stars, inter-stellar olympics, empyreal rhythm, stratosphere table, lunar-tics, grand finale.

Miss Suzi Jones, vivacious beauty who rules as "Miss Gymkana of 1953" in the Florida State University "Gymkana Troup," will accompany the troupe to Turner Air Force base in Albany, Ga., for its Saturday night show there

Suzi, brunette beauty, recently appeared with the troupe at the St. Petersburg Charity Ball held in the Viney Park Hotel. The ball highlights the Winter social calendar in St. Petersburg.

The "Tallahassee Tots," a group of young gymnast enthusiasts, will accompany the FSU "Gymkana Troupe" to Turner Air Force Base in Albany, Ga. for s Saturday night show there.

Miss Mary McNatt, FSU co-ed, is director of the tots.

Engineer Explains Alum Floor Bulge

The large buckle spanning the corridor by the elevator in the Longmire Building which pushed the tile up several inches last Monday was not caused by Fuller's earth, H. D. Mendenhall, resident engineer, explained.

Mendenhall stated that the tile of the floor was placed down incorrectly, and for this reason the tile does not adhere to the concrete slab on which it rests.

When the tile expands due to temperature increase it buckles up, then cracks and falls back into place Mendenhall stated that whenever the floor is repaired, good cement will be utilized and expansion joints will be placed along the wall to take up any possible expansion which might occur in the tile.

Prof. J. P. Stoakes Reveals Old Job

By QUINTON MOORE

Ghost writer for Uncle Sam! Florida State University students may be surprised to learn that their English professor, Dr. J. Paul Stoakes once filled this supernatural job.

"I wrote the speeches and magazine articles for Florida's Millard Caldwell when he was head of the National Civil Defense program," Dr. Stoakes explains.

DR. STOAKES was on leave from FSU last year while working in Washington, D. C.

He also worked in Washington for the Price Administration Office in 1944 through 1946. Then conducted research and wrote the magazine articles for Chester Bowles, ambassador to India.

DR. STOAKES went to Bogota, Colombia, back in 1942 to work for the Department of State Cultural Institute. He directed an educational program in which English was taught to the South Americans. Night classes were held so many working people could enroll. The classes taught that North Americans have art, music, literature and an interest in their neighbors.

Too many South Americans think we, north of the border, love only the almighty dollar, Dr. Stoakes discovered.

"ENGLES PRACTICO," the Spanish textbook written by Professor Stoakes is now in its 11th edition. All 26 Latin-American Cultural Institutes use it.

Author of several published works, Dr. Stoakes mentioned his free lance articles, "Latin-Americans are Different," which he wrote for Esquire magazine.

WHEN ASKED if he thinks the free lance field is crowded or open to amateur writers, he replied, "I think a person with moderate to good intelligence can make a fair living writing. He must devote as much time and effort to develop his talents and style as a teacher does for a masters degree."

This versatile professor has been at FSU since 1947. He earned his AB, MA and Ph.D. degrees from Wayne University, University of Wisconsin and the University of Michigan, respectively. Dr. Stoakes was an associate professor of English and director of Freshman English at the University of Kentucky before coming to FSU.

HIS PLANS now are to remain at Florida State teaching and encouraging young writers.

Unveiling Service Reveals Painting At Ruge Hall Sunday

Ruge Hall the Episcopal Student Center, 655 West Jefferson St., will be the site for the unveiling and exhibition of an original oil painting entitled "Gothic Cathedral" by FSU sophomore Franklin Adams, Sunday, at 6:30 p. m.

Adams, who is an art major from Madison, Fla., has painted an impressionistic view of a great cathedral. Using only greys and browns, two of the most difficult colors to work with, he has created such a variety of contrasts in these tones that the observer will feel as though he is perceiving all the colors of the spectrum.

Speaking at the unveiling of Adam's picture will be Dr. Adolph Joseph Karl, associate professor of art at FSU. Dr. Karl received his Masters from Columbia University and is receiving his Ph.D. from the New York Institute of Fine Arts. He taught at New York University and Teachers' College in Mayville, N. D., prior to coming to lecture at FSU. Dr. Karl's subject will be "The Passion of Christ in Art."

Other FSU students including Guy Johnson, Dot Dean, Artimus Jagert, Mrs. Rainey Cawthon, and Jean La Fitte have exhibited their work in the manor-like central hall of the brick structure of Ruge.

by fouling, it's time for a change. However, I don't want to go back to the old days. It's just been speeded up too much."

On this last point, he's not too clear. In the first place in an attempt to prevent a team from winning "by fouling", the basketball rules were changed this year. Now, a player gets another chance if he misses his first foul shot . . . he is given two chances to cash in on a foul. This makes the foul slightly more expensive.

Finally, Wilson passed this gem of wisdom on to all athletes, before he finished. "Keep it clean, fellows . . . play it hard, and don't let down . . . if you do, you and sports will go a long way."

Prominent Advertising Artist Visits

Frank Bercker Speaks Here

Frank Bercker, prominent advertising art executive of Milwaukee, Wisc., spoke twice on this campus yesterday under the joint sponsorship of the Schools of Business and Journalism and the Department of Art.

At 10:30 a.m. Bercker spoke in Room 402 Westcott to an audience of art students and invited guests; at 7:15 p.m. he spoke to the Tallahassee Advertising and Sales Club, to FSU students of Business, Journalism, and art and their invited guests.

BERCKER stressed the fact that he and his associates are not only artists but also, "businessmen—who run our studio as a business.

"The advertising artist of today dresses like an ordinary human being, has his hair cut regularly, and occasionally breaks down to buy somebody else's luncheon," said Bercker with a broad smile.

HE WENT on to say that the artist of today, and especially the advertising artist, must have his feet on the ground, must be a psychologist as well as a good designer, or his wares will go unmarketed and reach no one. "The possible influence of the man who can not only design a top notch advertisement but can also convince a manufacturer that he has done so, and then in turn convince the public of the desirability of the product through the medium of his work is almost uncalculable," said Bercker.

Bercker was entertained at a dinner given in his honor in the Suwanee room at 8:30 p.m. After his address, the group moved on to the University Art Gallery, which is currently showing the 31st Annual Exhibition of Advertising and Editorial Art.

Audrey Atherton Gives Report Of Study at Chicago Meeting

Miss Audrey Atherton, who heads the undergraduate counseling services of the School of Education here, will report on a study she is making at the meeting of the American Personnel and Guidance Association in Chicago March 30.

THE STUDY Miss Atherton will talk about is an investigation of undergraduate counseling services in the School of Education. She says that, as far as she knows, it is the first of its kind to be made in a teacher education school in the United States.

Though the survey is not finished yet, she hopes to be able to give some of the results at the meeting.

SHE BEGAN the study last semester by going directly to the students. "The students are the ones the services are for," she said, "so they are the ones who should criticize them."

Question sheets were given to about 665 sophomores, juniors and seniors in education courses and to 250 graduates of the School of Education to fill out. The questions had to do with the student's experiences with the counseling services and his reactions to it.

THERE WAS a place for suggesting changes and additions and methods of making each type of service better.

Three purposes are behind the study: To find out what changes the students want and need: to uncover problems that may stand in the way of a good program, and to set up a better system based on what counseling experts say, what the students want, and on knowing what blocks there are that hinder good counseling.

RAPID GROWTH and change in the university has made the survey necessary, Miss Atherton explained.

"I think it is very important that education students get good counseling," she said, "because when they go out to teach, they are going to be counselors themselves."

SHE HAS BEEN meeting this week with faculty workers in education and student personnel to figure on the best way to find the meaning of the survey results. Within five or six weeks the findings should be ready for use. Then the faculty of the School of Education will meet to plan on how to use them.

Interior Designers Redecorate Office For Class Project

Students in the newly-created interior design class at Florida State University got their real chance for first hand practical experience plus a cash award for the best redecoration display.

Through their profesor, Dr. Janet Smith of the home economics department, the group toko on a class project of redecorating the private office of photographers, George and David Avant of L'Avant Studios. To stimulate interest, a small contest was held with Dr. Smith and the Avant brothers as judges. A prize of $10.00 was to be given to the winner with the best design.

THE ENTIRE CLASS visited the studio consulting with the photographers concerning problems in space and design. The office was to be redecorated around two 24 x 30 oil portraits of the brothers painted in Italy during their trip to Europe last summer.

Doctor Harold C· Hodge State That Water Fluoridation Is Sa

All available evidence indicates there is no dange water fluoridation, Dr. Harold C. Hodge of the Univers of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, to Tallahassee audience at Florida State University Tuesd

There are four toxic effects known, he said, but they cannot be encountered in drinking or using fluoridated water.

"THE POSSIBILITY of acute fatal poisoning is nil. Children drinking fluoridated water will grow normally. No detectable alterations will occur in bone structure. Such changes have been found in a small fraction of a population taking eight times the recommended one part per million, but there is no evidence that the alterations were harmful," the speaker summarized.

Even an accident in a water treatment plant, for example, dumping a day's supply of fluoride into the water in an instant which would only increase the fluoride 24 times, would not be poisonous, the speaker said. It could be taken for 10 years without serious difficulty.

FLUORIDE is deposited in bones, but in 74 years at levels of treated water this could do no harm, Dr. Hodge said. About one third of ingested fluoride is excreted by human beings in three hours, he pointed out.

Unborn babies dot not get fluoride, most likely by the same mechanism that the mammalian body keeps it out of milk. Dr. Hodge said as an importan light. He said human mil water-treated communities tain only traces of fluor

Concluding that health ards do not justify postpo fluoridation, the speaker q from a recent report made the Department of Public H in the State of Illinois

Political Party Move Will State Definite Lines Tonite

Advocates Urge All to Air Views In Longmire Auditorium At 8:30

Tonight's political parties meeting at 8:30 in the Longmire Auditorium will put wheels under the rapidly developing move toward political parties on Florida State University's campus, according to Bobby Drake, temporary chairman of the newly-organized faction.

Drake urges all candidates expecting to qualify for the April 21st University Government primaries to be present at tonight's meeting. To assure equal representation in the swing to organized politics here, Drake has urged that all independents interested in the move attend tonight's meeting. "There will be one representative from each sorority and fraternity on campus to be named as representative in the party, "Drake said, "and an equal number of men and/or women from the ranks of the larger independent strength will be named.

"Our main concern," Drake has said, "is to get the independents on campus interested in the move." He urges all interested students to attend the meeting.

The chief aim of the party-advocates, according to spokesmen, is to avoid any splits between Greeks and independents. Rather, they said, the move wants to see greeks and independents on the same slate of officers, working together to get the best qualified candidates in office, whether they be in a fraternity, sorority or not.

Arguments for and against a party system here have been many and heated since the idea was started by a small group of greeks and independents several weeks ago. Almost all advocates of the move, according to members of the skeleton party organizers, agree that a party system here would lift many of the controls now imposed by the FSU administration on students.

Those against have stated that the move would be ineffectual and wouldn't improve the situations now existing. They base their reasoning, according to discussions held in the past few weeks, on the fact that the major part of the student body has shown a lack of interest in what's going on around them. "It is felt that even a large-scale move such as the political swing won't lift the cloak of "unconcernedness."

President of UGA, Mary Ruth Summers, has said she is very pleased at the progress of the move. "The move for parties is further along at this point," she said, "than it has ever been before in FSU's history."

Miss Summers went on, "it is a definite sign of progress now that candidates independents and greeks alike are showing interest."

Those against the move have cited specific reasons. Some feel that independents will be left out of things the way the organization is going now. They fear that fraternities will control the parties.

Others feel that such a move in such a short space is bad. They feel the students at FSU need education in the ways of government and politics. It is felt that the greeks could take advantage of this fact in pushing fraternity or sorority candidates into office.

Those for the political party swing have said that competent people will be brought into the

Picasso Works Displayed Here

FSU Gallery Exhibits Prints of Great Aritst

An exhibition of seventy-seven prints from the extensive work of Pablo Picasso, who is commonly referred to as the world's greatest living modern artist, will be on exhibition at the Florida State University Art Gallery tomorrow, through April 12.

The prints in this exhibition from a comprehensive survey of Picasso's work in the graphic arts. They range in date from the etching of "The Frugal Repast" of 1904 to the "Departure" of 1951, and include a wide variety of subjects: circus clowns and acrobats, still lifes, bullfights, pastoral scenes, a complete zoo, the painter and the sculptor at work.

THE EXHIBITION has been drawn from the first large exhibition of Picasso's prints in this country which was shown with signal success at the Museum of Modern Art.

Picasso, who was born in 1881 and who is still hearty and active in the south of France, has for at least fifty years been a center of contention and argument in the art world. He has worked in more media than probably any other one artist, being a sculptor and ceramist as well as a painter, graphic artist, and designer of almost all kinds of art production.

THE EXHIBITION in the University Gallery shows only this one but extremely broad phases of the controversial art of the great Spaniard. There are etchings, drypoints, aquatints, engravings and woodcuts, all revealing the incredible fertility of Picasso's artistic imagination.

The exhibition is, as usual, open to the public during the regular gallery house: Tuesday through Friday, 12:30-5:00 p.m. Saturday, 9:00-12:00 noon; Sunday, 2 00-5:00 p.m.; closed Mondays.

High School Bands Compete In Festival At FSU Stadium

Two marching shows, each featuring ten high school bands, will be presented in Doak S. Campbell Stadium on Friday and Saturday nights, as the main public event of the Florida Sixth District Band Festival, which will be held on the Florida State University campus the end of the week.

Twenty-one bands from north Florida high schools, representing Perry and Madison west to Pensacola, will compete in the Festival. A total of more than 1,400 musicians, plus parents and chaperones are expected in Tallahassee during the latter part of the week for the event.

OLIVER HOBBS, bandmaster at Leon High School and general chairman of festival events, has issued an invitation to all local citizens to attend any of the festival events, which will be held in and around the FSU Music building.

Festival events during the day, which will be open to the public without charge, will include baton twirling, solo and ensemble playing for the individual musicians, plus concert playing and sight-reading for the bands.

THE MARCHING exhibitions, to be held in the stadium on Friday and Saturday evenings, will feature ten bands each evening. Admission will be charged for the marching events, with proceeds used to defray the expenses of the Festival, according to Hobbs.

Tickets for the marching show will be on sale at the stadium gates, with special prices for students from elementary through college, and a special admission price for families. Family tickets are being sold this week through the schools under the sponsorship of the Association for Childhood Education. Ara Andrews, FSU Junior student, is in charge of ticket sale through the ACE.

BANDS TO APPEAR in the stadium Friday evening are Chattahoochee, Wewahitchka, Choatawatchee, Monticello, Chipley, Graceville, Madison, Marianna, Leon and Pensacola. Bands for the Saturday evening show will be from Havana, Greensboro, Quincy, Taylor, Milton, Crestview, Bonifay, Tate, DeFuniak Springs and Panama City.

Band Presents Spring Concert Thursday Nite

The formal Spring Concert of the Florida State University Symphonic Band will be played in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday, March 26. Besides officially ushering in the series of Spring concerts on the campus, the Band Concert will honor the twenty-one bands from north Florida which will be arriving on campus Thursday afternoon and evening for the Sixth District Band Festival.

Directed by Robert T. Braungel, the Symphonic Band will open its program with the "George Washington Bicentennial March" by America's March King, John Philip Sousa. The "Music for a Festival" by Gordon Jacobs will follow. This is a suite of nine movements, written for the Festival of Britain in 1951.

PREMIERES OF two new compositions will be played by the Band. These will be "Music for Concert Band," written by Professor John Boda of the School of Music, and "Overture," by Professor Bertil Boer.

Frank J. Prindl, director of bands at the University of Kentucky and presently a graduate student in the School of Music, will have two of his works played. The first, an original march entitled "H. M. E. March," was written for the Hawaiian Music Educators Association and first played under Mr.

Ragamuffin's Story Entitled 'Mudlark' Plays In Magnolia

An emotional story of a little ragamuffin, the "Mudlark," who prowls the banks of the Thames in search of articles of value, will be shown in tonight's free movie at 8 in Magnolia.

Irene Dunne, Alec Guinness and Andrew Roy are the cast. The background is the Windsor Castle and other spots in London, with such personalities as Queen Victoria and Prime Minister portrayed.

The movie plays Tuesday night in South Cawthon; Wednesday, Freshman Hall; Thursday, Senior Hall, and Friday at 8 in Magnolia.

To be eligible the candidate must be a registered professional nurse, a U. S. citizen, between the ages of 21 and 45 and a graduate of a school of nursing approved by the Surgeon General of the Army. The candidate may be married but must have no dependents under 18 years of age.

THE ALL-OFFICER organization has a professional nursing education program including courses in Anesthesiology, Operating Room Technique and Management, Nursing and Hospital Administration, Neuropsychiatric Nursing and Advanced Medical Service. Each year the Army also sends a selected number of its members to universities and colleges for post-graduate work leading to a degree.

Army nurses were the first American women to be dispatched with the Armed Forces to the Korean combat zone, arriving there less than two days after the hostilities opened to set up a mobile hospital unit. The 350 to 400 nurses now in combat areas are providing surgical and bedside care in every hospital to which the wounded are evacuated, caring for the battle-injured on hospital trains and staffing mobile hospital units which must be ready to move on a moment's notice as the fighting lines change.

Freshman Festival Opens In Women's Gymnasium

Coronation Tops Off Evening Of Dancing and Entertainment

King Don van Hise and Queen Jo Ann Hutto will crown their successors to this year's title of the royal couple of the Freshman Carnival Saturday night at the Women's Gymnasium.

The Freshman Class, composed of both first and second semester students picked the king and queen and court from a ballot of 37 women and 32 men. Finalists are kept secret until Saturday night.

LAST WEEK a special balloting had to be held to break a tie in the votes for Charlie Mixon, Charlie Singer and Keo Haskins. This was after nominations and final voting had already taken place at the poll located at the Westcott bus stop.

Traditionally handled by the Vice-president of the Freshman Class, this year's overall chairman is Tom Dickey.

THE CORONATION will take place between 8 30 and 11:30 p. m. at an informal dance with music by the Raveo Quintet. The starting time of actual Carnival festivities will be 8 p. m. During the dance a floor show will be given by the talent of the Class of '56. Acts for this were chosen on a basis of tryouts earlier in the semester. Al Schissler will em-cee the program, while the "Rhythm Twins," Dean Jackson and Barbara Slaughter, will provide entertainment during the acts. The floor show will be on the order of "Opening Davey Jones' Locker."

About ten to a dozen booths will be set up for entertainment, including such games as throwing darts, pitching pennies and popping balloons. Concessions will also be available for the purchase of hamburgers, hot dogs, potato chips, cold drinks, coffee, popcorn, snowballs and cotton candy. Several of the fraternity pledge classes will operate these. Fraternal organizations have also donated cakes for the Cake Walk, which is becoming a customary part of the Carnival.

HIGH SCHOOL girls up for a week of informal sorority rushing have also been invited to the Carnival.

Also among the entertainment will be two 15 minute shows put on by the Tarpon Club. These will be free and will include diving exhibition by Freshman Bob Stuckey.

"Pop" Concert Ends Season For Symphony

The final concert for this season played by the State Symphony of Florida will be presented in Leon High School auditorium tonight at 8 15 p.m. Karl Kuersteiner, Dean of the School of Music, is conductor. Soloists will include two FSU music professors, Robert Sedore and J. Dayton Smith, and Patsy Gilliam, local dancer and dance instructor.

The concert will be a "pop" concert featuring light popular numbers and symphonic favorites, according to Dr. Kuersteiner. Orchestral numbers on the program will be the Overture to "The Bartered Bride" by Smetana, "American Salute" based on the song "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "The Syncopated Clock," by Leroy Anderson, composer of the hit tune "Blue Tango," and Sousa's famous march, "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

The Symphonic Scenario from the Broadway musical "South Pacific" will be danced by Miss Gilliam, with the soloist in front of a sparking curtain of stars which will partially conceal the orchestra. With special lighting effects worked out by Dr. Robert Briggs, this will be a dramatic number.

The "Rondo Capriccioso" for violin and orchestra by Saint-Saens will be played by Prof. Robert Sedore, who is concertmaster, or leader of the first violins, in the State Symphony. Two well-known tenor arias will be sung by J. Dayton Smith; these will be from Debussy's "The Prodigal Son" and Verdi's opera "Aida."

Tickets for tonight's concert are on sale at the School of Music Office, and will be sold at the door before the concert. All seats are reserved.

Circus Troupe Travels; Prepares for Big Show

Forty Florida State University Circus performers and ten riggers, accompanied by coaches Jack Haskin and Jim Decosmo returned Sunday night from a 4-day tour of Central and western Florida.

The group which left Tallahassee Thursday gave shows in Ft. Myers, Bradenton and Lake Wales.

While in the area according to several members of the famous collegiate troupe, they visited Sarasota and the winter quarters of the Ringling Bros and Barnum and Baily Circus.

SOME OF THE FSU circusmen talked with performers of the largest circus in the world, who were going through their last rehearsal before leaving for Madison Square Garden in New York for the season's opener there. Sue Humphries, one of the FSU group, said, "We were surprised to find that many of the Ringling performers can't speak English."

In Bradenton the Circus girls participated in the annual Bradenton-DeSoto Pageant Celebration parade, while many of their companions soaked up sun on the Sarasota beaches in off-hours, Miss Humphries said.

THURSDAY WILL again find FSU performers boarding their Seminole bus for parts west. The group will appear in Panama City and Marianna over the next week-end. According to spokesmen for the group the Circus team, while doing all their road shows, are working feverishly at the same time in shaping up their annual Big Show, as they like to call it.

The annual Circus production at FSU is looked forward to as one of the biggest events on the entertainment calendar here. This year's production is slated for April 29, 30, May 1 and 2.

Col. Pruyne Begins ROTC Inspection

The annual inspection of the Air Force ROTC unit was begun here yesterday by Col. Franklin G Pruyn, Lt. Col John H. Thompson and Maj. Karlin L. Sintow of Headquarters, Air Force ROTC. The inspection will last through today.

FSU Represented By Five Students

Five students representing this University will go to Greenville, S. C., April 2-3, to participate in the Congress of Human Relations of the Southern Speech Association.

Tom Woods, Beverly Lacayo, Eugene Lawler, Joanne LeRoy and Bill Twyford will go from this campus.

The congress' purpose is to give training in discussion and debate on contemporary problems in a realistic legislative assembly.

The students have prepared bills to introduce in the congress to: Establish a regional councils for the development of southern resources for low-income groups and to elect the president of the United States by a direct vote of the people.

Was That Veto Necessary?

"I regret to inform you that we feel that it is against the best interests of the University and of the students . . ." And so another fine plan conceived by the students, for the benefit of the students, and passed by the Student Senate is killed by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs. In her letter to the President and Vice-President of the University Government Association, Dean Warren, speaking for the Faculty Review Board, rejected the "recommendation of the student senate to establish the position of a Secretary of Labor as an additional member to the President's Cabinet."

The reasons given for vetoing the bill proposed by Senator Lawler and passed by the University Government Senate were the following:

1. Employment of students on campus is financial aid since "often it would be to the advantage of the University to employ persons other than students" and as such is purely an administrative function.

2. A student officer to hear complaints of University working conditions would be of no service to the student because he would not have authority to remedy such conditions.

3. There are now administrative officers with the authority to rectify or recommend a change in conditions and that therefore all complaints should be registered with these members of the administration rather than with a student officer.

Now let us analyze these objections with the interests both of the University and of the students in mind.

With regard to the first and second of these reasons for rejection of the bill, we would like to remind the Committee on Student Affairs that, although it is extremely doubtful that the University could advantageously employ anyone other than students as typists for fifty and sixty cents an hour, the Student Senate as well as they realize that the final regulation of employment policy is the administration's prerogative. Furthermore, there is nothing in the Secretary of Labor bill which denies, bypasses, or in any way tries to usurp these powers of regulation. The service of a Secretary of Labor is solely in receiving complaints and suggestions from his fellow students, and in organizing such material in an effective and useful way. Merely because he will not have power to directly raise anyone's salary or eliminate a working hazard does not preclude his usefulness to promote the welfare of working students by cooperating with the administrative officers in a consulting and suggesting capacity.

This leads us directly into the third objection expressed, that there are already administrative officials who can receive complaints. Miss Warren, in speaking for the board, implies that there would be a duplication of effort by students and administration. Yet, when advocates of the bill spoke to Mr. Tully, the director of Vocational Guidance and Placement, he thought that the student officer would be an asset to student employment and that he could work well with the administrative officers.

But what really rankles those interested in student government is that, after the bill came from the Faculty Review Board the first time, the changes they suggested were made, and the bill once more passed the senate. And still Miss Warren gives no new reason for this second rejection, disregarding the obvious fact that all the previous objections have been removed.

The crux of the situation seems to be the unfounded and undeserved belief of the Faculty Review Board that students and administration cannot work cooperatively together. This bill calls for their working together and therefore this bill is no good.

We feel that with a more respectful and trusting administrative attitude toward student leadership and initiative, the best that students have to offer would be encouraged rather than the resentment which the administration expects and which they actually foster by the veto power over student legislation which the review board has and freely exercises.

The administration's attitude is expressed by Dean Warren when she refers to the law passed by the student senate as a "recommendation." When will student laws stop being mere recommendations and become effective when passed?

We feel that the University Senate should rise to the occasion and ask for a reconsideration of the Labor Secretary bill by the Review Board, with more specific and logical reasoning behind their objections if they still have any.

Secretary of Labor Story: From Beginning to Veto

SECRETARY OF LABOR—3c 36

Here's the full story of the Secretary of Labor at FSU:

The Secretary of Labor was first proposed by University Senate in the well-known Cabinet System Amendment of last spring. That amendment listed the present seven Cabinet members and a Secretary of Labor, to which the Faculty Committee at that time objected Not wishing to jeopardize the entire Cabinet System merely for the Secretary of Labor, the Senators decided to drop the idea for the time being

With the backing of Mary Ruth Summers, UGA prexy, the idea was brought up again this year in a bill authored by Gene Lawler, Sophomore Senator That Bill provided for the Secretary to be established under Statute, with the same powers and duties that that officer holds at Gainesville.

Lawler's original Bill received the unanimous endorsement of the UGA Cabinet and passed Senate on a unanimous vote just before the end of the fall semester. Then the Faculty Committee came into the picture.

In a two-hour session of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, President Summers, Vice-President Carothers, and Senator Lawler painstakingly explained the need of the measure, which now had the wholehearted backing of the Cabinet, the Senate, the Flambeau, and nearly all student leaders. The Committee stated that it felt the appoinment and confirmation of Bill Hess and the congratulatory editorial of the Flambeau were "unfortunate." but these students left the meeting with the definite impression that the Commitee objected merely to the wording of the new officer's duties and that if the Bill were rewritten slightly, it would be approved

The Bill read "The Secretary of Labor shall

A. Serve as liaison officer between the University Government Association and student employees and all employers of student labor

B. Investigate student working conditions and keep records on file in the office of the President of the University Government Association

C. Recommend legislation to the University Senate in the area of student labor

D. Generally aid in promoting the welfare of working students

The next step was the rewriting of the duties of the Secretary of Labor in order to make the Bill acceptable to the Faculty Committee. When Glover P. Tully, director of Vocational Guidance and Placement was shown the revised Bill he expressed his complete satisfaction and thought the Bill was "an excellent idea."

So, back the Bill went to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs. This time the Bill read:

"The Secretary of Labor shall

A. Hear student complaints of University working conditions

B. Consult with the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement

C Keep records of his activities on file in the office of the President of the University Government Association

D Make reports to the University Senate, together with appropriate recommendations.

E. Generally promote the welfare of working students"

With the endorsement of Mr. Tully, with the indications the Faculty Committee had given before, student leaders felt that approval would now be merely a formality Not so, however. Milton Carothers, Vice-President in Charge of Legislative Affairs, received this letter from Dean Warren last week:

March 18, 1953

Mr Milton Carothers
Chairman—University Senate
Florida State University
My dear Milton.

The Faculty Committee at its meeting prior to March 18, and at its meeting on March 18, debated at considerable length the recommendation of the Student Senate to establish the position of a Secretary of Labor as an additional member to the President's Cabinet.

I regret to inform you that we feel that it is against the best interest of the University and of the students to approve the establishment of such an officer. Employment of students on campus is primarily financial aid to students since often it would be to the advantage of the University to employ persons other than students. Therefore such employment falls in the category of scholarships and fellowships for students and the administration of such is purely an administrative function. In addition to this student employment is a part of the total employment picture on the campus, therefore, must fit in with the policies of the University regulating employment. Establishment and administration of such policies is likewise purely an administrative function, therefore, the Faculty Committee feels that the establishment of a student officer to hear student complaints of University working conditions would be of little service to the student because the student officer so designated would be in no position, nor have the authority to remedy such complaints. There are at the present time, many administrative officers with the authority to either rectify employment conditions or to recommend changing such conditions to whom students can go with their complaints. It seems to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs that therefore all such complaints should be registered with the various administrative officers rather than with a student officer who has no power nor could be given any power to improve the conditions of which there are complaints. . . .

. . . With kind regards, I am,
Sincerely yours,
Katherine Warren, Chairman
Faculty Committee on Student Affairs

SEMINOLE SCENES

TO GO OR NOT TO GO, AN FSU DRAMA

By FRANCES CAWTHON

To Go or Not to Go, a drama of the average student . . .

The light was on and his roommate was rummaging about trying to find a clean shirt. Amid his own and the bedspring's creaks and groans, he flopped over and stuffed his face into the pillow.

"Ooooh," he moaned.

"It's always like this, I worry and wonder . . . Something-or-other, but where is your heart. . ." Don was happily trying to unplaster a shirt he'd gotten back from the laundry.

"Ooooh!"

"Up, bird, up! Classes," Don sang as he wigaled into the cardboard-like cloth.

"I'm dying, dying. My throat's killing me, my ears are popping and my stomach don't feel so good." Bob drug himself up and got dressed.

At the Seminole, they met their girls for breakfast. Julie took a suspicious look at Bob and said: "You look awful. Have you been partying again after taking us home last night? Not Scotch, I hope."

"Don't be funny," Bob hung his nose over the coffee cup while the others discussed a political scandle in the morning newspaper.

After breakfast Julie said she was really concerned; Bob ought to go to the infirmary. Bob mustered enough strength for a great Ha!, and pointing his nose toward the History Building, set out for class.

"No kidding, you should go have yourself taken care of," he heard Don shout.

By noon time Bob was so bad off he couldn't even finish up one French fried potato, when he usually had a full order, two all-the-way hamburgers and a malt. He cut his one o'clock and went back to his room to brood. A monitor, two guys from next door and his common sense argued with him half an hour to get him over to the Infirmary, but no. By 3 p.m., however, he was so far gone he couldn't protest when Don came home, shoved a toothbrush in his hand and led him away.

Immediately after getting in the anticeptic-smelling waiting room and hearing Don say, "I'll write you a nate, boy," Bob revived. To heck. He wasn't sick. What was he doing in this Pill House? He started uncertainly toward the door when a lady in white came up.

"May I see your ID card?" she smiled. Begrudgingly he handed it to her, glancing frowningly about the ceiling while she looked up his record.

"Have a seat, please," she said, briskly walking down the corridor. He sat on the edge of the chair, picked up a magazine and began reading "Trip to Mars Possible in Near Future," it said. "Never before in the history of . . ." Bob swallowed hard. His throat didn't hurt near as much as before. Just got a little chilled last night, he guessed. On the other hand, suppose it's mumps. Mumps, ye gads a child's disease! He was staring with horror at the opposite wall when the nurse said, "The doctor will see you now"

Down the long, long corridor they went, and into an office, where a man sat at his desk, impressive diplomas decorating the wall. The doc greeted Bob warmly, then stuck a popcicle stick down his throat.

"Um, Have you had this long?"

"Thirtenly ott. Hest who-ay."

The doc sat back down at his desk and began writing. "You won't need to stay here, just check back tomorrow We'll swab your throat, give you a shot and some capsules to take every four hours. You'll be feeling fine soon"

Bob was already feeling fine. Fine enough at least to not take a box of pills. He began whistling as he neared the door. Then from nowhere he was attacked by a nurse. "Let's see what the doctor wrote."

She mopped his throat and said, "A shot of this in your hip and you'll be all right." She drew out a needle and Bob whinced. He frowned as he picked up his toothbrush and prepared to go. "Medicine. They don't even know the anatomy around here. Hip, huh!"

Back in the room, Don met him with concern. "How you feeling, old boy?"

"Fine, fine." He grinned as he plopped down in a chair. "OOOOH!" He shot back up again. "Infirmary's a great place to cure ills . . . but how the heck am I going to sit down for the next week, Don?"

Letters to Editor

Dear Editor:

This is to clarify what may have been a mis-impression concerning the authorship of the proposed election laws. Though I am thankful for the magnanimous publicity offered me on the front page of last Friday's Flambeau, the credit goes in reality to Senator Gene Lawler. It was through Gene's tireless and unceasing efforts, and to his fine knowledge of election procedure, that the new laws may be attributed. Any part I had in their formulation was purely advisory.

If these laws pass, and I am confident that the Senate will wisely approve them, the student body will have its first real insurance of honest and accurately run elections. My hat is off to Gene Lawler for his great effort. Good work, Senator!

CAPT. WADELL was commended for her service as an instructor and for her practical contributions to the teaching program.

In addition, to prevent Capt. Wadell from teaching a "last" class with its note of finality, Lt. Col. Matthew J. Kowalsky, chief, Enlisted Branch, Department of Training, relieved her of the class after the ceremony, making it an "unfinished class"

THE RETIRING nurse was also commended for her counseling service to enlisted men and women, an activity which was not required of her. Said Lt. Col. Kowalsky, "The very nature of her personality was such that she served as a 'mother' to many"

She received her nurse's degree at Riverside Hospital, Jacksonville, after graduation from FSU.

Her husband is Mr E. Wadell, a San Antoino attorney. They presently reside at 238 West El Monte, San Antonio, Texas

Instructor Exhibits Painting In Show

Guy Johnson, graduate of Florida State University's Department of Art and now an instructor of the department, recently exhibited his painting "Pastel III" in the 1953 Baltimore Watercolor Exhibition. The showing ran from Feb. 3 to March 8.

The painting, done on masonite, was an abstraction of an experimental nature

Over 100 paintings were entered in the exhibit, according to Johnson. They comprised works in tempera, wash and pastels and came from many exhibitors all over the nation.

The Art Digest, national artist's magazine, said the exhibition in which Johnson participated was unique.

"The conspicuous absence of big-name artists who didn't enter works," it said, made an interesting sidelight.

Stickless Seminoles Bow to Bulldog 5-Hitter, 3-0

Frosh-Heavy Indians Face 'Bama Teachers Here Today

By BOB TAYLOR
Flambeau Sports Writer

Veteran fireballer Jack Roberts of the University of Georgia threw a sparkling five-hitter at Florida State here yesterday, as the Bulldogs took a close 3-0 decision. Roberts struck out 11 Seminoles along the route, five of these coming in the last two innings.

This afternoon at 2:30, the Seminoles are host to Alabama Teacher's College of Jacksonville, Alabama. This game will also be played at Centennial Field.

Georgia pushed one run across in the second inning, and added insurance ones in the seventh and ninth frames. Freshman George Hehemann was tagged with the loss, FSU's first of the season.

John Cuesta, freshman backstop from Tampa, led all hitters with three singles in four times at bat. He was the only bright spot in the Seminole offensive lineup. FSU left 11 men stranded on the bases, and their failure to hit in the clutch hurt them badly.

Hehemann gave up eight hits and two runs through seven innings. He was relieved by freshman Wally Higginbotham in the eighth. Higginbotham gave up one hit and one run during his two inning stint.

ONE FSU THREAT

The Seminoles' only real threat came in the first inning, when they loaded the bases with two out. However, shortstop Ralph Blinn fanned to end the rally

The Bulldogs combined three singles in the top of the second to push across their first run. Three more singles in the seventh added another run to the Georgia lead, and in the ninth, Roberts helped his own cause by slapping a triple center-fielder Bob Hudson's head to drive in the last Bulldog tally.

It was a tough defeat for Coach Ralph Matherly's charges. Their record now stands at 2-1. The team lacked the batting punch they had displayed in their earlier games. Roberts was in complete charge of the game all the way, and only when he displayed brief spurts of wildness did he get into trouble.

Time and again Seminole batters would either fan the breeze, or tap weak grounders back to the Georgia infield. Besides Cuesta, only Billy Campbell and pinchhitter Ed Mann could muster hits off Roberts. All five FSU hits were singles.

The game, played on soggy Centennial Field, was fast and

Phi Delts Lead Sports Race

They go to school. They party. And they are athletic too.

The yearly rat race for the big gold trophy, signifying athletic supremacy, has started to reach its dog-eat-dog stage in the fraternity sports league.

Right now the Greeks are slugging it out on the basketball courts. So far the boys from the Phi Delta Theta House are in the first place spot in overall standings. The Phi Delts have won the athletic trophy twice before. If they win again this year the trophy will be permanently theirs.

Alpha Tau Omega, second in overall standings, offers a big threat to the Phi Delts. The TOA's have won the trophy twice before too.

The gang next door to the ATO's, Kappa Alpha, has a fighting chance. The KA's could drawl their way past everybody else, but it will take a lot of drawling.

Sigma Chi and Sigma Alpha Epsilon are trying to get the winning spot too, and show a good indication of doing just that.

Overall standings to date:

Phi Delta	632 pts.
A T O	540 pts.
Sigma Chi	490 pts.
S A E	484 pts.
K A	470 pts.
Phi K Tau	485 pts.

Theta Chi	380 pts.
Lambda Chi	358 pts.
Pi K A	348 pts.
S P E	348 pts.
Pi K Phi	299 pts.
Sigma Nu	293 pts.

Last week the faternity boys played several games on the hardwood.

In a rough and tumble contest, Phi Delt outplayed a KA quintet 30 to 19. Sigma Chi squelched Sigma Nu 37 to 29, and SAE growled down Phi Kappa Tau 35-28. Lamba Chi squeezed by Delta Tau Delta by one point to win 35 to 34.

All this puts the fraternity basketball ratings this way:

Top score in the Greek competition are Oscar Oropeza of SPE (57 points in 4 games), Tom Moore of SAE (53 points in 4 games), and Glaydon Schaeffer of Theta Chi (47 points in 4 games).

In the battle among the dormitory men, the Trojans of third floor in Freshman Hall are leading the pack. They hold a slim lead over Magnolia Hall.

Dormitory overall standings:

AFROTC	145 pts.

Gators Bruise In Spring Drills

Four days down and 18 to go—that's the tally on Florida Gator spring football practice which coach Bob Woodruff recently began.

With Rick "The Bull" Casares and "Jo-Jo" D'Agostino leading the way, those 16 should be bruising. And when it comes time for the Orange-and-Blue game, wonder if it'll take a rally and whooped-up publicity to get the students out?

A vociferous host of Gators has attended the annual classic in the past: there's been no dearth of school spirit at Gatorland.

Frosh John Cuesta Sparks FSU Hitting

After three ball games there are four Seminole batters, led by freshman catcher John Cuesta, who are stroking over the .300 mark by unofficial figures.

Cuesta, a product of Tampa prep circles, is socking a fancy .556 mark with five-for-nine—all singles. Behind him comes captain Billy "Cooter" Mills, peppery infielder-outfielder who is rapping .455.

Freshman Manny Yglesias at .364 and outfielder Bob Hudson at .308 complete the top four.

Only two extra-base hits have been collected by the Seminoles. Both are triples, struck by Hudson as his teammates were compiling a two-and-one won-lost record.

Statistics show that the Seminoles, though scoring at the rate of 9 runs a game, are hitting just .288 collectively. A number of the tallies have been unearned.

BEEP-BEEP, MEOWWW

A natural quarter miler if ever there was one, Woody may find that this is his year to go. In which case, a handful of loyal track fans will see a real show of style and speed.

This year, and afterwards, sophomore Bill Wagoner will also bear plenty of watching. From a hamlet in Pennsylvania young Bill came, with his track shoes over his shoulder. As a freshman he compiled a remarkable, undefeated record in the mile and 880.

Just which is his stronger event—or what his optimum effort can produce—isn't clear yet. It should be fun finding out. In either race Wagoner's certain to be the best that State has ever produced. Miller is looking for a 4:20 mile, and he expects it to come from Wagoner.

Even rabid gridiron fans who want a little sun, can get a good line on these men—and other stars like captain Dick Mize and Tampan Carlos Fraundorfer—when a 9-man Seminole squad competes in the famed Florida Relays Saturday in Gainesville.

Wagoner, Parker, Mize and freshman sprinter Bobby Jones of Lakeland, will team in the classic sprint medley Anchoring with an 880, Wagooer could win this with a good leg.

A GOOD LEG

That last remark reminds us of Virginia Mayo, but that's another story. Instead, in closing may we say that it was an unfortunate blow (ever hear of a fortunate blow?) when Pat Hogan, erstwhile Arkansan, resigned on Friday last as sports editor. If you've read this far, that should be obvious.

Well, maybe a flood of protest letters can get Hagan back on the Flambeau beat. O Arkansas Traveler, duty calls.

Coach Don Louck's tennis team defeated the University of Georgia by a convincing 6-3 margin here yesterday to open the net season. Today the Seminoles meet Jacksonville State of Alabama at 3.00 on the varsity courts.

Yesterday's best match saw Hal Schaus, FSU's first man, rally after he was down 3-5 in the third set to defeat the Bulldogs' number one man, Merritt Pound by 7-5 4-6 8-6.

Schaus who was team manager last year because he was ineligible as a transfer student, thus tightened his grip on the ranking slot of Louck's "tennis ladder."

IF YOU CAN WIN THESE WINGS YOU CAN EARN OVER $5,000 A YEAR AFTER GRADUATION

Important facts about the opportunities for YOU as a Commissioned Officer—Pilot or Aircraft Observer—in the United States Air Force

Must I be a college graduate to take Aviation Cadet Training?

No. But you must have completed a minimum of 60 semester hours or 90 quarter hours toward a degree. In addition, under the new Aviation Cadet training program, you must be between the ages of 19 and 26½ years, unmarried, and in good physical condition—with high requirements for eyes, ears, heart and teeth.

How long before I get my commission?

60 calendar weeks. You will receive the finest aviation training in the world—training that not only equips you to fly modern military aircraft but prepares you for executive and administrative work as well. At the completion of your training, you will have acquired a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant and the coveted silver wings of the United States Air Force.

Where do I take my training?

Pre-flight training will be at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. Primary, basic and advanced training will be taken at any one of the many Air Force bases located throughout the South and Southwest.

What happens if I flunk the training course?

Every effort is made to help students whose progress is unsatisfactory. You can expect extra instructions and whatever individual attention you may require. However, if you fail to complete the course as an Aviation Cadet, you will be required to serve a two-year enlistment to fulfill the minimum requirement under Selective Service laws. Veterans who have completed a tour of military service will be discharged upon request if they fail to complete the course.

What pay do I get as an Aviation Cadet? And after?

As an Aviation Cadet you draw $109.20 a month pay. In addition, you get summer and winter uniforms, flight clothes, equipment, food, housing, medical and dental care and insurance . . . all free. After you are commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant you will be earning $5,300.00 a year—with unlimited opportunities for advancement.

Are all Aviation Cadets trained to be Pilots?

No. You can choose between becoming a Pilot or an Aircraft Observer. Men who choose the latter will become commissioned officers in Navigation, Bombardment, Radar Operation, or Aircraft Performance Engineering.

Do Aircraft Observers get flying training, too?

Yes. Aircraft Observer Cadets receive approximately 200 hours of "in the air" instructions. The primary phase of Aircraft Observer training is the same for all branches (navigation, bombardment, etc.). The basic and advanced phases of training vary, depending on the specific course you pursue.

What kind of airplanes will I fly?

You will fly jets. The Pilot Cadet takes his first instructions in a light, civilian-type plane of approximately 100 horsepower, then graduates to the 600 horsepower T-6 "Texan" before receiving transition training in jets. You then advance gradually until you are flying such famous first-line aircraft as F-86 Sabre, F-89 Scorpion, B-47 Stratojet, B-50 Superfortress. Observer Cadets take flight instructions in the C-47 Dakota, the T-29 Convair, and the TB-50 Superfortress before advancing to first-line aircraft such as the F-89 Scorpion, B-47 Stratojet.

Will my commission be in the Regular Air Force or Reserve?

Aviation Cadet graduates, both Pilots and Aircraft Observers, get Reserve commissions as 2nd Lieutenants and become eligible to apply for a regular Air Force Commission when they have completed 18 months of active duty.

How long must I remain in Service?

After graduation from the Aviation Cadet Program, you are tendered an indefinite appointment in the United States Air Force Reserve and are called to active duty with the United States Air Force for a period of three years.

What recreation and leisure time will I have as a Cadet?

Discipline will be rigid—especially for the first few weeks. However, it is not all work. You'll find swimming pools, handball courts, movies and other forms of recreation on the post.

Where will I be stationed when I get my commission?

You may be stationed anywhere in the world . . . Hawaii, Far East, Europe, Puerto Rico, elsewhere. During your tour of duty, you will be in close touch with the latest developments in new flying techniques. You will continue to build up your flying experience and later should have no difficulty securing a CAA commercial pilot or navigator rating.

Your future is assured if you can qualify! Here's what to do:

Concerts Scheduled By State Symphony

The State Symphony of Florida has been engaged to play eight concerts in Sarasota during the month of July, 1953, Dr. Karl Kuersteiner, conductor of the orchestra, announced today.

The concerts will be presented as part of the Sarasota Summer Festival of the Arts, sponsored by the Sarasota Foundation, Inc., a non-profit educational association. The Summer Festival of the Arts will be offered in the West Coast city June 29 to July 26, and will feature attractions in music painting, dance, drama and literature.

DR. KUERSTEINER said that arrangements had been completed with G. O. Shepherd, managing director of the Festival, for the State Symphony to play four pairs of concerts, one concert each Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon on the weekends of July 4-5, 11-12, 18-19 and 25-26. The Saturday programs will be full symphonic programs and the Sunday matinees will be "pop" programs of a lighter nature. The concerts will be played in the Sarasota Municipal Auditorium which is being air-conditioned especially for the Festival this summer.

Soloists to appear with the orchestra will include Thomas Wright, American concert pianist and member of the Florida State University faculty, Guy Maier, nationally known pianist and teacher, and Nancy Love Hill, graduate of the School of Music, who has been pursuing a concert career in New York City.

SEVERAL THOUSAND visitors are expected in Sarasota during the four weeks of the Festival, according to Festival officials. Besides the musical features to be provided by the State Symphony concerts, the Festival will schedule lectures and seminars in creative writing, painting, sculpture and drama, with the Ringling Museum and Ringling School of Art co-operating.

The State Symphony will conclude its fifth local season in Tallahassee next week, with the presentation of a young people's concert on Monday night with proceeds benefiting the Leon High Band and Choruses, and a final "pop" concert on Tuesday evening. Featured soloists for the programs will be Patsy Gilliam, dancer, Robert N. Sedore, violinist, and J. Dayton Smith, tenor.

Dr. Louis Wilson, Librarian Emeritus Speaks to Group

Dr. Louis R. Wilson, Librarian Emeritus at the University of North Carolina told an audience of Florida State University librarians and students that the American library has been a democratic symbol for over 100 years, helping shape the democratic ideals of many leaders of public opinion.

Speaking to the FSU Library group, the 77-year-old UNC librarian continued, "Like the press, the school and the church, it has fought for the freedom of the individual."

"The apeaker, who holds honorary titles from the University of North Carolina where he was librarian for 31 years, was said to be responsible for the regional renaissance of the south by Dr. Louis Shores, dean of the FSU library school, who also introduced the lecturer.

Wilson traced the growth in literature of librarianship through three decades and said that 1923 was a turning point. He said the American Library Association launched a sound educational program in that year

The apeaker called the period 1925-35 the "Golden Age of Library Schools and Service." It was during these years, he said, that the library became established as a social institution in the community.

The depression years emphasized the importance of library service, he pointed out, while throngs of unemployed sought out library reading rooms.

clean. It took only two hours and ten minutes to be completed.

THE INITIAL VICTORIES

Taking full advantage of opponents' mistakes, FSU successfully opened its new baseball season with a double victory over Georgia Teachers College here last weekend.

In games marked by high scores and loose play, the Seminoles won Friday's opener 14-6, and came from behind to cop the Saturday contest 15-4

"Cooter" Mills led his teammates to Friday's win by belting three of FSU's 13 hits. The Seminoles scored five runs in the first inning, and were never headed. Veteran Ed Lockard, starting on the mound, received credit for the win.

The Indians combined their 13 hits with six walks and two Teacher errors to score in all innings except the fourth, sixth, and seventh. Max Long, the third FSU pitcher, cocked the only Seminole extra base hit when he tripled in the eighth.

Matherly used three hurlers over the nine-inning route. Lockard, the team's only senior, twirled the first three frames. He was followed in succession by both freshmen. The trio of righthanders gave up 10 hits, but were never really threatened by the Teachers.

Only in the eighth inning did the Georgia club from Statesboro drum up even a mild threat to the Seminoles' hefty lead. Seven Teacher batters tacked together three hits to push across two runs, but that ended their scoring for the afternoon

A SEMINOLE SURGE

Florida State grabbed the lead in the bottom of the first by scoring five runs on three hits, and three walks. They added five more runs in the next two innings to drive starting Teacher pitcher Clyde Lane from the hill, and ice the game

Don James came in to relieve Lane and pitched creditably the rest of the way. Bobby Driggers led the Georgia State batters with a single and triple in five trips to the plate

Close behind Mills and Long on the Seminole hit parade were Campbell, Hudson, Yglesies, Morgan, and Blinn. They each had two hits apiece

Saturday's game saw FSU break loose for 11 runs in the sixth inning. Going into the hectic sixth innig trailing by three runs, they tallied the 11 runs on just three base hits. Four batters tic sixth inning trailing by three others walked, and another got on via an error.

A Korean war vet, Clyde Little, drew the starting pitching assignment for Georgia, and for five innings it looked like he had a winner He had given up only two singles, and was leading 3-0, going into the sixth inning

Pitching wildness was a big factor in the Teachers' downfall Seven Florida State batsmen were hit by pitched balls, while several other drew walks.

Wally Higginbotham, the second of three more Indian pitchers, was the winner. Chuck Sanders, the southpaw sophomore started, while Jim Atwood finished up.

The game was highlighted by a pair of booming triples off the bat of Seminole center-fielder Bob Hudson, and the baserunning of catcher Suesta. He stole home in the big sixth.

"Cooter" Mills again led the hitters percentage-wise, with two base knocks in four times at bat Hudson and Yglesies also hammered out two hits each.

The forum will be ene in a series of "Chaplain's Hours" moderated by Dr. Sam Neel.

Semiole Flying Club Members Have Gala Time in Tally Clouds

Seminole Flying Club members at Florida State University, literally spend several hours a month in the clouds.

Thrill of flying and sharing the cost with others have brought freshmen, graduate students and professors together. Even Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president, is enthusiastic about flying, takes an occasional whirl in the air when time permits.

OWEN SELLERS, associate professor of cello and assistant to the dean of the School of Music, organized the club three years ago. It was incorporated in May of 1952 as a non-profit organization

The club oow owns its plane, a light 65 horse power two passenger model. Hangar is at the Tallahassee Municipal Airport, adjoining the West Campus Membership fee of $30 financed the purchase of the plane, and will make possible buying of a larger plane soon

MEMBERS ARE expected to fly at least twice a month. They pay $3 an hour which takes care of gas, oil, hangar fee and incidental repairs They are getting a bargain, since equivaleot rental would cost about $7, Instruction in flying costs extra, but can be arranged by club officials.

Weekends present problems as the only time same students and professors can tear themselves away from books and classrooms. The club constitution limits weekend use of the plane so that all members have a chance

MONDAYS THROUGH Thursdays the plane is usually available to members for the asking If a licensed pilot wants to fly his best girl to Miami or has a research project in Pensacola, the plane is his for a few days if he signs up a week in advance

The club numbers about 100 members during its short history Three members, Sellers, Tom Massey, a licensed areonautic engineer and instructor in a vocational school, and Jack Joern, graduate studeot in meterology, are qualified commercial oilots.

THREE CLUB officers have private licenses President James Gunn instructor in music theory Secretary Blair Hennessey, Senior and Treasurer Mary Krenzer, an FSU staffer

SCHOOL OF MUSIC claims a majority of the club members. The president subscribes to the army's theory of a relatioo between music and flying or driving a heavy vehicle. A well developed sense of rhythm seems to be the common denominator in the fields.

Business Students Hear Art Executive

Florida State University advertising students heard an address by Frank Berker, advertising art executive from Milwaukee, Wisc., in which he said advertising artists are business men who run their studios as a business last week-end.

Becker, whose appearance on campus was under the joint sponsorship of the schools of business and journalism and the department of art, said present day artists must be men "who can not only design top-notch advertising, but also convince a manufacturer that he has done so"

Becker added that the artist must then convince the public of the desirability of the product through the medium of his work and ideas.

The speaker later lectured to art students in Westcott building.

Becker was also principal speaker at a banquet in his honor at FSU's Suwanee Room which was attended by Tallahassee Advertising and Sales Club members and FSU students.

Home Ec Students Study Shrimp Here

Florida State University home economists are out to help the shrimp fishermen.

Experiments are under way at the university to determine what causes black coloration of shrimp.

Dr. Betty Watts, professor of food and nutrition, who is assisting Miss Marian Faulkner, graduate student, in the study, points out that the black coloration is no more serious than a bruised or brown spot in an apple. But such shrimp are not readily bought by the housewife.

The "black spot" shows up several hours after the shrimp have been caught. Although slight, it gets worse the longer the shrimp are out of water. Icing the seafood helps retard discoloration to a slight extent, but it is hoped that discovery of the exact cause of "black spot" will enable finding a treatment to prevent it.

Miss Faulkner reports that new shrimp beds farther offshore are being found. That means the boats have to maka longer tripa and keep the shrimp in the hold longer than previously.

The food nutritionists report that holding the shrimp in solutions, after hauling aboard, is a feasible answer to the problem. They are experimenting now with various types of solutions and believe they are "on the right track" toward saving the shrimp industry from big losses due to "black spot."

Senators Refuse To Accept Faculty's Veto of Labor Bill

Students Defend Views In Joint Meet With Faculty Committee Today At 3 pm

A unanimous vote to send the Secretary of Labor Bill back to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs ended this week's Senate session with an atmosphere of finality. The Senators, pushing the bill for a third time after it had been sent back by the Committe twice, seemed determined not to be backed down.

When the bill, as introduced by Sen. Gene Lawier, was first passed by the Senate and sent to the Committee, it was referred back for revision. Revised and passed by the Senate a second time, it met with Committee veto.

BILL HESS in Wednesday's meeting was inclined to think the question involved was one of principle as well as of this particular legislation. The situation, he said, will show what power the Senate really has.

Hess recalled the letter Dean Katherine Warren had sent to the Senate after the veto. The objections as voiced, he said, were (1) University employment is not a student affair, (2) employment is more or less a scholarship phase here and (3) a student Labor Secretary would have no authority, and in the end all action would have to be taken by the administration.

ON THIS THIRD point, Hess commented that it was not necessary for the Labor Secretary to have authority, but there should be representation—the administration would take the action but the Labor Secretary would help the administration in being aware of the problems.

A fourth objection was that there are already administrative

State Observes 440th Birthday

Governor Proclaims 'Pascua Florida Day'

Florida will observe its 440th anniversary today with the first celebration of "Pascua Florida Day," proclaimed by Governor Dan McCarty in commemoration of the sighting of Florida this date in 1513 by Juan Ponce De Leon.

March 27, 1513 was Easter Sunday, Pascua Florida in Spanish, and so Florida, most historians agree, was named to commemorate Easter Sunday.

BUT THAT'S as far as historians agree concerning the first sighting of Florida. Many Reputable historians and scientists will bet their last research paper against a cocked hat that Ponce never saw Florida on March 27.

They say he sighted the coast April 2 the same year. They say on March 27, 1513 Ponce was in the Bahamas.

"ALL RIGHT," native Floridians say. But we know he landed near St. Augustine."

On this subject historians are really divided. Somes ay St. Augustine, some the mouth of the St. Johns River, some Matanzas Inlet below St. Augustine, and some near Stuart or Ft. Lauderdale.

DR. HALE SMITH, associate professor of anthropology and archeology and director of the University museum, supports the Stuart or Ft. Lauderdale area as a possible Ponce's landing site.

"Actually research people are undecided," Dr. Smith said. "All our archeological exploration and historical findings leave the issue in doubt—as to just where Ponce landed, or if he was the first European to do so."

DR. SMITH said that although some historians have held that the natives Ponce first contacted in Florida were Apalachee, the chance meeting is improbable for the Apalachee were mainly an inland tribe of the west Florida area.

John R. Swanton, researcher of the Southsonian Institution, to his book The Indians of the Southeastern United States, said:

"IT SEEMS LIKELY, indeed that the south Florida Indians were the only ones (Ponce) met . . . the Calusa.

"This view is supported by the statement that the arrows used by these Indians were pointed with bone. The Apalachee Indians may well have used bone points also, but the greater part of their arrows were probably tipped with flint or made of cane.

"IT IS SAID Ponce and his companions traded a little with the Indians for gold and skins. Now, there are few reports of the use of gold among the Indians north of Mexico and the greater part came from Florida, particularly from the Calusa Indians living on the southwest coast.

"Most of their gold, however, is traceable to treasurer fleets wrecked on the way from Central America and Mexico and Spain."

DR. SMITH said a couple of other historical fact cast doubt on the fact that Ponce was the first European to find Florida.

"Ponce said in his writings that everywhere he landed in Florida he was met by hostile Indians," Dr. Smith said. "History indicates that the reaction of the natives to the first landing of the white man was friendly, and only later, after the white man had abused the Indians, did the Indian reception of the white man become hostile.

LATER, IN 1521, Ponce made an attempt to further his Florida claim by establishing a settlement. His part was attacked by Indians and Ponce later died in Cuba from wounds he received in the encounter.

Spring Concert Is Final Appearance Of Symphony Band

The Florida State University Symphonic Band, directed by Robert T. Braunagel, assistant professor of instrumental music, presented its formal Spring Concert last night in Opperman Music Hall.

The concert was played in honor of 21 high school bands from North Florida who are on the campus for the Sixth District Band Festival.

The program opened with a historic march by John Philip Sousa, composed for the bicentennial celebration of George Washington's birthday in 1932. The second number, "Music for a Festival" suite by the British composer Gordon Jacobs, was commissioned by the Arts Council of Great Braitain and written for the Festival of Britain in 1951.

Three FSU composers had compositions played during the concert. "Music for Concert Band" by John Boda, assistant professor of piano, theory and composition, and "Overture" by Bertil Boer, instructor in music theory, was played for a first time. An original march by Frank Prindl of Lexington, Ky., graduate student in the School of Music, was played. Prindl's arrangement for band of the "Prelude in E Flat Minor" by Shostakovich will also be played.

Soloists for the program were Lovanne Self, marimba soloist in "Marimba Capers," and Lloyd Fish, Ed Santana, Grace Schatzman, and Joy Summers, clarinetists, who played the "Concertino" by Weber.

Traffic Court Fines Fourteen Violators

Fourteen violators, all pleading guilty, were brought before the Student Traffic Safety Court at its first meeting.

The money as fines received by the Court, under the jurisdiction of Chief Justice Klyne Nowlin, will be turned over to the Student Scholarship Fund.

Meetings of the Court will be held every Tuesday evening at 7:30, and notices for subpoenas will be issued on Saturday. This gives the violator time to arrange to be in Court on Tuesday. If for some reason he cannot appear, he must send an alternate or pay a maximum fine that would be imposed by the Court for that violation.

Associate justices on the Court are George Martin and Steve Baily. John W. Howard is clerk, with Beverly Bennett, assistant clerk.

Oroanized Meeting Discusses Politics

An organizational meeting for a second political party on campus—not to be confused with the newly formed Students Party—will be held Tuesday night at 7:15 in the Senate Room of Longmire.

Off[illegible]s of all organizations on camp[illegible] are asked to come. Plans conc[illegible]g membership will be taken [illegible] at this time.

"There [illegible] need for two parties in o[illegible] system function properly," said Jim Dye, vice-president of men's affa[illegible]s and one of the party or gan[illegible]s. "The party system will be [illegible]ourishment for our studen[illegible] gov[illegible]nment," he said, add[illegible] that he hoped the meeting [illegible] would open with a repr[illegible]tive turnout of all campus groups.

Delegates to Attend Sociology Convention

A group representing the Department of Sciology at the Florida State University will attend the Annual Meeting of the Southern Sociological Society at Chattanooga, Tenn., this weekend at the Hotel Patten.

F[illegible]ulty members include Dr. [illegible] F. N[illegible] of the department, Dr. F[illegible] Allen and Dr. John L. Haer.

Graduate students who will attend are Paul Wever, Voncell Todd, and Theodore Johannis.

Dr. Nimkoff is a member of the [illegible]'s Committee on Research, and Dr. Allen is on the Membership Committee.

Art Seminar Opens Sunday At Sarasota

This Sunday the 6th Annual Art Seminar, sponsored this year by the department of art of Florida State University in conjunction with the John Mable Ringling Museum, will open in Sarasota. It will continue through Wednesday.

Dr. Harry Bober from the department of fine arts at Harvard University will give the first lecture at 1 p.m. on Sunday, March 28. His subject will be "The Baroque Macrocosm," in which he will deal with the broad general picture of 17th century society as related to the general problem of Rubens and his contemporaries. On Monday at 8 a.m. Dr. Bober will speak on "Northern versus Southern Baroque in the Netherlands."

THE SECOND SPEAKER of the week will be Dr. Horst W. Janson, chairman of the department of fine arts of New York University, who will speak on "Rubens in Italy" at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Everett Austin will give two combined lecture-gallery tours, the first one, "The Rubens Room," on Monday, March 30 at 10:30 a.m., and "The Ringling Collection" on Tuesday, March 31 at 1:00 p.m.

DR. JAMES V. MCDONOUGH, professor in the department of art at FSU, will speak on "The Religious Paintings of Rubens and his Contemporaries," and Adolph J. Karl, associate professor of art at FSU, will have as his subject "Sir Anthony Van Dyck — Principalle Paynter in Ordinarye to their Majesties." Both Dr McDonough and Karl have appeared each year at the Sarasota Seminar and are the staff art historians at FSU in Tallahassee.

On Wednesday, April 1, at 10:30 a.m. Charles Cunningham, director of the Wadsworth Atheneum at Hartford, Connecticut, will discuss "Flemish Still Life Painting of the Seventeenth Century" and "Rubens as a Collector" on Thursday at the same hour.

ON THE LAST DAY of the program Dr. Wolfgang Stechow, professor of art at Oberlin College, will speak on "Flemish Landscape Painting."

Two outstanding evening events are announced for this year, the first to be a concert of music of the 16th and 17th centuries performed by Howard Silberer, harpsichordist, and Alice Peacock, soprano, both of the School of Music at FSU. Since the concert will be given in the beautiful 18th century theater now installed in a wing of the Ringling Museum, the brilliant but smaller tone qualities of the harpsichord, as compared to the piano, will be heard in its proper setting.

ON THURSDAY, April 2, the Sixth Annual Art Seminar-Symposium will close with a performance of "The Last Lesson of Pantalone," a play in the commedia dell' arte tradition performed by players from the department of speech at FSU. The play will be written by Russell Graves of the FSU department of speech.

UGA To Hold Special Election Next Tuesday

Undergraduates Decide Constitutinoal Issues, Camp Change of Name

Besides having an opportunity to either ratify or reject several amendments to the UGA Constitution, FSU students will have a chance to express themselves on the proposed name-change of Camp Flastocowo in the student referendum next Tuesday.

According to Colin English, chairman of the Senate committee studying the Flastocowo name-change, four proposed names will be included on the ballot for the students to indicate their preference: "The Reservation," "Camp Cyprus," "Camp of the Pines" and "Camp Flastocoed." These were the best selected from sheets posted about campus on which students could register their suggestions.

THE CONTROVERSIAL Secretary of Labor Bill may also be included on the ballot, according to UGA prexy Mary Ruth Summers, depending on the outcome of the Faculty Committee at its joint session with the Senate today.

As many Constitutional amendments will be submitted as have been approved by the Faculty Committee in time for the election. A full list will be published in Tuesday's Flambeau.

Only one polling place, Westcott, is expected to be used for the Tuesday referendum, in which all undergraduate students are entitled to vote. Bob Ducker, secretary of elections, is in charge.

"The Mudlark" Has Last Showing Here As Campus Movie

"The Mudlark" with Irene Dunne, Alec Guinness and Andrew Roy, plays for the last time on campus tonight at 8 at Magnolia.

Among the personalities depicted in the movie are Queen Victoria and Prime Minister Disraeli, with some scenes set in Windsor Castle. The "Mudlark" as the little boy is called, becomes the symbol of humane reforms in England.

"I Was a Male War Bride," starring Ann Sheridan and Cary Grant, starts Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the O Club.

An American WAC lieutenant marries a French army officer while both are assigned to a postwar mission in Germany. The WAC however, is ordered back to the States, and tries to take her husband, also disguised as a WAC, back on the ship with her.

Religious Forum Held In Longmire Building

a newspaper reporter, a government official, or a successful businessman?" was the topic of the religious forum held in Longmire auditorium last night.

Dr. Sidney Kobre of the School of Journalism, Eugeot Price of the School of Public Administration, and Miss Jane Kirk Bell of the School of Business were the speakers. Yvonne McCarthy, president of the Students Christian Association was in charge of the forum.

Birth Of 'Student Party' Makes Political History

Election Outlook Is Revamped As Party Gears For Action

A real live, honest to goodness, bonifide political party has been born on this campus at last. A group of seventy-five students gathered together in the Longmire Auditorium Tuesday night, declared themselves a party, gave themselves a name, set up committees, appointed a chairman, and set next Tuesday as the time for their next meeting.

The Student Party, as the group named themselves Tuesday, claims the distinction, according to spokesmen, of being the first campus-wide organization representing both the independents and the Greeks.

"WE'RE GOING to have absolutely equal forces inside the party," said Bobby Drake, who was elected party chairman at Tuesday's meeting. "The independents will have to be as important to this move as the Greeks," he continued, noting that an attempt at a fraternity bloc is last year's UGA elections failed to do anything constructive.

A second political party is also shaping up. An organizational meeting for this group will be held Tuesday night at 7:15 in the Senate Room of Longmire, with officers of all campus groups invited.

TUESDAY'S MEETING was liberally sprinkled with independent and Greek comments from all sides. Speaking strongly in favor of an evidently wary independent student body, Charlie McDaniel, a member of the UGA Senate, asked many pointed questions of the panel leading the meeting.

"If a person joins the party," McDaniel said, "and doesn't agree with some views of his party, he has to support those views anyway." The question was directed at the panel and Ted Steinmeyer answered for the group.

"EVERYONE," he said, "has disagreements. If a person is radically against a measure, it's his privilege to break away and start another party or to join other factions." He also noted that a member of any organization is expected to abide by the lines along which the majority of his fellow-members think.

One of the independents in the audience asked what would happen if the party should fail. Members of the panel answered, "We are interested in finding a way to interest the student body in elections." They continued, "This is a try, anyway. We're willing to make a stab at some way to lift the 'iron curtain' from around the FSU campus." They added that if the party move fails, at least that method will have been tried. McDaniel and Steinmeyer then launched into a slightly heated cross-fire of discussion.

McDANIEL STATED that if the fraternities pushed hard enough, they could, and might try to railroad their candidate into nominations. Steinmeyer, came back, "The basis of our national government is conflict." He added, "Through opposing sides, the best are brought out as leading candidates." He said he spoke for the whole organization when he said "there would be absolutely no attempt at railroading or underhanded methods." He said if this were to happen here, he would rather see the party dissolve.

An interesting sideline popped into the meeting when an FSU graduate student, formerly an undergrad at University of Florida spoke on the U. of F political party system. A past secretary of one of the parties on that campus, she said that the parties there were made up of 60 percent independents and 40 percent Greeks. She noted that the independents are stronger all around at Florida, noting, however, that at first, the party's hardest task was to get the independents to organize fully enough to even be represented in the party.

MORE QUESTIONS and answers followed. Richard Jackson, a fraternity man and member of University Court, then proposed the group call themselves a political party and make the motions of becoming an organization. This set off a storm of protests from those who said they felt this was still a discussion meeting and no definite party should be formed yet. Following much lively discussion, the majority voted to form a party and "start the ball rolling."

The now-dwindling body voted 46 to 3 to start the party in operation. Jackson amended his move to include that the group should elect a chairman until the time of the first convention, that a committee be appointed to set up the organization for the party, and that a committee be set up to draw up the convention plans for the coming elections on April 21.

ACTUALLY FOUR committees were set up. Drake, now chairman of the party, called for volunteers for committees on organization, convention, membership and platform. His call met with many volunteers from both independents and Greeks with about ten members on each committee.

Several names for the party were

ANNUAL INSPECTION—A dress parade Tuesday afternoon climaxed a two-day annual inspection of the FSU Air Force ROTC unit. Air Force officers and university officials reviewed the cadets.

Freshman Carnival Is Tomorrow Nite

The 1953 Freshman Carnival opens tomorrow night at 7 in the Women's Gymnasium, with the coronation of the king and queen title winners later in the evening.

THE FRESHMAN Class chose their royalty from a slate of 37 women and 32 men nominees earlier this month. Overal chairman of the Carnival, traditionally an additional office of the class vice-president, is Tom Dickey.

At 7:30 and 8:15 p.m. the Tarpon Club will present two fifteen minute shows, while Freshman Bob Stuckey will give a diving exhibition.

BEGINNING at 10:30 p.m. will be the floorshow, centered around the "opening of Davey Jones' locker." Al Schissler will be master of ceremonies, while Dean Jackson and Barbara Slaughter, the "rhythm twins," will provide entertainment between talent acts by Freshmen. These acts were chosen on a try-out basis.

The informal dance, beginning at 8:30 and lasting until 11:30 p.m., will feature music by the Regents. It is during the floorshow that the king and queen will be announced.

ABOUT TEN to a dozen booths will provide games such as ballono popping, pitching [illegible]ies and throwing darts. Food concessions, manned by fraternity pledges, will sell hamburgers, hot dogs, potato chips, cold drinks, coffee, popcorn, snowballs and cotton candy.

The sororities have baked cakes for the traditional Cake Walk.

High school girls up for a week-end of informal sorority rushing will also be taken to the Carnival.

Visiting Inspectors Rate FSU Cadets; Dress Parade Held

A rating of satisfactory was received by the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps here after a two-day inspection this week, according to Col. Bernice S. Barr, professor of air science and tactics and director of the ROTC unit.

ROTC units are rated by the air force in two categories, satisfactory and unsatisfactory, Col. Barr said. The FSU Cadets received special praise for their neat military appearance.

Tuesday, the approximately 500 Cadets gave a dress parade on the drill grounds of West Campus. They were received by Col. Franklin G. Pruyn, Lt. Col John H. Thompson and Maj. Karlin I. Sintow of headquarters Air Force ROTC in Montgomery, Ala.

Also there were Dr Doak S. Campbell, FSU president, Dr A. B. Martin, vice-president, and Dr Charles Davis, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

The primary purpose of the annual inspection is to examine the training, both on the drill field and in the classroom and to discover any deficiencies or difficulties.

Teaching procedures, adequacy of instructor facilities, effectiveness of instructors and military bearing of the Cadets are points upon which the unit is graded.

49 Air Cadets Attend Camps

Forty-nine Air Force cadets in the Reserve Officers Training Corps here will attend four-week training camps this summer.

AUTHORITIES at the Air University, Montgomery, Ala. announce that the four-week camps will emphasize development of leadership qualities in addition to courses in military courtesy, discipline, customs of the service, weapons, marksmanship, organization and functions of an air base.

Newman Club Has Formal Installation For New Officers

John Pistone, transfer student from St. Petersburg Jr. College has been elected president of the Florida State University Newman Club. John served as president of the St. Petersburg Chapter of the Newman international organization.

Charlie Jacobs, was elected vice-president and will be in charge for Newman club services. Other officers include Irma Allou, corresponding secretary; Ann Yeoman, recording secretary; Jean Weikert, treasurer, and Neil Crispo, another tranfer from St. Petersburg, parliamentarian.

Freshman advisor, an office that deals with the orientation of incoming students and preparations for the coming semester was awarded to Betty Gooch by unanimous vote.

Bert Holiander, outgoing president, asked that all Newman club members remain for the formal installation of officers after mass next Sunday. Newman Club chaplain, Father Raymond Amiro, will be present for the installation.

Student Politics Discussed Over WFSU

Weekly UGA Forum Debates Parties

Outnumbered by panel colleagues who were seemingly in support of a two-party system at Florida State Charlie McDaniel defended his stand against the new movement in Wednesday night's UGA Forum over WFSU.

Moderated by Forums Chairman Beverly Lacayo, the panel consisted of Bill Dunn, editor-in-chief of the Flambeau; Bobby Drake, Senior Senator and instigator of the new Students Party; Wayne Terry, Sophomore Senator; Gene Lawier, Sophomore Senator; Mary Ruth Summers, president of UGA; Bob Rhoden, secretary of the new party, and McDaniel.

CHAIRMAN LACAYO opened the forum with the topic of political parties at FSU, what for and why. Sen. McDaniel took up the question with a statement that he was against them and he thought they would be to the "detriment of the student body and student government."

Sen. McDaniel said he was afraid it would cause a split between the groups on campus, whereas, "we are now one big [illegible]y family." His argument centered around the theme that political parties would cause an end of this and a creation of factions fighting each other.

HE ALSO SAID, "The average student would not stand a chance in an election under the party system." If the student did not have an "inroad," the right pull, he said, he could not get the nomination.

Another contention by Sen. McDaniel was that if a student belongs to a party, he is expected to back it. He then asked what the student would do if the oposition party had a candidate better qualified for a particular office than his party. Could you vote a split ticket?, he asked. Is it right to back a person whom you feel is less qualified for the job just because he is the nominee of your party?

THE SENATOR also expressed fear that should a qualified person have a run-in with a party leader, the leader would swing his support to another nominee.

Bob Rhoden answered McDaniel by saying it was the attempt of the party organizers to form a group which would give every student fair representation. "We want to build interest in UGA and better student-administration relations," he said. "That is our primary reason."

RHODEN ALSO gave the radio audience a review of Tuesday night's meeting in Longmire, when the new Students Party was actually formed.

About 75 persons met in the Longmire Auditorium to participate in a pro-an-con discussion of the party system. Among those answering questions raised by the audience were Ted Steinmeyer, Richard Jackson, Bobby Drake and Rhoden. Afterwards, with Drake as chairman, a vote was passed to form the Students Party. Four committees on membership, convention, organization and platform were formed.

MODERATOR LACAYO asked if the FSU student would have to vote a straight ticket in elections. Sen. Drake said the students will "always be allowed to vote for whom they want," split or straight ticket.

Sen. Lawler said the four committees will have meetings to formulate plans to bring before the next mass meeting next week. "This will mean the party is probably going to set wheels under it now," he said.

SINCE FSU as of now only has the Students Party, Moderator Lacayo asked if the University were just to have one party.

"Definitely not," said Sen. Wayne Terry. "I think we will have two parties." He explained that there was a certain group on campus now interested in formulating one, and added: "In order to assure more participation in government, we will need two parties."

THE FORUMS CHAIRMAN still kept to her question, however, and wanted to know where the other party is coming from. UGA Pres. Summers said, "As far as I know, there is no other party per se. No one is nearly as organized as this group now."

The topic was changed as the student body president continued talking. "We have been having 'one big happy family' here and I'm sorry to see that go," she said. "But we have one big happy family of students and one big happy family of administration, both working against each other." She said the UGA has been referred to as an "errand boy" for the administration. The good points of a political party system outweight the bad ones, was her opinion.

"I KNOW I definitely am against a fraternity bloc," she continued, "but this is the first attempt at a real political party. It's on the up and up. There are no smoke filled rooms: in fact I didn't even see anybody smoking at that meeting Tuesday night."

Pres. Summers also urged the women of the University to take an active part in the movement.

IN SUPPORT of the existing system, Sen. McDaniel again took the microphone. He said the Greeks would probably be in control of the party as a large number of leaders now are Greeks and many of the independent leaders have now joined social fraternal organizations. This, he said, could give the Greeks an edge in the control of parties.

Rhoden counteracted this

Congratulations Are Offered For Labor Bill Action Taken

Congratulations are in order this week for those who have undertaken their responsibilities with wisdom, courage, and a spark of real initiative. The current debate about the Secretary of Labor has brought out the best example of student leadership and Administration cooperation and understanding which we have seen in a long time.

At the UGA Senate meeting Tuesday afternoon, two members of the administration, representing the Committee on Student Affairs, were present for the reading and discussion of the letter containing the rejection of the Secretary of Labor bill by the Faculty Review board.

We must first thank these members for the spirit in which they came—one of willingness to listen as well as to explain, one of desire to understand as well as to be understood. Because they felt that they must carry out completely their responsibility to the students, they not only clarified their formerly expressed opinions of the bill, but also brought out a phase of the problem not previously mentioned which was one of the big factors influencing their decision.

Dean Culpepper explained that a student officer in this field would really be a hindrance to relations between student employees and their direct superiors. An intermediary between the employee who has a problem and those who can solve his problem would only add to the complications of student employment rather than improve them. He said that we should strive for simplicity in our solutions, not complexity.

This sounds reasonable enough as a theory, since everything would be so much better if it were simple. However, there is a point of diminishing returns on simplicity. When a community grows, as Florida State has grown, the life of each individual becomes more complex. Direct, simple modes of action and expression become either unfeasible or impractical.

This reasoning lies behind most of the organization we have in modern society. On our own campus we create committees and offices every year to fill a need that can not be met by existing agencies. The complexities are a result of the growth of a community—not artificially imposed upon it. The judicious organization of these complexities brings order of chaos.

So we feel that in this case simplicity is not the best answer to an expressed need, but rather it is the neglect of our responsibility toward the 1,300 or more students who hold employment on campus throughout each school year.

Next to be congratulated are the student present at Tuesday's meeting for their determination coupled with self-control. Bill Hess gave an excellent explanation of the duties of the Secretary of Labor, and showed the need for such an office, suggesting a student referendum on the matter if all else fails to convince the faculty review board of the need.

The Senate discussed at length the repeated suggestions of the faculty review board that the students should go to members of the administration such as the deans or even the President of the University with complaints rather than to a student officer. The point was made by the senators that there aren't many students who are uninhibitited enough that they would walk into these offices to air their opinions on student labor conditions—and the fact is that few if any have done so.

Secondly, the Senators realized as do all student employees that it is much easier, and in the long run more effective to report dissatisfactory conditions to a fellow student. He would take these complaints as impersonal, oftentimes anonymous, complaints and suggestions to someone in a position to rectify them. In the system as it now stands there is no special person to go to and each complaint is made extremely personal with perhaps much embarrassment on the part of the individual and of the employer.

Thanks also go to Mary Ruth Summers, student President, who was at the meeting and suggested that the faculty review board and the student Senate meet jointly to discuss the bill more fully. This suggestion was made after the Senate voted unanimously to send the bill unchanged back to the faculty board for reconsideration.

Lastly a word of explanation seems in order about the printing of Dean Warren's letter together with a history of the bill and an editorial urging the students to think about it in the last issue of the Flambeau. This move was criticized by Dean Warren as "unfortunate" in that the information reached the Senate before its regular session. Let us first explain what may have lead to a serious misunderstanding.

The letter was read to the UGA President's Cabinet Monday afternoon as a part of the business of the day and consequently was the topic of serious interest and discussion at the time copy was being laid out in the Flambeau office. After some consideration it was felt that the rejection of the Labor Bill was no longer a secret event and could be classified as news.

The Flambeau also felt a clear cut responsibility in presenting the question to the students while it was still "in the air," and not coming out rather awkwardly three days later with a few hollow suggestions over what conceivably might have been a dead issue by that time.

Looking back we feel that the action taken by the paper was very instrumental in acomplishing three things: (1) sharpening the opinions of the Senate on the question before the meeting; (2) requiring the representatives of the review board to prepare to explain more fully and more adequately than before the basis of their decision; and (3) alerting other students to the situation which would exist at the meeting and thus enabling them to prepare a sound, unimpassioned course of action that would best express their ideas.

This last acomplishment we feel was very valuable, as the most constructive suggestion the Senate heard was a result of this preparation. The unprecedented meeting of the student Senate and the faculty review board was accepted by both bodies with eagerness as a remedy to many of the previous misunderstandings.

It is our hope that this idea will not stop here but will be carried out for every law which must pass the faculty review board. The students have as much right to know what process the review board goes through in arriving at some of its decisions as they have a right to know how the Senate operates. We hope the Senate suggests these joint meetings as permanent feature in the very near future.

Nelson Family Featured Soon

BY JUNE MORGAN
Feature Editor

Moviegoers have a chance to see a famous radio family when Here Come the Nelsons plays at the State Theatre Wednesday April 1. The other first-run hit on the double feature bill is a Western adventure film, Horizons West.

Ozzie, Harriet, David and Ricky Nelson create one of the most delightful domestic comedies to come out of Hollywood in many a moon. Their appearance together makes the first time in a dozen years that an entire family of players have been seen in one movie.

ACTUALLY six Nelsons had something to do with the production: Ozzie's brother Don helped with the screenplay and actor Frank Nelson appears in the supporting cast.

The story begins in the Nelson home in the most true-to-life manner imaginable, with the Nelsons, their progeny and neighboring youngsters behaving for all the world like the folks down the block. Then it proceeds to build to one of the most hilarious climaxes seen on the screen in recent years.

CRITICS predict that radio comedienne, Ozzie will win new fans for the humorous situations in the new film. In one sequence he succeeds in bringing supporting players Barbara Lawrence and Rock Hudson to their fade-out clinch by stringing dozens of ladies elastic foundation garments across a highway and halting a speeding automobile driven by the villains.

Irving Glassberg receives cinematography credit for Here Comes the Nelsons and the musical score was supervised by Joseph Gerhenson.

COLORFUL Western settings are outstanding in Universal-International's Technicolor production, Horizons West, which stars Robert Ryan, Julia Adams, and Rock Hudson.

Brother against brother, Ryan and Hudson return from the Civil War to seek their fortunes in Austin, Texas.

When Ryan decides to make "easy" money by fleecing ranchers out of their homesteads, Hudson becomes town marshall and vows to bring his brother to justice.

JULIA ADAMS plays a designing beauty who teams up with Ryan in his land-grabbing.

Important supporting roles are played by Judith Braun, John McIntyre, Raymond Burr, Dennis Weaver, James Arness and Tom Powers.

POLITICAL PARTY SYSTEM PAINFULLY BORNE

Though painfully, the FSU campus has finally borne a political party system. There have been so many complications at birth, however, there is question whether the child will live.

There is one outstanding difference between this year's attempt at forming parties and those of former years: namely there has been university-wide participation in the formations and "campus information campaigns" to let the students know just what moves are being made.

So far, moreover, there has been little evidence that there will be the large unfavorable reaction to a party system that carried so many candidates on last year's "block" down to defeat. That is to say, candidates do not this year run the risk of defeat just because they are "branded" with a party label.

Most of this year's political organizations are quite "respectable." As just pointed out, they gain their respectability from being composed of such a wide cross section of the FSU campus and from their openness in announcing their plans. For these reasons, they deserve commendation. Last year's abortive parties show what happens when too narrow a group tries to gain power in secrecy.

Respectability alone, however, will not hold the parties together, and there is good reason to suspect the now-forming groups are organizing along artificial lines which inevitably will leave the parties internally weak.

In this writer's opinion, political parties are, or rather, can be, useful tools in promoting the cause of student government; they are and have been needed for a long time. But partying just for the sake of partying is as fruitless as stepping off the top of a building just because you like to move.

A delicate piece of machinery is a carefully organized structure devoted to a common purpose, it is not just a haphazard conglomeration of wheels.

Now if there are to be stable political parties on campus, they must be united about common philosophies of student government. It is not enough for them to announce they are forming for the "purpose of promoting student government." Such talk is double talk, and thus no talk at all.

After all, what party is going to be devoted to lessening the influence of students in student government?

Did not all the parties in the recent national campaign support "democracy"? Did either major party declare in favor of disloyalty to the United States? Certainly not. The question was one of method, and it must be method which differentiates campus political parties. Otherwise those parties are no more than playthings of organization lovers.

As a case in point, there should be a party dedicated to the principle of taking, not asking for, all the students can get. The humiliation dealt the students in the double double-cross on the Secretary of Labor proposal, for instance, might never have occurred had students used the simple expedient of not submitting the office for administrative approval.

The University Government constitution, of course, provides that certain types of bills and proposals must win approval of the Committee on Student Affairs, but interpretations of that clause can vary. And this is certain: almost no group which holds a certain body of power is willing to see that power encroached upon. Students are far more likely to gain power by assuming they have the right to take it than by asking weakly whether they may have it.

In time the administration might even gain a certain respect for this child which has learned to wipe its own nose.

But is there a party dedicated to this point of view? Is there one dedicated to the converse or some intermediate view? In all cases, the answer is no.

Politics may make strange bed-fellows, but it does not guarantee that the concomitants will remain commonly couched for long.

Senators Refuse

officers to take care of this problem. Hess made the statement that according to students the administration is not doing its job and there is a need to have someone investigate the working conditions.

HESS SAID the bill has all constructive objectives and is fundamentally good in its restrictions.

In speaking of the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, headed by Glover E. Tully, Hess said, "Tully can of course go ahead with the direct authority, but at times he may need things called to his attention." He gave as example the students working in the cafeteria. "They are paid by meal tickets," he said "and if they can't eat there, it's just too bad."

HESS FEELS that the Bill will be beneficial to both administration and students. He also said, "The objections by the Faculty Committtee aren't good enough. The Senate will not give up . . . even if there is a need to resubmit the Bill so the Faculty Committee will understand the need for the bill."

Hess reminded the Senators that Tully is in favor of the bill and "he is certainly closely connected with the situation enough to know what he is talking about.

"IF THE FACULTY Committee will not approve the bill, then I feel a referendum should go before the student body for a vote," he continued, adding that the students realize the need for such an office in their government.

Hess ended his talk by saying he hoped the Faculty Committee would not be offended with the determination with which the Senate has held in regard to getting the bill passed. He said it was an important issue to them.

IN ANSWER to Hess, Dean Warren said both the Senate and the Faculty Committee have responsibilities. "The Faculty Committee carefully considers what they feel best for the students." She said at first the Bill seemed to set up a friction between the students and faculty, but that the revised Bill pointed out the Secretary would work with the faculty.

The Committee spent a long time in debating the bill, she said. Clarifications were also made in regard to the objections voiced in her letter. She said it causes a negative approach since no student can take action on the situation.

"THE PRESIDENT of the University and the Vocational Guidance Officer," she said, "are always willing to help students with their problems, and these officers can do something about it." She said all must be able to take actions from another group; someone always reviews what a person does. "The Faculty Committee is under pressure from the President of the University just as the President is under pressure from the Board of Control." She concluded by saying the Committee wanted the Senate to feel it will always be willing to consider anything the Senate wishes.

"The 'Nob Hill Mob' always wants to be on the side of the students," Dean of Student Welfare J. Broward Culpepper said, "and wants to realize the difficulties of the students and help them. The Committee spends long hours going over the bills passed in Senate, and it is not just trying to thwart Senate as it is often led to believe."

SENIOR SEN. BOBBY Drake replied that the students might be more willing to give their be more willing to give their problems to the Secretary of Labor, and that the Secretary of Labor could work the problem out much easier because he is in constant with the students.

Culpepper said that taking the bill as a referendum before the student body is possible, but "in the end the whole thing may have to go before President Campbell."

SEN. WAYNE TERRY moved that the Bill be sent back to the Faculty Committtee for further consideration.

Hess said he felt the faculty does not realize the student body itself is requesting the need for this office.

UNIVERSITY GOVERNMENT Association Pres. Mary Ruth Summers then took the floor with the comment that she realized all have to take pressure from someone else, and take someone else's opinion on something. But she added it has never ceased to irk her that the "student body is on the bottom of the delegated heap."

Pres. Summers also suggested that a joint meeting between the Senate and the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs be held. Deans Warren and Culpepper approved of this, and a motion was passed to have the joint meeting today at 3 p.m. in the small lounge on second floor Longmire.

ALSO THE MOTION to send the Secretary of Labor Bill back to the Committee was passed by a full vote, and the Senators adjourned.

FSU Gymnasts Seek NCAA Title

The Florida State University gymnastics team will go after its third national collegiate championship in a row this Friday and Saturday in Syracuse, N. Y. when they vie in the eleveth annual NCAA meet at Syracuse University.

The Seminoles, who won the title in 1951 and 1952, have already won three crowns this season—the Southern Intercollegiate, Florida AAU and Alabama Invitational Championships.

However, Coach Hartley Price will be forced to enter the Syracuse event minus the services of two aces who coped titles at last year's meet—trampoline artist Dick Gutting and flying rings star Jack Sharp.

Gutting has been declared ineligible for NCAA competition while Sharp graduated in February.

That means that Price will have to bank heavily on Olympic star Don Holder, Joe and Carmine Regna, Pat Signorelli, and Jack Miles for most of his teams points. All are scheduled to enter the tough all-around event.

Price left here early Wednesday with a ten-man squad that included Holder, the Regnas, Signorelli, Miles, Dick Ireland, Alan Marcus, Larry Weston, Jim Fadigan and Benny Wallace.

PRICE'S own comments on his squad's chances and on the chief competition:

Best spirited squad I have ever had. Despite their bad breaks they keep improving like real champions. They appear like a fifth in a field of thirty od duniversities but anything might happen. Penn State is picked to win with Illinois, Navy, Army, Michigan State, Southern California, and Syracuse with outstanding teams. Champions of the Conference are—

Hal Lewis of Navy is picked for the High Bar with Rintz of Michigan State and Cronstedt of Penn State close Corky Sebbo of Syracuse might dethrone Bob Sullivan of Illinois in tumbling. Dick Gutting and Jack Sharp will not defend their titles Sorenson, Iowa, Perry Ohio State or Evans, Minnesota should win trampoline. Jack Miles of FSU has an exceleint chance for the Flying Rings, Hazen of Penn State, DeMand, of Army and Rintz, Michigan State will push him all the way.

The NCAA All - Around Championship will be fought all the way with this following men as this outstanding contenders for the title.

Jean Crowstedt, Penn State

Karl Schwenzfeier, Penn Stata
Bob Sullivan, Illinois
Milan Trnka Syracuse
Carl Rintz, Michigan State (won flying rings, horizontal bar and side horse in big ten) statement by saying the intention of the Students Party was to have representation set up on a basis of the number of Greeks to the number of independents. "It has to be equal," he said.

SEN. DRAKE said, "We are trying to get the independents organized, as they would be a great asset."

Somewhat exasperatedly, Rhoden said, "I believe people are splitting the campus down the middle on this affair, into two groups, Greeks and independents." He said this was not the purpose.

HOW MANY independents were at the meeting Tuesday night?" Forums Chairman Lacayo wanted to know.

Sen. Terry said the ration of Greeks to independents was about equal. "Some of the most active leaders in the political party now are independents," he said. Terry, who has himself pushed the political party movement, is independent. "As long as we do have equal representation at the top level, we will have a very good party," he said.

THE STUDENT NEWSPAPER then came in for consideration. The moderator asked Editor Dunn "if the editor is elected on a party slate, won't he be prejudiced in favor of that party?"

Dunn replied that he might be, but in the absence of political parties, he is also liable to be prejudiced towards certain issues and candidates. It is up to the editor, he said, to keep bias out of the news columns, and air his views only on the editorial page, where the students can take it for what it's worth. He likened the situation here with that of the national scene, where newspapers support certain candidates and legislation.

"THAT IS TRUE," said Moderator Lacayo, "but we only have one newspaper on campus, where thers are many on the national scene."

Dunn repeated his view that the students would have to rely on the intergrity of the editor to keep his prejudices out of the news columns.

SEN. LAWLER also added that FSU would have to rely on public opinion to a great extent to "keep the editor in line." He said some persons had advanced the idea of not having the editor run on a political party ticket, but these people, he said, are fooling themselves." "We just must do the best we can to keep the paper impartial," he said.

McDaniel asked what if a student of one party wanted to support a part of the platform of the other party, which caused Moderator Lacayo to ask of the panel what issues would divide the parties.

PRES. SUMMERS said some issues could be the effectiveness of the newspaper, NSA end Greeks versus independents. But she said now the issue was more power for the students.

Next week's forum will concern the questions of whether or not FSU should have a board of student publications.

suggested and it was voted to decide on a permanent party name also "Seminoles," "Student's Party," "Eisencratts," and "Progressives" were among seven suggested. The group voted 39 in favor of "Students' Party" and the others were in a minority.

DRAKE CLOSED the meeting with a last thought. "We're not going to fight the administration," he said. "We're going to try and co-operate with them on issues to attempt to swing them to our way of thinking as responsible, clear-thinking members of a student body."

He urged all of the new party members to "spread the word" that there will "be plenty of action starting on campus now." He told all the members to invite and urge their friends to come to the next meeting, Tuesday night at 8:30 in Longmire Auditorium. He again made clear his earlier statement that he wants to see as many interested independents get into the party as possibly can and assured the group that equal representation will be kept throughout every move the party makes in the future.

First Test for Seminoles

Eleven Track Men Entered In Florida Relays In Gainesville

An 11-man Florida State track squad leaves today for Gainesville where they'll compete in the annual Florida Relays. The 11 Seminoles will be part of a record-breaking field of around 600 contestants representing 15 colleges and 27 high schools.

Qualifying events start tomorrow morning at 9:30 and the finals will be run-off in the afternoon at 2:30.

Track mentor Kenneth Miller reported, yesterday, that his squad is in "tip-top shape for the meet". He predicted that "Duke will be one of the powerhouses', since they have the biggest entry list.

On the Seminoles chances in the relays, Miller indicated he expected his 440 and sprint medley relay teams to finish among the top.

In fact, concerning the sprint medley team, he said, "On a good day there's no better team in this section of the country." The four trackmen running the sprint medley are Carlos Fraundorfer, Bobby Jones, Dick Mize and Woody Parker. They finished third last year.

Miller is also optimistic about pole vaulter Joe Fracassi. He said Fracassi "should finish at least third." This was the same spot he took last year at the Florida Relays.

Two of the Seminole entriee are freshmen, and one of them, Wes Minton, won the high school high hurdle race in a last year's Relays. The other frosh is sprinter Bobby Jones.

Irvin Canwell, now running for Loyola of New Orleans, is another former high school champion who'll be entered in the college bracket. Canwell won the 100 yard dash.

Also two college trackmen will be defending titles won in 1952. They are Florida's high jumper J. (Pappa) Hall and high hurdler Joel Shankle of Duke.

Hall's chief competition in the high jump probably will come from Bob Pettit of LSU and also from Hall's own teammate, Don Hester. Hall has jumped 6-6 while Hester and Pettit have both topped 6-6. Pettit was also one of the top basketball players in the country in the past campaign.

The Florida Relays were originated in 1838 by Florida Track Coach Percy Read.

"It's the largest field of competitors we have ever had," said Read, "and should produce a good number of track thrills."

The traveling roster:

Weston Minton and Jule Hurst in the 120-yard high hurdles; Varlos Fraundorfer and Tom Sebring in the discus and Fraundorfer in the shot put; Fraundorfer, Bobby Jones, Woody Parker and Dick Mize in the 440 relay; Jones, Parker, Mize and Bill Wagoner in the sprint medley, and Joe Fracassi in the pole vault.

Two-miler Ken Jarrett end quarter miler Pete Nimkoff will accompany the team as alternates. Jim Montgomery is the manager.

Dr. G. Gamow Presents Theories On Evolution

The world is a few billion years old, is the consensus of modern scientists whose estimates are based on detailed evolutionary studies. Dr. George Gamow said last night here.

Dr. Gamow, professor of theoretical physics at George Washington University, chose the vast subject, "The Origin and Evolution of the Universe" for his address at the annual College of Arts and Science banquet.

HE OUTLINED two different geological methods for determining the birthday of the earth: one concerned with the age of the oceans, the other with the age of the continents. A fair idea concerning the age of oceans is obtained by studying the salinity of ocean water. Age of the continents can be estimated by measuring the age of various rocks from which they are formed.

Three different astronomical methods of judging the age of the stellar universe were also presented by Dr. Gamow. The first is based on the stellar motion within our system of the Milky Way. The second is based on study of stellar energy sources. The third stems from the phenomenon of universal expansion.

"THERE IS EVERY reason to believe that chemical elements were 'cooked' very early in history when the density and temperature of the matter in the universe were both exceedingly high," the speaker sadl in getting on to the second phase of his subject. He called an early epoch of evolution "big squeeze" with all the galaxies, stars, atoms and atomic nuclei "squeezed to a pulp."

Speaking of the consequences of a process which took place a few billion years and lasted only haf an hour, Dr. Gamow pointed out that the ratio of half an hour to a few billion years is about the same as the ratio of a few microseconds to several years, which represent respectively the reaction time within an exploding atomic bomb and the period of time after which the radioactivity of fission products can still be noticed at the explosion site.

DR. GAMOW is well known to physical scientists for his contributions to the theory of atomic nuclei and its application to cosmogony. A native of Russia, he studied at the University of Leningrad and at Gottingen, later did research with Niels Bohr in Copenhagen and with Lord Rutherford in England. Since 1945 he has been teaching in Washington D. C.

Governor McCarty States Single Identity Opposition

R. A. Gray Reads Biennial Message To 1953 Joint Session of Legislature

"I strongly favor the maintenance of separate identities for the universities under the overall supervision of our State Board of Control."

Thus, in his message to the opening session of the 1953 Legislature last Tuesday, Governor Dan McCarty came out in opposition to a proposal to unite Florida State University and the University of Florida under one president. The proposal has been made by State Sen. George Tapper from Port St. Joe.

THE BIENNIAL message of the governor to a joint session of the house and Senate was read to the legislature by Secretary of State R. A. Gray. McCarty remained at the governor's mansion where he is convalescing from a heart attack suffered in February.

In his references to institutions of higher learning, the Governor urged the law-makers to make available to the universities adequate funds and facilities to carry on their programs

HE ALSO RECOMMENDED that the legislature change the classification of Florida A. and M. College from a college to a university. He commended the college as "providing a great educational service for the Negro people of our state and area."

The Governor's report was given before a packed house chamber and packed galleries. Added color to the scene was provided by bouquets of flowers from well-wishers which covered the desks of the legislators.

BECAUSE OF increased living costs, McCarty proposed a $300 salary increase for teachers. He urged that each county reevaluate its contribution to its public schools.

His message stated, "I have never talked to the parent of a school child who was unwilling to contribute something to his children's education."

Committee Chooses FSU's Ugliest Man In Campus Contest

One of the "national institutions" set up in leading American universities is planned for Florida State University for either this year or next by Alpha Phi Omega, national service honorary.

The institution will be the election of the "ugliest man on the campus" with fraternities, sororities and other groups entering candidates for the coveted silver key.

Already sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega in most of the colleges and universities throughout the country, the local Iota Rho chapter will be right on the heels of the University of Miami who started the contest on their campus just a few years ago with much success and already it is an established "honor" for a person to win the award and it is an annual event.

Most of the contestants enter pictures of themselves using anything from phoney teeth and moustache to trick photography. "The others present themselves before a committee if they're willing, however, the photograph seems more feasible," commented John Adams, president of the local group.

UGA President Appoints New Elections Sec.

Paul Soraparu, Florida State University Senior, was appointed recently by President of UGA Mary Ruth Summers to fill the spot of Secretary of Elections, vacated by Bob Ducker, who resigned a week ago Tuesday.

President Summers said emergency action was taken after she asked for and received Ducker's resignation last week. She said she thought the move to be in the best interests of the Student government and the student body at large.

DUCKER'S REASONS are stated below in his letter of resignation. He attributes his failure to perform the expected responsibilities that go along with the elections secretary job to too many conflicting obligations in extra-curricular activities and his fraternity.

Soraparu, taking over on the eve of elections, has issued election rules and procedure for qualification of candidates. He said the appointment came as a "complete surprise" to him and added, "I hope I can fulfill the obligations the job carries to the best interests of the Student body."

DUCKER'S LETTER

Dear Miss Summers:

This letter is to officially inform you of my resignation from the President's Cabinet as the Secretary of Elections, effective immediately.

Due to fraternal, WFSU, scholastic and other obligations, and due to an obvious incompatability with your desires as the Chief Executive, I deem it to be in the best interests of the Cabinet and the University Government Association for me to tender my resignation at this time.

I sincerely regret that this action was necessary; however, under the circumstances I feel that I should comply with your request to resign for our mutual benefit.

Sincerely,
Robert L. Ducker.

Representatives to Nominate Candidates for Spring Primary

Politicking in the true American two-party system way will begin tonight as the two Florida State parties, the Student Party and the Seminole Party, begin their conventions to choose nominees for the coming elections.

The Student Party, under the chairmanship of Senior Sen. Bobby Drake, will hold its convention tonight at 7:30 in the Science Lecture Hall, while the Seminole Party plans a two-day convention, the first meeting of which is at 3 p.m. tomorrow and the second, 1 p.m. Saturday. This will be held in the Longmire Auditorium. Temporary chairman of the Seminoles is Jim Dye

THE TWO PARTIES have mushroomed into a quick organization as the Spring campaign is only a few days away. Filing for declaration of candidacy has a Monday deadline with the primary on Tuesday, April 21. The runoffs will be Tuesday, April 28

The platforms of the two parties, as drawn up in meetings before the Easter vacation, show very little differences in planks or purpose Both strongly set as aims the betterment of student government and student interest in government.

THE PLATFORMS of the two parties definitely show a movement for more student voice in affairs affecting students. The Student Party, in its statement of purposes, sets forth an aim to bring about more harmonious relationships between the students and administration, at the same time giving the University Government Association "more power" in representing the students. The party is also in favor of scheduled meetings between the Senate and Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

The first platform plank on the Seminole Party further strengthens this feeling by advocating a more direct voice for the students by greater representation on all faculty committees or by "any other means necessary to obtain this end."

STILL IN THE vein of student "freedom," the Student Party advocates that control of the activity fee be delegated to the UGA, and a separate banking account placed under the Secretary of Finance. The Seminole Party plank soft-peddles this somewhat by saying the party is for "an evaluation of the present student fee system by students."

Both parties favor obtaining a charter for the University Government Association, with the Seminole Party specifically designating that it should come from the State legislature. The University of Florida student body has a charter from the State.

THE SEMINOLE PARTY is for a complete teacher evaluation controlled and administered by the students only. The Student Party does not take a stand on this in their platform

Both parties recommend a Summer student government and Flambeau. To further emphasize the student-control angle, the Student Party even includes as a plank the statement that "we believe that the Flambeau WFSU, Smoke Signals, Tally Ho, Pow Wow and the student government should be under complete control of the students.' Both are against any sort of Publications Board.

Faculty Passes Cabinet Office

The Secretary of Labor has been approved.

Word was received to that affect by the UGA office at 5 p.m. yesterday, when Vice-President Milton Carothers reached Dean Katherine Warren by telephone to ascertain the outcome of yesterday's meeting of the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

YESTERDAY'S approval marked the climax of a long attempt by the University Senate to have the new Cabinet officer approved. The Bill in its accepted form is actually the third version of the Bill originally introduced by Senator Gene Lawler to University Senate on January 13.

The final version is the result of a meeting of a joint committee of faculty and students held last Tuesday. Attending were Gene Lawler, the author, Bobby Drake, Coyle Moore, Marcia Morris, Dr. Paul Reynolds, Dr Kellog Hunt, and Dr Mildred Morgan

THE BILL as revised by the committee and passed by Senate the same day listed the duties of the new Cabinet official as follows:

The Secretary of Labor shall:

A. Study University student employment policies and interpret them to students.

B. Hear student employment problems and interpret them to the University administration.

C. assist the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement in finding and publicizing student employment opportunities.

D advance before student organizations the interests of working students

E keep records of information and of his activities for the benefit of his successor.

ACCORDING TO Senator Gene Lawler, "I'm happy that the Bill has finally passed, so that we can get on to other business. This example does illustrate, however, that it is well for students to stand behind what they think is right."

This statement was joined in by President Mary Ruth Summers, a strong backer of the measure who added, "It is indeed unfortunate that we have so much trouble communicating with the Faculty Committee. There was actually no disagreement about the intent of the measure, but only about how the Bill should be worded. We can only hope that such disagreements bring about better understanding in the end."

Lieutenant Hanna, Naval Assistants Visit Florida State

On the Florida State campus for the remainder of the week are Lieutenant R. R. Hanna, Naval Aviation Cadet Procurement Officer, and his assistants, from the Jacksonville Naval Air Reserve Training Unit. Lieut. Hanna will be available to talk to individuals and groups interested in Naval and Marine aviation.

Several thousand young Americans are trained annually as Navy pilots at the "Annapolis of the Air," in Pensacola. A candidate for Navy flight training must have passed his 18th but not his 27th birthday

He must not have received orders to report for actual Selective Service induction. He must be unmarried and remain so until commissioned The prospective cadet must have completed a minimum of two years of college and be in excellent physical condition.

In addition to passing a physical exam, he must pass aptitude tests and be selected by a screening board, which reviews the qualifications of all applicants. The entrance requirements are stiff, but the Navy prides itself in the selection of top level collegians for its Naval Aviation Cadet Training Program.

Gold Key Announces Selection of Members

Blanks can be obtained at the Longmire Information Desk and may also be returned there. Membership is based on a point system, with all members being Juniors and Seniors. April 14 at 5 p. m is the deadline

Letters, including application blanks have been sent to all the dormitory and social fraternity presidents.

Government Protects Veterans Educated in Florida Colleges

A new program to make sure that schools in Florida training veterans under the Korean GI Bill are meeting all standards of the law has just been put into effect.

H. F Dickensheets, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office at Pass-a-Grille, said that VA Educational Benefits Representatives will now make periodic visits to schools and establishments in which Korean GI trainees are enrolled, to see whether they are complying with all provisions of the training law.

AMONG THE PROVISIONS to be checked are safeguards that protect the interests of the trainee and the government, such as minimum standards that certain schools and courses have to meet, limits on the tuition a veteran has to pay and the like.

A good part of the work of the VA Representatives will be informational in nature, explaining the provisions of the law, pointing out any operational deficiencies that may exist and making suggestions as to how they can be corrected.

DICKENSHEETS SAID the Korean GI Bill gives the VA a number of responsibilities that can be carried out only through the system of periodic check-ups For example, VA is required to discontinue the GI monthly allowance of any veteran who is taking a course that fails to meet standards set up by law. Likewise, the allowance may be stopped if the veteran's school or establishment fails to live up to the legal standards which formed the basis of GI approval by the State Approving Agency.

Another VA responsibility is to disapprove schools for further veterans' enrollments if VA finds that they charge veterans more for tuition and fees than they do non-veterans enrolled in the same course.

STILL OTHER VA responsibilities are to see that allowances are not paid to veterans for absences in excess of allowable limits; that veterans' conduct and progress remain satisfactory; that the ratio of veteran and non-veteran students enrolled in some types of schools conforms with the minimum requirements of the law.

The Educational Benefits Representatives who will make the periodic surveys have been selected generally from among former VA Registration Officers because of their background and experience. This compliance survey function will be part of the Educational Benefits Section of all VA regional offices This section was previously known as the Registration and Research Section.

ALSO, IN VA'S Central Office in Washington, D. C., the Registration and Research Service will now be known as the Educational Benefits Service.

LEGISLATIVE HIGHLITES

INSPECTION OF RELIEF ROLLS CONSIDERED

By WARREN COBB

One of the important matters facing this session of the state legislature concerns the opening of the relief rolls to public inspection. This will not be the first time this matter has come under consideration. The 1951 session passed a bill to open the rolls, but it was vetoed by Governor Warren because of the threat by the federal government to cut off aid to any state taking this action.

Since then, however, Congress has rescinded this threat, and several states have consequently opened the welfare rolls—substantially reducing the number of recipients in each case.

The argument against this action is, of course, that it serves to embarrass and humiliate the needy recipients of this aid. It is contended that opening the rolls may expose them to abuse and derision. It is argued by some that this would be an invasion of the privacy of those receiving aid and also a jeopardizing of their respect.

But it must be remembered that there is no compulsory obligation on the part of the taxpayers to assume this burden. They do it voluntarily through their legislative representatives. And the dissemination of their contributions should not be shrouded in secrecy. For this secrecy serves to encourage unwarranted and fraudulent appeals for aid by the perennial parasites of society.

The distinction between charity and merited compensation must be clearly drawn in any society operating on a system of free and competitive enterprise.

It was estimated that the federal government sent out checks to at least 16 million individuals last year. Such give-away procedures are exceedingly dangerous in any democratic government—whether national or state. For such giveaways cannot be divorced from politics. They may be employed to aid in the entrenchment of one faction in office.

The opening of the welfare rolls would therefore be further vindication of the maxim declared by Grover Cleveland: "The lessons of paternalism ought to be unlearned and the better lesson taught that while the people should patriotically and cheerfully support their government, its functions do not include the support of the people."

SPORTSMANSHIP

The fallowing column was printed in the Tuesday, April 7, issue of the Orlanda Morning Sentinel:

TOP O' THE MORN

By Bob Howard

After all the smoke has finally cleared from that hassle following the Rollins-Florida State baseball game at Winter Park last Saturday afternoon, it now appears that much of the trouble could have been averted if the Seminoles had just been indoctrinated on the proper conduct of college baseball teams.

In the rhubarb after the game, which Rollins won by a 4-2 score, Umpire Allen Mobley punched Ralph Blinn, Florida State shortstop. Mobley, having umpired for several years in professional baseball, didn't seem like the kind of man who would go around punching ball players without provocation. He umpired many seasons in the Florida State League and was umpire in chief in 1947 in that circuit. Obviously his work had been satisfactory. If it weren't he wouldn't be umpiring baseball games after so many years. Incompetent umpires have a hard time lasting through one full season.

So it seemed somewhat unusual that he should have clobbered a player. In discussing tha matter yesterday, Mobley said: "It's the first time I ever did it." But he also hastened to add: "The abuse was the worst I have ever run into. They (the FSU players) started riding us in the first inning. They kept it up all through the game. After the game they used very foul language. Even then I still wouldn't have done anything about it. But this player grabbed me by the shoulder and called me a lot of dirty names. I shouldn't have done it but I hit him. If he hadn't grabbed me I would just have gone on to the dressing room and forgot all about it."

Mobley also added that he had never seen such conduct even in professional baseball or in the army, where he umpired during the war years. He felt that the coach (Ralph Matherly) should have had better control over his players. After all, one doesn't generally expect to encounter such treatment from players at the college level.

Mobley wasn't exactly alone on his version of the affair, either. Joe Justice, the Rollins baseball coach who has never been involved in any serious breach of sportsmanship, feels that the whole incident could have been avoided if Coach Matherly had tried to make his players behave. So far as he knew the FSU mentor had made no attempt to curb the violent temper flare-ups of his players which should be one of the chief duties of any college coach. Florida State hadn't figured to lose either of the two games with Rollins and was, naturally, upset over dropping both of them. But Justice felt that neither Mobley nor his partner, Goose Kettles, had shown any favoritism toward either club. Umpires, being human, it's to be expected that they will miss a few during any game. And they probably did Saturday, although it's ridiculous to assume that they were favoring one team over the other. They couldn't have umpired in organized baseball as long as they have if they operated like that.

Justice also pointed out that officials from Georgia Tech, which lost two games to Rollins here earlier this season, had told him that they only wished the umpiring they had for most of their games was as good as they had here. And Mobley and Kettles umpired the Tech-Rollins series. Amherst and North Carolina also felt that the umpiring was above average. In fact, there had been no trouble with any of the teams Rollins has played until the Seminoles came to town. It's hard to believe that everyone was wrong but them.

Meanwhile, Coach Matherly of FSU didn't quite see eye to eye with Umpire Mobley and Coach Justice. He said yesterday, "The umpire had no business hitting my player. Unless Rollins does something about changing their umpires I don't want to play them any more. That decision, though will have to be made by our athletic director, Dr. Danford. An umpire has to expect to take verbal abuse from players. It's all part of the game."

Justice, when informed of this statement, replied: "We don't have to have them on our schedule. There are plenty of schools anxious to gt on our schedule who want to come here to play us. Mobley is a good umpire and will be right out there umpiring other games for us this season. If FSU wants to sever relations with us, that's all right with me."

It was an unfortunate incident that isn't likely to strengthen relations between Florida State and Rollins. But the regrettable part about the whole affair is that it could have been avoided with a little matter of discipline on the part of the FSU coaching staff. No one who was present at the game or saw the fracas which followed it could recall having seen such conduct before by any team, college or otherwise. Since the Firoida State team is representing the college, the players should have been impressed with the fact that they were also hurting thir school with thir actions.

FSU is a comparative newcomer in the field of college athletics. Officials there have mapped out an ambitious program to elevate the Seminoles into a position of orominence in a relative short period of time. All those efforts will have been wasted by a cntinuance of such conduct as was displayed in this recent sppearance here.

LETTER TO EDITOR

The fallowing letter was received along with a copy of the Orlanda Morning Sentinel column:

Dear Sir:

Here's an article you should find interesting.

I did not attend the second game, did attend the first game. I was rooting for FSU, since I was at FSU in '50 and '51, but frankly I am forced to agree with the writer of this article.

After the first game FSU was griping and frankly they had nothing to gripe about. Bill Cary of Rollins had them handcuffed with his pitching. All FSU did was pop up all afternoon.

As I say I am partial to FSU and hoped they would beat Rollins, but I can say that most of the people I talked to who attended the games were very outspoken in their criticism of the Seminoles' sportsmanship.

I have seen these two umpires work in about a dozen games, this season and last. They're not the best, but seem to be about average for college ball.

Thought you might like to have this information from one who felt rather ashamed of the FSU sticker on my car.

Sincerely,
WALTER FRYE

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The following editorial about student government at Florida State University appeared in a recent issue of the Flarida Alligator, University af Florida newspaper:

UF OFFICIALS COOPERATE WITH SG

Because of a very few minor differences between some of the Florida Alligator columnists and the administration, it is feared that the students have the impression that everyone in the basement of the Florida Union has their teteh bared at University officials. Nothing could be further from the truth.

In comparison with the large majority of colleges, the local administration is more than cooperative with the wishes of the students. Take Florida State University for example.

Home and Family Life Prof. Adopts Lamp Making Hobby

Making driftwood lamps is fun, but one almost needs five hands and a tail that grasps like a monkey's, declares Dr. Janet K. Smith, professor of home and family life, Florida State University.

Dr. Smith, a vivacious grey-haired woman, is most enthusiastic about the items that can be made from natural woods and driftwood. Lamps, at the moment, are her specialty, but she has made decorative pieces for mantels, pen-holders and containers for plants.

LOTS OF WOOD is called driftwood but actually isn't the home economics professor remarks. But woods, such as New Mexican mountain cedar, swampwood or buttonwood lend themselves well to artistic home furnishings.

Some of her driftwood has come from Alligator Point near Tallahassee. To driftwood fans, Dr. Smith says: "Collect everything you can and fool with it." Some interesting and satisfying projects are the result.

Since Dr. Smith started working with driftwood about a year and a half ago, she has learned facts that will save the beginner a lot of headaches.

FIRST, SHE ADVISES that wood be prepared by briskly brushing it—no preservative is necessary, but rubbing with shoe polish brings out the graining.

One of the worst jobs is getting the piece of wood in a natural position and finding the base line so it will stand straight. The worker should be prepared, too, for a heavy bout with the saw.

"Don't ever try to nail," warns Dr. Smith. "When using screws, every diameter should be drilled, the head counter-sunk, and then covered with plastic wood."

DR. SMITH finds plastic wood helpful. She blends it in with the other woods by painting with a thin oil wash.

Among the tools needed are a smoothing device and a drill for metal. Women should not get a heavy drill, but rather a lightweight one with strong bits.

FSU's driftwood lamp expert buys a wire frame for lampshades from a supply house. For covering she uses poly-plastic material or suitable yardgoods. The base for free-form (odd-shaped) shades, is mesh hardware cloth.

THE FINISHING TOUCH is the finial, a little topknot of wood that sticks out over the shade at the top of the lamp.

"Smaller pieces of wood are just fine for that," declares Dr. Smith.

Driftwood lamps on the retail market sell as high as $150. But anyone with the patience and skill of Dr. Smith can have one of these high-fashion home decoratiaons for a few dollars.

Two-Party System Begins

THE SEMINOLE PARTY is for an improvement in the Artist Series program and the provision for additional student representation on this committee. The Student Party makes no mention of this. Both are for reinstatement of overnight, University chaperoned coast parties.

In other areas, the two groups support a reorganization if necessary, of the court system, with the Student Party saying that the Senate should enact by law the procedure used in all student courts, and in each of the lower courts it should be made clear that the decision may be appealed to the University Court. The Seminoles want a reorganization and unification of all agencies in student government, while the Students want to make Men's and Women's Senate responsible to the University Senate, with records of meetings of the two groups read before the general assembly.

BOTH WISH to install a Cabinet officer to handle public relations and publicity so, say the Seminoles "the student body might be better informed," and, according to the Students, so he might handle "intercollegiate affairs" and see that the happenings of the government are published in the Flambeau.

The Seminoles want a seating plan for football games and an extension of the booster section and card system. The Students further add the election of male cheerleaders.

BETTER PARKING facilities and clarification of drinking rules also see the parties in agreement. Both want a published list of rules and regulations affecting student living, with the Students advocating this be put in booklet form and given to each student upon his entrance into FSU.

THE LABOR BILL, finally given official birth yesterday, prompted both groups to include in their platform a stand on student working. The Students are "in favor of better working conditions for student assistants," while the Seminoles want a "justifiable wage increase for student assistants and student employes."

THE SEMINOLE PARTY, meeting before vacation, hashed out platform planks and proposed to issue certificates of membership which could be cut in half, part to go to the Party and part to be kept by the member, entitling him to voting privileges. Tentative plans are that the member will have in the nominations, one vote for each of the 16 offices. He may cast all 16 votes for one office if he pleases. This, in Chairman Dye's opinion, will help to eliminate any Greeks ganging up on independents or vice versa. A question was raised as to what the party would do if no one were willing, or qualified, to run for a particular office. "Take a neutral stand," said Dye, adding he didn't think it possible under a political party system to have such a situation as described

Matherly Blasts Ump Who Punched Blinn

By JIM EADY
Flambeau Sports Editor

See editorial page for the story ich appeared in the Orlando per about the slugging incident.)

Baseball coach Ralph Matherly ed sharp criticism, yesterday, at umpire who slugged Florida ate's short-stop, Ralph Blinn. e incident happened last Satur- after the FSU nine had been aten by Rollins 4-2.

Matherly said the umpire, Allen bley "is either getting too old he's losing his patience." Mob- punched Blinn when the two ams were walking together into clubhouse. Matherly com- nted that "he (Mobley) had no ason to be there."

Before the game started, Math- y revealed, he held a 30-min- meeting with the team to dis- s their conduct during the test.

Throughout the nine innings, Mobley was subjected to a heavy barrage from the FSU bench. He claimed it was the worst he has ever heard. But Matherly countered, yesterday, by saying "if he can't take it he should not be umpiring . . . it's part of the business and every umpire has to put up with it."

Matherly was also slightly irritated by the report of the incident which appeared in the Orlando Morning Sentinel by sports writer Bob Howard. Matherly said that the' 'facts were misconstrued . .. and many facts were missing."

In fact, Matherly said the Sports Editor of the "Sentinel" called him on the telephone the next day and admitted that the story contained errors. He also told Matherly thet a retraction would appear. However, the baseball mentor commented that "I haven't seen it yet."

Many of FSU's women students l be looking forward to next ar's oew intramural program. s program will take the place the out-dated Odd-Even tour- ments.

By discarding Odd-Even more men students will have a better ance to make the Women's Club because it allows more ople to participate.

Intramurals will be run Mon- through Friday when neces- ary Each participant must ve at least four practices for each sport before she is eligible to play.

A big change from the present intramural system is that there will be more than one sport in each season. The first sports season will consist of hockey, soccer, and swimming; the second, bowling and basketball; the third, volleyball, badminton, and table tennis; and the fourth, softball, and tennis.

Since this is a new intramural program, it may take a while to get it working smoothly, but it will be a great improvement over the old type sports program at FSU.

Copies of the proposed intramural program are posted on the bulletin board in Westcott and in the gym.

Golf Club Manager Is Guest Speaker

Corwin W. Gelwick, manager of the Gainesville Golf and Country Club, was guest speaker recently at a meeting of the department of restaurant and hotel management.

Gelwick, who is national chairman of the educational committee for the Club Managers Association of America, spoke on the subject of "Similarities and Differences between Hotel and Club Management."

"The Club manager," Gelwick said, "sees his guests day after day, year after year. The hotel man often sees his only once or a few times a year Having the same guests has its problems. Menus must be changed regularly and new ideas introduced to keep the club member from being bored."

"Club management is a challenging business," Gelwick added "Compensataion is higher in the beginning jobs than in the hotel field." The average salary for club managers is about $6,000 to $7,500.

Jim Brady, Ft Lauderdale, president of the Restaurant and Hotel student organizataion, "The Scullions" installed Gelwick as an honorary "Scullion."

Play Hatters Friday - Saturday; Cincinnati Is Next Home Foe

After a disastrous southern road trip over the weekend, the FSU Seminoles will try again tomorrow and Saturday when they go to Deland to play the Stetson Hatters. The contests will both be afternoon affairs, starting at 3:00 o'clock.

The Seminole will return home Monday for a game against the University of Cincinnati at Centennial Field at 2:30.

It is the first appearance of Cincinnati on the FSU schedule.

THE SEMINOLES took three straight losses and a tie on their first excursion on the road against inter-state rivals. Two defeats were administered by Rollins, last Friday and Saturday and against Tampa, the Seminoles tied one Monday and were beaten Tuesday 4-1. The 8-8 tie resulted when the game was called after the eighth inning because of an 11:00 curfew in Tampa. After the game, Tampa announced that the contest would be continued the next day, but plans were changed again by Tampa and the game was officially listed as a tie.

The FSU nine will leave for the Stetson contests, tonight after regular practice on the West Campus field.

HEAD COACH Ralph Matherly announced that Ed Lockard would start on the mound in tomorrow's tilt, if "he's ready." For the Saturday game, Matherly did not name a definite starter, but he said all his "pitchers will be ready for action."

The Indians now have a 6-5-1 record with nearly half the season completed.

IN THE 4-1 defeat from Tampa, Tuesday, the Seminole's pitchers, freshman Max Long only allowed four hits. But the Spartans made all their safeties count besides being helped by two costly FSU errors.

A fielder's choice, a triple by Bill Parolini and an error on the throw in gave Tampa two runs in the fourth inning.

THEIR OTHER two came in the sixth on arror, a walk, an infield out and a single by Fred Pancoast.

The Seminoles got their lone tally in the fifth inning. Utility-infielder Ronald Kims of Pittsburg, Pa., singled, took second on John Cuesta's single, went to third on a passed ball and tallied on an outfield fly.

Last year, against Tampa, Florida State won three out of four games.

Barbara Brewton, sweetheart of the fraternity, was presented with flowers in the ceremonies preceding the dance by Floyd Fegel, past commander of the chapter.

Sigma Nu also recently completed election of officers for next year. Commander is John Laritz; Gene Pipkin, lieutenant-commander, Curtis Jackson, treasurer; Billy Mills, secretary and rush chairman; Bob Joines, corresponding secretary; John Ayres, pledge trainer; Spurgeon Johnson, intramural manager; Randolph Church, alumni contact; John Howard, social chairman; Warren Cobb, reporter; Jack McKelvy, chaplain; Ryan Ray, marshall, and Bill Wagoner, sentinel.

Volly Ballers To Meet Navy Air Force Team

The Florida State University volley ballers play another in a series of warm-up matches for the national meet here this Saturday when they go against Cecil Field in the West Campus gym. Match time is 7:30.

The Seminoles, state AAU champions, have rolled up an impressive 15-5 record for the season while competing against some of the finest teams in the South.

In addition, Coach Bill Odeneal's squad placed third in the tough Mid-South event and second in the Pensacola Invitational.

Odeneal said today that the Indians defense was his main concern and added that if he could straighten that out, his squad would be a definite threat in the nationals which get underway in Omaha, Nebraska, early next month. The matches will be played on the famous campus of Boys Town outside of Omaha.

Volleyball Coach Bill Odeneal has carded several home meets for the Tribe in recent weeks hoping to get the squad in top shape for the nationals. FSU meets the Columbus, Georgia, YMCA team here April 25.

An editorial in the Florida Flambeau tells a story which indicates the power of the FSU student government.

The senate, their student legislative body, passed a law creating a new cabinet officer, a secretary of labor. It was pointed out that the office at the University of Florida has accomplished a great number of services to the student body.

In our Student Government system, the law would have been sufficient—the post would be created. But not at FSU. Obviously, their Faculty Committee on Student Affairs has the veto power over all student legislation, for that group turned down the cabinet law and it, therefore, was killed completely.

A very mild editorial in the Flambeau asked the administration to "stand back and let us grow a little."

When we read of such instances at other schools, we immediately make a comparison and then become a bit more grateful for the Student Government-administration relations which exist here

We are at a university which teaches in its classrooms democracy and self-government and which allow the students to practice with a minimum of restrictions those principles which are taught.

Awareness of the freedom and power granted to the local student body causes us to look upon any differences of opinion as minor. It must be very frustrating to be a member of the FSU student senate.

DOAK GIVES AWAY BRIDE

Easter Wedding Held at FSU

International Romance

The president of Florida State University and his wife opened their home and their hearts Easter weekend to give a young girl 5,500 miles from her home in Norway a picturesque, southern wedding.

At this Eastertide wedding which united Birgit Eberhardt Prytz, of Oslo, Norway and Thomas Nord Wilkstrom of Sioux City Iowa, Dr. Campbell gave the stately, blue-eyed blonde in marriage Mrs. Campbell gave full attention to arrangements for the wedding and the reception which followed.

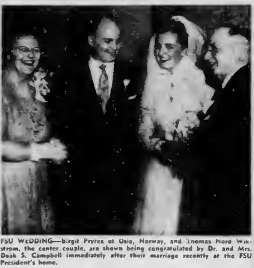
THE REV. HOWARD Blake of Philadelphia, Presbyterian minister and personal friend of the bride and her family, came to Tallahassee to officiate at the double ring ceremony. He first knew the Prytz family in 1934 when he went to Norway on a Moral Rearmament team.

Miss Marion Fay of Philadelphia was the bridesmaid, the bride's only attendant. She became a good friend of the Norwegian girl last year while visiting in Copenhagen, Denmark, where the latter was taking advanced courses in music before coming to the United States on a Fulbright scholarship.

Dr. W. L. Housewright, FSU professor of music education, was the best man.

THE BRIDE WORE a jacket gown of oyster white lace and net, and a net veil attached an an Elizabethan cap of matching lace, both jacket and cap trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a white Bible, a gift from Mrs. Campbell, and a bouquet of white roses. A Tallahassee friend, Mrs. Kristine Skagfield who is a native of Iceland, fashioned the gown.

About 100 guests, students, faculty and friends attended the wedding in Tallahassee. Simultaneously in Oslo, Norway, the bride's parents, the Rev and Mrs. Johan Prytz, gave a wedding party, inviting members of their large family and friends of Birgit. It was their way of participating in the wedding Mrs. Campbell has airmailed a large portion of the wedding cake to the parents



FSU WEDDING—Birgit Prytez of Oslo, Norway, and Thomas Nord Wikstrom, the center couple, are shewn being congratulated by Dr. and Mrs. Doak S. Campbell immediately after their marriage recently at the FSU President's home.

MANY WEDDING presents have arrived from Norway, including old serving pieces of heavy silver.

The bride's mother even sent a Norwegian wedding cake made of brandied nuts. The bride cut the cake at one of the pre-wedding parties given by university faculty and staff members. An American wedding cake featured the actual reception because the coed bride decided on an American wedding.

This American-Norwegian romance began the first week of the current university year when Miss Prytz had just arrived in Tallahassee from Oslo. She enrolled in the FSU School of Music as a graduate student to work for a master's degree in music education

MARRIAGE IN their university president's home was the culmination of a seven months courtship. It is the old story with an international flavor and coeducational background: Boy met girl, they spoke the same language they shared the ambition of teaching music. They hope to go to Norway together in June 1954, and both teach American methods in the conservatory at Oslo.

candidacy along wth the method the party used to select them, and the party plans for financing its campaign.

SORAPARU SAID the parties will have to submit a separate expense statement and estimate. This will include its total cash expenditures and gifts, and the same information for each of its candidates. In other words, they have to state how much they are going to spend of the party's money on each of their candidates. In any event, the chairman said, the party can't spend any more on a candidate than the UGA prescribes in its rules.

Soraparu added that the name of each candidate entered under a political party will have the name of his party along with it. This will be something new on the Florida State UGA ballot, according to the committee, who noted that this is the first time political parties have actively entered on the elections scene.

THE FINAL BALLOT on April 28, election day, will include also the amendments to the UGA constitution which were voted on recently at a referendum on campus. Only 50 ballots were filled in, according to UGA figures. Results of the poll showed most students in favor of ratifying all the proposals, including changing the name of Camp Flastacowo. Figures have been withheld pending the final voting at the April 28th elections.

Installation of newly elected UGA officials will be held during the second or third week preceding the end of this semester.

Governor States

dealt with education is as follows:

"In general, the State of Florida is discharging its obligation to the public school system satisfactorily. The state is making a commendable effort in the fields of salaries, current expense, transportation and capital outlay under our Minimum Foundation Program. Because of increased living costs, however, I strongly urge that the legislature increase state participation so that our teachers may receive from the state a $300 salary increase

"IN THIS connection, I also urge that each individual county in the state carefully reevaluate its own contribution to its own public schools and where such contributions are too low, they should be brought in line. There exists keen competition for school teachers within the state as the result of erratic local school efforts. Equalized tax assessments among the various counties will greatly aid the solution of this problem.

"I believe that the parents of Florida children are willing to accept such a reevaluation. I have never talked to the parent of a school child who was unwilling to contribute something to his children's education.

"THE INSTITUTIONS of higher learning in the State of Florida are making notable contributions to almost every aspect of state life. We must make available to the universities adequate funds and facilities to carry on their programs. Further, I strongly favor the maintenance of separate identities for the universities under the overall supervision of our State Boar dof Control.

"The Florida A. and M. College is providing a great educational service for the Negro people of our state and area. This institution richly deserves to be classified as a university, and I recommend that the Legislature change its name to the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University."

OPEN TO SENIORS ONLY...

There's a letter to all Seniors on its way in the mail now explaining how you can halve at least one item in your future cost of living. It has nothing to do with inflation, nothing to do with taxes—but it does point out that a TIME subscription today will cost you just half the price that Old Grads normally pay.

The secret, of course, is timing. For today you can still qualify for the Special Student Rate which brings you 52 issues of TIME for less than six cents a copy.* But once you have that degree—you're fair game for the regular rates.

It's an open secret, too, that we'd like to have you as subscribers—now and in the future. And if we make it easy for you now, we think you'll get into the habit of wanting TIME around the house.

So if you're going to read TIME anyway (and most college graduates do), why not subtract $3 from the cost of your "news-education" and place your order now?

All you need do is keep your eyes peeled for that letter and return the card enclosed. Or if you'd like to get the jump on the postman, place your order today with your campus TIME representative or the college bookstore. You pay for it later when we bill you—at $3 per year instead of the usual $6.

—And you don't need a graduate degree in finance to see that this offer makes sense.

An adventure in good reporting,
good reading

* It's hard to figure a way to stretch six cents farther than across the world and back in TIME's 23 chapters, some of which you see spelled out around this ad.

 Today 78% of all TIME readers are college-trained. And incidentally, '52 graduates recently voted TIME "the most important magazine" and their own first-choice.

Carothers and Lawler Head Student Party Nominees

Rally To Present Candidates, Platform Thursday, 8:30 P. M. In Amphitheater

A full scale political rally will highlight the political party movement at Florida State University Thursday night at 8:30 in the Music Amphitheater immediately following UGA Week's speaker, Attorney General Richard Ervin.

Chairman of the Student Party, Bobby Drake announced the rally today as the wheels are slowly gaining speed under the political movement at FSU. Candidates for the 18 UGA offices, nominated at the Student's convention last Thursday night, will speak at the rally and party platform will be explained in full. The rally is expected to be complete with brass band and soapbox oratory, according to Drake, who urges all interested students to hear what the "Student Party has to say toward better government."

TWO-HUNDRED-FIFTY enthusiastic Student Party delegates, members and interested onlookers jammed the Science Lecture "Convention" Hall last Thursday night and elected a full slate of 16 nominees to run under the party ticket in the coming UGA elections.

Replete with typical convention lingo, parliamentary procedure and demonstrations, the convention, believed to be the largest all-student non-compulsory group meeting in the school's history; took on a very professional aspect.

DURING THREE suspenseful hours, the serious business was lightened by many laughs, surprises and hard-fought voting. Voting delegates reached a deadlock in the race for UGA secretary, with votes practically even between Carolyn Gola and Dot Johnson. Gola finally took the nomination with 47 votes, the minimum prescribed by the party for a two-thirds majority.

Biggest surprise of the evening came when Jim Dye, temporary chairman for the opposing Seminoles Party, now dissolved, asked to be recognized as the delegate to the Student Party from Theta Chi fraternity. Many took this move as a direct indication that the Seminoles had folded, but the final decision to disband came Saturday afternoon when only a few of that party's members showed for their convention.

THE "STUDENT" convention opened with a short speech by President of UGA Mary Ruth Summers. She gave an announcement of "UGA WEEK", a move to acquaint FSU students with the workings of the student government. Miss Summers again echoed her remarks of a few days ago, saying she "Sees political parties as a great help toward more interest and understanding between students and government." She said she thought the political party system here would generate more interest in UGA elections that any scheme has yet.

Dick Bradley followed with the keynote address. In it, he stated that political parties are evidently here to stay. Nothing that this was possibly the largest meeting of its kind in FSU's history, Bradley said, "Loyalty of the student should be, in large part, to his government."

HE SAID IT was the party's duty now to develop more loyalty

Orlando Printer To Fill Orders For Invitations

Seniors will now be ordering their commencement invitations through a new company, and handling the transactions entirely on a student basis.

The different channeling of the class invitation printing was a result of a Senior Class investigation based on the complaint that Seniors "were being charged too much" for the work

THE UNIVERSITY, however, had a contract with H. & W. B. Drew Company of Jacksonville for the printing. Through legal means the Senior Executive Council found that if the students themselves handled the ordering, they would not be obligated to a University-made contract

"Actually we will be saving approximately 500 to 600 dollars," said Senior Class Pres. Bob Ryals, in talking about the newer contract with Brewton Company of Orlando. "We must get these orders in fast. We don't have much time to get the orders to the printers."

AN INDIVIDUAL saving of five cents per invitation will be made

Adams Named New Chairman Of Chest Drive

Tom Simmons Serves As New Co-Chairman; Campaign Is Planned

John Adams has recently been appointed chairman of the 1953-54 Campus Chest drive by Mary Ruth Summers, University Government Association president. Adams will be in charge of the over-all drive and will co-ordinate various committee heads to serve under him.

The newly appointed Chairman announced the appointment of Tom Simmons to serve as his co-chairman in bringing the Campus Chest drive to a satisfactory and successful conclusion. Simmons will be the immediate head of all committees, and all material, monies, proposals, and data will pass through him.

ADAMS EXPRESSED the hope that this year's drive will be met with a vigor and unselfish donation of time, effort, and money. "Never before," he stated, "has there been such a very real need or such a splendid opportunity to participate in so great a humanitarian venture. The students of Florida State University have proven time and time again their great spirit and enthusiasm for this kind of undertaking in the Campus Chest drives of the past, and I know that they will only want to out strip their generosity of the past in this year's drive.

Adams went on to appeal for help in the drive from those who have gained experience by working with the Campus Chest in past years. "Committee heads and workers are the backbone of such a drive and we cannot operate without them," he stated.

STUDENTS WISHING to volunteer their time and effort in the 53-54 drive may contact Adams by mail c o Alpha Phi Omega service and leadership honorary, Longmire Building, or by writing him at 815 Myers Park Drive, Tallahassee. Students may also contact Adams personally.

Thereafter a new car beginning with the coal car and extending to the caboose will appear, one each day with that particular day's total of money taken in printed on the side. On the last day of the drive, the caboose will appear completing the train with the overall total for the drive printed on it and a little victory flag flying out behind.

ADAMS ALSO expressed hope for a Campus Chest dance to climax the gala drive This would necessitate one of the campus bands donating its services for one evening as their contribution to the drive.

Band leaders interested in donating their groups time for such a dance should contact Adams at one of the above address.

Reporting State Affairs

POLITICAL REPORTERS—Two journalism students covering the 1953 session of the Florida Legislature are pictured on the steps of the capitol building. Gale Tomlinson and Russell Rapp are two of seven students of Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of Journalism, who will write stories for the Tallahassee Sun-Star, a paper edited in the School of Journalism laboratory Some of their stories will be printed in the Florida Flambeau and will also be sent to their home town newspapers.

Legislators Debate State Constitution

By GALE TOMLINSON

Is Florida's constitution, established in 1885, too old fashioned? Amended numerous times, is it out-dated for our twentieth century civilization? These are the questions Florida legislators will face and debate in the legislative sessions just ahead.

Yes, any political scientists and students of Florida government who feel that the state constitution has grown cumbersome with detail which should be in no constitution.

THEY SAY that theoretically a constitution should be no more than a skeleton of law which sets out broad principles of government. Then it is proper to let the courts and legislature interpret the principles.

These political scientists point out that no attempt has been made to modernize the constitution since it was adopted in 1885 It has become a big patchwork of complicated amendments tacked on to the original document.

SOME EXPERTS feel that in view of Florida's social economic, and political growth, the need is for a broad overall consideration to bring the constitution up to the times—Streamline it.

No, say others. Among them are legislators and state government officials who feel that some sections and articles need no rewriting. Most of these are articles protecting the people's basic rights.

THE BELIEF is that the public would probably lose some rights in attempts at revision There are indications that a large number of legislators favor this line of thought and will vote to keep the present method of section by section amendment

These people feel that the present method of amendment keeps the Constitution up to date. They argue that although it has been amended over 100 times since

April "Seventeen" Spotlights FSU's All Student Circus

Florida State's "Flying High" again is in the national news, this time as the topic of the feature article in a special circus issue of the April Seventeen, a popular slick magazine for young women.

The article is entitled "Flying High" and Author Edwin Miller maintains that Florida State sees nothing unusual in students hanging by their ankles or wrists. The magazine features several pictures of circus members practicing their acrobatic arts and has one full page photograph of Johnnie Fortune in a flying casting act.

In last weekend's trip to Gainesville, the circus put in a plea for volunteers to help take down rigging because of the rain About a hundred people offered to help, and circus members said that help was badly needed, as they could not get their truck on the field and the equipment had to be taken up through the bleachers to be loaded.

A crowd of 6 500 watched the show in Gainesville, while an estimated 15 000 saw it on the tour, including the Gainesville show and three shows in Tampa.

The troupe was invited to come back to both cities to give performances next Spring. Members who went said they were very impressed by the hospitality of the students in Gainesville.

Campus Magazine Is Featured on Saturday

Smoke Signals, Florida State's campus magazine, comes out this Saturday, announced Boots Haynie editor.

The magazine, which will spotlight FSU's new football coach on the cover and in a story, will be filled with more features, pictures and humor, promises Editor Haynie.

This will be the third issue to be released by the student publication this year.

Campaign Letters

Dohnanyi's Letter Is Broadcast On Arthur Godfrey Radio Show

Arthur Godfrey, noted radio and television entertainer discussed for about 10 minutes of his morning program recently a letter from Dr Ernst von Dohnanyi, professor of composition and piano in the Florida State University School of Music

Dohnanyi was high in his praise of Godfrey and called him an example of "Mr America" Godfrey replied in his usual manner "I wish that were true"

GODFREY WAS requested by this world-renowned musician to play a piece of theme music on his ukelele which might be adapted for a forthcoming recital by the professor in the Opperman Music Hall, April 25 He also asked Godfrey if it would be possible to appear on the stage of the music hall and play the piece himself.

Godfrey didn't answer as he was uncertain about any future affairs for he enters a hospital in a few weeks for an operation on an injury he suffered in an automobile crash in 1930 However he recuperates in a Miami Beach hotel occasionally and it may be possible for the star to appear No comment was made except that Godfrey and his orchestra leader, Archie Biever would confer on the idea of a theme to use

THE RADIO PERFORMER made one comment on the subject of a personal appearance "I'd like to do it if only to meet this fellow, he sure sounds as if he's a wonderful person" Tony Marvin, announcer for Godfrey's stints which cover the program schedules of the CBS network stations made a comment that Dr. Dohnanyi was a rather famous man in the field of music Someone else on the program added, "That name does sound familiar."

McCARTY SPEECH OPPOSES FEA HOPES

By WARREN COBB

"In general, the State of Florida is discharging its obligation to the public school system satisfactorily. The state is making a commendable effort in the fields of salaries, current expense, transportation and capital outlay under our Minimum Foundation Program. Because of increased living costs, however, I strongly urge that the Legislature increase state participation so that our teachers may receive from the state a $300.00 salary increase."

This recommendation by Governor Dan McCarty in his proxy speech to the State Legislature opposed the hopes of the Florida Education Association and other school groups for a $560 annual increase. State School Superintendent Tom Baily had announced his intention to press for a $600 increase.

The proponents of an increase in salary corresponding to the latter figures cite as argument the cost-of-living increase since the Minimum Foundation Program was adopted in 1947 and the inadequate salaries now received by the teachers, in proportion to the highly important nature of their work.

The $300 increase was overwhelmingly passed by the 1951 Legislature, but the House and Senate could not agree on how to raise the necessary taxes. And the pay raise was lost in the scuffle as the session ended. Consequently, the teachers were forced to wait two years for a salary increase because of the disharmony of the Legislature.

Another factor involved in the insufficient wages of teachers in many parts of the state is the failure of some counties to contribute a fair share to the school program. This failure is due to inequities in these counties' assessment and millage rates. Even though they may levy high millage rates for school purposes, their property valuations are too low to produce the needed revenue.

Now the Legislature has before it two bills regarding teacher pay raises. The first, sponsored by the FEA, proposes a flat $560 raise for all public school teachers in the state. The second, introduced by Rep. Elliot of Palm Beach, would provide a sliding scale pay raise running up to $800; teachers in the lower income brackets would receive the larger increases. This latter bill is similar to the proposal of the Legislative Council for a sliding pay scale increase, except that it stipulates more substantial increases than does the council.

The question is, Will either of these bills pass?

It would seem that the answer to this question is no. It is more probable that the legislators will approve an increase in the neighborhood of $360, the figure mentioned by the Appropriations Committee, adhering rather closely to the recommendations of McCarty and the Budget Commission.

The reasons for this, as pointed out by Herbert Bayer, Times-Union political editor, are: (1) many of the present members of the Legislature committed themselves to the $300 figure in their campaigns and do not feel obliged to vote for more; (2) they feel that the counties have been delinquent in their contributions; (3) there has been a recent downward trend in the government's cost-of-living index; (4) since there is only so much money to go around, some pressure groups fear that larger pay raises for teachers would cut into their own appropriations; and (5) the Legislative Council's sliding scale plan would average only about $310 per teacher, a more attractive figure to the solons.

The governor's concern with economy is gratifying to those long accustomed to such practices by the state as acceptance of high bids, profligate spending on unnecessary and impractical ventures, and the like.

But the raising of teachers' salaries is an area in which the practicing of "false economy" should be diligently avoided. The importance of competent, constructive education for our youth cannot be over-emphasized. The attraction of superior educators to our schools is, therefore, one of our prime concerns in view of the complexity and problems of modern society with which the graduates of these schools are faced. The present salary of $2,500 for teachers with college degrees cannot be considered an adequate attraction.

According to Edward Everett, "Education is a better safeguard of liberty than a standing army. If we retrench the wages of the schoolmaster, we must raise those of the recruiting sergeant."

Failing to proportionately increase wages during inflationary periods is equivalent to retrenchment.

EGG-HEADS ROLLED BEFORE EASTER

By BRUCE GALPHIN

The egg-heads were rolling in Washington long before the Easter season made it legal.

Egg-head, of course, is the name invented by Republicans in the late lamented presidential campaign for the professors and "intellectuals" in the Democratic party. It was particularly applied to Adlai Stevenson.

Egg-head-rolling has proceeded so far now, though, that it looks as if practically everyone in government, civil service or not, is going to be ousted if he isn't one of "da boys."

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, who left school after the eighth grade and later became the largest Chevrolet dealer in the world, recently boasted the administration is making good progress in "rooting out the egg-heads."

For instance, ex-Congressman Albert Cole, who consistently fought federal housing while in Congress, has been named to head public housing. Edward J. Howrey, who has long been an attorney and lobbyist for big business before the Federal Trade Commission, has been named a member of that Commission, and will probably become chairman; the FTC, of course, is supposed to be a sort of policeman over big business. And among other such cases is the report that the second man in the new Health-Education-Welfare cabinet post will be a member of the American Medical Association, the ultra-powerful doctor's lobby

Business Week magazine has warned that "The new administration is long on doers but short on thinkers." and New Republic quipped that the egg-heads were being replaced by "Detroit Piston Heads."

However, much of this out-with-the-ins movement is just a part of "the game of politics as she is played" and is to be expected.

One recent firing, though, is so rotton, so unusual and so dangerous as to stir up quite a fire among newspapers and scientists throughout the country. Namely, the Department of Commerce recently fired Dr. Astin, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

The crux of the firing was the fact that the Bureau of Standards had made scientific analysis of a product which was said to restore old batteries and on the basis of their tests had reported that the product did not live up to its advertised promises. Secretary Weeks and Assistant Shaeffer of Shaeffer Pens said they had information that the product was good. Astin was forced to resign and told that henceforth the Bureau would be run on a "business-like" basis.

It's bad enough that one such thing, even if it be true, should be enough to cause the firing of a reputable scientist. What makes the ouster particularly unusual is that prior to this time the Bureau of Standards has been kept out of politics. The first director held his position for some 25 years under Republicans and Democrats alike. Herbert Hoover's appointee was kept on under Roosevelt.

The thing that makes the whole affair dangerous, however, is the not-too-subtle implication that politics can dictate scientific findings and that scientific study can be subjected to organization along the lines of a big business.

The Bureau of Standards has been a highly respected center of scientific research and information. The net effect of this politically-flavored firing can only be, as the Washington Post pointed out, to destroy confidence in the reliability of the Bureau.

The new administration should be careful lest its zeal to fill the GOP family larder destroy the public confidence which brought it into office.

Circus Alphabet Unscrambles

By JAYLEEN ROBERTSON

Circus Alaphabet Unscramhles

An average freshman girl starts out in fall, never dreaming that she could be a part of a famous circus, but soon she's in and making her first road trip and so impressed that there's a whole alphabet of comments to record about being a cast member.

"C" is for the crowd and applause, the only reward the performers get for their untiring efforts to produce an entertaining thrill-filled show for the closeness each member of the troupe feels for the others; for the cooperation of all hands working together whether it be in tearing down the tents and helping riggers after the show or just learning to be a cog in a wonderful wheel rather than a wheel alone; and "C" is most important for Coach, the person whose tireless energy and patience, and good nature command automatic respect and devotion from anyone who works with him

"I IS FOR the interesting places one sees and the interesting things one learns while in Flying High; for the inspiration achieved when some new feat has been learned and mastered, for the intermission between acts when jokes and compliments fly back and forth among the troupe, for the ingenuity of the clowns and the heart-lifting laughs they bring forth from those of us behind the scenes as well as the audience.

"R" is for the responsibility each member of the troupe acquires in learning that he is needed and must be dependable whether he is looking after costumes, working an act, or working the public address system—and in time each member of the troupe learns to do it all; for the recognition FSU is gaining nation-wide for having a circus that develops the minds and personalities of its students in such a unique way; for the riggers who go a day ahead of the road show and very carefully set up the poles, tents, and rigging so that the utmost safety is given the performers; and for the fine reputation Flying High has achieved for the good conduct of its troupe on the road and which each member takes care to maintain; "R" is also for the ribbing the freshmen take from the upperclass members of circus and for the reserved seats in the back of the bus for freshmen

"C" AGAIN is for the circus acts—the clowns, the cloud-swing, Charleston number, and the Flying DeCosmos; the triple and doubletrap routines, adagio dancers, rola-rola teams, hula dancers, the break-away teams, balancing acts, jugglers, Indian-dancers, blues numbers, and acrobatics—just mentioning a few of the beautiful chorus numbers done by the girls of circus and practiced every Wednesday evening without fail

"U" is for the understanding one gets of the complexity of running a show and of doing his or her own part well; the unpredictable antics of the clowns as they spout impromtu remarks; the almost unbelieveable fact that that the students performing are amateurs and received all of their training at FSU; for the uniqueness of the Big Show and how so many acts can be going on all at once at such a smooth pace; and "U" is for the undercurrent of the show, the movements behind the acts in preparation for the next; the changing of costumes in few minutes' time, the helping hand of the person nearest at hand offered before it is asked for.

"S" IS FOR the Big Show when the whole troupe performs in one gigantic affair for which preparations go on all year; for the satisfaction of being a part of it; the sadness one feels when all the tents are packed away and the show is over for another year, for the sensation of doing something new and daring in learning new tricks; and for, Susie and Sammie Seminole, who support the efforts of your circus, who are a part of it, who are the audience and our close friends.

C-I-R-C-U-S spells "Flying High" and that's what circus means to each student spectator and performer.

Vet Administration Says Allowances Are Not Continued

Veterans attending school under the Korean GI Bill will not receive GI allowance checks for the months when they are out of school on Summer vacations. Veterans who are enrolled for the entire school year will be paid, however, during the breaks such as Christmas and Easter holidays that take place from time to time during the school year, Veterans Administration said today.

The types of breaks in training for which allowances will be paid are:

1. Regularly-established recesses between terms, quarters or semesters.

2. Regular school vacation periods that occur during the school year— but these do not include the summer vacation when a veteran is not in class.

VA said two provisions have to be met before a veteran-trainee may receive his allowance for recesses and vacation periods.

First, the school must be operating on a regular semester or quarter basis, and must certify on the veteran's enrollment certificate that he has been enrolled for the full year. Second, the veteran actually must have resumed his training after the between-terms break.

VA's ruling will apply to veterans in school under the Korean GI Bill during the 1952-53 school year. Adjustments are now being made in the case of any veterans who have not been paid for their breaks in training.

VA asked these veterans not to write in about their cases, since letters will only serve to slow up the review process.

EDUCATIONAL TV . . .

Universities Apply For TV Channels

Inside ivy covered walls, students are gathered around a television set taking notes and disturbing the quiet only to stir a cup of coffee or sip a coke.

A few blocks away, in a private home, another group is sitting watching a telecast—with pencils in hand and notebooks open and ready to take classroom notes.

THIS MAY EASILY be a typical college or university classroom scene in this country a few years from now.

With the 242 television channels set aside for educational television in the United States, college and university instruction will take on many new aspects probably unforseen at this moment.

TEN UNIVERSITIES in the United States have already applied for educational channel grants and 27 others have their applications ready for filing.

The first of these to actually begin telecasting will be the University of Houston, in Houston, Texas, when it starts producing education programs April 17.

THE FIRST COURSES that will be taught on the University of Houston's channel, KUHT, will be aimed at the students already enrolled, Dr. W. W. Kemmerer, president of the University, has announced. Next fall seven courses, biology, humanities, history, psychology, music appreciation, economics and a short course in photography will be offered as 30-minute lectures in the evenings.

The educational courses will actually begin in the summer with a psychology course under the instruction of Dr. R. I. Evans. His course will run like this: There will be three one-half hour lectures a week, a one and one-half hour seminar on the campus during the week.

AS ONE OF the main objectives of the station is to acquaint students with every aspect of television producing, directing, casting and acting, students will have an opportunity to work in all phases of television beginning at the very bottom of the ladder and working their way up to student producer of shows.

Programming research is another aim of the station. "This should be a help to commercial television," John C. Schwartzwalder, manager of the station, said.

George Finck Completes Work; Sickroom Converted Into Class

A sick-room was turned into a classroom recently at Florida State University when two professors and their students began holding classes in the home of George Finck.

George Finck, doctoral candidate in the school of social welfare, had a bit of bad luck about two months ago in a car wreck. He ended up in the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital for four weeks with a fractured pelvis and a dislocated hip.

GEORGE'S WIFE Barbara and children, Peter, 12, and Tina, 8, escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

In the hospital, besides being encased in plaster with five-pound weights tied to his legs, George worried about his degree.

NO SCHOOL BOY, George is a professor on leave from North Texas State College, Denton, Texas, and he had his family and leave time slipping away to worry about.

Then George's professors and classmates stepped in. Two advanced classes, Seminar in Basic Concepts of Basic American Living, under Dr. Howard Busching, school of social welfare, and Comparative Family Systems, under Dr M. F. Nimkoff, department of sociology, voted to hold their class meetings in George's house.

HE HAD his bed rolled into the living room, the largest room in the house, and once a week each class squeezed in and the professors held forth using the foot of George's bed for a desk

Barbara, an instructor in the FSU nursing school, handled the kids during the home classes, and afterwards served coffee and cookies.

AS IT LOOKS NOW, George will finish his course work and examinations by summer. He'll be up soon on crutches and back in class.

At any rate, when he gets his doctor's degree this summer there will be three or four dozen people other than his family who'll be proud of him . . . who'll know that they also helped George on his way.

Trackman in Florida AAU, Sat.

A seventeen-man Florida State University track team will journey to Gainesville this weekend where they will compete in the annual Florida AAU meet.

Coach Ken Miller's squad, who topped Mercer by a one-sided count in their only dual outing of the season here a week ago, will be entering the AAU for the first time at full team strength.

The Seminoles will bank on most of their points in weight and field events where several lettermen, headed by sophomore Carlos Fraunderfer of Tampa give Miller most of the team's depth.

The lanky Tampan, who broad jumps, throws the shot, discus and javelin, took third in the discus event in the Florida Retsy in establishing a new FSU school record.

Against Mercer, Fraundorfer won all four events and ran a leg on Florida State's winning mile relay team to personally acount for 21 points.

In the running events, quarter-miler Woody Parker of Lake Worth, looms as one of the chief threats in the rugged 440. Parker, who also runs the 220 was clocked at 48.4 while runing a lap on the Indians mile relay team in the Florida Relays.

Pole vaulter Joe Fracassi, putting in his fourth year on the Seminole cinders should be good for points in his specialty. Fracassi has hovered around the 13 foot-mark all season and turned in a leap good enough to tie him for second place in the Retsys.

Another probable point-getter for the Seminoles could be sophomore Bill Wagoner in the 880. However, Wagoner remains a question mark due to the flu bug which sidelined him for the Mercer meet.

Legislators Debate

1885, each new section has replaced an outdated one. Now there are actually under 30 amendments.

SPECIFICALLY, political scientists propose provisions such as these: a state-wide merit system; a recommendation for voting procedure in the legislature and general elections, ousting sections dealing only with certain localities; doing away with provisions which are too detailed in nature; and proposing a new method for amending the consitution.

The state-wide merit system would provide that government employees be chosen on basis of their abilities and fitness for the job. Political scientists say that while this might seem beneficial, it would have to be argued out on the floor of the legislature to see if it would be good for Florida.

NEW RECOMMENDATIONS for referendum and recall should be made, advise experts. The voting procedure should be a basic part of the Constitution they say.

The constitution is now burdened with local provisions. For instance Section 9 Article 8 deals specifically with the city of Jacksonville, and the next clause legislates only over Key West. These specifications seem to overwhelm the real purpose of the constitution, comment public administrators.

THERE ARE SUCH details in the document as the establishment of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission — the only board in Florida with a Constitutional basis. Another section provides that there be one court of records—the one in Escambia county. Now there is a need for several more which must be established by amendment.

There is need for some other way to amend the constitution. As it is now, each amendment must be voted on by the public at the polls. There are usually so many that people can't become familiar with them and the tendency is to vote no or not vote at all.

MANY OF THESE amendments provide for improvements in some local government. But people in other localities do not realize the purpose of them, or are not interested. When returns come in the localities needing new improvements usually end up right back where they started.

Proposed steps for revising the constitution are: 1) make the public aware for the need of revision 2) set up a special committee of legislators and "civilian" experts to study the needs and report to the legislature 3) call a convention to give all factions in the state a chance to voice their interests and opinions 4) go over the proposals article by article in order to give close attention to each section.

IF THESE STEPS could be followed, say the experts, it would give Floridians a Democratic method of revision. It would provide for close study of basic constitutional needs, and a close scrutiny of our present constitution, keeping that which is of value and disregarding that which is not.

Travel Abroad Secured For 510 Young People

Transportation has been secured for 510 young people expected to go abroad this Summer with The Experiment in International Living, which has one of the largest programs of some 200 non-profit organiaztions in the student travel field. Going abroad to get to know one country well at the person-to-person level, rathar than to tour in many many countries, Experimenters will leave on five different sailings between June 15 and July 4.

Under The Experiment Plan, carefully selected young people, 16 to 30, travel in mixed groups of 10 members, each with a well-qualified leader. They spend one month living as members of separate families, and the second month exploring other regions of the country in the company of the U. S. group members and their young hosts.

DURING THE HOMESTAY period, Experimenters share in everyday family life, taking occasional trips to local points of interest such as the cheese markets in Holland; the Croatian Parliament in Yugoslavia; the coal mines in England; the Fiat automobile factory in Italy. The second month features hosteling and camping trips: in Norway, Experimenters will camp and climb in the northern region; French Experimenters may hostel through the Chateaux country of the Loire; Mexican groups may travel by boat to the Mayan ruins in Yucatan; German groups may chose the Black Forest as their camping site.

All Experimenters spend a week in a capital city such as Paris or London, and all European Experimenters who qualify may travel independently for a week.

1953 EXPERIMENTERS will go to Austria, Belgium, Denmark, England, rFance, Germany, Holland, Italy, Mexico, Norway, Peru, Scotland, Spain, Sweden and Yugoslavia. For the first time, groups will also go to Finland and Ireland. Both high school and college groups will be sent to all countries with the exception of Austria, Denmark, Finland, Italy, Norway, Spain and Yugoslavia, which will only receive Experimenters 19 years of age and over.

Average costs for Europe run from $718 to $765; Mexico, $390; Peru, $790, (estimated). Applications for Experiment membership can be accepted through June 1, but it is to be the student's advantage to apply now.

EXPERIMENTERS WILL leave for India sometimes in October to spend four months in a program similar to the summer Plan. applications for this group can be accepted through October 1. Estimated cost: $1300.

SHOULD BE ADDRESSED

Inquiries to: Director of Admissions, The Experiment in International Living, Putney, Vermont.

FOUNDED IN 1932 by Donald B. Watt to build up in various countries groups of people interested in creating mutual respect and understanding between their own and other countries. The Experiment since 1950 has been directed by Gordon Boyce. In the past 21 years The Experiment has provided some 8,000 students with the way to make enduring friendships in twenty-five countries in Europe, Asia and the three Americas.

Recognition of the value of an Experiment summer has come from Trenton College, Agnes Scott College and the German Department of the University of Chicago, which have established scholarships for participation in The Experiment's 1953 Program. The AAUN awards of $500 travel grant in competition to a high school student, which for the past several years, has been applied toward an Experiment summer. In addition, many universities award academic credit for participation in one of The Experiment's foreign language groups.

Carothers and Lawler

among students here and to change the "I don't care" attitude to a definite interest in what's going on in government.

Bradley told the group, in conclusion, "You have a platform and a purpose—now you've got to nominate people to accomplish these things."

THE UGA PRESIDENT'S nomination took a matter of minutes, as Milton Carothers, as many had acknowledged, was voted by unanimous acclaim, to the nomination. Carother's nomination speech was delivered by Bob Ryals, who said, "The success of an office determines the success of the student government."

Ryals concluded his speech with, "Nominate the man who knows how to compete with 'Nob Hill'"

GENE LAWLER, also acknowledged as the obvious party candidate for UGA Vice-President, was likewise nominated by acclimation. In his eloquent nomination speech, Bob Ducker noted principally Lawter's "colorful legislative record in UGA."

The contest for vice-president of women's affairs started with three nominees, Sonny Meyers, Charis Coulter and Lillian Avis, but narrowed to a fairly close battle between Coulter and Avis. Avis finally came out with a majority of the 72 total votes after several added nomination speeches from either faction.

The men's vice-president nominations, expected to be a hard contest between Wayne Terry and Dave Kennedy, turned out to be a quite landslide with Terry copping 52 votes against Kennedy's 10. Charlie McDaniel, in Terry's nominating speech, noted his accomplishments in the UGA senate and told the audience of the man's qualifications. Terry was labeled a man of action by Al Pierce, his seconding speaker, when he said, "Wayne doesn't walk—he runs!"

A ROUSING SHOUT could only be identified as the audience's response to Marcia Morris' staunch supporters as her name came up for Flambeau editor. A large banner was carried across the podium as the crescendo rose, indicating Marcia's unanimous approval as the Student's Party nominee for that office. Marcia's nomination by Mac Huey met with no oposition.

The vote for Chief justice of the University Court met with almost unanimous approval by the body. Richard Jackson was nominated by Al Sundberg who gave a short speech exemplifying Jackson's qualifications.

NANETTE McCLAIN was nominated for the office, but Jackson clinched the vote with a large majority.

Yvonne McCarthy, nominated for chairman of judiciary won the nomination by unanimous agreement of the convention delegates.

BUSINESS MANAGERS of the three campus publications, Flambeau, Tally-Ho and Smoke Signals were all clinched by acclimation. Flambeau nominated Nancy Lowe whose speech was given by Liz Vang of the staff. Tally-Ho nominated Al Shuler and Smoke Signals came through with Nancy Wilson as their recommendation. Wilson won 60 to 9 over Mary Jane Robertson who was also up for nomination.

John Howard won the nomination by acclimation for Smoke Signals editor. Howard is presently editor managing of that humor magazine.

TALLY-HO recommended Becky Brown for their choice as next year's editor and she won by unanimous vote.

Pinky Nowlin, present chairman of the Traffic Court, won unanimous vote of the delegates with his nomination for that same office next year.

MANY DELEGATES changed their votes after casting for University Recreation Association chairman's office. Charlotte West received less than the majority of 47 votes in her race with Shirley Harper, but enough delegates changed their votes to bring West's total to 49, winning the nomination for her.

Two names were submitted for next year's Sandspur chairman. Cosmo Cardone and Herb Holcomb were both nominated, with Cardone climbing 45 to 20 votes over Holcomb. Again, several delegations changed votes to swing over to Cardone and he won the nomination with a bare 47 votes.

The convention closed quickly with adjournment by Bobby Drake, Party Chairman, at 10:40 p.m. Drake urged all delegates and friends of the party to give as much support to the following two weeks of campaigning and demonstration on campus as they can.

Zeta's Entertain Delts After Defeating Them

The Zeta Tau Alpha's played the Delta Tau Delta's in a softball game recently, but the game ended in utter confusion when about 35 Zetas decided to play in the last inning.

Up until the last inning, the Zetas led with a score of 10-9. This of course was because the Delts were "not at their best"—in fact, they were throwing left handed, running backwards, and trying all in their power not to win the game.

Following the game, the Zetas entertained the Delts with a super-party at the Zeta house.

Voting to Begin at 9 A. M. With Polls in 3 Precincts

Tuesday's University Government Association primary election ballot may well turn out to be the final ballot, according to Paul Soraparu, UGA Elections Secretary.

Soraparu, recently appointed to the post vacated by Bob Ducker, said there are no more than two candidates qualified to run for each UGA office and three for the office of UGA President. He said that if one of the candidates for president receives a majority in the Tuesday primaries, and one of the candidates for each office receives a simple majority, (one more than half the votes cast), there will be no final election and the winners of the primary election will be declared elected.

However, be noted, there can be one exception on which can hinge the fate of the final electino. If there should be two write-in votes for any one of the un-opposed offices, thus causing none of the candidates for that office to get a simple majority, there would have to be a final election held.

Soraparu said there are nine offices that will have only one qualified candidate. On these people, he said, can hinge the final election.

The Elections Secretary also noted that only one person took advantage of the day's extension on the deadline for candidates to qualify for the ballot. The original deadline for qualifying was set at Monday at 5 p.m. However, the committee extended the deadline to Tuesday at the same hour.

Complete details on the election procedure and the primary ballot have been released by Soraparu.

Voting will officially begin at 8 a.m. and will continue until 7 p.m. Tuesday. The official ballot will be announced by 7 p.m. Sunday, and will be posted on the UGA bulletin board in lower Westcott.

Soraparu said the ballot posted then will include only the students who have filed a declaration of candidacy with him, who have been found constitutionally qualified to hold the office for which they are running, and who have filed an expense estimate with him.

Ballot boxes will be on the first floor Westcott, in the foyer of the Seminole Dining Hall and in the Post Office. Each precinct will have a different colored ballot. All students must present ID cards, which will be punched in order to vote.

Candidates will be listed in alphabetical order of their last names, with their first names first, in the same form as they requested their name to appear at the time they filed their declaration of candidacy. Space will also be provided for write-in votes.

Ballot counting will be done in the Longmire Auditorium. Soraparu said all students are invited to watch, as there will be enough chairs for everyone. A blackboard will be used to chart the progress of the ballot counting, and WFSU will issue partial returns from time to time.

Should there be any violations of the Elections Code, the Secretary of Elections, aided by

ONE AFTER the other candidates appeared on stage to enumerate their feelings on the Party's platform and to tell why they want the offices. Many of the speeches were interrupted by demonstrations from supporters in the audience.

Student Party Chairman Bobby Drake, who engineered the rally in cooperation with the party members at large said he was "very pleased" at the great response FSU students are showing and lauded the enthusiasm of the party members.

Board of Publications Discussed on Forum

Once again the subject of a Board of Publications has been brought into the fore-front—and the move will probably be defeated as it has been in years before, judging from the UGA Forum heard over WFSU Wednesday evening.

Representatiaves of the student publications aired their views against such a board.

Students discussing "Should FSU Have a Board of Publications" were: Beverly Lacayo, forums chairman; Bill Dunn, Flambeau editor; Claudia Thomas, editor-in-chief of the Tally Ho; Boots Haynie, Smoke Signals editor, and Bruce Galphin, candidate now for the office of Flambeau editor

ACCORDING TO EDITOR Dunn the subject of a Board of Publications at FSU has not been in the limelight this year as much as in the past year or two. He said that last year a committee was appointed by Senate to investigate the possibility of setting up a board. But the movement did not get very far as it was staved off by a few "freedom of the press" proponents.

One of the main reasons for the lack of pressure this year, the four press representatives agreed on is probably the fact that considerably less controversial material has appeared in the publications of late.

BRUCE GALPHIN said that proponents of a board of Publications on this campus have used as a chief argument the fact that such a Board would be better qualified to select the editors of the various publications—rather than the student body which now chooses the editors. The students speaking on the forum all feel that the capability of such a body to select even more important, that this function would be highly undemocratic.

Those against the proposed board said that people who fear the selective ability of the student body would be closer to a real solution to the problem if they pressed for members of the publications choosing their successors. "The outgoing staffs surely know better than any one else who among them is best qualified to be editor," Dunn said.

ANOTHER ARGUMENT voiced on the forum was that it is difficult to see just how a Board of Publications could be set up without interfering with the freedom of the University Press. The editors are already subject to state liable laws and to impeachment under the UGA

The publications staff members on the forum all emphatically agreed that the publications are primarily student matters and that corrective measures could and should come from the students themselves.

English Professor Discusses Origin Of Nation's Words

Dr. Thomas Pyles, professor of English at the University of Florida, Gainesville, put the American language "under a microscope" at a recent English Coffee Hour at Florida State University. The Coffee Hour is sponsored weekly by the English department.

Dr. Pyles, author of Words and Ways of American English, has been interested in birth and development of words ever since his early college days at the University of Maryland.

IN HIS TALK he described circumstances that gave rise to purely American words.

Perhaps the most famous expression, he remarked, is OK "OK" is an outgrowth of the presidential campaign of 1840 when Martin Van Buren was running against Gen. William H. Harrison. A native of Kinderhook, N. Y., Van Buren was known to his supporters as "Old Kinderhook." OK Clubs were formed, and from the members' opinions that they were "all right" grew the expression "OK", which means correct or signifies giving approval.

There are many tales about the beginning of "OK", but Dr. Pyle labels the "Old Kinderhook" tale as the authentic one.

THE TERM "STOGIE", which refers to a cigar, came into being during the days when Conestoea wagons rolled out of Lancaster valley in Pennsylvania and into the West.

Dr. Pyles said the drivers of the wagons smoked long black cigars, and eventually the cigars themselves came to be called "stogies," a shortened form of the "Conestogie" wagon.

THE SPEAKER told of the origin of bloomers, bunk, sundae and gerrymander. He commented on words and expressions made in this country: anesthesia, hydrant, moron, "the real McCoy" and "bawled out."

The American word reservoir has increased at a rapid degree during recent years, remarks Dr. Pyles. "Be-bop" and "hot rod", "aerosol bomb" and "genocide" have been coined. Some, the professor says, are silly and will fade away, others are substantial words which will become accepted parts of the English language.

HE COMMENTED on coinage of words such as motel, skinjury and Walter Winchell's "infanticipating".

"Anachronyms" have come into being. Those are words formed from the first letters of a series of words in a name, such as radar and loran.

In a review on the Atlantic City concert the Ventnor Crier said, "Dohnanyi held his audience spellbound with the perfection of his technique and the artistry of his interpretation. Both his offerings were equally impressive."

The Florida State University composer, who is internationally famous, was accompanied on the Atlantic City visit by his wife. They were feted at a number of civic and social affairs, and presented with a key to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Dohnanyi are now visiting in New York City. Before returning to Tallahassee they will spend three weeks of May in Athens, Ohio, where Dohnanyi will appear in concert and give instruction to advanced students in piano at Ohio State University.

Dohnanyi's "Variations on a Nursery Rhyme," which was recently played in Tallahassee by Hilde Somer appearing as soloist at the Boston Pops concert, will have its premiere in London May 15 when Cyrl Smith, conductor, presents it at the Royal Festival Hall.

FSU Foreign Speakers Assert War is Necessary for Peace

The only hope of freedom for the people living behind the Iron Curtain is war between the free world and the countries controlled by communism.

This is the concensus of Florida State University students who have lived behind the curtain, and who recently appeared on a University Government Association forum, heard over WFSU, the campus radio station.

IDENTITY OF THE FSU forum speakers was not revealed to prevent retaliation on their relatives abroad. Beverly Lacayo of Tallahassee, a student UGA officer, served as moderator.

The international students told of receiving letters from relatives behind the curtain, very general, never mentioning politics, with a common note of depression. They said they believe if it came to a show-down between the free world and the USSR, many of the oppressed people would join with fighters for freedom.

WHEN MISS LACAYO asked for opinions on the Voice of America, a boy with a heavy accent volunteered that not many of the people in Russia have radios, and therefore The Voice is little known and does little good.

A girl with only a slight accent amended his statement, testifying that The Voice has a large audience in Russian border countries. She said that the people are eager to hear all they can about western civilization and free enterprise.

Asked about Russian education, the group of foreign students were agreed that schools exist mainly for communism indoctrination. They said reading, writing and arithmetic are unimportant compared with the subject of becoming good comrades — children are groomed for communism when very young, the younger the better.

TIME MAGAZINE TAKES COLLEGE CENSUS

Congressional Investigations Create Cautious Educators

What overall effect are the Congressional investigations having on the nation's colleges and universities? Time, the weekly newsmagazine, sent nine news bureaus and nineteen correspondents across the country after the answer. Their report appears in the April 13th issue of Time.

Few educators denied the right of Congress to investigate anything it pleases. No one was in a state of panic. "And yet," says the magazine, "the climate of the campuses has already begun to change." The impact seems to have penetrated deeper than public opinion of the teaching profession; it has dug at the professors' confidence in their own profession and the students' confidence in their role as students.

"ON CAMPUS after campus, the danger flags are out. At Michigan State, department heads have for the first time been asking their deans how far they should go in expresing their own political opinions. At the University of Pennsylvania a young physics instructor admitted that the only reason he would not join the liberal, non-Communist American Civil Liberties Union was that 'I don't want A.C.L.U. on my record.' When a large Texas campus wanted to fire on incompetent teacher who happened to be a rabid anti-Communist, a professor warned the president that the firing would look like fellow-traveling to outsiders."

Says Time, "The academic motto for 1953 is fast becoming: 'Don't say; don't write; don't go.'"

THE TEACHERS are not alone in their attitude of caution. One dean reports that students are now reluctant to take part in liberal discussions, that healthy campus organziations are being abandoned to the radicals. Another dean states that the student out after a job may have new considerations for "Employers ask searching questions, not about ability, resourcefulnes, reliability, industry or integrity, as in the past, but also about the political and social attitudes of the applicant. . . ."

"To some extent, the caution is still something to joke about ('What reading Communist literature again?' said a Princeton student on spotting a classmate with a New Republic.) But the jokes are not much more than a veneer." Says Time, "U. S. educators have begun to wonder whether educaiton is not losing its boldness."

Cavaliers, Cotillion Again Hold Tryouts for New Memberships

For the second time this year Cavaliers, dance honorary for men, and Cotillion, the women's dance honorary, will hold tryouts for new members Tuesday evening, April 21.

This has been a very active year for the two organisations and both groups are looking forward to tapping new members to help carry out next year's projects.

THE FIRST SOCIAL event of this school year was the Annual Play Nite Dance at the O Club on Campus in September. This dance was co-sponsored by the two organisations as was the series of dancing lessons which ran for five weeks. The lessons were followed by tryouts for new members. The men and women who were tapped were introduced to the student body at the Annual Cavalier-Cotillion Formal in January.

At the beginning of the second semester Cavaliers and Cotillion sponsored a dance to introduce a new band on campus. This band is the Raven Quintet which has proved to be one of the most popular bands to appear on campus in recent years. The month of March was highlighted by the Annual Cavalier Talent Nite which gave students a chance to compete for cash prizes in the Opperman Music Hall. This year's show was broadcast over the campus radio station and featured the music of Georgie Bee and his orchestra.

A SECOND SERIES of dancing lessons has just been completed, and committees of the two organizations are now completing plans for the Annual May Day Dance to be held on May 2.

The purpose of both Cavaliers and Cotillion is to promote and improve social activities by and for students. Membership in both groups is open to the entire student body. Taps are chosen not only for their dancing ability, but also for their appearance on the dance floor, their personality and their interest in the projects which the groups carry on.

Tryouts will be held at the Student Center from 7 to 8 P.M. Tuesday evening. All interested students are invited to try out.

Modern Child Has Social Spotlight Says Dr. Nimkoff

The child in 20th century America has the social spotlight, unknown to his predecessor in colonial times, according to Dr. Meyer Nimkoff, head of the sociology department.

HE SAID THE change in the status of the child amounts to a social revolution, that it has taken place along with the extension of democratic principles. The industrial revolution gave both child and democracy "a great push."

"Children should be both seen and heard," is the new version of the old adage, "Children should be seen but not heard."

"IS IT GOOD for the child?" has become a paramount social question. The FSU sociologist said there are now 450 national organizations taking care of the welfare of the child — a couple of centuries ago the colonial father as head of his home was the main one concerned with the problem.

For the most part, Dr. Nimkoff thinks the emphasis on children in American society has been wholesome. For example, rapid social changes have brought a greatly enlarged public health program so that a dangerous menace to childhood such as diphtheria has been practically wiped out.

HE BELIEVES the mark has been overshot on a few counts. Social rights come before rights of individuals, and parents have rights in society along with children.

To achieve a balance in the program for children is important, the speaker concluded. He predicts that this balance will be attained with time, since in this latter half of the 20th century the accent is already on old age.

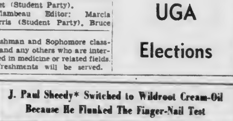
J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test



"LISTEN, CICA-CEAIN, don't get sour, but I cooed never love you," said Sheedy's little chickadee. "Your hair's strictly for the birds! Better remember the tree cardinal rules for social success so you won't be an also-wren. 1. Hop to a toilet goods counter. 2. Peck up a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's Favorite Hair Tonic. Contains Lanolin. Non-alcholic. Grooms the hair. Relieves dryness. Removes goose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test. 3. Use it daily and peeple will love you." Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil for himself and a diamond wing for his tweetie-pie. Better buy a bottle or tube today. UGA President

Dear Fellow Students: : :

I have entered the race to seek the office of President of U.G.A. I would like to take this opportunity to ask the students for their support in the election Tuesday.

I do not attempt to state any long platform. I will only say that if I am elected to this important office I will do my utmost to establish a better student government with more student participation in all University activities and policies.

I'm seeking this office on the independent ticket. I feel that with your help and support that we can make the University Government more beneficial to the student body.

I feel that I'm qualified for this office as I was active in student politics all during my high school career. All I can do now is to ask for your support and promise to do my best if elected.

Thank you,
Gene Bridges

UGA President

Fellow Students,

I am a candidate for the office of President of the Student Body. The realisation of a stronger student government is now a reality instead of just a dream. I believe that I have the experience that will be needed to lead a strong student govrenment that can encourage more student participation and interest by carrying out a progressive program.

I have served in the University Senate as Sophomore Senator and while serving as Vice-President of the Student Body this year I was presiding officer of the University Senate. Last year I was elected to represent F.S.U. at the Florida Inter-Collegiate Student Government Convention at Miami. I was chairman of one Homecoming Committee and co-chairman of another. I am a member of Gold Key and Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK). I believe I am well enough acquainted with the workings of student government to be able to carry out the following platform:

1. Student control of the activity fee by a representative committee appointed by the President of the Student Body;
2. Have the administration clearly state all rules concerning drinking and places off-limits; and that these be printed in booklet form and given to all students;
3. A Student Discount Service with a chairman appointed by the President;
4. That a Secretary of Public Relations be established to publicize student government and to assist the President in carrying out his duties as the official student host to visitors;
5. That a charter defining the powers of student government be secured from the Board of Control or the Legislature;
6. Over-night beach parties with proper university sanction;
7. Co-ed visiting in the infirmary;
8. Complete study of the Court System by a joint committee appointed by the President and composed of members of the Courts and the Senate;
9. Increased parking facilities;
10. Voting machines for all student elections;
11. Well-publicized Student Government Week;
12. Better student working conditions;
13. Revision of Freshman Orientation Week;
14. Student Committee to sponsor a better Artist Series.

Your vote on Tuesday will be greatly appreciated. If elected I will strive to make student government the powerful force that the students deserve.

Sincerely,
Milton Carothers

UGA President

Dear Students:

Most of you students don't know me by sight, but you may be familiar with my voice on WFSU's Seminole News Round-up. I am the one who has been urging you every night at 7:00 during the past semester and a half to ask, beseech, demand, or supplicate your student senators and UGA representatives to enact legislation, and make recommendations to the University Administration (known affectionately by most candidates as the "Nob Hill Mob") to ameliorate many situations both on campus and within the University organization so as to make FSU live up to its name as one of America's most progressive institutions of higher learning. (Here I might interject the slogan, "FSU and NOT FSCW.")

Many things have vexed me fortunately FSU's advantages outweigh these little dark clouds) including the Administration's continuous interference with the UGA and the student body in matters which are not at all times (or should not be) within its jurisdiction: the method of electing a Flambeau editor; the somewhat monotonous selection of food afforded by the University cafeteria; slave wages tossed out to student employees and assistants . . . and many other conditions. You know what they are . . . especially if you own a car or send your clothing to the University Laundry. (What about a student laundromat? Military installations operate them for 10,000 men—and they save the GI's a lot of money).

I am not a politician, nor do I intend to enter politics when I graduate. (Some feel a student office is an excellent field in which to practice theories and engage in time-wasting debates.) I have watched Florida State University from behind a microphone and have grown aware that less bickering over such issues as a new name for the UGA (which took hours of the Senates' time) and more legislative hours devoted to the problems which confront the students of FSU will be of REAL value.

I ask the vote of the students of FSU when you go to the polls next Tuesday and I pledge myself to serve YOU—and not the Administration — as President of the University Government Association.

Meet me Monday night at 9:00 p.m. in the Longmire building Auditorium and hear my platform and policies. Hope to see all of you there!

CHRIS YOUNG

Vice President

Dear Students:

As F. S. U. grows into a greater university, all phases of our campus must grow with it. So it is with our student government. We must try to be more responsible and more effective in our service to you the students and to the entire educational community.

This can only happen, I believe if we keep ou student government composed of persons elected because of their interest, ability, and sincerity rather than because of any organizations to which they might belong.

During my three years at F.S.U. I have had the privilege of being a Freshman representative to University Senate, President of the Sophomore Class, and Vice-President in charge of Women's Affairs (Chairman of Women's Senate). In each office I have sincerely tried to do what I have thought best for the most students—best both for the present and for the future F.S.U.

We have now the beginnings of a good student government, one that can meet any need that arises on our campus. Our campus is unique, I think, in its unity, friendliness, and sincerity. To grow greater with our growing university, student government must keep these vital qualities.

It is with these ideals and sincere interest in good student government that I submit my candidacy for Vice-President of Legislative Affairs.

Sincerely yours,
June Conyers

Vice President

Dear Students:

The importance of electing the better candidate for Vice-President next Tuesday should not be underestimated. As presiding officer of the University Senate, next-year's Vice-President will to a large measure determine the relationship between the administration and UGA, since he represents Senate legislation before the Faculty Review Board and argues the student case before that body.

Students should consider which candidate better represents their philosophy of student government. I believe that University regulations should be more permissive, rather than more restrictive. For my own part, I am for student freedom—as much freedom for students to manage their own afafirs as they show they are capable of assuming.

There are clearcut differences between my beliefs and those of my opponent, as illustrated in our respective voting records in University Senate this year, of which most people are unfortunately unaware. The Secretary of Labor Bill is an example of something which would never have been introduced to Senate, much less pushed to an eventual victory for the students, had it not been for handful of Senators, who like myself, prized the student interest more highly than the preservation of a false harmony between Senate and the Review Board.

I wish to thank all those persons who have spent so much time and energy working in my behalf during this campaign. Win or lose, I shall remember the unselfish assistance of those marvelous people.

Yours truly,
GENE LAWLER

Women's Affairs

Dear Students:

I am a candidate for the office of Vice-President in Charge of Women's Affairs of the university. The main duty of this office is to represent the women on campus at senate meetings. I have had experience in this type of work by serving on Judiciary and dormitory house council, and thus feel that I am qualified.

I am sincerely interested in serving you and will do so to the best of my ability if I am elected. I would certainly appreciate your support in the coming election.

LILLIAN AVIS.

Flambeau Editor

Dear Editor:

I am running for the position of Flambeau Editor because I feel I am well qualified and because I have a definite plan for a vigorous, informative and interesting Flambeau.

As to qualifications, I started as a reporter and feature writer three years ago and since have been columnist, assistant news editor, associate editor and summer managing editor.

It is particularly on my ideas for next year's Flambeau that I am basing my campaign.

I hope to see a Flambeau that has an open ear to all groups but a firm resistance to pressure groups. I want to see the Flambeau co-ordinated with student government in such a way as to extend and better define student rights.

Finally, I will work for a Flambeau that informs students and arouses their interests about what is going on in the world. To do this I would bring to the Flambeau editorialists and columnists who are interested and informed in campus, national and international affairs, people who will interpret as well as report the news.

The Flambeau is a very important part of student life and reflects the level of the University to people on the outside. I will try at all times to guide a paper of which students can be proud and the nation admiring.

Sincerely,
BRUCE GALPHIN.

Flambeau Editor

Fellow Students:

I am a candidate for the office of Editor-in-Chief of the Florida Flambeau — an office that assumes a vital position in the workings of the University Government Association. Without an effective newspaper — straightforward, unbiased, and unafraid—we fail in our attempts to build a strong student government. It is essential that we have a growing paper to keep pace with our growing government.

The belief that an excellent newspaper can be achieved is my reason for seeking this office. Experience gained through three years work on the Flambeau qualified me for nomination by the senior staff of the paper. Beginning as Reporter, Headline Writer, Feature Writer, Columnist, Editorial Writer and Society Editor, I now hold the position of Associate Editor on the Senior Staff. This coupled with two terms as class Parliamentarian, and dormitory officer, in addition to my present position as Secretary of UGA, offers a diversified background for a position of this sort. Experience in UGA is helpful in forming an editorial policy for the newspaper.

However, qualifications mean very little, unless a potential candidate has determined some proposed course of action. I believe the Flambeau needs.

1. Complete and Aggressive news coverage.
2. A flexible editorial policy, to be determined by the members of the Senior Staff in answer to their needs in an effort to promote student opinions and student government policies;
3. Continuance of our present policy in publishing special pictorial editions for Homecoming, Circus, Freshman Week and Graduation Week.
4. Increased accuracy in the reporting and printing of all news.
5. A staff of ample size to accomplish the above aims.

Thus far in the elections this year student spirit has been commendable. To grant your government and your paper the powers of independent self expression, and to assure their success—VOTE ON TUESDAY. And remember, the jobs of the candidate and voter alike do not stop with the winning or losing of an election, but continue through the year!

Yours sincerely,
MARCIA MORRIS

Chief Justice

Dear Students,

In my efforts to serve the members of the Student Body I have spent three years in student government. In 1950 I served on the elections committee, in 1951 I served a term on the Judicial Court where I gained valuable experience with the lower courts. At the present I am a Jr. Justice of the University Court.

In the past there has been a lot of discussion about the court system in the university government. There must be a way to improve our present system, if you elect me Chief Justice of the University Court I will do all in my power to improve the student-court relations. I will try to find out what can be done and then will take the necessary steps to change the system to the best that is possible under our constitution.

On behalf of better student courts I ask you, the students, to go to the polls on Tuesday and vote for Richard Jackson Chief Justice of your University Court.

Respectfully,
Richard Jackson

Chief Justice

Dear Students:

I am Nannette McLain, candidate for the University Government Association office of Chief Justice of the University Court.

If I am elected to this office, I will try to do all that is within my power to preserve and strengthen the honor system on our campus. I will try to have a closer association between the Honor Committee and the Honor Court in working for the better education of both students and faculty on their responsibilities under the honor system.

In my opinion, the students should know, not only the definition, interpretation, and responsibilities of the honor code, but also the procedures of the court, and the penalties that the court may give in its decisions. This has not been done, as has been shown by the number of people who appeared before the court this year, and did not realise the seriousness of their actions. This could be remedied by more complete education of the student body.

If you choose me as your Chief Justice, I will try to serve you to the best of my ability, just as I have tried to represent you as a member of Honor Court this year.

Yours truly,
NANNETTE McLAIN.

Secretary

Dear Fellow-Students,

I am a candidate for the office of Secretary of UGA in the coming elections and would appreciate your support.

I have served as president of several organizations, and in each of these offices I have served the students of FSU as best I could. I have had experience as secretary in the Newman Club and with WFSU and I feel that I understand the requirements and responsibilities of such an office. If you will support me by casting your ballot in my favor, I shall continue to do my best to serve you and our university.

Sincerely,
Carolyn Gola

Magazine Editor

Dear Students:

I have expressed my desire to become Editor of Smoke Signals to many of my friends and now publicly declare my candidacy.

For the past year and a half I have worked hard to become better acquainted with the magazine, both from the editorial and mechanical standpoints. During the Spring semester of 1952 I served as associate editor, and this year I held the office of managing editor. In addition to the practical experience on the magazine, I departed from my academic curricula in business slightly to take Magazine Editing, a journalism course to better acquaint myself with the responsibilities and duties with which I might be faced.

Here, in a few brief statements, is my platform for the coming year. Realizing the need for more issues of the Smoke Signals I will advocate:

1. The issuance of six copies of the magazine in one academic year.

Also I advocate:

2. More emphasis on the humour side of the Smoke Signals;
3. Prompt deadlines and no more late issues;
4. Building up of the Smoke Signals Cover Girl Contest to equal that of Homecoming;
5. Continuance of Short Story Contest with a trophy awarded to the winner;
6. A policy of complete student control of this magazine both in editorial copy and general policy.

Respectfully Submitted,
JOHN W. HOWARD.

Letters to the Editor

Sign Lifted

Dear Editor:

For many weeks after the Student Center opened, there was no telephone available for student use and no money to pay for one. Then Mr. Wheeler of the University Book Store offered to put one in and pay for it each month. I thought it only fair to have a sign put up to that effect—a sign that was securely fastened to the telephone shelf.

Someone went to a lot of trouble to remove that sign. I went to bat to get that telephone put in for your use and I am asking the students to go to bat for me and see that it is returned and I will see that it is put up again.

Please help me out.

Mrs. Grace Bateman

Room Inspection

Dear Editor:

I have been interrogated to some length as to the precise meaning of my last letter. Several people have wondered why I should worry about such an "insignificant" matter as the manner in which university officials "inspect" students' rooms.

First I must explain that I stand firmly behind what I believe is right, and just as firmly behind what I believe is wrong, regardless of how insignificant it may seem to others. To me, wrong is WRONG, and there is no half way mark between right and wrong.

In our residence halls regulations there is a clause which gives the residence hall counselor or

Movement to Join FSU, UF Boosted in Two New Bills

By JIM EADY

The Legislative movement to consolidate Florida State and the University of Florida received a boost Wednesday, in the form of two bills introduced in the House. Both are attempts to co-ordinate thet wo Universities and cut down alleged duplication of studies and financing However, the two bills vary widely in the means to accomplish this task

One is the Legislative Council's plan to combine the two schools under a single president. This single executive would be known as the "President of the State University of Florida."

Nevertheless, both prexies would also retain their title as president.

THE LEGISLATIVE council's bill, although the full council has never indorsed it, was referred to the committees on education and higher learning and appropriation.

The other plan, embodied in a bill introduced by House Speaker Ferris Bryant of Marion, contains four sections which would co-ordinate the schools without putting them under a single head.

BRYANT'S BILL provides for a closer relationship between higher and secondary educatioo and it also takes some of the power from the Board of Control, which is a seven-member group in control of higher education

The four points of Bryant's bill are:

1. Elevate the Superintendent of Public Instruction to membership on the State Board of Control. The superintendent is in charge of Florida's public school education from the first to the twelfth grade.

2. GIVE the Board of Control, the power to appoint an executive secretary to concentrate on business matters and an educational secretary to keep tab on academic matters.

3. Cut some of the auxiliary duties from the Board of Control so that its full time can be devoted to higher education. exclusively. At the present, the Board of Control must administer the School for the Dead and Blind at St. Augustine and the Ringling Art Museum at Sarasota

4. REQUIRE the Board of Control to have legislative approval before the Board can propose any bond issues for construction.

This last measure is similar to the proposal made by the legislative council to the Senate, Wednesday. It prohibits the Board of Control from constructing any college buildings without specific legislative approval. But outside of this, there is no other point of agreement between the two bills.

BRYANT HOPES that wtih his bill the "valuable identity of the two universities would not be destroyed."

He claimed that the Board of Cootrol has not been able to handle the universities' problem adequstely because its members are limited only to "Educational advice of the presidents"

To remedy this situatiaon, Bryant's measure will insure that the Board of Control will "receive an independent source to examine the over-all state educational picture instead of having only the advice of the independent universities.

AS OPPOSED to Bryant's bill, the plan proposed by the legislative council says nothing about the Board of Control or changing its duties. But its most important provision is the one prohibiting duplication of professional training courses at the two branches unless the need for them were so great that it would be economical to offer them at both schools.

If the council's bill is passed, a committee of 13 would be set-up within 60 days to work on the consolidatiaon. The committee, with the governor as chairman, would be composed of two picked by the governor, two by the president of FSU and the University of Florida from their faculties, two selected by the Board of Control, two picked by the speaker of the house and two selected by the president of the senate.

EXPERT ADVISERS would be authorized to help the committees, according to the bill. A $10,000 appropriation would be made to meet expenses and to pay the advisers.

Under the bill, the commission's report must be given to the chairman of the Board of Control by April 1, 1954 The final approval of the consolidation would be up to the cabinet board of education and the Board of Control meeting in joint session

IF APPROVED, FSU would be known as Florida State University of the State University of Florida. While the U. of F. would become the University of Florida of the State University of Florida.

MOVIE REVIEW . . .

Top Musical Featured Next

Top hit on the weekend movie agenda is the Florida's Small Town Girl, one of the lightest, merriest and most colorful musicals to come to Talahassee in many moons.

Jane Powell appears in the starring role opposite handsome Farley Granger. Ann Miller, famous dance artist, appears in the role of a broadway show girl and Bobby Van, new dance discovery, plays a country boy with his eyes on the bright lights.

WITH LAVISH technicolor and a myriad of lovely musical numbers, Small Town Girl, becomes a treat for the moviegoe's eye-appetite.

Jane's small town pudge father is played by Robert Keith. It is wheo he catches playboy Farley Granger going 85 miles per hour in a 25 mile-per-hour zone and sentences him to 30 days in the city "pokey" that Jane gets the opportunity to woo her first "big-city feller." Meanwhile, cooling off behind bars, young Farley is more interested in bis snowgirl girlfriend than in the sweet judge's daughter who comes to visit him.

IN TURN the plot begins to look like a human congo line of romance. Bobby chases Jane, she's interested in Farley, Farley's after showgirl Ann, and Ann wants the millons Farley stands for. It all adds up to an hour of the happiest people and the happiest problems you'll ever experience

Special attraction on the new film is the reappearance of filmdom's most lovable commedienne, S. Z. Sakall. And as an extra treat, MGM added feather head Billie Burke to the comedy line up.

IF YOU'RE in the mood for planning ahead for entertainment, don't forget to include the State's Wednesday, April 22 feature in your long-range plans. In the tradition of that excellent '52 movie, "Quiet Man", John Wayne stars in Warner Brother's latest release, Trouble Along the Way

Tha outstanding cast of tha film also includes Donna Reed, Charles Coburn and Marie Windsor.

WAYNE'S NEW ROLE is as well tailored for him as the most expensive custom suit. In the two-fisted part of "Duke," the man who becomes discouraged with life when his wife deserts him and his child, he finds new interest in life under the sympathetic guidance of welfare agent, Donna Reed. He begins working for Charles Coburn to make a new life for himself and the child, and finds happiness in doing so.

Student Travel Group Charters Extra Ships

The Council on Student Travel has chartered two more ships for student sailings this summer, John E Bowman, executive director of the Council, announced from New York today.

In addition to the S S. AROSA KULM, previously secured by the Council, Mr. Bowman said his group has chartered the M/S ANNA SALEN for a round-trip sailing and the M/S SKAUBRYN for an eastbound sailing. The Council now has more than 2,000 westbound spaces available for students and teachers on four major round-trip sailings.

THE SCHEDULE is as follows: Eastbound. AROSA KULM, from Quebec, June 9; ANNA SALEN from Montreal, June 16; SKAUBRYN from Montreal, June 24, and AROSA KULM from Quebec, July 4

WESTBOUND FROM European ports: AROSA KULM, Aug 11; ANNA SALEN, Aug. 24, AROSA KULM, Sept. 2, and Sept. 28. The AROSA KULM will return to Quebec on its westbound trips; the ANNA SALEN will dock in New York.

The M/S ANNA SALEN (12,500 tons), a Swedish vessel, transported students for the Council in 1951 and 1952 Much of the spacs on the ship is in dormitories, ranging in size from eight to 70 berths, but about one-third of the berths are available in four-berth rooms. One-way fares for the four-berth rooms are $145 and $155; for dormitory space, $135.

THE M/S SKAUBRYN (9,700 tons) is a Norwegian ship built in 1950, which is now in regular service between Marseilles and Indo-China. This is her first summer as a student ship. She has cabins for three, four, six, and eight: dormitories range in size from 18 to 50. One-way fares are: $160 in three and four-berth cabins: $145 in eight-berth rooms, and $135 in dormitories.

The S. S. AROSA KULM (10,000 tons), which was used by the Council in 1952, is now in regular commercial service running between Quebec and London, Le Hacre, and Bremerhaven. The AROSA KULM has been remodeled since last summer, and has considerably more lounge and deck space, and two additional public rooms. The overall capacity of the ship has been reduced to 850 spaces. One-way fares on the AROSA KULM are $150 in dormitories, and $160 and $165 for cabins of two, three, and four berths.

ALL OF THE SHIPS are especially convenient for student travel. Each one has a snack bar, a library, extensive deck space, lounges, and large public rooms for movies, dancing, discussion groups, and other programs.

The Council will sponsor an educational and recreationgl program on each sailing. On the eastbound voyage the educational program will include language classes, taught for the most part by volunteer passengers, and discussions on European art, culture and politics. Westbound, students are encouraged to discuss their experiences and to evaluate their impressions from the summer's trip

THE RECREATIONAL program includes sports, games, movies, dancing, and many special programs.

This is the Council's seventh season of operation. Since 1947 it has helped provide special transportation to Europe for students and teachers during the summer when low-cost accommodations of regular transportation facilities were overcrowded. The Council is composed of 37 national educational and religious organizations, and its purpose is to encourage and facilitate international student travel his representatives the right to enter any room at any time. "But it's necessary," they argue, but to me a necessity is not always justifiable. Communism finds it necessary to discourage religion, but we, on the other side of the fence, judge their action wrong, and we don't make any allowances for "necessity."

When they see that they are failing to satisfy me with the "necessity" excuse, they retreat to the age-old alibi, "But other universities have this same regulation." I have always taught and have always been taught that one should not jump into the lake just because John Doe did. Where do I go from here? I'm sent to a higher official: of course, I go through the same routine again.

My main objection is this: I don't believe that any man should be allowed to enter another man's house or room when the occupant is not present and/or has not given his consent to such entry. We pay rent for our rooms in the residence halls, and I'm backed by a legal adviser when I say that when a person rents or leases a place of residence, this place of residence is as his own as long as his rent is duly paid. Of course, the terms of the lease must be respected. In our case these terms are evidently the housing regulations. But how can "representatives of the residence counselor" be interpreted to mean "guests of university officials?" This is not our "home" nine months of the year, it is more like the display window of a department store."

In conclusion, I would like to ask a few questions to provide food for thought. Turn about is fair play: would the university officials permit students or even one student to inspect their homes when no one was at home? Even if they did, would the studsnt take advantaga of the opportunity? What would be wrong if the housing regulations were amended to read: The residence hall counselor, or his assistant has the right to enter any room at any time, provided the occupant is present and/or has given his consent to such entry.

My box number is 793, and I welcome any comments on this subject. But please, let's not be so childish and irresponsible as to sign a false name. Please comment freely. Unless some official, or his representative, should enter my room while I'm not present and accidently read your letter, no one but me will ever know that you wrote it!

Sincerely,
BRUCE W. FLETCHER.

National Executive Defends Colleges

The president of the National Association of Manufacturers this week defended colleges and universities against "wholesale indictment" involving communism and voiced confidence that "the necessary house-cleaning is in good hands."

Charles R. Sligh, Jr., said that some college faculties probably still include professors with communist leanings or who expound socialist ideas in the classroom, but, he emphasized, that should not cause a "general condemnation" of our educational system.

SLIGH CALLED for stronger business support of the private institutions of higher learning. He said that increased business support of higher education is the "positive approach to tha left-wing problem," and added: "We of business cannot wash our hands of education because a tiny fraction of the teachers have left-wing ideas."

Sligh addressed some 200 educators and industrialists at an all-day Education-Industry Conference in the Bellevue Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia. The meeting was sponsored jointly by the NAM, the Chamber of Commerce of Greater Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, and Pennsylvania Association of Colleges and Universities.

THE NAM PRESIDENT, who also heads the Sligh Furniture Companies in Grand Rapids, Mich., quoted Scripture in his defense of the independent colleges and universities.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," he said, and explained that the fruits of these institutions "are their graduates and the products of theeir research." He said that an estimated three-fourths of all pure research is carried on in independent institutions, added that their graduates "are the backbone and sure bulwark of the American way of life and concluded with another Biblical saying, "Men do not gather grapes from thorns, nor figs from thistles."

SLIGH SAID that many citizens and businessmen particularly have been gravely concerned by the view, expressed in some business circles, that the difficulties of independent colleges "are partly of their own making" in that they permitted the teaching of ideas "inimical" to business.

"This appraisal comes close to being a wholesale indictment," Sligh declared. But, he emphasized, he refused "very positively to go along with the attitude that American education is going downhill because of the activities of a handful of collegs professors and instructors.

"THOSE WHO criticise our institutions of higher education because a few radicals have found their way into faculties appear to think that private industry should get up and walk out, and to return to the college halls until a thorough house-cleaning has been made." Sligh continued, adding:

"That definitely is not the feeling of the National Association of Manufacturers." The Association insists, he said, "that business must find a way to support the whole educational program effectively, regularly and now." and it is urging its members to make available to higher education the supplementary private financial support 'essential to meet the educational needs of our youth, American industry and the nation."

TRACKMEN BATTLE

FSU, Gators to Be Big Guns in AAU

The Seminoles invade Gatorland tomorrow for the annual AAU track meet. Although the Gator team, in their third season of duel meet competition without a defeat, is top seeded in the event, Coach Ken Miller believes that his Seminoles will make a fine showing in several events.

Coach Miller has high hopes that his entries in the 440 and 880-yard runs will score wins. He also thinks that the 220-yard dash, 220-yard low hurdles, and the discuss throw will have a better than aven chance of coming out on top.

Woody Parker of Lake Wales and Captain Dick Mize of Sarasota will run in the 440 with Bill Wagoner going the 880. Carlos Fraundorfer will compete in the weights and Wes Minton of Jacksonville will taka the low burdles.

Wes Minton, a freshman, has had a very good starting season. In the FSU meet against Mercer, he set a new track record for the low hurdles, which bodes no good for Gstor fans.

FSU and Florida will be the two main contestants in the meet, possibly the only two. Jacksonville NATTC has 18 contestants listed to participate at press time, but should they drop out, it will shape up to a duel meet with the Gators and Seminoles slugging it out.

The meet will be decided on a point basis of 5-3-2-1 in each event.

Jax Navy Nips Seminoles With Ninth Inning Homer

Wednesday Defeat Drops Seasonal Record to 10-6-1

BY BOB TAYLOR

Shortstop Lucky Luttrell came through with a last-ditch three-reun homer here Wednesday, to give his Jacksonville Navy team a hard fought 7-4 win over FSU. State took the Tuesday opener of the two game set, 4-2.

Luttrell, a Washington Senator farmhand when not in the navy, blasted a tremendous drive to deep left field in the top of the ninth inning to break a 4-4 tie. He hit it off fireman Wally Higgenbotham, who had relieved starter Ed Lockard in the fourth.

For the Seminoles it was loss number six, and one of their toughest. Trailing by four runs, they had tied it up in the bottom of the eighth when Max Long drilled a single to left to send Conter Mills home from second.

It was Higginbotham's second loss. He has three victories. Lockard began strongly, but became a little wild in the fourth when be loaded the bases. At this point, Coach Ralph Matherly called on Higgenbotham. The Woodbine, Ga., freshmao was abruptly greeted by a two-run single. He then settled down to pitch superbly until Luttrell cracked his fatal blow.

The Sailors made every hit count, and scored their seven runs on just eight safeties. FSU collected seven hits.

The Jax club scored three times in the fourth frame on two hits, two walks, and a hit batsman. They added another run in the fifth. Then they were held in check until the ninth.

The Tribe countered twice in the bottom of the sixth. Four walks pushed Shortstop Ralph Blinn across for the first tally. then Rigbtfielder Ronnie Kims stole home with a blinding burst of speed.

In the seventh, State added another when centerfielder Bob Hudson rapped a single to center, and theo scored on a three-base outfield error. Long's eighth inning single deadlocked the fracas.

Hudson led the Seminole swatters with a double and a single. The loss dropped FSU's season record to a 10-6-1 mark, and snapped their four game winning streak.

They reached 10 victory level Tuesday by whipping the Sailors 4-2. Southpaw Chuck Sanders gave up only six hits to get credit for bis first win. He now has a 1-1 record.

The Indians crossed the plate in the first inning, when Conter Mills walked, advanced to third, and scored on catcher John Cuesta's two-out single. They iced the game in the seventh oo four successive singles by Hudson, Gary Ashley, Blinn, and Sanders. This rally was good for two runs and the ball game.

All-tolled, the Seminoles banged out 10 hits. Ashley, Blinn, and Billy Campbell led the hitters with two each.

Jacksonville took advantage of five FSU errors, along with six hits, to do their scoring. They had carried an impressive 7-3 record into the game. Their lineup was studded with former professional players.

State leaves for a three-game road trip through Georgia April 24. Their next home game will be against Stetson at Centennial Field May 1. Both of the games with Jacksonville Navy were played at the west campus field.

Real Sight Differs With Political Sight

Political foresight is probably quite different from natural eyesight as is evidenced by the majority of candidates running for political offices who look through two panes of glass.

Fourteen candidates running for votes wear specs compared with the meager seven, who have eaten their carrots. It doesn't matter the office, big or small, some can't see without science's remedy.

IN THE PRESIDENTIAL race Milton Carothers and Gene Bridges can read the eye chart, but Christopher Young has had it so rough, that one time he lost his bifocals and couldn't participate in a radio broadcast over WFSU. He couldn't see the script.

Two victims use glasses in the vice-president's race. Gene Lowler and June Conyers fall into that category. They are the only two running for that office.

WAYNE TERRY, candidate for veep of men's affairs, surprised everyone when he took off his glasses. Most people didn't recognize him. Lillian Avis, running for the women's vice-president, wears her spectacles occasionally, but is recognized with them on as well as with them off.

The Flambeau candidates have a tight enough race, but in this one, Marcia Morris came out in front by two eyes to claiming spectacles have never touched her eyes. Bruce Galphin, however, uses them to study.

CANDIDATES YVONNE McCarthy and John Howard, running for Chairman of Judiciary and Smoke Signals Editor, respectively, both wear glasses and Carolyn Gola, candidate for the Secretary of Senate also falls in this conclave.

Running for chief justice of the University Honor Court, are two be-spectacled candidates, Richard Jackson and Nannette McLain. These two wear them "only frequently."

BUSINESS MANAGER candidates who wear specs outnumber the ones who don't by a ratio of 2-1. The two who don these aids are Nancy Wilson, of Smoke Signals; Al Shuler, of Tally-Ho. Looking over the ledgers doesn't bother Nancy Lowe, the Flambeau candidate who doesn't "touch the stuff."

Becky Brown, candidate for editor of Tally Ho doesn't use these "Pupil-prompters" and neither do Charlotte West, candidate for URA Chairman, Cosmo Cardone, candidate for Sandspur Chairman, and Pinky Nowlin, candidate for Traffic Court chairman.

UNDOUBTEDLY SOME candidates who are spectacled will be elected to their offices. Maybe the first measure for them all to get to work on would be for the school to supply an optometrist. Eh?

Class Takes Trip To Alligator Harbor And Inspects Lab

Modern school teaching features field trips, classroom relief for both teachers and pupils—Education students in a class "Science for the Elementary School Teacher," took a recent field trip to Alligator Harbor, 43 miles south of the campus.

THEY VISITED the marine laboratory maintained on the Gulf Coast by the Oceanographic Institute. Although facilities of the laboratory are primarily used by biological and physical science departments and research work on a graduate and faculty level, the facilities are available to other FSU schools and departments.

The education class inspected the laboratory to point-up planning a unit of work dealing with marine life. Attention was given to aquaria containing live specimens.

SPECIAL ATTENTION was given to the conck enemies of oysters and to porpoises penned for scientific observation.

Members of the class were given a boat trip in the harbor—they dragged the bottom with a net collecting such specimens as shrimp, crabs, sponges, coral, scallops, brittle-stars, star-fish, sand-dollars and sea urchins.

THEY WERE INSTRUCTED how to preserve their collected specimens. The outing gave them first-hand experience with marine resources and techniques which they will be able to utilize in future classrooms.

Robert D. Binger, instructor in education, headed the field trip taken by the following students: Harvey Hatton, Nathetta McWherter, Margaret Ann Nash, Carolyn Gola, Marjorie Tritt, Bettye Coleman, Netha Smith, Carol Hall, Janet Kelley, Juanita Wimberley, Myra Hicks, Nancy Alvers, Joyce Whiddon and Gloria Henriksen.

FSU Senior Represents Fla. For Scholarship

William Guy Davis Jr., a senior in political science here, has been chosen as the representative of the state of Florida for the Elihu Root-Samuel J. Tilden Scholarship competition sponsored by the New York University School of Law.

Davis will next appear with other state candidates before the Circuit Selection Committee of the Fifth Federal Judicial Circuit; out of the six states represented in this circuit, two applicants will receive the Root-Tilden Scholarship.

DAVIS WAS CHOSEN by the State Selection Committee as the Florida nominee out of a field of five applicants. Among those serving on this committee were Justice H. L. Sebring of the Florida Supreme Court and President McCrae of the Florida Bar Association.

These scholarships are designed "to aid young men who give promise of becoming outstanding lawyers in the best American tradition," and are named for two prominent graduates of the New York University School of Law. Awarded for one year, the Root-Tilden Scholarship carries a stipend of $2,200 a year covering tuition, books and living expenses for one year at the New York University School of Law but is renewable for a second and third year to students whose legal and general scholarship maintain a high standard.

HAVING ATTENDED Flor State University since September 1949, Davis was elected to the Ph Beta Kappa honorary fraternit; and is also a member of the Clas sical Club and the Varsity Debate Squad. Throughout his college training Davis has been a half-time member of the staff of the State Department of Education.

Lewandowski Paints Mural For Marquette

Edmund Lewandowski, head of the department of art, has been commissioned to execute a mural for the new Student Union Building of Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisc.

The subject of Lewandowski's design which is now being enlarged into a full scale drawing, known as a "cartoon," is the influence and social contributions of the Society of Jesus, an order of Catholic priests commonly known as the Jesuits.

THE SUBJECT is suitable since Marquette University is named after Father Marquette, the famed Jesuit explorer who discovered the Mississippi River.

The design is semi-abstract and symbolic, in keeping with the functional, contemporary design of the new Student Union Building. Although the technique of mosaic is a very ancient one, Lewandowski's use of the medium will be entirely modern.

MOSAICS ARE "pictures" or decorative designs put together with thousands of small pieces of colored glass or stone. The thousands of individual pieces are imbedded in wet stucco or cement.

The bits of glass are imported from Venice, Italy, and the actual assembly will take place in New York under the direct supervision of the artist during the latter part of the coming summer. The eight by sixteen foot mural-mosaic will be installed Milwaukee early in fall.

LEWANDOWSKI is widely known as a muralist; examples of his work being installed in the S.S. Independence and Constitution, American luxury liners; in the Administration Building of the Miller Company, Milwaukee, and elsewhere. This is the first time he has worked in the demanding technique so popular in Byzantin churches of the sixth and seventh centuries, and he was proably influenced in his choice by his recent trip through Italy, Germany, France and Spain.

Other contemporary artists are taking up the challenge of this old technique and Lewandowski's designs will add a new chapter to the 20th century revival of mosaic decoration.

Women's F. Club Hears Discussion

Seminole Indians don't live in teepees: they live in palmetto huts called "chickees."

Members of Women's F Club learned that and many other things about the Seminoles from a discussion led by Alice Cromartie last Monday night. The word Seminole means "runaway" and the Seminoles adopted that name because they ran away when they were to be sent to a Western reservation.

THERE ARE about 1000 Seminoles in Florida and about 300 of these are school age, she said. The older Seminoles don't understand the economics of life in American society and don't know how to use their money. The young Seminoles need and want help in education, she explained.

The Women's F Club has decided to adopt a six year old Seminole girl and send her to school. The minimum cost for sending a Seminole 6 to 10 years old to school for a term is $25.00. More than that amount is very helpful. The cost for sending a child over ten to school for a term is $50.

ALL THE SEMINOLES need clothing, books and other school supplies. Women's F Club urges other campus organizations to help Florida State University Seminole namesakes.

Anyone interested may contact Alice Cromartie, who is on the FSU staff and will be glad to talk to any organization about the needs of the Seminoles and ways of helping them. Students may also contact the organization, "Friends of the Seminoles," Fort Lauderdale.

Miami High Presents Impressive Production

"This is America," an entertainment-educational production, was given by the choral, orchestral, ballet and dramatic departments of Miami Senior High School here recently.

The musical literary selections were selected from the cultural and religious traditions of all faiths and races. The production was built on the development of American culture as the "melting pot" of the creeds and cultures of the people who settled in this country.

Faculty Members To Publish Works

Among Florida State University faculty members having works published recently are two in the English department and a third in the School of Social Welfare.

Dr. William P. Randel, professor of English, has an article in the 1953 spring issue of Minnesota History, "Edward Eggleston's Minnesota Fiction."

Before joining the FSU faculty, Dr. Randell taught several years at the University of Minnesota. He has written the only full-length biography of Eggleston, born in Indiana in 1837, best known for "The Hoosier School-Master."

Dr. Laura P. Jepsen, assistant professor of English, has written a new book "Ethical Aspects of Tragedy" published by the University of Florida Press. In plays by Greek authors and Shakespeare, a compact 176 pages, Dr. Jepsen demonstrates five ethical principles: poetic justice, poetic irony, pathos, stoicism and romantic irony.

A member of the FSU faculty since 1946, Dr Jepsen earned three degrees, BA, MA and PhD, at the State University of Iowa, majoring in classics and English. She has had a number of articles published.

J. Benjamin Beyrer, assistant professor of social work, had article, "Can Public Welfare Pr vide Marital Services?" in a re cent issue of Marriage and Ma riage and Family Living. Anoth of his articles, "The Social Science Have Kept Pace," will soon ap pear in The Family Service Asso ciation's publication, Highlights.

Departments Stage Circus Exhibitions In Art and Speech

Everybody is circus-minded on the campus this month. Not only will students present their famous show, Flying High, April 30-May 2, but the speech department and the University art gallery are staging presentations dealing with clowns and the theatre.

Speech students will present an Italian comedy, The Last Lesson of Pantalone, April 24-28. The play is based on comedy developed by Italian actors in the 17th Century. Some of the descendents of those comedians still found in the world today are Punch, Harlequin and the circus clowns.

The University art gallery contributes its bit to the spirit of the season with an exhibit, Prints—Theatre, Ballet, Circus. The exhibit continues through May 3.

Among the 40 prints are some by Toulouse-Lautrec, Rouault, Derain, and Marino Marini. Most of the prints are in color.

Campus Controversy Centers on Politics

Opinions On Party System Are Varied

BY AL PIERCE
Assistant News Editor

Political parties, the Number 1 campus controversy at Florida State University lately has set opinions running rampant on the eve of the student government elections.

Still in its infancy here, the Student Party has mushroomed into a going concern with some 250 active supporters. Already it has succeeded in putting a similar attempt out of the picture.

THE SEMINOLE PARTY started under similar conditions about five weeks ago at the same time the Student Party got its foothold at FSU. However, interest in the smaller, but similar waned and it dissolved when the Seminoles held their convention to elect their choices for the University Government Association ballot.

Born over a cup of coffee in the hands of its present chairman, Bobby Drake, a senior at FSU, the Student Party has succeeded in provoking much discussion pro and con around campus

PHIL SPRINGER, a one-time Sophomore senator to the UGA gave a positive answer when questioned about his views on parties here.

"Political parties can achieve the same result on campus," Springer said, "as in national government."

SPRINGER CONTINUED, "elected officers can well use their party behind them to exercise more freedom over their officials and to get farther in their demands." He added he thought political parties will make for a more democratic, more responsive student body.

Outside student opinion the same question was asked of a University employee. Barbara Yon, of the information desk in Westcott lobby, whose husband is a graduate student here expressed a favorable opinion also.

"SO FAR," she said, "political party talk has seemed to generate much more interest than the students here have ever shown before in government."

Mrs. Yon, a former student of FSCW, said she and her husband were quite impressed with the recent Student Party rally which drew a crowd of 250 students from all over campus

"WE BOTH knew something was going on," she said, "when we heard whoops and shouts accompanying all those speeches."

Mrs. Yon said she sees more students sitting up to "take notice" than ever before.

THE FACT that there is only one party has brought some skeptical comment. Charlie Heisner, an FSU Junior and announcer over the campus radio station, WFSU, said he thinks a two-party system would be much more effective in gaining what the students want.

"There would be a lot more opposition which would result in more interest in elections and government," Heisner said. He noted, however, that the one-party system is a good start toward a later swing toward two parties or more.

OPINIONS ARE understandably guarded from the candidates of the party on the Tuesday ballot. Gene Lawler, Student Party candidate for vice-president of UGA gave a conservative estimate of the party.

"Political parties," he said, "have the advantage on a campus of generating interest, creating legislation and making the student government more responsible to the students."

LAWLER CONTINUED, "We must only be wary of the party's falling into the hands of a small group with un-democratic tendencies."

The negative viewpoint on the question came from Rick Rickards a Sophomore from Lewes, Del., who said, "A one party system is no good."

"THERE'S NO more interest with a one party system," he continued, "than there has been with no parties on campus."

Rickards said he thinks students take a "why vote?" attitude even now, the day before elections.

"WE SHOULD have a two-party system on campus," Rickards said noting that the FSU student needs a strong organization pulling for him all the time.

Miss Phyllis Howerton, familiar to many FSU students because of her job in the student bank, gave the opinion of one who hasn't completely understood the party system here.

"I THINK a party system at a school would train the members to take part in politics and government outside school," she said.

Miss Howerton said she thought such an organization, even only one party, should help get more interest from the FSU students, "especially at election time."

AND SO GOES the trend of opinion. Whether the political party movement at FSU will accomplish its aim will show up in part at the UGA elections. It will possibly be to this group's credit if the ballots cast tomorrow top last year's 1 100-odd votes out of a 6,000 member student body. At least the people in political parties hope so.

UGA Opens Polls To FSU's Voters

Ervin Speaks On Leadership At Rally Here

Points Out to Audience Value of Student Politics Toward Better Citizens

Student government affords opportunities for students to understand the democratic process and prepare for public service, Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin told student here last week.

Speaking on Student Leadership at the climax of University Government Association Week, he advocated higher ethics in all levels of government.

"HIGH PRINCIPALS should animate students seeking office," he said, stressing the need for spiritual and moral guidance in attaining good citizenship.

Ervin was introduced by Beverly Larsyo, who presided at the meeting as chairman of UGA Week and secretary of the UGA forums.

MARY RUTH SUMMERS, UGA president, summarized some of the accomplishments of her year in office which included lowering prices in the dining hall, launching political parties and a student poll, sponsoring a campus chest and a blood drive for Korea and improving the University honor system.

Eugene Lawler, Sophomore Senator, reported on Senate activities during the year which included helping create the office of secretary of labor, founding a traffic court and also the election laws.

AFTER THE three speeches, the meeting evolved into a political rally with a number of students seeking offices for next year giving their platforms. Speaking in behalf of their candidacy were:

Play Is Presented On Station WFSU By Seminole Guild

"Elementals," the sixth in a series of dramatic programs will be presented tonight by Seminole Theatre Guild over WFSU at 8. Tonight's play, by Stephen Vincent Benet, was voted one of the ten best broadcasts of 1941.

The play, originally titled "The Test Of Alessandro," deals with a seven day hunger test between two young lovers. The conflict lies in the outcome to see if the couple will lock themselves in a death struggle at the sight of food being placed between them. The play hinges on the question as to which of the elementals is the stronger, hunger or love

Starring in tonight's Theatre Guild production are Robert Strane and Beverly Morrill as the two young lovers. Ronald Martin plays the role of Slake who subjects the couple to the test with $10,000 as a reward if they survive. Beverly Bennett plays Warren, Slake's nurse.

By the same author of "John Brown's Body," "Elementals" is considered a high water mark in masterful suspense.

Next Week Seminole Guild will present Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest."

Tonight's play is directed by the producer-director, William Chavers. John Danahy announces and engineers.

Ballots Are Cast in Three Precincts All Day Today

Florida State University will go to the polls today to vote for its next year's UGA officers. Voting will be in three precincts, from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. according to Paul Soraparu, Secretary of Elections.

Ballot boxes have been placed in first floor, center of Westcott, the foyer hall of the Seminole Dining Hall and in front of the University post office at the Student Center.

Soraparu said each precinct will offer different colored ballots. This, he said, will help determine how many voters there were at the end of the day in each of the three locations

Students will cast their ballots after having their ID card punched. Soraparu said number 20 will be punched out of the card.

Vote Counting will start at seven tonight in Longmire Auditorium. The elections committee has invited anyone interested to come and watch the proceedings.

Soraparu said the vote-counting will take on professional aspects. Counting will be traced on a large blackboard as the returns come in from precincts.

FSU, campus radio station will interrupt its evening programs from time-to-time to broadcast results of the voting, Margaret Parham, station manager said today.

Candidates are listed on the ballot in alphabetical order. This has been the usual procedure in past years, Bobby Drake Senior Senator and President Pro-tem of the University Senate said. Drake added, however that last year's candidates were listed in the order in which they qualified.

Previously, this matter has been up to the Elections Committee but this year a by-law was added making listing by alphabetical order a statute, Drake explained.

Soaraparu said installation ceremonies will be held during the second or third week before the end of this semester. Installation of class officers, sophomore, junior and senior senators, university court members judicial court members and UGA officers will all take place at the same time. Elected officers will take over their duties immediately following installation

Class elections enter the political picture as soon as UGA finals are put of the way. Elections for Class officers, tentatively scheduled for May 5, will have a definite date announced by Mary Ruth Summers, President of UGA.

The Official Ballot lists 18 titles with 11 of these going un-opposed. The office of chairman of Sandspur will be blank. Cosmo Cardone, at first nominated by the Student Party, declined nomination leaving the office open, probably, to appointment by next year's UGA president.

All 11 unopposed offices list Student Party candidates. Three offices have two candidates on the ballot and one office, that of UGA president, has three

President of UGA lists Gene Bridges, Milton Carothers and Chris Young in alphabetical order.

Vice-President of Legislative Affairs has June Conyers and Gene Lawler in order.

Vice-President of Men's Affairs, Wayne Terry, unopposed.

Vice-President of Women's Affairs has Lillian Avis unopposed.

Secretary of UGA lists Carolyn Goia, unopposed.

Chief Justice of University Court lists Richard Jackson first, and Nannette McClain second.

Chairman of Judiciary has one candidate on the ballot, Yvonne McCarthy.

Chief Justice of the Traffic Safety Court has Pinky Nowlin, unopposed.

President of University Recreation Association lists Charlotte West, unopposed.

National Student Association Answers Critical Publication

(Editor's Note: The following article is in answer to a recent issue of "The American Student," official publication of the Students for America, which criticized the United States National Student Association. The author of the article, Leonard Wilcox, is Vice President for National Affairs of USNSA. The Students for America charges were reprinted last week in a local publication.)

BY LEONARD WILCOX

A recent issue of "The American Student," official publication of Students for America sharply criticizes the United States National Student Association as "the most dangerous of all the left-wing political pressure groups now operating on American campuses."

The condemnation continues with the charges that USNSA "milks about $37,790 a year from students who are ignorant of its existence; wants to eliminate fraternities which do not conform to its desires; advocates letting Communists teach; and refuses to ban admitted Communists from being officers of USNSA."

Students for America whose national chairman is Bob Munger, a student at the University of Southern California, was formerly of the MacArthur for President Clubs and claims over fifty chapters and two thousand members an American college campuses. This organization is certainly entitled to its opinions including critical opinions about student organizations and USNSA in particular. The liberty of criticism becomes dangerous license when the truth is distorted to serve the interests of a particular group and when scare-words are used to create emotional and illogical exaggerations of fact.

Fortunately, most students who have heard these charges rely upon their experience and knowledge about USNSA to dispel fear that the Students for America might be right. Unfortunately many students are not as familiar as they should be with the existing policies of USNSA and its current leadership The purpose of this article is to discuss the above charges against USNSA with honesty and candor, so that more students may know more about USNSA

In the first place, USNSA is composed of 300 colleges and universities which is approximately one fourth of the eligible institutions A school becomes a member of USNSA by vote of democratically constituted student government or by vote of the student body Admittedly, USNSA cannot speak for the entire American student community; it can speak for a segment of that community through delegates representing the member schools selected by the student government. USNSA speaks to day for the largest single body of organized American students

Because USNSA is composed of delegates from the member school student governments as a safeguard against unrepresentative opinion often only a part of the student body has full information on USNSA activities. This is a serious weakness in the organization of USNSA which is frankly recognized by its membership, and every effort is being made to increase the numbers of students on the campus who are familiar with the activities of USNSA.

USNSA is constitutionally prohibited from partisan political activities It supports no political party or political candidates. Critics speak of "infiltration into USNSA" with political implications. Delegates representing the student governments and the officers of USNSA are entitled to their personal political beliefs, but as such these beliefs have no place in the policies or programs of USNSA. On the basis of my four years experience with USNSA I can say without reservation that there is no "infiltration" of left-wing elements into the organization: if anything, USNSA is moving to the right in keeping with the growing conservatism of the American student community.

USNSA's total budget (1951-52) raised from dues collected from member schools and through the sale of publications and services was $15,000. USNSA's international activities are financed separately through grants from educational groups, such as the Institute for International Education. Complete lists of donors are kept confidential at their request, although the lists are available to the National Executive Committee (composed of USNSA regional chairmen) and the National Advisory Council (composed of fifteen leading American educators.) USNSA's national officers while full-time on leave from their formal studies receive $2000. Expense accounts cover only actual travel costs.

Dues are not "milked" from the member schools. Dues assessments are voted by the delegates representing the member schools. Dues are levied proportionally according to school enrollment. This is the only equitable manner to carry the financial burden of maintaining a national association; every cent is budgeted; every cent is accounted for in a yearly audit.

USNSA does not want to eliminate fraternities that do not conform to its wishes Many leaders in student government and in USNSA are fraternity presidents and members This issue here is whether fraternities should maintain discriminatory structures in their constitutions while being recognized on the campus This is a highly controversial issue among fraternity people themselves USNSA by its constitution can only recommend: it has no power to decoerce or demand conformity, a school can take or leave any policy or program recommendation of the Association

USNSA recommends that an educational program be developed on campuses toward the goal of eventual elimination of discriminatory clauses where student governments favor such a program. USNSA recommends that campus organizations be given a period of time in which to effect removal of clauses from their constitutions or face loss of recognition. This later policy is recommended for the consideration of student governments where the climate of student-faculty-administration opinion is ready for such a step. These controversial policy recommendations are intended for the use of student governments that desire to put them to use

USNSA upholds the principle of academic freedom, deeming it essential to the educative process that complete freedom for study, research and discussion be allowed with consideration given to all points of view provided they are expressed by individuals consistant with federal and state law. The Communist Party is still a legally recognized organization for Americans to join. It follows that until such an organization is declared contrary to the laws of the United States and/or state its membership ought to be entitled to no more or no less consideration in expression of its point of view. The fundamental principle here, one which the Students for America entirely ignore, is that democracy must be more than just a word—it must have meaning.

"Our way of life" invites the expression of unpopular views by people associated with unpopular causes This is not to say that in defending this principle USNSA or student government supports the doctrines of Communism. It may well be that we are opposed to all the doctrines of another opinion, but democracy means the right of expression of that opinion consonant with law.

USNSA sets only two standards for the election of its national officers that they be regularly enrolled students in a member school at the time of their election and that they be official members of the Congress which elects them. It is possible, although highly improbable that a communist might be elected President just as in the case of our federal government. USNSA's entire organization rests on democratic principles that presume that intelligent representation the member schools will elect responsible, reliable, and above-all else representative leaders that will reflect prevailing opinion held by the delegates

Nearly half the member schools of USNSA are Catholic; their delegates are especially cautious about the candidacy of students for USNSA national offices. As a strong voting element in the Association, Catholic students practically insure that no Communist could be elected. Because candidacy is open to a Communist on the same basis as a Democrat or Republican it does not mean that USNSA endorses Communism or is left-wing controlled. It does mean that USNSA is constructed on a democratic basis, and democracy will flourish in USNSA in proportion to the vigilance of its member schools to select representative students to serve as its officers.

What the Students for America have completely overlooked is the leading role being played by USNSA internationally in affording leadership to democratic student life With twenty-five other democratic student organizations abroad, USNSA is promoting the exchange of students and faculty, the bringing together of student leaders, the development of projects of mutual assistance particularly to under-developed areas of the world, and the arrangement of work, study, and travel programs abroad for American students These are positive programs for promoting democracy as opposed to Communism

Here in the United States, USNSA has been widely recognized by educational and governmental groups as the leading American student organization. USNSA holds constituent membership on the American Council on Education and the United States National Commission for UNESCO. It is invited to participate in meetings of the National Education Association and the U. S. Office of Education. It has been consulted by Congressional committees on its policies on selective service and Universal Military Training, and it works closely with the U. S. Department of State in arranging hospitality programs for foreign student guests in this country.

USNSA's National Advisory Council includes such prominent Americans as Harold E. Stassen, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Father Celestine Steiner (President, University of Detroit), and Dr. Frank P. Graham (Special UN Mediator and former U. S. Senator). The prestige USNSA enjoys in the educational world could only come to a group consistently responsible and representative of American college students.

THE SPECTATOR

LEGISLATURE DEBATES CONTROVERSIAL BILLS

By WARREN COBB

There are several controversial bills now before the Legislature. Two such bills, introduced in the House last week concern the lowering of the legal voting age from 21 to 18 years.

These bills, introduced by Rep. Stokes of Bay and Rep Campbell of Okaloosa, would call for a constitutional amendment; an amendment requires approval by three-fifths of the House and Senate and also approval in a general election.

Lowering the voting age to 18 years, the legal voting age now in Georgia, has long been a widely discussed issue. It was given impetus by the large numbers of soldiers in recent years under legal voting age. The old standby argument heard so frequently is: If you're old enough to die for your country, you're old enough to vote for who runs it.

Opponents of such a measure however, point out that the indoctrination and functions of a soldier are not necessarily conducive to the intelligent casting of a vote in the democratic tradition.

The typical 18 year old in our society has only a superficial knowledge of world events, current political issues, and the ramifications of the various alternatives with which he, as a registered voter, would be confronted.

Democracy functions as an instrument of and by the people. But the uninformed and imprudent wielding of such an instrument can result in its disruption.

There is another tentative measure which is—or has been—under consideration by the House Insurance Committee. Perhaps it has by now been quashed. If it has not, then it should be

This measure, aimed at the automotive insurance companies throughout the state. Its purpose would be to forbid the automotive agencies to insure the cars they sell. Rather, the cars would have to be insured by a separate agency It is aimed principally at GMC, which has the largest number of such insurance agencies.

The backers of this measure contend that the automotive dealers use coercion in influencing the buyer to cover his car. They also cite a law prohibiting insurance agencies to insure their own property.

The contention that the dea use coercion to force their po on prospective buyers is obvio abusrd. Actually, the deale apt to be less stringent in policy terms than an out agency, for he has the a incentive of trying to satisfy customer to whom he is se the car.

If the customer had to bu surance from some other c pany, there would necessari a waste of time involved in transaction. And some insur companies will not cover Neg this is not the case with the tomotive insurance agencies

The citing of the law p hibiting any insurance co pany from covering its o property is a fallacious ar ment. The car no longer longs to the company when insurance is sold to the buy

What this measure amoun is an attempt by the insura companies behind it to un eliminate competition a area

Fortunately, there is little lihood that this measure wil pass even if it does reach floor.

Four Students Unearth Ancient Indian Village

Four Seminoles, with a little faculty help, have unearthed near their Florida State campus, the homegrounds of another Indian—the Apalachee.

Spanish and Indian pottery fragments, as well as other indications of an Indian village were located just west of the city a few yards off U. S. Highway 90

THE SITE IS about a mile from old Fort San Luis, which is now private property. The fort was the last in a chain of missions established by the Spanish from St. Augustine to Tallahassee in 1633.

Dr. Hale Smith, director of the archaeological museum, identified the pottery fragments as the remains of vessels and jars made by the Apalachee Indians The Spanish fragment is a piece of a large vessel used to bring olive oil and wine into this area. By the middle of the 17th century the Spanish were importing various commodities from Spain, Cuba and Mexico, the archaeologist said

IT IS NOT thought that the site has any possibility of being a Spanish mission, but rather a settlement of Indian farmers, occupied around 1704. The shallowness of the Indian refuse indicates the site was occupied for a short time only.

In the same year which the small Indian settlement was believed to have been used, the British also destroyed the Spanish missions in the Tallahassee area They either killed the Apalachees or took them back to the Oconee River in Georgia as prisoners.

Florida Trackmen Win AAU; Indians Finish a Poor Second

Failing to win a single first place, Florida State's track squad finished a poor second in the Florida AAU meet at Gainesville Saturday. The track carnival was monopolized by the University of Florida as they amassed a 119 points. The Gators won 13 of the 15 events.

Behind the Seminoles, was Jacksonville Naval Air Station with 12 points and Pensacola Marine base with five. One contestant, running unattached, picked up three points.

The Seminoles' best performer turned out to be Sophomore Carlos Fraundorfer, who took a second in the shot put and in the broad jump. Other noteworthy performances were accomplished by Bill Wagoner with a second-place in the 880 and Freshman Wes Minton with a second-place in the high-hurdles. The FSU Mile relay team grabbed a second behind a Gator team.

Florida's versatile athlete, J. Pappa Hall set a record of 6-7½ in the high jump and won the 100-yard dash in 9.9, to be the only double winner of the meet.

Archie Vickers, who like Hall is a former Leon High track star, won the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet five inches, setting a new state AAU record for the event for the Gators.

A third ex-Lion, Jack West, won the 880-yard run.

In addition to Hall and Vickers, the powerful Gators set new records in the mile, shot put, high and low hurdles, pole vault and mile relay.

FSU failed to win a single first as the Gators grabbed 13 and the Pensacola Marines and Jax Navy took the other two, but the Seminoles scored heavily in seconds and thirds to build up their score.

Wagoner, FSU sophomore, lost his first collegiate race to Gator freshman Jack West in a thriller which was decided by inches. Drawing the sixth lane, Wagoner didn't move up from an unfavorable position until the home stretch. Another yard and his momentum would have caught West, the former Leon high track captain.

Wagoner was timed like West in 2.00.2—the best that he or any Seminole half-miler had ever run.

State suffered a bad break in the high hurdles when Julian Hurst, running second, smashed into the last one and fell short of the finish line.

FSU coach Dr. Kenneth Miller commented that a great improvement would be necessary if the Seminoles are to win their triangular meet with Georgia Tech and Georgia in Athens next Saturday. FSU won this one last spring in Atlanta, but most of the Indians' performances today were decidedly substandard.

Tennis Squad Split 2 Matches On Road Trip

The FSU tennis team returned in Tallahassee with a 9-2 record after splitting two matches on their trip through central Florida.

The Seminoles trounced Florida Southern College 9-0 in Lakeland but lost 9-0 to the powerful defending Southern champions, Rollins College, Friday afternoon.

The Seminoles with a lineup studded with sophomores have a very good 9-2 record so far this season. Boasting the best sports mark at FSU this year, the Indians should be much stronger next season after a years experience.

2—Tom Cundy, Sophomore 5-6

3—Dave Kennedy, Sophomore 9-2

Baseball Squad Takes Week Rest Before Facing Georgia Teachers

Florida State's Seminoles, winners in 10 of 16 decisions this spring, will attempt to maintain their baseball mastery over Georgia Teachers College when they open a two-game series with the Professors in Statesboro, Ga., Friday.

Coach Ralph Matherly's Seminoles have never lost to Georgia Teachers, winning all four of the previous FSU - Professor games. The Indians walloped Georgia Teachers by 14-0 and 15-4 scores in a series here March 20-21.

After the two games with the Professors, the FSU nine will move on to Athens, for a tilt with the University of Georgia Bulldogs, Tuesday, April, 28. It will be the second meeting of the year with Georgia, who earlier in the year defeated the Seminoles in Tallahassee.

The Indians will have more than a week of inactivity before the Georgia Teachers' games, which is one of the longest lay-offs they have taken all season.

Playing at a .625 clip as they move into their last seven games, the Seminoles have experienced difficulty on the road, taking only two of five games. FSU has an 8-3 record on its home diamond.

The Seminoles had a four-game victory string going before Jacksonville Navy snapped it with a game-winning, ninth-inning homer here Wednesday.

High School Guests Visit State Capitol

Fifty-seven high school students from Bay County and Carrabelle High Schools visited the state capital last week.

They met their senators and representatives, toured the capitol, and enjoyed the hospitality of Florida State University.

The students were the first of hundreds who will visit Tallahassee while the legislature is in session. Those staying overnight are housed in FSU residence halls.

The program, Know Your Government, is sponsored by FSU. Cooperating are the high school administrators, state officials, and civic clubs in hometowns.

Each high school visitor is given a booklet, Know Your Government. It explains functions of the branches of state government and lists the state's senators and representatives.

Greeting the students last week were Sen. C. H. Bourke Floyd, Apalachicola, Sen. George C. Tapper, Port St. Joe; Rep. D. D. Mashburn and J. Ed Stokes of Bay County, and Rep. Bryant Patton of Franklin County.

After the tour through the capitol, students were entertained at a party on the campus.

Annual Short Course Offered; Second Motel Program Planned

Florida State University will offer a second annual Motor Court Short Course, April 27-May 1, the only program of study of its kind for motel operators in the Southeast.

University professors from Michigan State, University of Florida and Florida State University will lecture, giving the latest "how-to-do" facts on the business operation in clear, simple language. They will present slides and other audio-visual materials.

DR. HOWARD R. SEBOLD, University of Florida will take the motel-operator "students" on a tour of the country via color slides, showing them good and poor architecture and landscaping in motor courts.

DR. JANET A. SMITH, FSU, will answer questions about decorating motels, and arranging furniture for best sales appeal. How To Write a Promotion Letter and How To Train Employees are scheduled lecture subjects.

DR. DONALD L. LUNDBERG, head of the FSU restaurant and hotel managements department, said many operators plan to attend the course and write cost off as a business expense on their income tax returns. He said the travel involved and the whole nominal cost of the course will be a legitimate expense of operation.

The short course students will have a round of social events as well as a full schedule of class work. They will be guests for the opening night of the circus April 30, entertained by Tallahassee motel men, and feted at a final "graduation" banquet. Reservations should be made with the FSU Department of Restaurant and Hotel Management.

Dr. Lacayo Talks On Nicaragua

Pan-American Day, April 14 was observed on this campus with a talk on Nicaragua by Dr. Herberto Lacayo, associate professor of Spanish.

The native of Nicaragua said his homeland has the distinction of being the only country where an American citizen joined a revolution to become president, and then refused to claim American citizenship in order to escape execution.
